CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)— Any save year the nuclear-powered submarine George Washington into the Atlantic Ocean Tuesday armed with 16 thermonuclear-tipped missiles. The $110,000,000 sub, carrying the most destructive war force in history, slipped out of sight at sea.

Before the powerful 380-foot sub slipped beneath the water, President Eisenhower, vacationing at Augusta, Ga., said:

"The George Washington and her following sister ships possess a power and relative invulnerability which will make suicidal any attempt by an aggressor to attack the free world by surprise."

The subs, he said, "will perform a service to world peace worthy of the great American names they bear."

Capt. James B. Osborn, 42-year-old skipper of the vessel, stood on the conning tower puffing a cigar as he directed the big sub down the Cooper River. Its destination was not disclosed.

Admiral Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, told the crew of 100 in a radio message they will have proved the deterrent value of their task only "if the need to fire your missiles never arises."

The navy has said the 16 Polaris missiles in the George Washington equal in destructive power all of the bombs dropped during the Second World War.

Plan to Study All Statutes In Light of Bill of Rights

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker hopes to carry his civil rights beliefs into a new parliamentary endeavor — a thorough examination of all statutes and administrative action to guard against infringements on human rights and fundamental freedoms.

Informed sources say that in addition to the standing committees set up at each session, the new 1960-61 session probably will include a joint committee on broadcasting, the Civil Service Act, divorce procedure, and possibly the Unemployment Insurance Act.

The new "scrutiny committee" the prime minister favors would be similar to such committees in the United Kingdom Parliament, which examines every draft order-in-council and departmental regulation as necessary before they go into effect—to see that there is no infringement on individual liberties and that they do not go beyond the powers delegated to the administrative body by Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker wants the Canadian committee to go further. In addition to newly-promulgated orders and regulations, he wants the committee to study all statutes on the books now, as well as orders-in-council and regulations which have been in existence for many years.

Main purpose is to ensure that the principles of the Bill of Rights, passed by Parliament last summer, are adhered to in all laws flowing from the Parliament of Canada.

The government intends to continue its policy of submitting detailed departmental spending budgets to House committees for review, and keeping as many of the standing committees as busy as possible.

Mr. Diefenbaker, it is expected the broadcasting committee will be re-established this session to review the work of the Board of Broadcast Governors. Opposition members already have called for testimony from Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the board, on accusations of political partisanship in granting private television licences and in administering the code on political broadcasting.

Cuba Turning to Canada To Bolster Tourist Trade

HAVANA (CP) — Shorn of a tourist industry which, once brought in $80,000,000 in a single year, Cuba is turning to Canada for travellers to tourist the shrinking supply of dollars.

The move was signalled by Cuba's recent announcement that it intends to open tourist offices in Montreal and Toronto. The decision to set up offices was taken at a meeting of top tourist officials at which Canada's potential as a source of dollar-bearing guests was discussed.

Officials here say success of the campaign will hinge largely on Cuba's ability to woo winter tourists who traditionally choose the sunshine of Florida and the Bellish West Indies.

Tourist queries is whether Canada will agree to give Cuba's state-run airline, Cubana, landing rights at Expo 67 in Montreal. The government-controlled Cuban airline operates flights to the host city as a foregone conclusion, but it appears the matter is far from settled.

MAY NEED STUDY

Officials point out that as far as Canada is concerned the decision will depend on how great the tourist potential is. If the move is made some time ago, but in view of the "changed circumstances" another might be required, an official in Ottawa said.

He did not go into detail on the changed circumstances, but many believe he was referring to recent political events in this unsettled Caribbean area which has swung sharply to the left under the revolutionary regime of Premier Fidel Castro.

Under the impact of growing tension between Cuba and the United States, this country's once-thriving tourist industry has been crippled. While the prohibition was still based largely in the mountains of easternmost Oriente province, American visitors spent $80,000,000, making tourism the country's second largest industry after sugar.

FEW IN HOTELS

Today the great luxury hotels of Havana—long since taken over by the government—are cavernous and ghostlike. At the Habana Libre—formerly the Hilton—there are said to be only about 100 guests in the 630 rooms. Only while the fact that a room which cost to bring $30 a day during trade.

De Gaulle Plans Referendum on Algerian Plan

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle told his cabinet today he intends to call upon France to vote in a referendum on the new administrative organization for Algeria.

The new administration is to be created to rule until Algerians by a vote determine their own future.

The French referendum de Gaulle told the cabinet, will be called at the proper time.

In a speech Nov. 4 de Gaulle spoke of the possibility of a referendum but did not commit himself to it. In the same speech he said a new Algeria will be administered by the Algerians themselves at every level of government.

OPPOSED BY RIGHTISTS

The new policy, introducing the principle of self-determination, has stirred up right wing opposition, especially among veterans and Europeans in Algeria.

Several thousand young rightists in Algiers on Armistice Day last Friday, pelting police with bottles, tomatoes and other missiles. Fifty persons were injured.

Government authorities in Algiers met mounting tension today as they announced the release of arms and banning distribution of today's issues of two Paris newspapers.

Those arrested included a municipal councillor, known for his determined advocacy of an Algeria united to France, and the president of a local political group that follows Pierre Poujade, the French anti-tax demagogue.

The newspapers seized were France-Soir and Paris Presse.

SOVIETS WRITE OFF EISENHOWER AS BARGAINER

Talk to Kennedy On Disarmament

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) Russia has made clear it will not try to bargain on disarmament with the incoming Kennedy administration.

Valerian Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, sparked an attack report from U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth who called Moscow's position "a unjustified interference in the internal affairs of the United States."

Zorin and Wadsworth clashed in the political committee after Zorin made a caustic appraisal of a compromise resolution submitted by India and co-sponsored by a group of uncommitted countries.

The political committee was scheduled to take up disarmament again today.

LEADS TO SNIPING

Indian Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon proposed the compromise resolution. It was co-sponsored by 11 countries in all—and it called essentially for a renewal of East-West disarmament negotiations, but it resulted in a bitter fight between Zorin and Wadsworth.

Zorin's outburst was prompted by delegates that the current 15th General Assembly's attempt to resolve the arms deadlock is getting a dead end.

Zorin announced approval of the Indian draft and Wadsworth promptly replied that the United States said it wasn't acceptable in its present form because, in the U.S. view, it was weighted in favor of Soviet demands for a treaty on total disarmament.

Zorin accused Wadsworth of "sniping" at Russia for refusing an agreement on general and complete disarmament by insisting on "initial measures" which were in reality an attempt at espionage.

The Soviet spokesman said the Eisenhower administration had carried disarmament to a hopeless impasse.

He added: "The Soviet Union is ready to negotiate constructively with the new United States government on the basis of the Soviet proposals for general and complete disarmament with the Kennedy administration."

Wadsworth, an Eisenhower appointee, replied Zorin had no words about internal U.S. politics.

"This is not the way to do business and I regret that any such thing has been injected up in this committee," he said.

Canada is sponsoring another resolution, also calling for renewed negotiations and proposing a small committee of disarmament powers to assist the great powers to that goal.

Govt. Will Call Railway, Union Heads To Parley

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government appears to be ready to step in to try to avert a nation-wide rail strike called for Dec. 3.

The strike deadline was set Tuesday by 15 union heads representing 111,000 non - operating rail employees and it seemed to most observers that the only hope of preventing it lay in federal intervention.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker had no comment when informed of the strike but it was indicated later the government planned to call company and union leaders to Ottawa, perhaps this afternoon for last - ditch talks with the prime minister and Labor Minister Starr.

Both the CNR and CPR said they had no immediate comment on the strike-call.

The strike would take every railway service, except suburban, firemen, brakemen and conductors, off trains and out of railway yards, shops and offices and halt every train in Canada from Sydney, Nova Scotia to the end of the Pacific Great Eastern in British Columbia.

Ottawa observers felt there might be some hint of government plans in the House of Commons when Parliament opens Thursday.

PRESENTS DILEMMA

A ticklish dilemma confronts the government, observers said today for which observers see no easy solution.

The issues not only the strike threat itself but also a freeze on wages imposed by the Conservative royal commission inquiry into railway problems. It sets $30,000 federal subsidy rolling back certain freight rates and, possibly, future procedures for railway-labor collective bargaining.

All are inter-related in one of the trickiest labor problems ever faced by the federal government. A cabinet meeting is expected to be largely devoted to the railway crisis.

In the last few weeks there have been reports and plans for new different kinds of intervention—legislation calling for compulsory arbitration and a federal subsidy to pay the immediate costs of the wage increase package recommended by a federal conciliation board last August.

"There isn't a Democrat in the whole community."

Liz Taylor's Illness Is Diagnosed As Mild Meningism, Not Meningitis

LONDON (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor's illness Tuesday has been diagnosed as a comparatively mild form of meningism, not meningitis covering the brain. It is called meningism and usually is found in children.

Fears were expressed Sunday that the 28-year-old film star in the London Clinic that she might be suffering from meningitis. Those fears ruling out meningitis was announced Tuesday night.

A spokesman for Dr. Carl Goldman, physician for Miss Taylor, explained Tuesday night: "Liz's tooth problem is all under control. She is having tremendous improvement."

Rumors persist around the big set at nearby Pinewood that Cleopatra, which Miss Taylor was supposed to work, may be postponed or scrapped. The director lies with Spyros Skouras president of 20th Century Fox. Skouras flew to London by jet last Sunday had cost "millions of dollars."

Vipond Opens Swimming Pool For Retarded

TORONTO (CP)—The letter that most impressed sports editor Jim Vipond of The Globe and Mail was a few thousands that reached him — was one from nine-year-old Jimmy.

Vipond recalled the letter Tuesday as he opened a swimming pool for the Metropolitan Association for Retarded Children in central Toronto, on the fringe of the downtown area.

It climaxed a campaign of Vipond's own devising. Vipond, The Globe and Mail and the Metropolitan Toronto Association to raise funds for a pool where hundreds of retarded youngsters in the area could develop strength, co-ordination and physical skill.

The pool cost $180,000. About $30,000 remains to be raised.

The butter regulations are included in the first major revision of the Act since 1949. Provision is made for older dairy products, including cheese, processed milk and cream.

ANTENNA PIPE USED TO BREAK LARGE WINDOW

A four-foot section of TV antenna pipe was used last night to smash a large plate glass window at the rear of the Pinnacle Street Zoblaw store. Night police officers of the city police department found the broken window shortly after midnight and later investigation disclosed the section of iron pipe inside the store.

Police, however, do not believe the night operator was actually inside the store as the hole in the plate glass was too high to allow easy access. Traces of blood were found on the broken glass.

Harry Langabeer Was Popular Barber in City

William Henry (Candy) Langabeer, well known and popular barber of Front Street, for many years before retirement two years ago, died suddenly in the Belleville General Hospital early this Wednesday morning. He suffered a heart attack at his home 50 West Moira Street, on Tuesday evening and was rushed to the hospital, but succumbed to the seizure.

Mr. Langabeer was born in Sidney township, 74 years ago being the son of the late Mr and Mrs. Harry Langabeer and had resided in this community all of his life. He was educated in the township school and Belleville high school, and at an early age took up barbering. For many years he was in front chair beside Tim Sullivan, and when Mr. Sullivan retired he became the business and continued it until he sold out to retire in retirement.

He was highly respected by a wide clientele in this city and district and during his business life tended to the tonsorial wants of two and three generations of the same family. The shop was always a gathering place to talk on everything from politics to fishing and hunting. "Candy" as he was known to his legion of friends, was an ardent angler. Many years ago he built a commodious summer cottage at Massassaga, where he spent many happy summers. He was a proficient angler and was one of the best bass fishermen in these parts. If the fish were around "Candy" always got his share.

He enjoyed the friendship of a wide circle of friends who will sincerely regret his sudden death. He was a member of Holloway Street United Church and is survived by his wife, the former Frances Lang, one daughter, Jack Langabeer of London; one brother, Frank Langabeer of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Harris of Wallbridge and Mrs. Harry Pound of Thurlow township.

The funeral will be held on Friday with interment at Belleville cemetery.

Question of Lot Entrance Discussed by Revision Court

TRENTON — The 1960 Trenton court of revision resumed its sessions last night after a recess of four days, Sitting were the chairman, Dr. R. Fraser, Bowen and Aziz, Harold Turney and Frank Miron, O. W. Larry was present in his capacity as clerk and the assessor, Allan Smith and assistant, Carl Charlton were also in attendance.

Lloyd Worrall, who appealed on the 1959 court of revision assessment, came before the court representing the Galen Reid Company.

Mr. Worrall was appealing the assessment on land at 54 Front St, used as a parking lot for new and used cars by Weaver Motors.

This is a corner lot, facing Front St. with the side of the property being on Elgin St. Mr. Worrall claimed that the assessment should have been applied to the Front St. frontage which is 66 feet wide rather than on the Elgin St. side width of 184 feet. He said that up until the past two years the assessment department had done so. The previous record on the lot is registered as running in property sequence along Front St. The difference in assessment would be $1,020 and the tax on this would be roughly $90. Mr. Worrall said that his client was "fighting on a principle" rather than for the money involved.

Mr. Smith said that his department had considered that the lot in question was entered from Elgin St. and that it "was up to the discretion of the assessor." To assess corner lots from what he considered the service entrance to the lot.

Mr. Worrall said that there was nothing in the act covering assessment that was something about "the discretion of the assessor." He said that since the lot was registered as a part of Front St. it should be assessed as such.

Mr Worrall also appealed a property at 54 Bridge St. E. He compared the house on the property, with the smaller summer houses, which have a higher rental value and a higher resale value.

PUT IN E CATEGORY

Mr Worrall said that the Trenton assessment department placed too much emphasis on replacement value. He said that more emphasis should be placed on the economic factors involved, such as the rental value and the actual value.

Mr. Smith said that the house had been put on a "E" category one of the lowest on the assessment rolls.

Mr Worrall said that there was nothing in the act about A, B, C, D, and E values. He said that Trenton could not set up systems on her own.

Mr. Smith said that he was doing mass appraisal and could have an over-all guide to go by.

"After you get over the mass appraisal you should get down to individual cases," countered Mr Worrall. "The primary concern is to provide suitable accommodation for people This way we are subsidizing second and third class rental units".

An apartment house at 104 Henry St. was also appealed by the company represented by Mr. Worrall. He claimed that the apartment house was 30 years old and had two basement apartments. He said that the assessment was too high when compared with apartment houses, which do have apartments in the basement.

Mr. Smith conceded that the apartment house in question was "overbuilt" from today's standards. The rooms are larger than normal.

Court chairman, Dr. R. Fraser said that these apartments were nicer than ordinary and that in his opinion more rental should be charged for them. Councillor Aziz agreed with this reasonable.

Mr. Worrall said that in actual practice, basement apartments are only assessed for 25 per cent of the upper floor apartments, and that he thought the upper floor apartments assessment should be cut back and the basement apartment assessment increased. He then records a lot is registered as running in property sequence along Front St. The difference in assessment would be $1,020 and the tax on this would be roughly $90. Mr. Worrall said that his client was "fighting on a principle" rather than for the money involved.

New Addition To High School Will Start Soon

TRENTON — George Greer, chairman of the planning committee on the Trenton board of education, reported to the board members Monday night that representative of the Fidelity Construction Company of Oshawa, the firm awarded the contract to construct the new addition to Trenton high school, would be in Trenton this week to confer with members of the board concerning details or minor adjustments to the contract.

Start of the construction has been delayed due to the slowness of the Ontario Municipal Board to give final approval of the project. This approval was forwarded by telegram to the Trenton board this week.

Mr. Greer said that the Fidelity company might seek a readjustment in the overall price for the construction, as the subcontractors' prices may fluctuate month to month. He said that certain rumors circulating in local people to the effect that the Fidelity company's financial status was "shaky" and that the Trenton board might prefer to delay the installation of the new boiler until next summer had "upset" one of the principals in the firm.

Other board members could not understand why "such groundless street" rumors would upset officials of a firm.

It is hoped that the construction will commence shortly. The new addition must be ready for occupancy by next fall when an expected 1,000 students will be attending the school. The Fidelity company originally guaranteed to have the addition erected by late spring.

Will Change Appliances At No Cost

TRENTON — Howard Hallick of the Trenton Hydro Electric Commission was prepared to change the appliances in the high school home economics room every two years at no charge to the board.

The washer and the dryer would be changed this year and the two stoves next year. In two years time the washer and dryer would be replaced again.

Mr. Hallick said that the manufacturers were co-operating to give approximately one-third of the cost, because of local students attending the school. The Trenton commission will be able to sell the used appliances. He said that the commission would also supply appliances on same basis for kitchens or home economics rooms in public schools.

The high school principal, W. E. Houston, board members Robert Barker, chairman of supply, and the high school home economics teacher will discuss the school's requirements and advise Mr. Hallick accordingly.

Non-Resident Students Must Pay Full Fee

TRENTON — Dr. T. A. McNally, appointed member to the Trenton board of education, has compiled a book of by-laws for the use of the present board and future boards. Monday night, board members considered the final draft.

The by-laws state that non-resident students attending Trenton high schools should be charged the maximum amount allowed under the school act.

Clause stating that local school teachers should refrain from taking part in all commerce or industry during the hours they are not engaged in teaching was deleted from the final draft. The staff-board committees of the high school and public schools both objected to this clause.

It was pointed out that married female teachers must attend to household duties after school hours and also that in all probability the board did not have the right to restrain any teacher from working.

Several items on the agenda could not be voted upon due to the fact that board members D. Aziz and Frank Fillon left the meeting early.

Brief History Of Local Key Club Given

A former Key Club member, now a Kiwanian, was the guest speaker at the Kinsmal Kiwanis Key Club joint meeting held at the Kiwanis Centre yesterday afternoon. Kiwanian Dave Deacon, a former five-year member of the BCIVS Key Club, spoke on the topic "Key Clubs — Are We Building?"

The speaker gave a brief history of the local Key Club since its founding in 1947, one of the first Key Clubs in Canada, a listed number of the projects, which its members had carried out during the past 19 years. He noted that the local club was but one of over 2,000 Key Clubs with over 50,000 members.

Membership in these clubs has played an important part in the development of the character of a great number of boys; providing them with an environment which promotes fellowship, understanding and leadership. The activities of each club is limited only by the imagination of its members, Mr. Deacon suggested.

It was the responsibility of the Kiwanians to be willing to guide Key Club activities through the provision of experience and good examples, asserted the speaker.

"We are building but (we) must continue to build for a better future through Key Clubs," concluded Mr. Deacon.

The major part of the meeting was presided over by Key Club president Robert Burr and numerous Kiwanians found that the absence of Kiwanian president George Tripp from the chair did not mean any laxity as far as the control of the meeting and the awarding of fines were concerned. Chairman Tripp was assisted in the latter matter by sergeant-at-arms Bill Spencer.

A sing-song was led by Key Clubber Bill Neptune with fellow-members Jim Stanfield and Brian MacKenzie "introducing and thanking the speakers" respectively.

Hurray for One-Way Streets!

Belleville's experiment with one-way streets is little more than a week old but is already a resounding success.

Already? What, one may ask, has time got to do with it?

Plenty, the experts agree. It takes time for any such system to work as smoothly as possible. So it can confidently be predicted that the best is yet to come—but already there has been a great improvement in the movement of traffic, particularly at rush hours.

There have been, of course, some minor complaints. On the whole, though, the vast majority of local motorists appear whole-heartedly in favor of the system and any suggest to revert to the two-way muddle of the past would bring a chorus of protests.

The complaint heard most frequently, perhaps, is that traffic is travelling too fast. However, Chief-of-Police R. W. Perfect estimates that the average speed of traffic on Front St. is between 23 and 25 miles an hour, well under the 30-miles-an-hour speed limit. True this rate of movement is considerably in excess of that which formerly prevailed in the business area and creates some hazards, but these should be lessened as time passes and motorists and pedestrians alike become accustomed to the new pace. The whole idea of one-way streets was to move traffic faster. There will be general agreement amongst citizens, though, that it behooves police to be doubly vigilant to prevent abuses, particularly at late afternoon and evening hours.

For the first few days, there were many pedestrians who narrowly escaped injury because, dashing off the curb on the east side of Front Street or the west side of Pinnacle Street, they looked to the left and saw that the road was clear, forgetting that traffic was flowing down the street from the right. However, no mishaps occurred. As time passes, and all become accustomed to the new system, the likelihood of accidents from this cause should lessen. Already police believe they can detect an increased use of the marked crossings at intersections by pedestrians. The increased speed at which traffic is flowing makes it both necessary and probable that the tendency to jay-walk will decrease.

An unexpected bonus from the system appears to be that it has become easier to find parking space on Front St. At first thought, there would appear no logical reason why this should be so. Police, however, have two possible explanations. One is that more motorists are using the parking lot on the driveway behind the stores on the west side of Front St., now that one-way traffic makes it much easier to get out onto Front St. from the exit from the parking area. The other is that motorists now can look for parking spaces on either side of the street, and not on the first vacant space by merely switching lanes, instead of driving for blocks to reverse the direction in which they are travelling.

This lane-switching brings up another point. A certain amount of changing from lane to lane is not only permissible but desirable if full advantage is to be made of the fact that all traffic is travelling in the same direction. Motorists must use all lanes to get the maximum benefit from the system. But caution is needed and signals should be given. Lane-switching policemen are expected to ease when the lanes are clearly marked, as it is planned to do.

Another minor problem concerns parking meters on the left side of the one-way streets. They were set for traffic travelling in the other direction. The meters are thus, in fact, at the rear rather than the front of the parking spaces—but motorists should use the meters at the front of their cars.

A few meters will have to be changed, one being removed from the rear of each block and placed at the front. This work, too, will be done eventually.

Meanwhile Chief Walter Probert, Inspector J. C. Hayes, whose particular responsibility this traffic change has been, and all members of the police department are pleased with the co-operation they have received from local motorists—as pleased as are the vast majority of motorists with the change itself and the manner in which police have handled it.

Miracles of the Universe
Birth of the Universe -- Steady-State Theory

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY

ARTICLE 37

This universe has existed forever and will exist forever. It will become bigger and bigger as time passes by. But it time goes on, new stars and then new galaxies will form, to fill up the space vacated by the galaxies that are speeding further and further away.

This, in essence, is how the advocates of the Steady-State Theory see the universe. It was always there and it always will be, with new material must form to fill the void that develops through expansion.

This is the thing of three articles which describe the three leading theories of how the universe began.

The first theory is called the Primordial Atom Theory, the second the Pulsation Theory or the "Big Bang" Theory. That theory envisages the whole universe in a very compact ball which explodes and spews hot gas out into space, which, when it cools, sets and planets develop. The universe started with a "Big Bang" and it will expand unto infinity.

The second theory we discussed is called Theory or the "Accordion" Theory. In that the universe has existed since infinity and will exist until infinity. It sees the universe like a rug rolling out its full length and then being balled into a ball destroying itself—only to be rolled out once again and create a new looking universe from old bits of the earlier universe. It also resembles an accordion in this theory, which expands and contracts — taking 30 billion years to contract (the universe is 1-2 way through one cycle at the moment).

AS TO THE FUTURE

The Steady-State theory, the third theory, holds:

1. That the universe has existed since infinity and will exist since infinity.

2. It does not involve a "Big Bang" or the "Rolling"—"Rolling out" of the first two theories.

3. It acknowledges that the universe is getting larger by the hour by 100's of millions of miles. At the same time it acknowledges as Einstein's notice that there is a definite average density of matter.

4. Therefore, the theory holds that if the universe is getting larger and expanding, then new matter is being created in terms of new stars which form into additional galaxies (made out of new hydrogen atoms constantly being created in the universe) which maintains a constant ratio of matter to space as the expanding universe.

From theory to infinity. Certainly infinity at the early end appears quite logical to religious because what happened in the beginning or before the beginning is not for the mind of us to understand how the universe could always have existed. Surely there was a beginning.

That theory may cause difficulty to many minds, but does it cause more difficulty than these people, than what existed before the beginning of heaven and earth?

Some maintain that there is something else, of which the universe, we know it, may be but a part. Those are questions far beyond the interpretative intent of these articles. These articles are difficult enough in relating what has been thinks without launching widely into philosophy and religion at the same time.

ONE OF BILIONS

Then there is the theory upon a tiny planet which is circling around a small star which we call the Sun. This planet is the Big Ball in a very important star. Furthermore, it is but one of over 1000 billion stars in the Milky Way. The Milky Way is called a galaxy. A galaxy is really a tremendous bowl full of stars. Our galaxy is but one of only one galaxy out of over one billion galaxies man can see through his most powerful telescopes.

CONCEPTION OF UNIVERSE

Other articles deal more specifically with these aspects which are not the main purpose of this article. The main purpose is to describe the three theories called "The Steady-State Universe", but to do that one has to have some concept of what the universe is composed. The universe possesses literally over one billion galaxies. Many scientists believe that in the universe there are possibly billions of planets, hundreds of millions of which may possess life, of which some may be of a higher order than Homo Sapiens.

The Steady-State theory holds that the universe has always existed and always will exist. Hoyle said he pictures the universe as a fluid of gas expanding in an even. The raisins are the galaxies.

As the farthest galaxies speed into the reaches of the universe at speeds up to 300,000,000 miles an hour, space is left from whence fled the speeding galaxies. No hole really develops because hydrogen atoms produced from radiant energy appear, which form into stars and then into galaxies to keep a hole from forming in the middle — so, the universe remains a calm and does not become a doughnut with a hole in the middle.

This theory satisfies a number or requirements but like all of the others, leaves many questions unanswered.

The universe cannot expand and contract at the same time (nor can a balloon) It's like trying to suck and whistle in the same breath) The universe is expanding, for the farthest galaxies can be fleeing from us at rates up to 300,000,000 miles per hour. Hubble appears to have held that there must also still be a given average density in the universe. If he is right in that respect, and if the universe is expanding, then obviously, to fill the increasing spaces created by expansion, new matter must be created to do the job -- (sort of "Universe Sex").

THE MYSTERY CONTINUES

The advocates of this theory say that the new matter is formed in the attendance for the needed every so often, in space, which, in turn, develop into stars and these stars form new galaxies.

Exactly, the right number of atoms are created to keep the universe constant is a secret. Secrets follow on Einstein's Theory of Relativity).

All three theories include new stars being formed but only this theory requires it. Each of the theories be created to keep the hole from developing in the middle of the doughnut as the outside edges flee into space.

It is contrary to my purpose in these articles as an interpreter, to form and express an opinion but it seems to me as a layman, that Hoyle's theory is the most logical. $70,000,000 miles an hour for any many galaxies there in the universe then, Steady-State theory must fail to the

Short Tales Of Mystery

Ottawa Journal

Some of the most intriguing stories in the world's newspapers never get into the news columns. Short tales of mystery and pathos, romance and comedy buried among pags for paigit medicine ads and boring boxes of fine print classified advertisements. One issue of the Ottawa Journal yielded:

"Lady bought in weak moment unknown to husband exquisite Kenmore suit, size 14, perfect fit. Accept £35 for way out." Will anyone care to guess what the husband or the poor fit was the reason the offering was ever put on to the man who offers it to Hells-Boyces: "Owner must sell to acquire operation."

A small but secret vice is suggested by a request for a "strong sex wanted privately". One is invited to "accompany two ladies, thirties, on month's vacation". An actor, "urgently seeks partner to assist in vaudeville combing agents" and pleads "have talent — need discovery". And a millgerder art school proprietor is desirous of selling "a soft sell by starting with the side mission. "It sounds ludicrous, the idea of learning oil painting by post".

"Our last party was a beauty - - - the neighbors came up to complain about the noise."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 16, 1940

In the absence of a principal speaker at the Tuesday dinner meeting of the Kiwanis Club, the members took over the meeting, and the program of the club and the achievement of organization during the past year was reviewed for the benefit of the youngmembers.

Ross Stiver completed the report of the delegates to the District Convention at Trenton; he told the members that the attendance for the year was down from the previous year, 74.23 per cent. The clubs had a total membership of 94 net and Belleville applied 25 per cent of the total new members obtained, which added to a very creditable record.

Jack McIntosh, chairman of membership, said that there had been fourteen new members join the club in this term and that a larger number could be secured if room was available.

Harold Seldon, chairman of welfare, explained that the committee worked quite efficiently but always doing a fine job of assistance. He stated that the V.O.N. clinic rent, gave medicine to children in need and that the committee members were always willing to act as inspectors for tonsils and other ailments provided the consent of parents who were not able to pay the same.

Charlie Tripp, chairman of the agriculture committee, believed that the Poultry Project would have a far reaching effect. Ted Hughes, chairman of the sports committee, spoke of the work of the Ki-Y hockey and softball seasons, stating that 313 players had participated in the two sports. The Boys' and Girls' Work Committee under the direction of Mrs. Carruthers, reported a busy year. Dick Flynn presided. Guests were Miss Erdson as sergeant-at-arms, and Leo B. Riggs presided at the piano.

The YMCA Conference for Eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes will meet in Montreal on November 26th, 27th and 28th. Delegates from wille YMCA will be representatives at the meetings, representing the board of directory and by one representative for staff. The Rev. Dr. Cummings, representing the board of directory and by one representative for staff. The following sections: employed officers, Canadian, student, young men and the Y's Men's Association.

"By early next week, it is hoped, all pouring of concrete for the Belleville section of the filtration plant will have been completed," according to one of the men in charge of the work. The Ontario Intelligencer was informed today that the recent weather has aided the building.

NOVEMBER 16, 1920

Belleville was visited by a disastrous fire which broke out shortly after one p.m. in the Palace Theatre on (Front St.) The fire spread rapidly and shortly after it was discovered, flames burst from the main entrance to the theatre and it was evident that the building was doomed. As the flames were spreading to the upper floors of the fire department under the direction of Chief Brown arrived promptly and did heroic work but the building was beyond saving. Chief Brown directed the second floor were occupied by several tenants and some of the women jumped down the windows to the portico above the front of the main entrance to the theatre and were assisted to the ground. The tenants lost their effects, but were fortunate to escape with their lives. The firemen succeeded in confining the fire to the building. As the Bank of Commerce to the northward the burned building and the Perfect Cafe to the south of the same building were flooded to some extent with water and considerable smoke.

50 YEARS AGO

NOVEMBER 16, 1910

The steamer "Belleville," which went aground near Grafton, has been floated and is now at Cobourg. She was released by the "Chieftain."

A letter attached to Mr. William McGee's delightful program ran away on Front Street this afternoon but was caught at Victoria Avenue before much damage was done.

Mr. T. F. Brown, a resident of Belleville for 25 years, left today for Toronto where he will reside.

Mr. George Ross of Brockville, spent yesterday here with friends.

Mr. Michael Manley of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, is spending a short time in town.

Politeness Turns Wheels Of Society

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"Hey, Buddy!" "The policeman on the next street car leaned out of his window and barked at me, as if I was climbing into my car at the curb. "Let your driver's licence".

It seems that I had parked too close to a fire hydrant, and the policeman had just finished writing out a ticket. I didn't object, and handed him my driver's licence.

"Oh, I'm sorry, Mr. Harris" he said in a changed tone of voice. "I wish you'd come back a little sooner. The ticket's all written out. You remember your car next time".

He drove off, expecting me to be pleased at this recognition and remember his name, but not. For it is exactly his changed tone of voice that creates so much resentment in the minds of policemen in many big cities.

"Hey, Buddy!" "Hey, bud-dy!" at one moment, and "Mr. Harris" the next! Suppose I were Mr. Lloyd Harris? Would he be entitled to courtesy, to be addressed as sir?. Is courtesy used as a responsible member of the community until otherwise proved?

Why should there be two attitudes — one for celebrities, the whole social structure, not merely the police, seems to exist for so-called celebrities, and another for unknown citizens? Is it natural that a be-bit should be reserved for the famous or powerful; is it a necessary adjustment to make the wheels of society turn more smoothly?

One of the first differences an urban traveller notices in London, for instance, is the courtesy of the English bobby. He treats every person like a potential prime minister; and, because he expects respect, he gets respect. England may have its corrupt policemen (human fallure being what it is) but I have yet to find a rude one.

Why are city police, on the contrary, tend to treat every citizen like a law-breaker, until he proves himself some important, private credentials. The courts judge the innocent until proved guilty; the police too often judge a man guilty until he proves his innocence. If he is poor and powerless, sometimes the presumption is one protection against their arrogance, suspicion and contempt.

I was rather pleased nor gratified at being recognized; indeed, I was ashamed at being treated differently than Mr. Blah. Not until we eliminate the Hey, buddy!" mentality from the police force will the community look upon the police as protectors more than as persecutors.

To Your Good Health

CHECKUPS MUST BE CO-OPERATIVE VENTURE

Periodic physical checkups are good for everybody.

But there aren't enough doctors to check them.

However, not everybody will ask for such a checkup, and I think it's up to what doctors should have to take pains with what patients we have who've come for checkups.

I doubt whether the average patient realizes how much a physician can tell about a person without the patient knowing it. Seeing the patient walk in gives a doctor some ideas. His color, vigor or lassitude, skin texture, posture, breathing (asthmatic or normal), fingernails, voice (including cough, hoarseness, etc.) present some ideas.

Just as important is the information the patient gives. Never go to your doctor with the attitude of "Here I am! Now you figure out how sick I am" That's a guessing game. This is a game I don't want to play with my health! So tell the doctor anything unusual you've noticed about yourself. But don't, of course, waste time trying to think up things to tell your doctor.

Tell him about any lumps, pains, loss of appetite or breathing, wakling, sleeping, bowel habits. Tell him whether your appetite is good or bad, whether you eliminate normally and whether you've noticed any sount your body or your habits that has changed. And let it go at that.

Be sure that, I trust, usual habits of bathroom, food and bile ears. For a modest cost he can add a few more details about a chest X-ray either at your hospital or, if available, through one of the mobile units which do so much good work.

It's my feeling that the best way to do the most good at the least cost is to get back to the idea of the patient in the habit of having a checkup once a year. Maybe less often with young, healthy patients, and perhaps more often as we reach advanced years and have more of the symptoms that develop as we grow older.

The checkups are routine, give your doctor a break, help him you just want a checkup and let him fit it into his busy hours. He has any.

If you have an emergency, tell him so on the phone; If it's not an emergency, tell him that, too, on the phone; If it's not an emergency, tell him that, too, and

And for doctors, here's my vow: To do the most basic tests each time I examine a patient, evaluation of the patient's components, blood pressure, hearts, lungs, and — well, you know what I mean. These add the other things, such as X-ray, EKG, and others in relation. By pressure, I'd say a blood count, urinalysis, and (at the proper age level) the "Pap" or "smear test" each time, for patients of appropriate age and sex.

In short, there's room within modest limits, depends on your good sense, to make this a cooperating venture. The patient can't "wait until he's sick," and physicians can't expect the patient to pay for "the works" every time.

Good sense on both sides is all I'm urging. Can we still do it, can't we?

Answer: Dr. Molner: Why am I so terrifically thirsty all the time? I had a borderline diabetes test which proved I had to normal now. V.V.

Dear Vv: The diabetes shocked again — because maybe it hasn't stayed back to normal. The excessive thirst is a very suspicious sign.

M. E. P.: The "brown streak" on the shoulders sounds like a dandruff, or even a birthmark. See a skin specialist.

Removal of tonsils is a serious matter. You will find more data on tonsils in my pamphlet, "Tonsils, Yes or Tonsils", plus a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. NEW THINGS

New things have a fascination for me. A new book, a new picture, a new piece of music, a piece of furniture, I like to touch new things.

Recently I bought for my home a new piece of furniture that I had wanted, and had saved money for years. Why hadn't I bought it before? Because I had new things. That is the way of the world, it seems.

The best of sense, however, is to add to one's personal pleasure as well as one's usefulness by living within one's personal means.

Many of my most cherished possessions I am happy to say I made it a point to share with others, whenever possible. This is the way I like all things, and I doubly happy that we can share with others our accumulation of interesting things. Seeing our treasures may start another off on an interesting treasure quest.

New things and new ideas refresh the mind and keep it young. During these times when we need any number of new things, any new interests, we keep us alive and watchful. We all crave for beauty and pleasant things that keep us young, for newness to our mind and heart. There is no end to the life discovered, yet old things can ever become a part of the new like prized books, and certain valued antiques, in furnishing a new home.

Do not lose heart or faith during these prevalent unhappy attacks of gloom. It is a free world. Free to interest yourself in new things and the things of interest about you.

THE PACKSACK

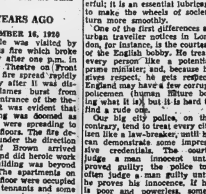
BY GREGORY CLARK

A fiction writer of my acquaintance has spent all the past spring, summer and autumn in a hideaway writing a series of novels. His principal interest is based on what he believes to be a new theme.

"In these dramas," he tells me, "there are no good guys. They are all bad guys. Bad guys, by and, make it a point to have wins."

"One of the bad guys," said he. "I'm sick and tired, and I think the public is sick and tired, of the good guys always winning. It is time we had a few bad guys who knows it."

"Oh, come now!" I protested.



"It's a fact," said he. "All history consists of bad guys battling with other bad guys. I look at first as if a good guy won. But on an intensive research I find a bad guy; and some other bad guy, for the moment looking like a good guy, comes along and beats him. And so on. In business, as any new listener, all the bad guys get to the top. And all crash, they're battling one another. In real life, all the main excitement is bad guys fighting bad guys."

"Have you sold the series?" I asked.

"No," said he.

Northern Electric Co. Holds 'Family Night' Plant Display

The first three evenings of this week are unique in the history of the local Northern Electric plant. For the first time since the firm was established in this community back in 1947, its production schedule, which has been mainly government-contract work and hence subject to security control, has been of such a nature as to allow visitors to inspect the plant's assembly and fabricating lines in operation.

At this opportune time the plant manager decided to hold a "Family Night." Actually this event had to be spread over three nights in order to accommodate the 2,400 people making the visit. Much organization work, in order to facilitate parking, feeding, hat and coat checking and providing information, had to be done.

Departmental and section chiefs tackled these problems with both vim and vigor. Due to repairs being carried out in the main parking lot, visitors were accommodated in the shipping and receiving lot. Much ingenuity went to park on the street had to be obtained from the local police department, to allow for tiny overflow, which there definitely was.

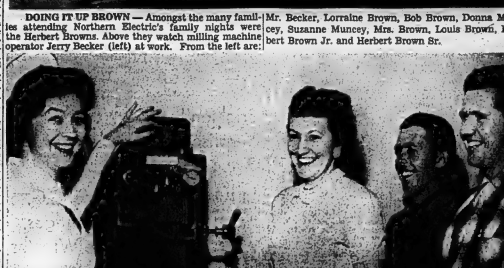
A route was planned out and well marked so that visitors, who were accompanied by their immediate 'host, could readily find their way through the complex array of machinery and production lines.

For many, even long-time company employees, a number of the scenes they witnessed they were seeing for the first time. The regular shift was in full operation. Machines of all types hummed away in the metal fabricating shops and in numerous areas, such as the transformer shop, where coil-winding was in progress. Visitors hurried to watch the girls on duty display their dexterity in producing complicated assemblies.

CLOSED CIRCUIT TV

Another highlight of the tour was the closed circuit television system set up in the inspection department. Here visitors could watch themselves on the monitors set up for demonstration. Also on hand for their inspection was a radar speed meter of the type used by the Provincial Police.

The medical department was also open, just in case any visitor should get into difficulty, although no one did. Many admired the modern facilities available. The data processing department with its IBM machine proved to be another focal point for the visitors' interest.



Other sections visited included the shipping and drafting departments as well as the test department.

Following the tour of the plant visitors were treated to light refreshments served by the office staff in the cafeteria. Numerous designers' drawings hung on the walls of this area, proving of interest to the visitors.

All in all, family night at the Northern proved to be quite a success.

Pathologists To Hold 10th Conference

The staff of the Department of Pathology of the Belleville General Hospital will be hosts for the tenth semi-annual conference of workers in Pathology and allied sciences in Eastern Ontario on the evening, November 18. Pathologists from Pembroke, Ottawa, Cornwall, Brockville, Kingston and Peterborough are expected to attend.

Before settling down to the serious topics to be discussed at the conference, the guests are invited to gather for dinner at the Hotel Quinte. The common denominator of mutual interests and problems will be dealt with associates and new together providing a period of relaxation after long drives.

The staff of the Department of Pathology at B.G.H. are particularly pleased to have the facilities of the New Education Hall at their disposal for the first time. The conference will be called to order by Dr. A. P. Scott at 8.00 p.m. Four local doctors will deliver papers.

MILE POST

Use of Education Hall marks a mile post in the steady advance in growth at B.G.H. This conference is also another indication that progress is on the move as far as medical services to this community are concerned. The links in the chain of improvement towards health and welfare in the city and county are being strengthened quietly. The district welcomes the Pathologists.

Plan Voters' Committee Election Review

The Belleville Voters Committee met last Sunday to assess their progress in connection with the forthcoming election. Reports from the selection committee, advertising committee, finance committee and public relations committee were scrutinized and progress was rated as being satisfactory to date.

It was decided that a joint meeting of all ratepayers would be called on Thursday evening at Parkdale Community Centre, in order to acquaint the public with the activities that would be carried out. A notice of the meeting appears elsewhere in this edition of The Ontario Intelligencer.

In for Light Winter Says Tribe Member

BIRCH ISLAND, Ont. (CP) One man's poll of the animal kingdom Tuesday resulted in reassurance for fearful handlers of snow shovels: We're in for a light winter.

Day Kay, 60, says his survey found beavers thickening their den walls and squirrels deepening their burrows —two signs that the animals don't expect much insulating snow.

Lands and forests department employees say Kay, a member of the Birch Island Indian reserve, has been "pretty accurate" in his past predictions.

Birch Island is about 50 miles west of Sudbury.

Sgt. Blatchford Stresses Six Safety Rules at H-S Meeting

After spending a half hour visiting the various classrooms, a capacity crowd filled the auditorium of Queen Victoria School for the regular monthly meeting of the Home and School Association on Monday evening.

The president, Mrs. J. Smith opened the meeting.

After thanking the members who helped support UNICEF and who assisted with the Retarded Children's classes, the president announced that there would be a joint meeting of all Home and School Association members in Queen Victoria School on Thursday evening to discuss the teaching of French in Elementary School. All members were urged to attend this important meeting.

Mr. Frisk the principal of Queen Victoria School, explained the system of yard which will soon be distributed.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. E. Fairman, principal of the Harry C. Hagerman School introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Sgt. Blatchford, safety officer for the city police department.

Mr. Fairman stated that Sgt. Blatchford has a host of friends in the children of Belleville.

Sgt. Blatchford stressed the importance of the Safety Officer to address the Home and School Association in order to meet the parents. The prime responsibility of safety rests with the parents. There is a direct line of communication between the parents and the safety officer. He asked the parents to teach children to respect a policeman, not fear him.

It is most important that parents set a good example for their children as children will follow their parents' example. Many accidents involving children come from a bad example.

SIX SAFETY RULES

Sgt. Blatchford stressed the Six Elementary Rules for Safety, which co-operate with the Elmer Safety Rules: look in all directions before crossing street; always walk and never run; never cross between parked cars; ride bicycles only on bicycles; never play on sidewalks; where there is no sidewalk walk on left hand side of road; if out at night, wear something white.

He stressed that children should be taught to obey traffic signs and the traffic guard who is there to protect them. If an adult is crossing a street with children, a guard is available also cross with the guard.

The co-operation of the parents is asked to assist with the safety projects in order to set up safe routes for children to and from school, library, church.

The sergeant stated that bicycle restrictions are for the safety of the children and reminded everyone that it is a privilege to operate a bicycle, and with privileges come responsibilities. He said that the children should be aware of these responsibilities and adhere to all safety regulations.

An enthusiastic question and answer period followed Sergt. Blatchford's address with many members participating.

Mrs. J. Winstanley expressed the thanks of the Home and School Association to the guest speaker and invited everyone to stay for coffee.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

This very welcome, but unseasonal, weather has proved that women are not conditioned by the weather when it comes to the question of Christmas buying. I might think that we would forget about the calendar when there are still a few flowers around outside. However, there are many women who have already done their Christmas shopping done as well as Christmas cards ready; I must be that they are finally obeying the old admonition, "Do Your Christmas Shopping Early."

The first paragraph is by way of apology for coming along so early with some suggestions for presents, at least for a few age groups. Starting with the small fry, it is a big disappointment for everybody when a youngster receives a gift that is too babyish or too advanced for his years. Here are a few suggestions for gifts that will give pleasure to pre-schoolers, not only at Christmas morning but also for months afterwards.

GIFTS FOR CHILDREN

For the younger tot, you might choose a floating bath toy, soft rubber squeeze toy that squeak, or a washable doll or animal to take to bed. Between now and then your best choices are nesting blocks, pull toys, small kiddie-car, or a peculiar push toy such as chimer. From two to four, kiddies will enjoy more advanced playthings such as trucks, cars, gun and blaster sets, coloring books and crayons, dolls, doctor and nurse kits, and simple puzzles.

Now, as to shopping for your boy or girl, it is safe to say that a small kiddie-car, a rocking chair set, roller skates, dressed dolls and new outdoor sports equipment. Be thankful that it is not the amount of money that counts, but the kind of gifts counts, just choose one that will be to his or her liking right now.

Unless you are close to the family and really know the coming child, you will find children's clothes will be hard to choose.

Then for the girl who is no longer a child but not a woman either, here are some suggestions that may be helpful. For the girl who likes to read and write, give books, bookplates and stationery with her own name on it. Or she will love bubble bath, sweet-smelling soap, or a fancy box for dusting powder. You might give her an autograph album.

If she is the truly feminine kind, here are some pretty jacket or bedroom slippers or a sophisticated stuffed animal for her bed. If she is a do-it-yourself type, she will appreciate materials and pattern to knit herself one of the popular bulky sweaters. For the musical, you might pick new Western records or an album by her favorite popular singers, and, of course, girls are just as anxious as boys to own a dreamy transistor radio now.

We will change our thinking cap at another time for other age groups.

How many people, we wonder, drive around our new rather sprawling city just to look? Each week-end will find changes than those of traffic and parking. At the northeast, coming in on the second concession road, it looks rather barren with the old railway water tank gone. Immediately to the south the tank was a favorite place of the transient traveller waiting for trains. Who now will use the wonderfully cold clear spring water that bubbled up in the corner of the field?

Further west, one comes to the sad dismantling of the old round house, with piles of old rails and scrap waiting to be loaded. Mrs. J. B. Lavender, Mrs. D. Boyle, Mrs. Lane and others looked after the guests, at the quartet tea tables, while Mesdames D. Murphy, Wilson Alexworth, and E. Bailey, were in charge of the kitchen.

The afternoon proved to be a most successful event and the ladies wish to thank every one who helped to make it so.

The prize winners for the afternoon were: Mrs. Lyle Leavens, door prize, a lovely Christmas cake; the box of groceries went to Mrs. Pritchard; the luncheon set to Mrs. Delbert Boyle, and the candy to Mrs. C. Lane.

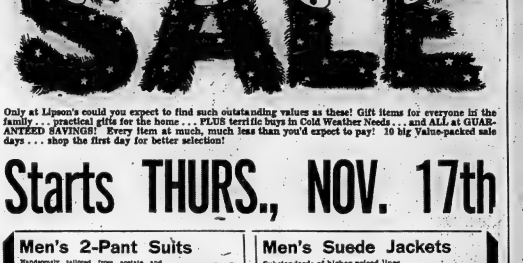
The council was represented at a weekend retreat held at Snow Lake, in August, under the sponsorship of Thurlow council. Members attended a special service at Sidney Baptist Church in August, when the extension to the church was opened.

The ladies of the Evening Auxiliary were thanked by Walter Morrow of Frankford United Church.



Mrs. Fay Jeffrey, Grace United Church, reported for OCCE on material available to help those teaching children.

Mrs. Fay Jeffrey and Mrs. Iva Buckstuhl were re-appointed counsellors for children's work.

'What Does Christianity Mean To You?' Topic at Bridge St. WA

The regular meeting of the Afternoon Auditary of Bridge Street United Church met in the Sunday School auditorium with a splendid attendance. Owing to the illness of the president, the 1st vice-president, Mrs. Davis, conducted the opening exercises and business portion of the meeting. It was learned that Dr. Forrester, editor of the "Observer," is to be the guest speaker at the spring luncheon.

The treasurer's report stated $1,180 having been sent to the Presbyterial secretary, Mrs. Davis, in her stewardship report, stressed the allocation as $1,700.

Mrs. Hibbard, corresponding secretary, had written a number of letters of condolence. The literature secretary, Mrs. Adsett, spoke on "Children's Books" as Christmas gifts, such as "World Friends," "Bible Stories" and books of "Nature Stories." Parents should direct their children's reading habits so they will form the habit of reading worthwhile books.

Mrs. MacDonald reported having sent 28 cards since the October meeting. She also reported that two large cartons of good as used clothing had been shipped.

Mrs. Shelby reported for the nominating committee a full quota of officers for 1961.

The group in charge of the program for the day was under the leadership of Mrs. MacFie and Mrs. Franklin.

Mrs. MacFie took charge and opened the program by calling on the members of the group who sang "Fairest Lord Jesus" with Mrs. Middleton singing the 3rd verse as a solo.

Mrs. Middleton conducted the devotional period. For her Scripture she read from Luke 7 beginning at verse 37. From this story Jesus looked upon the woman with pity and forgave her. His friend did not seem to condemn and criticize. Mrs. Middleton closed her remarks by drawing attention to the great contrast between Jesus and the Pharisee.

She followed with a short talk asking the question "What devotion do we show to our religion and what are we willing to do for our church?"

GAVE THEIR HAIR

She told of a Temple built in Japan, comprising 96 pillars measuring 42 feet by 4 feet erected by hand. Men labored for years in its building. The women folk also wished to have a part also. They had no money, but needed to help hoist these pillars in place was a strong cable. They decided to contribute their long hair, that it might be woven in a cable. They all contributed. The older gray locks were woven with the black locks of the young and a strong cable was made that helped erect the pillars. The women gave what they had that the temple might be erected as a memorial to their dead.

The early Christian's daily conversation was about the church. When we gather in friendly groups do we speak of our church, tell what it is doing at home and of its many interests throughout the world? Do we advertise as it were the work being done by our missionaries in all parts of the world? A church is a community may at times to on-lookers seem to be doing little but, if people would acquaint themselves with the work of the Christian church around the world, they would be amazed at its different forms of carrying Christianity.

Mrs. Middleton closed with a poem entitled "Why?" The verse is as follows:

When we meet a friend upon the street,
We talk of the weather, the cold or the heat;
Why don't we talk about God, too
Why don't I Why don't you?"

The lucky for the meeting was "New Ways of Spoofing." In this study the Auxiliary told how the CHurch is using modern methods of mass communication to spread the Gospel. How local leaders are being trained to use the media of communication best suited to their particular situation.

Mrs. Franklin took the part of interviewer asking the different members questions regarding the work.

Miss Helen Sulman was interviewed as a "Radio Writer and Newscaster" having become the new Mindolo Ecumenical Centre, at Kitwe in the Copper Belt of Northern Rhodesia. The students are enthusiastic about the Radio Centre. So far African Christians are now editing and writing for their own magazines. The committee on World Literacy and Christian Literature, does many big things. It unlocks the Bible for thousands by teaching men and women to read. The United Church's share of this work in 1960 was $11,900.

The interviewer asked Mrs. Hyde to tell why it was so difficult for Buddhists to accept Christianity. She told of a young Buddhist becoming a Christian. When his father was told he beat him desperately. Only after his father's death was he baptized. A cultured Buddhist or Hindu finds it difficult to give up the rich heritage and long standing refinements for a new culture.

RADIO TEACHING TOOL

The interviewer next asked Mrs. Scott to tell how radio is being used in the Philippines. It's a supplementary teaching tool. The Christian Radio Station is DYSR in Dumaguete City. On Monday morning about 4,200 children of elementary grades gather in the library to listen to a broadcast. The program introduces itself by saying: This is your "Good Will Station DYSR" tuned for the DYSR school of the air.

Sometimes a children's drama is heard and at other times a music appreciation course suited to the children. Other types of programs carried are peoples and classical music programs, news broadcasts, child care program and a farm hour.

In more than ten countries around the world Christian radio programs are on the air. In India a religious drama is produced with an Indian divinity school student taking the part of Christ. An audio-visual van in Burma is on a book-selling and film tour. In Africa a teacher makes his own flannelgraph to illustrate a Bible lesson. Christian films are produced in Brazil for use on TV networks.

The United Church of Canada in 1960 gave $6,500 through the Board of Overseas Missions and the W.M.S. gave $5,750 in all $14,250 was contributed to carry on all these different phases of work.

It is well to contemplate on Mrs. Middleton's question, what do we contribute to the church and what does the Christian religion mean to us?

This study concluded an interesting meeting which was closed by Mrs. Davis.

Mrs. MacFie invited everyone to stay for a cup of tea and a social half hour which was much enjoyed.

Women's Institute

CHATTERTON W.I.

The November meeting of the Chatterton W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Lorne Reid, with 12 members present. Mrs. Gardner, president, opened the meeting.

Mrs. Gardner said she had the data of February 20th for the Sales Barn.

A card of thanks was read from the Smith and Gibson families.

Mrs. Irvine read a letter asking for the fee for the delegate's expenses, Mrs. Hooper, Jackson, to the National Convention in Vancouver, next year.

Mrs. Gardner asked for a silence of two minutes in honor of the passing of Mrs. Dan Smith, and of the war dead, following this the meeting was turned over to the convener, Mrs. R. B. Finkle. Mrs. Finkle had attended the Work Shop, "Eat to Live," and gave an interesting report on it. She also gave the ladies a quizz on food values and general healthful eating habits. Did you know that overeating is just as bad as malnutrition? Did you know that eggs are a good substitute for meat? Did you know that older people should eat less and maintain a high protein diet? Older people eat almost three times as much protein as children. Excess weight can cut down on your longevity by as much as 20 years.

Under the Current Events, Mrs. Finkle gave several instances of what constituted the good times of days gone by: a quilting party, a corn husking party, or sometimes the young people gathered together to core apples and string them for drying.

Mrs. Tulsman and her daughter, Greta, favored the meeting with a duet, accompanied by Mrs. McKenzie on the piano.

Mrs. Gardner asked that the members remember to bring their canned goods to the next meeting for the Salvation Army.

Mrs. Reid, and assistants, Mrs. Reide and Mrs. Tulsman, served lunch, and a social hour was enjoyed.

The Experts Say

Keep Camera Handy if You Want Unposed Shots of Kids

By EDNA MAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — If you want short natural-looking pictures of your children, you must be ready for the unexpected.

Children can't be expected to pose patiently. It's best to keep the camera handy to take a picture when those delightful or exasperating moments occur. These unposed shots nearly always turn out the best.

One of the important things to remember in photographing children is to keep the background simple. "Avoid clutter," says Guy Gilbert, an official of a prominent camera manufacturing firm.

GET CLOSE

The best children's pictures are taken at a distance of four to six feet, says Mr. Gilbert.

"Don't be afraid to move in close to the subject," he advises. But many cameras are preoccussed to about 3½ feet, and pictures may be distorted if taken closer than this unless special close-up attachments are used. Such attachments are available for less than $5 for most models.

The biggest problem in camera movement. "The person taking the picture thinks the person in the picture moved—but in most cases it's the camera that moved."

Whether it was the camera or the subject which moved can be determined by studying the print. If everything in the picture is not sharp, the camera was moved. If foreground and background objects are clear but the person is blurred, then the person moved.

Mothers know better than anyone else the moods of their infants and can best determine the time of day to take pictures. To capture those unhappy expressions, try taking pictures just before feeding time. Droopy - eyed contentment usually follows feeding time. Smiles and alert interest are usually caught just after the baby wakes up.

PROPER AIM

If taking photos of a baby in a cradle, bassinette or carriage, shoot from a high position and aim almost straight down.

When taking shots of young sisters, get down to their level. "A high camera position represents an adult point of view; a low camera position shows things the way child sees them," says Mr. Gilbert.

The most interesting shots are usually taken when children are interested in something other than the camera. Shoot when they're too busy to notice, say the experts.

Graduate Nurses Hear Fourth Lecture

Dr. J. M. L. Walcott was the speaker on Thursday evening to present the fourth in the series of five lectures for graduate nurses sponsored by the Belleville Community Nursing Research Study at Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital.

Dr. Walcott's subject was "Post-Operative Nursing Care in Surgery of the Eye". He outlined in detail the pre-operative, surgical and post-operative care in Cataract and Glaucoma and then opened the meeting to questions from the audience.

In response to these questions, Dr. Walcott explained "Detached Retina', 'Retinoblastoma', 'Diabetic Retinopathy' and other conditions of the eye and outlined the nursing care where applicable.

Dr. Walcott was introduced by Mrs. Rodney Burr, and thanked by Mrs. Margaret Ru-

The final lecture in this series will be given in the classroom at Education Hall next Wednesday. The speakers will be Miss Doris Smith, director of nursing, B.C.H., who will outline and explain "Preventive Patient Care" and Dr. T. Woodley speaking on Post-Operative Nursing Care in General Anaesthesia.

A coffee party will be held after these last two lectures, to close the series.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals mainly with major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Elsie M.: He wants to quit his job because of new regulations.

Larry M.: They're snooping in things that are none of their business.

Elsie M.: My husband has been working for a big department store for 15 years. He gets regular raises and vacations and I thought he loved the job.

Now suddenly he wants to quit. He says there's a new superintendent and every day they've been trying him in new departments. Not just him, but most of the old-timers. It has nothing to do with hiring or firing. They told him. They're just making sure each man is placed right.

Larry doesn't believe them. He's sore about all the interruptions and the questions. He thinks he'd better go while the going is good.

I say maybe this shake-up is good and he shouldn't throw away 13 years of a nice job for no good reason.

Larry M.: I have a good reason for wanting out. These new people in charge are using me and a few other fellows as guinea pigs. I don't have to help them with their experiments. I just have to do my work, mind my business and go home.

Instead they call us for interviews and hand us questionnaires. Not for a raise or a promotion, they tell us. Just to see if we're happy! Well, I'm not happy about telling them the story of my life in exchange for my pay cheque.

Imagine asking me whether I like to be flirted with, or whether I ever heckle a public speaker! What's that got to do with how I make out reculiation sheets?

What right have these young upstarts to poke into my private affairs? They're making a fool of me with a lot of half-baked theories. I'm a hard worker, and I just want to work, not get made over by a bunch of college professors.

Council: Calm down Larry, and don't quit. Wherever you go you're likely to encounter the new trend in industry: Promote the mental health of the worker. The union as well as the boss is setting up machinery to check emotional well-being as well as physical health, at regular intervals.

One utility company found that by inviting employees to talk about personal matters on their mind, with a qualified interviewer such as a psychiatrist or social worker, many good results followed. Absenteeism was reduced, punctuality increased. Workers got along better with each other, productivity went up.

Evidently Larry's firm hasn't explained the value of such "unloading" and is asking "nosey" questions out of the blue. Handled properly, this interest in an employee's emotional health can have long-range beneficial results for him and his family.

The purpose is not to annoy or threaten Larry. Quite the contrary. The probing — which should be voluntary — is to see how Larry's strength stacks up alongside his problems. If they're about equal, if he's "coping," hurray! But if the strength wanes while the stresses pile up, he's counseled and helped well in advance of a crisis.

What's wrong, Larry, with being reassured about one's mental and emotional state? Just hope your executives get this valuable program set up correctly, with interviews handled delicately and in strict confidence.

It's obvious why Mercury is not an "everybody" car

The Mercury owner does not put up with anything. To him a car must be sizeable—he likes to take a crowd along. To him a car must be powerful—he doesn't like lagging on hills. To him a car must be comfortable—both he and his passengers prefer to ignore the topography of roads. The 1961 Mercury is his kind of car. Big? Certainly. But styled with clean, unaffected lines. Powerful? Yes. But both Marauder V-8's discipline power and make it meaningful and safe. Add to this a meticulous attention to details of quality and you see why Mercury lives up to its owner's proud boast: "a better car." Backed by a better Warranty, too! 12,000 miles or 1 year—whichever comes first. If you care enough for a full-measure quality automobile, have a look at the 1961 Mercury . . . at your pleasure.

Wesley Church WA Trent Road Holds Successful Autumn Tea

Wesley United Church Women's Association held an autumn tea in the church last Wednesday.

Despite the rainy day, there was a large attendance of ladies representing many neighboring churches.

The guests were welcomed at the door by the Rev. and Mrs. Roy Rickard and Mrs. Bert Burnett, president of the Wesley Women's Association.

Mrs. C. Lang acted as treasurer for the afternoon.

The pretty little country church lent an atmosphere of color and warmth with a color scheme of autumn shades of bittersweet and fall green. Bouquets of 'mums and bittersweet decorated the church along with crepe paper streamers in matching shades.

The first booth had a large display of pretty aprons which were soon sold. This was well arranged by Mrs. Harry Butler, assisted by Mrs. Watkins.

At the next table there was an outstanding display of home baking. A large assortment of pies, cakes, tarts, cookies, bread, buns and fruit loaves also sweet apples were offered for sale. These were readily bought by the many shoppers. Mrs. Harold Wright convened this table and was assisted by Mrs. Donald Rush, Mrs. Donald Gunn and Mrs. E. Badour.

Mrs. Harry Frederick looked after the candy table which offered many varieties of sweets in pretty containers.

Mrs. Walter Denyes was convener of the tea and was a gracious hostess of the tea room.

PICTURE OF LOVELINESS

The tea table was a picture of loveliness covered with a gold cloth, and centred with a cut crystal bowl of bronze 'mums, bittersweet, oak leaves, and small fall tails. This was flanked on either side with triple crystal candle holders with tall tapers in shades of bittersweet and fall green. Gleaming silver services were at each end of the table. Small centre of bouquets similar to the one on the tea table were used on the serving plates and pretty colored leaf motif serviettes carried out the autumn color scheme.

PRESIDING

Pouring tea for the first hour were: Mrs. William Yateman, president of White's Women's Association, and Mrs. Elvin Hart, president of Centenary Women's Association. (The two other churches of Bayside Pastoral charge). Mrs. George K. Graham, and Mrs. Leonard Reid poured for the last hour.

The guests were served an appetizing assortment of sandwiches, relishes, cookies, and tarts, along with a cup of tea.

Those serving were: Mrs. Harold Denike; Mrs. William Johnson and Mrs. Charles Doolittle.

Mrs. Wadsworth donated a beautiful pot of 'mums to be sold.

Mrs. Gerald Frost and Mrs. Earl Van Alstine arranged the tea plates and Mrs. John Stewart made the tea.

The members of the association are more than pleased with the gratifying results of this event. The W. A. extends a sincere "thank you" to each one who helped in any way to make it such a success.

TRADING RANKS

Chief factor was the highest official at the pioneer Hudson's Bay Company trading posts, followed in order by the factor, chief trader, and trader.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

MANNERS HINT TO DANCERS

A review of our dancing manners is on the calendar for today. There will be many parties taking place in the next few weeks where dancing will be part of the entertainment. And how are your dancing manners? Suppose you answer (honestly) the following questions and find out! Do you:

Always do moderation on the dance floor? There is a time and place for sweeping gyrations which can result in bumping into, and stepping on, those unfortunate enough to come near you. At a crowded dance party, stick to the more calm and sedate way of expressing yourself? The middle-aged and the portly particularly should watch this. It's very uncomfortable for the beholders to watch a couple of plump, perspiring people cavorting about and playing London Bridge on the dance floor. Act your age.

Always avoid being overfriendly with the orchestra leader or the musicians? Too often one sees someone making a great to-do over the tune he wants played immediately, meantime keeping the conductor with a proprietary air. Usually such a person is acting under the erroneous impression that by so doing he will impress the onlookers of his friends. If he only knew!

Always make every effort not to stop and chat with another couple in the middle of the floor? A smile and a nod as you pass is sufficient. Creating an obstruction for all other dancers to bump into, or go around, is definitely thoughtless and unnecessary. Also, never stop to make an introduction while dancing.

Always put your cigarette down when approaching the dance floor? Dancing with a lighted cigarette dangling in your hand is showing extremely bad taste, aside from the fact that it is definitely a fire hazard. Tragedy may result if, in passing another couple, a cigarette burn takes against a filmy evening gown.

Always fulfill your obligations to your hostess if you are the extra-man category? The man who wanders off to the bar, spending most of the evening there, or the one who gives all of his attention to a particular lady, is definitely not being the gentleman he should. It's part of his debt to dance with the hostess and he should rescue any wallflowers who are sitting miserably on the sidelines.

Always avoid singing in your partner's ear? Let the orchestra supply the music without any assistance from you. Also the person who keeps up a steady stream of conversation while dancing is not going to be very popular.

By always thinking of your partner and your fellow guests you can attain the south-after reputation of being "a good dancer" and an addition to any party.

Young Couple Honored by Community

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Waite, newly weds were the honored guests at a miscellaneous shower and presentation at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Potter, Front Road on Saturday evening.

Douglas and Shirley were married October, 29th at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Roy Rickard. Nearly 100 relatives, friends and neighbors gathered to help celebrate this happy occasion.

The evening was spent by a number of those who wished to play euchre in the upstairs rooms. The remaining guests enjoyed a social hour of community singing led by Mrs. Clifford Reid, with Mr. Joe Bostock at the piano. Mr. Burton Reid, rendered several guitar selections and Mr. Dunlap favored with musical selections throughout the evening.

Winners of euchre prizes were: ladies Mrs. C. Champaigh, low — Mrs. L. Reid; men E. Vandalstine, low, A Dafoe. Lone hand Frank Reid.

The gathering was called together and the newly weds were given seats of 'Honor and presented with a corsage and boutonieres.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes read an appropriate address to Shirley and Doug expressing the sentiments of their many friends.

The presentation of a pretty tea pot and platform rocker was made at this time, on behalf of the community.

Following this, a large number of lovely gifts (tokens of the family and friends) were presented to them in prettily decorated baskets.

Shirley and Douglas made suitable replies expressing their sincere thanks to everyone and extending an invitation to their many friends to call on them at their home on the second of Sidney.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. E. Jeffery and Mrs. M. Williams, Mrs. Fletcher Reid, Mrs. Clifford Reid, assisted by several of the neighbors. An enjoyable evening was had by all present in this lovely spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Potter.

This one is in medium blue with a piping of paler blue crepe. The flat collar and cuffs are of pale blue satin and the pocket at one side has appliqued flowers and an embroidered flower spray above.

Specific Amounts For Two Loaves Chicken Sandwiches

By Mary Moore

On Hallowe'en night, I and one of my teen-aged Sunday School girls, were "con-collectors" for UNICEF. It was pouring rain and when we joined the other con collectors and coin counters at Christ United Church there was a whopping total of $258.00. To be added to the grand total for all of North America.

Naturally the young people (and old) were hungry and our supervisor, George Martin, decided a rewarding lunch was indicated. So he brought fresh cider and instant coffee and salmon and ham sandwiches. I brought chicken sandwiches and Joyce Rankin sent brownies and peanut butter cookies. It was a pleasure to see everything disappear. Glasses of cider stood among piles of pennies and sandwiches were pushed into boys' mouths by clean-handed giggling girls.

When I made the chicken sandwiches, characteristically, I used whole wheat bread and noted exactly how much of each material I used. These statistics will help some puzzled sandwich maker, convening a party of any kind.

CHICKEN SANDWICHES:

Thirty-six 1-2" slices whole wheat bread (or white), 1-2 pound soft butter, 18 small lettuce leaves, salt, cold sliced chicken meat from one 2 1-2-pound frying chicken (which was boiled and chilled in its own liquor). (See notes below).

All the slices of bread were laid out in 4 rows on the counter and all were spread with the soft butter. With a razor-sharp knife I sliced the chicken and apportioned it on 18 of the slices, and salted it liberally. (This amount of chicken is surprisingly generous for 18 slices of bread — but who wants a skimpy chicken sandwich? Not me.) Over the chicken I put 1 small leaf or 1-2 leaf of crisp dry head lettuce and covered that with the remaining buttered slices. With my sharpest knife I cut off the crusts. (This need not be wasteful if you trim the dark crust off only, having the slice fitting squarely. If you are hungry you can eat a few of the trimmings. Pile 3 sandwiches on top of one another and cut in half triangularly. Wrap each 3 in a generous sheet of heavy wax paper. Put these packages in a plastic bag and store in refrigerator until needed. Because bread is buttered to prevent sogginess if necessary they will keep fresh for 24 hours, if wrapped and chilled this way. As you can see this makes 36 half sandwiches and the number they will serve depends on how hungry your guests are and on what other sandwiches and food are provided.

NOTES:

1. Total cost: bread 50c, butter 36c, chicken $1.41. 2) I used the chicken broth leftover as a base for a pot of chicken vegetable soup, finely chopping a little of the leftover skin and adding it to the soup.

Some Rule Changes to Bring Canadian House of Commons Closer to Westminster Image

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian House of Commons will experiment this session with some rule changes that bring it closer to the image of Westminster on which it was remodelled.

Many of its rules and procedures are broadly similar to Britain's. But the big, green-carpeted Commons here still differs widely in some respects from the more intimate House in London.

Ranged on benches that will not accommodate all its 630 members, the United Kingdom Commons hears shorter, sharper speeches that normally run 15 to 20 minutes. At Ottawa, each of the 265 MPs can count on a seat and desk and invariably speaks right up to his time limit—being shortened this session to 30 minutes from 40.

Without a time limit, the British Commons seems able to control the length of speeches through the weight of opinion of fellow-members and a tradition of the Speaker not to "recognize" windbags.

The work of both Houses of Commons is basically the same—passing the laws by which the people are governed and approving the raising of money involved in governing.

THRONE SPEECH FIRST

Both begin their task with a speech from the throne, prepared by the cabinet and read to assembled MPs—in Britain by the sovereign and in Canada by the governor-general.

The speech, containing broad outlines of government policy and the legislative program, is the springboard for a wide-ranging debate that often relates to anything but the topics mentioned. In Canada, this debate is being cut to eight days from 10 on a trial basis, in Britain it is about six days.

The formality of reading the speech, moving and seconding the traditional reply and entering the debate are squeezed into one day in Britain but are spread over three in Canada.

The throne speech and budget debates are highlights of the parliamentary session. The Canadian Commons will experiment this session with a two-day reduction in the budget debate but the six days permitted still will be two more than normally allowed at Westminster.

Apart from these, a variety of debates arise from legislative bills introduced by the government or by private members. Each House has different debating rules and stages through which legislation passes.

THREE VOTE STAGES

All bills go through three major stages — first, second and third reading. But Canadian MPs must obtain permission to introduce a private bill through a formal motion and the government must obtain approval by presenting a debatable resolution on government measures involving spending money.

In Britain, however, the resolution stage is dispensed with as most government bills except major finance bills and "20-minute rule bills." The latter are legislative measures introduced under a special procedure that allows two 10-minute speeches—one opposing, the other favoring—introduction of the bill.

Britain's Commons also has cut the time devoted to consideration of a bill one clause at a time in committee of the whole House, following this procedure only on major legislation. Canadian MPs give clause-by-clause treatment in the Canadian House.

In place of this stage, MPs in Britain go to standing committees of 20 to 50 MPs for detailed examination. The committee reports on the bill to the Commons, proposing its unanimous adoption in its original form or rejection altogether.

LIMIT PRIVATE BILLS

The Canadian Commons frequently sends bills to standing or special committees. This sometimes tends to produce repetition of debate—first in the committee and then in committee of the House.

Opportunities to debate private members' motions and legislation are limited in both British and Canada, although the restrictions are less severe in London.

British MP's consider private members' business on 20 Friday days during the session—10 for legislative bills and 10 for motions calling for action in specific fields. Four additional days were allotted last session and likely will continue to be provided by the government.

In Canada, private members' business takes precedence on two Mondays and six Thursdays plus one on Friday afternoon. An experimental change this session will allow the government to consider the private members' days to get its legislation before the House early in the session.

The two Commons differ widely on the daily question period at the start of the sitting and on detailed consideration of the government's spending program.

QUESTIONING LIVELY

Question period is usually the liveliest and most interesting part of the Canadian parliamentary session. MPs fire verbal questions at cabinet ministers on matters affecting the government and receive verbal replies.

Before the Second World War, this lasted about 30 minutes daily but now often extends to an hour or more. Written questions placed on the order paper supplement this procedure and are dealt with on Wednesdays.

Britain's question period is limited to an hour. Questions must be submitted in advance and in writing. Oral questions are allowed only to elicit more information.

Canadian MPs spend fully one-third of their House time considering government spending. Their British counterparts do not debate the entire program item by item as is the practice in the Canadian Commons.

On 25 allotted days, British MPs debate items or a series of related items, almost invariably picked by the Opposition. Then a guillotine procedure is applied to limit discussion and permit voting on all the items of the estimates.

SESSIONS ARE LONG

Creation several years ago of a special estimates committee and greater recent use of the public accounts committee to consider spending details of several selected departments each session have failed to shorten the Canadian parliamentary session appreciably.

The 1960 session that began Jan. 14 went through 146 sitting days before prorogation Aug. 10, making it the fourth longest in history. Longest was 153 days in 1906 and second-longest 152 days in 1956.

This is roughly the same length as Britain's parliamentary session—159 days in 1958-59; 156 days in 1957-58 and 159 days in 1956-57.

Canadian sessions generally begin in January but Prime Minister Diefenbaker has said that in calling Parliament before Christmas this year a new pattern for the future may be set. The object is to get business concluded about the end of June rather than have it stretch into August as in recent years.

In Britain, sessions normally start in November, adjourn for a month over Christmas, resume until Easter, when there's another break, and continue until August with a break at Whitsun.

Both the Canadian and British Commons sit about five hours daily, with additional hours late in the session and, in Canada's case, for the throne speech debate.

COMMONS IN SESSION — Canada's 265 members of Parliament each have individual seats and desks in the green-carpeted House of Commons at Ottawa. This is in contrast to over-crowded benches used in the United Kingdom Commons. The Canadian Commons this session will change some rules and procedures, bringing them closer to those used at Westminster. (CP from National Film Board).

BRITAIN'S COMMONS — Not much has changed in the physical structure of the United Kingdom House of Commons from the days of Prime Minister William Gladstone, shown addressing members in 1882. Unlike the Canadian Commons, members of Parliament sit on rows of benches and have no individual desks. Even at that the U.K. Commons at Westminster cannot seat all 630 MPs at the same time. HERE! THE TRUCKS THAT RIDE SMOOTHER, WORK HARDER, LAST LONGER!

Just a year ago, Chevy came up with a torsion bar independent front suspension and has already put some 300,000 Chevrolet trucks with it out on jobs. The ride that results from Chevy's suspension design is making life a lot easier for drivers. (Just ask them!) It's taking better care of loads, the fragile kind that used to cost somebody money if they were bounced around. Chevy's ride also enables truck owners to revise their buying habits and work their trucks longer before they trade. This follows naturally. The trucks take less of a beating. There's less stress on sheet metal. Less abuse to tires. Less pounding to wear out parts before their time. The upshot of it is you either save money or earn more of it, or both. And you couldn't ask a truck to do more than that. See your dealer.

ORDINARY I-BEAM FRONT AXLE. All trucks had it at one time: a stiff-beam design that transmits road shock and vibration from one wheel to the other and up to the chassis, cab and the load.

CHEVY'S INDEPENDENT SUSPENSION. Each wheel flexes independently, keeps the truck and the load level with the road; minimizes tire abuse as well as stress and strain on chassis and cab.

Lengthy Briefs on Problems Of Canadian Periodicals, Business Mags Given Board

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's general interest consumer magazines are expressing concern that their healthy sidekicks in communications and industry are headed for deep trouble.

Competitive dangers threatening the bread and butter business press, and likely repercussions, were listed Thursday in submissions to the publications royal commission inquiring into the problems of Canada's periodicals.

The Maclean - Hunter Publishing Company Limited, Canada's largest publisher of magazines, said the general interest publications have survived only through the company's diversified sources of income.

"What has happened in the general magazine field could happen in the business paper field," Maclean-Hunter said. "We easily have a rash of so-called Canadian editions of American business papers, or Canadian regional runs carrying Canadian boilerplate.

"If that happens, then the major source of Maclean - Hunter profits will disappear and the resources available to ensure the future development of our magazines will be critically reduced.

"Business publications are vital in themselves to the nation and we hope their future will be safeguarded in the commission's recommendations. But business publications are faster, surer and surer of the survival of many of Canada's general magazines."

J. J. Wallace of Montreal, spokesman for the Business Newspapers Association of Canada, told the three-man commission "we are not here to defend ourselves in the same boat as the Canadian magazine industry finds itself."

He said he was in agreement with company chairman Grattan O'Leary's summing up of the situation: "We can't live with the existing situation — but don't let it die."

The association said 430 Canadian business publications are on the job, covering all civilian sections of business and industry and having a total circulation per issue of 2,721,269.

The number of titles of U.S. business papers overflowing into Canada has increased to 1,407 in 1959 from 952 in 1940, the association said, with total circulation per issue climbing to 1,132,580 from 225,318.

It added:

"The vitality of Canadian business publications is threatened by the overflow circulation of similar U.S. magazines and by the so-called Canadian editions. It is the announced program of American group publishers to bring to the legal benefits of American business techniques to every country in the world."

Maclean-Hunter told the commission it publishes three magazines in Canada—Maclean's, Chatelaine and Canadian Homes—and 41 business or trade papers as well as operating a commercial printing business.

Total Canadian sales of the company in 1959 were $46,541,319 and total net profits after taxes and before appropriations to contingency reserves were $672,158, slightly less than 3.3 per cent of sales recorded.

The three magazines in 1959 accounted for 37 per cent of total sales but produced less than 10 per cent of the contribution to profits.

The company brief said survival of Canada's general interest literature is essential in the job of national unity. "Canadians have dedicated themselves — "it is an enterprise of the national imagination, of the same magnitude perhaps, as the building of the railways and the birth of the CBC."

Maclean-Hunter said earlier that Port Arthur would "sit tight" in its wage dispute with the IBEW, calling for emergency negotiation meeting Tuesday and ordering picketed workers to hall in the city's bus services.

The company was in session, a power failure, attributed to transformer trouble, left one-third of the city dark. Most businesses without lights or other emergency aids. There was no hint that the failure had any direct connection with the strike. Temperatures at the time of the evening blackout were in the high 30s.

The city's office to telephone customers reported that the union was for a 2½-per-cent increase retroactive to Jan. 1, 54-per-cent for 1960 and 2½-per-cent for 1961. The union went on strike last Wednesday.

Basic hourly rate for a telephone operator is $1.70.

The Port Arthur Hydro workers' union already had signed an agreement with the city. During the strike Saturday when they picketed the new service and provide increases for 10 per cent of the eligible employees.

The Hydro workers' agreement provides for 2½-per-cent increase retroactive to Jan. 1, 5-per-cent for each of 1960-61 and 1961-62.

The transit tie-up in Port Arthur occurred when 29 bus drivers and 24 garagemen refused to cross IBEW picket lines.

Half of Lakehead Phone Workers' Strike Settled

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — A strike by city-employed telephone and Hydro workers that tied up bus service and threatened other utilities Thursday lessens another Tuesday night. But in neighbor-Fort William a similar strike continued with wider effects.

Mayor Norman R. Wilson announced the settlement here after nine hours of negotiations with officials of Local 339, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (CLC), which represents the 29 telephone service men and 42 Hydro employees who walked off their jobs last week.

In Fort William, 41 telephone workers, also members of Local 339, remained on strike. About 90 Hydro employees in that city, although not on strike themselves, have refused to cross picket lines set up by the telephone workers.

The telephone workers were expected to set up picket lines around transit system garages in Fort William and Port Arthur, and all indications were that the step would catch Fort William's similar strike ball in the city's bus services.

Mayor Wilson said the settlem, a power failure, attributed to transformer trouble, left one-third of the city dark. Most businesses without lights or other emergency aids. There was no hint that the failure had any direct connection with the strike. Temperatures at the time of the evening blackout were in the high 30s.

The city's office to telephone customers reported that the union was for a 2½-per-cent increase retroactive to Jan. 1, 5½-per-cent for 1960 and 2½-per-cent for 1961. The union went on strike last Wednesday.

Radical Changes in Structure Of Canadian Unionism Called For by Rail Union Head

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A top officer of Canada's biggest railway union has called for drastic changes in the structure of Canada's labor movement to bring it more in line with the pattern of Canadian unionism — except for changes aimed at creating even bigger unions around a strong, central labor body.

The plan amounts to a crucial challenge to international unionism and its present role in Canada, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), in a brief address to the London and District Labor Council.

His speech is the latest round in a big battle that appears to be shaping within Canada's labor movement over the controversial issue of American control of some Canadian unions.

The Second criticized international unions that fail to give their Canadian members free reign to run their own affairs in the Canadian setting. He warned that corruption and gangsterism in the United States unions could spread into this country.

"What I am suggesting to you is that Canada has many more unions than it ought to have. . . .

I suggest to you that instead of 136 unions, we should have approximately 25, and that within these 25 separate industry and trade bargaining groups should exist. I further suggest that Canada requires a much stronger central labor body than the AFL-CIO or the CLC."

Ultimately, Mr. Second said the Canadian Labor Congress should have sufficient prestige to co - ordinate the collective bargaining policies of affiliates.

"It is obvious, I think, that nothing I have said constitutes an attack on international unionism as such. I do believe that we should have fewer unions and that we have a much stronger unionism is the reason we can have them. To this extent I am opposed to international unionism.

"On the other hand, I have no objection to the larger unions I advocate being international, provided their approach to the Canadian situation can be sufficiently broadened to make this possible."

Mr. Second made his speech here in answer to an invitation from the London Labor Council to explain an earlier talk in Montreal. This speech, which attracted wide attention within the labor movement and elsewhere, was chiefly a critique of international unionism.

Mr. Second's statement were included in a text of the speech issued to the press before delivery.

Afro-Asian Bloc in UN Begins to Assert Power

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The 45 - nation Afro - Asian bloc has demonstrated its power to turn the cold war in the West to the 15th General Assembly of the United Nations.

The issues are the election of non - permanent members to the 11 - country Security Council and the demands of the Afro - Asian bloc for a greater representation on that council as well as on the 18 - member economic-social council.

The Soviet Union holds the key to these problems but it is in no piece of diplomatic manipulation. It has managed to frustrate the aspirations of the bloc and African countries and then turn around and present them on the same issues with a different face.

The base of the whole argument is that the membership of the two top UN councils has been increased since the UN was founded after the Second World War although the over - all UN membership has grown from 51 countries to 99. The main bloc now centres around the powerful Security Council.

CONFUSED HISTORY

The UN charter provides that the six non - permanent members of the council be elected three at a time in alternate years for two-year terms.

Under a so - called gentlemen's agreement arrived at, it is said, the permanent members — the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Nationalist China — two non - permanent seats were allotted to Latin America, one each to Western Europe, Eastern Europe, the Middle East and the Commonwealth. The agreement, it frequently been observed.

In view of the great increase in Afro - Asian UN membership, that bloc — with Western support — has been pressing for an increase in the Security Council to 15 seats and in the economic-social council to 24.

But the Soviet Union—as it has for the last five years — threatened to vete the necessary charter revision unless Red China replaced Nationalist China as a permanent member.

Faced with this brick wall, the Afro-Asian countries switched in 1958 to the UN Assembly and this there should be a redistribution of seats rather than an expansion of the councils at the expense of Latin America and Western Europe.

Last week the General Assembly was scheduled to elect Chile, the United Arab Republic and Portugal to the Security Council, replacing Italy, Turkey, Tunisia and Italy, whose terms expire Dec. 31.

However, Nigeria — the newest UN member and a former British colony — asked that the election be postponed the elections until the assembly's steering committee acts on the representation problem. The Soviet Union supported Nigeria's request, saying that West and Nigeria was backed by the West in the last two Security Council elections, in what diplomats regard as a depressing example of bloc voting on such issues.

These same diplomats regard the Nigerian issue of colonialism has been stirred for political reasons.

Portugal has refused to give information to the UN on its overseas colonies, insisting they are not really colonies, but overseas provinces of Portugal the homeland. But some African nigeria and Portuguese Angola, two areas in the state of Quebec and has a population of 000,000, is on the verge of violence such has the affiliated neighbor, the former Belgian Congo.

Attempt Made To Take His Life Says Witness

TORONTO (CP) — A prosecution witness testified at a theft ring trial said Tuesday an attempt was made to kill him Monday night.

Marvin Mitchell, 25, said a car tried to run him down on downtown Yonge Street.

He said the car was parked on the street and started up as he approached it. It came roaring at him without lights on.

"I jumped back and fell on the sidewalk," he told Magistrate T. S. Elmore. The car turned a corner and sped away, he said.

Mr. Markell said he had previously received telephoned threats from several of the seven persons on trial. They offered him $5,000 to leave town without testifying, he said.

Eight of the seven were part of an international car theft ring on trial facing charges of fraud and possession of stolen cars are Joseph T. Natale, Louis G. Constantino, Kenneth Asbury, Frank Beretti, Donald Clark, Patrick Perry and M. Norris.

Two Unemployed Easterners Hope to Complete 3,022-Mile Walk to Vancouver by 24th

HOPE, B.C. (CP) — Two sturdy, unemployed Easterners hoped to overcome financial complications, to complete a 3,022-mile walk from Toronto to Vancouver Nov. 24.

Kevin Gerrard, 21, of Cape Breton Island, and Matt Déane, 32, of Toronto, have 12 days to trek the trial from Hope to Vancouver and meet their Nov. 26 deadline.

Since Aug. 31, Griffin and Déane have walked through Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and finally decended through the Rocky Mountains to rest for a day or two in Hope before finishing.

Déane began the trip driving a pace car but later had to sell the auto.

The affair became fairly big August when Griffin, who outpaced Britain's famous Dr. Barbara Moore, got a big hike from Montreal to Toronto, passed through Montreal, Ont.

At Prescott, Dr. Malbon Seeley a chiropodist, approached Griffin and offered him a ride on his bike to Vancouver. One of the stipulations for the chiropodist for Griffin to wear and publicize a card of his name.

Awaiting the men, presuming they have walked through Ontario, Mitchell's Bay, Alsbury with handful of greetings, see the Toronto Star, a box of beer cap and tickets, and head back for Toronto—by plane.

Municipal Property Taxes For Education Are No Longer Adequate Says School Head

TORONTO (CP) — Education has passed out of the realm of simple community concern and has become a national responsibility, W. J. McCordic, executive secretary of the Toronto Metropolitan School Board, said Tuesday.

Addressing the Canadian Tax Foundation, Mr. McCordic said municipal property taxes are no longer adequate or appropriate for the financial task, and the federal treasury should bear a major part of the burden.

He said, it would involve reconciliation of two hitherto seemingly contradictory principles: That federal financial resources be placed to the credit of schools, but management and control remain the responsibility of province and municipality.

One proposed solution is that a basic program of education be financed and managed by a "National Foundation Program."

Cost of this part of the education financial program probably calculated on a per-pupil basis—would be met jointly by provincial governments, but mainly through federal taxes, and would be distributed according to the provinces to local school boards.

He said the basic cost of education thus met, each community would be free to supplement funds derived from a reduced local tax base by levying for the basic services additional features for which its citizens were prepared to pay.

Despite constitutional difficulties, Mr. McCordic said such an acceptable program along these lines can be devised.

However, extensive study would be required and—in view of the constitutional issues—by a body being done by a federal body such as the Canadian Tax Foundation Association, financed by federal money, could be the appropriate research body.

Mr. McCordic said there—are fundamental principles of democracy in the ability of communities to finance education.

Contributing to these differences are the wide differences in the money which cities, derived from property taxes—the chief source of municipal revenue. Quite apart from these differences, however, Mr. McCordic said the property tax has other fundamental flaws.

It does not, he stated, respond as do other tax sources to fluctuations in the economy and, if it goes too high, it may discourage the owning of property.

Albert Hall, director of department of economics and political science, University of New Brunswick, predicted that in one way or another future taxation will provide increased old-age benefits.

This might be done in one of several ways, such as straight increases in old-age security payments, or contributory pension schemes to supplement such payments. He left the audience to ponder which course is best.

If you wish to influence this debate, you have only a limited time."

Kennedy Flies To Texas Ranch For Meeting

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy flies today to the Texas ranch of the new administration's vice-president, Lyndon B. Johnson, beginning of the forthcoming conference of top Republican hands.

Mr. Kennedy-Johnson talks beginning tonight and continuing through Thursday also are expected to lead to preliminary formulation of a congressional program for presentation with the background of campaign promises on a wide range of domestic and international issues.

The Democratic winners will meet for the first time since their election Nov. 8 over Republican Richard Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge.

Kennedy arranged to take off from his winter headquarters here late today aboard a chartered jet liner, bound for Austin, Texas, flies to Austin, Tex., and switches to a small plane for a 45-minute flight to the LBJ ranch at Johnson City.

Kennedy plans to be back at Palm Beach, where since last Friday he has been a guest at the home of his parents, by midnight Thursday.

The Florida stay has been a combination of work and relaxation. Tuesday the president-elect conferred for two hours with one of his earliest and staunchest supporters, Governor Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut. Then they played nine holes of golf—and Ribicoff reported Kennedy the winner, 1-up in match play.

Ribicoff, also vacationing in Florida, has been mentioned prominently for a cabinet post or perhaps a position in the new administration.

Quebec to Offer Loans and Gifts To Farmers

QUEBEC (CP) — Legislation to give young farmers easy payment loans that will cover 90 per cent of the cost of setting up a farm will be proposed by the government, Premier Jean Lesage said Tuesday night.

The remaining 10 per cent of the amount the young farmer borrowed would be given to him as an outright government gift. Low interest on the loans would be payable over 20 years.

Speaking in throne speech debate, Mr. Lesage said the measure will encourage the children are will encourage the children of farmers to stay on the land.

The farm loans announcement was the most general made by Mr. Lesage between attacks on the former Union Nationale administration and praise of itself. The province in a "sorry state," he said, and the government will take political patronage out of the appointment of public jobs.

ONLY 89 DISMISSED

Only 90 of 34,000 civil servants have been dismissed by the Liberals took over the government, Mr. Lesage said. The election compared with 1,662 of 11,023 when the Union Nationale came to power in 1944, Mr. Lesage said.

His government will introduce legislation providing monthly allowances of $10 a month for each child between the ages of 16 and 18 attending high school. Immediate steps will be taken to make it compulsory.

A revamped Quebec Liquor Commission will be given semi-judicial powers.

Mr. Lesage said the question today for French-speaking Canadians was no longer one of survival but of influence.

The government intended creating a department of cultural affairs with responsibility over the French language in the province, to advise it, liaise with French — speaking Canadians in other provinces and encourage the development of the arts.

Teachers Urged To Check Closely Needs of Business

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A leading industrialist has urged high school teachers to devote more closely the needs of business, industry and other fields so that they can give better career counselling to students.

T. M. Mayberry, president of Firestone Tire and Rubber Company of Canada Limited, Hamilton, made the remarks Monday night in a talk to high school principals, administrators and career counsellors from all over Western Ontario at the 37th annual meeting of the Ontario Teachers' College, the first of a series of such programs sponsored by Wells Academy.

Personnel selection by teachers and principals to place students in their students will be working, and they will be happier themselves also—would be invaluable, Mr. Mayberry said.

He also suggested that the Ontario College of Education should give credit recognition to teachers who undertake such studies.

The bodies of Abraham Siegel, 53, and Mrs. Dolores S. Fleising, 40, were found face-down on the floor of Siegel's office in the Siegel Iron and Metal Company building.

President Says Future of CBC Is Threatened

MONTREAL (CP) — Al phone Ouimet, president of the CBC, said Tuesday future of the Canadian broadcasting system is threatened by "dangerous statements" about the way it gets and uses its money.

He said the reasons for spreading final influence about the corporation "range from honest belief to deliberate misrepresentation or to deliberately planted propaganda." He did not identify the source of such statements.

Addressing a service club here, Mr. Ouimet listed these as some of the statements which he said are made with endless repetition:

The CBC is too expensive; Canada can't afford it; the CBC has huge deficits; it is wasteful and inefficient; it ought to be investigated; its expenditures are out of control and far greater than ever imagined; private enterprise could provide the same service free.

A.M. NUMBER

"Did you sort those stamps Uncle Ken sent you?" Susan asked. "About a hundred or so altogether, wasn't it?"

"That's right," replied Bill. "They will come in very much, though. Only one seven's of each, two eights, and a quarter of those were new."

His mother laughed. "You're too fussy," she said.

Bill grinned. "Anyway just a quarter of the undersized foreign stamps were unused, and they're worth much."

Some kids expect a lot! But how many of the foreign ones were torn?

Principal, Editor Apologize For Editorial

CALGARY (CP) — The principal of the University of Alberta, Calgary, and the editor of the campus newspaper have apologized for an editorial in the paper last week that sharply criticized the sale of poppies.

Dr. Malcolm Taylor said in a statement that he had "read with sincere regret" the contents of the editorial by Maurice Yacowar.

Yacowar had described the poppy campaign as a "waste of money on the foolishly dead."

Veterans reacted angrily to implications that they had gone to war for what they could get out of it.

Yacowar, an 18-year-old second-year student, said Sunday: "The criticism of the editorial in last week's Gauntlet have made me realize how wrong I was in voicing such views. I sincerely regret that I have offended the feelings of those who fought for the ideals of decency and justice. It makes me even more ashamed that I have hurt the relatives of those who made the supreme sacrifice—those who died in order that my generation could live in freedom."

Police Include Ship in Regular Harbor Patrols

KINGSTON (CP)—Police, already conducting an investigation into an attempt to sink the 23-ton sea cadet Brigantine St. Lawrence II, have included the ship in regular harbor patrols to prevent further damage to the vessel.

Those responsible for the incident broke into the ship at her berth during the weekend, then used four lengths of garden hose as a siphon in an attempt to flood the vessel.

Sea cadets returning to the ship found the break-in and police were called. Water was three feet deep in the two forward compartments before a diesel generator and bilge pump could be brought into play.

There was no permanent damage to the $75,000 ship.

When borrowing makes good sense...

Your bank can help you in a score of ways. But most customers come to the BNS for two main reasons—to save and to borrow.

These two services—putting money aside for future needs and borrowing to meet some present need—are as old as money itself. Good money management combines the wise use of both saving and borrowing.

Q. But, don't you cut down expense by saving for something and then paying cash?

A. Of course. It is always cheaper to pay cash—and your savings account will build interest. Many people save for the things they want through our unique instalment savings plan, PSP (Personal Security Program).

But running a family is like running a business. Sometimes an unexpected event or special opportunity may create a need for more ready cash than is on hand; or, you may want to finance a purchase without dipping into your savings.

Q. Does the bank really welcome a new borrower?

A. Certainly it does. Making loans is our business. We are proud of the number of Canadians—men and women of integrity who are regularly employed—who have become new customers of this bank through our Scotia Plan Loan service.

Q. How much can I borrow?

A. Scotia Plan Loans run from a few hundred dollars to a few thousand. There is no point, of course, in paying costs for money you don't need, and we will not encourage you to borrow more than you can conveniently repay. But you can often save money by borrowing enough through Scotia Plan to pay off your other debts; and at the same time by lengthening the period of repayment, you pay less each month than you were formerly paying.

Q. Must I be a BNS customer to get a Scotia Plan Loan?

A. No, indeed. If your proposition is sound, and you are in a position to repay, then you can borrow under Scotia Plan.

Q. Do I have to put up stocks, bonds or property for security?

A. In most cases, loans are secured by a car or furniture. In some cases, a signature alone will do, and occasionally Canada Savings Bonds, Life Insurance (cash value) or savings accounts are used as security.

Q. Will it take long to get a loan?

A. No, in most cases you will have your money the next day.

Q. How long do I have to repay?

A. 6 months to 36 months, depending on the amount you borrow and on the other commitments you must meet. Your payments are arranged in monthly instalments adjusted to your budget.

Q. Just what does it cost for a Scotia Plan Loan?

A. The cost for $100, repayable in 12 equal monthly instalments, is 50¢ a month—which is included in your monthly repayment of $8.83. Similarly, $500 costs $2.50 a month, which is included in the instalment repayments of $44.17.

And the bank provides, at no added cost to you, life insurance on the amount of the loan outstanding.

Q. How do you decide whether my proposition is sound?

A. We talk over your general financing program with you, of course, so that you—and we—are sure you can make repayments comfortably out of regular income. But your use of the money is your personal choice. It may be to purchase or refinance a car—to meet insurance, tax, or medical payments—to buy a washing machine, a dryer, a refrigerator or a TV set. Or maybe you want to save money and have a little peace of mind by consolidating all your debts at the bank—refinancing your other loans and instalment contracts.

Thousands of Canadians use Scotia Plan Loans to finance personal and family purchases, to pay off outstanding debts, or to meet special payments. When ready cash is your problem, a low cost Scotia Plan Loan may be the answer. Come in and talk it over.

By JIM PEACHOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chances are the footing will be soft when the East-West football finalists step on the field at Empire Stadium Nov. 28 for the 1960 Grey Cup final.

But the turf will be in the best condition that human efforts can bring about and with a boost from mother nature it will be fine, says stadium manager Dave Dauphinee.

"We'll nursemaid the hell out of it during the last two weeks," he said, which meant he and his crew of a dozen workmen would work night and day trying to get the moisture out of the soil and to keep it dry for the Canadian football final.

The grass became soggy during October as Vancouver recorded 8.2 inches of rain, the heaviest rainfall in the area in any October on record. Some warm, drying days or some cold weather will be necessary to firm it up.

USING TARPAULIN

"It work will do it," said Dauphinee, "we'll have that field in top shape. We'll have the crop down if it rains and up if there's a breeze to dry it out and we'll be rolling it every minute we can.

"One thing's certain. It will be a lot better than the field was last year in Toronto where they used Dustbane to make the mud look green."

Dauphinee is seeing to the comforts — and control — of the fans coming to the stadium for Grey Cup day, too.

He's expecting 38,731 — that's the total number of seats available and no standing room tickets will be sold—and he's got a force of 400 lined up to handle concessions, crowd control and pilfer duties inside the stadium.

Included in that number are 36 policemen, four policewomen and two police dogs to make sure there are no rowdy outbreaks before, during or after the game.

BIG RECORD GATE

The crowd is expected to contribute a record total in gate receipts, paying more than $522,500 for tickets. There are 18,036 seats priced at $10, a total of 14,703 set at $7.50, about 2,920 at $6 and about 3,070 at $5. With radio, television and program rights, the gross revenue probably will exceed the $400,000 taken in last year's final in Toronto where 37,133 tickets brought gate receipts of $304,000.

Empire Stadium offers 4,537 more seats this time than it had in 1958 and 2,800 more are under cover. About 18,500 are covered and well out of the elements, no matter what direction the wind might be blowing. If there's no wind, 30,000 would be protected from rain.

Kansas City A's Sold

CHICAGO (AP)—An offer of $3,500,000 for Kansas City Athletics baseball club was accepted from a St. Louis group Tuesday by Probate Judge Robert J. Dunne.

Judge Dunne is expected to sign the formal order today for sale of the stock owned by Mrs. Warren W. Hinman, remarried widow of Arnold Johnson, who owned 52 per cent of the club's stock. Johnson died last March 16.

Mrs. Hinman and the City National Bank of Chicago, co-executors of Johnson's estate, have been at odds over what should be done with the baseball stock.

Mrs. Hinman wanted to keep the stock but the bank wanted to sell in order to pay $1,500,000 in debts and taxes owed by Johnson.

Judge Dunne ruled Monday that the Cook County probate court had jurisdiction in the case.

The St. Louis group is headed by Elliott Stein, an investment broker. Associated with Stein are Gordon Soltet, Stein's business partner; Lester Crown, head of the Materials Service Corporation of Chicago; and Charles Baxter of Cleveland. Baxter formerly owned 30 per cent of Cleveland Indians.

Mrs. Hinman and the City National Bank of Chicago reached an out-of-court agreement to settle their case after several hearings on the case were continued this week with hopes that an agreement would be reached.

Lawyers for the bank had stated that holders of the other 48 per cent of the stock — most of whom were Johnson's associates — were willing to let the bank negotiate the sale of their stock.

Lark Pair Well Chosen Writers Say

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal sportswriters of both the French and English-language press received news of the selection of Sam Etcheverry and Hal Patterson to the 1960 Big Four Football Union all-star team with the same smug feeling—the players deserved it.

Pierre Proulx, sports editor of La Presse, said the selection of the two fast-traded Alouette players was further proof that they were the nucleus of Alouettes' aerial attack this season as in others.

"The fact that the selection was made before Etcheverry and Patterson were traded to Hamilton," he said, "shows they were not chosen for sentimental reasons."

Etcheverry and Patterson were traded to Hamilton Tiger - Cats for quarterback Bernie Faloney and defensive end Don Paquette. Neither of the latter two made the team.

Vern DeGeer, of The Gazette said Etcheverry had his best season of recent years and deserved to be chosen for the team.

HAD GOOD YEAR

Russ Taylor, sports editor of radio station CFCF said consider ing what Etcheverry had in front of him; he had a very good year.

"Etcheverry was a team leader," he said. "He deserved to be picked for the all - star team.

"Without him, I don't think the Als would have won five games during the season."

Gerry Gosselin, of Le Devoir, said he bought both Etcheverry and Patterson were as good as any other players in the league if not better.

"I think the trade was like someone changing a crisp $100 bill for an old 1920 nickel," he said.

GAME DATE CHANGED

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian intermediate football championship game between Verdun Shamrocks of Quebec and the Westt's St. Vital Bulldogs will be played Monday instead of Saturday at Winnipeg Stadium. It was announced Tuesday. Change in arrangements was due to Edmonton Eskimo 10-5 victory to even the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union final at one game each. The third game of the WIFU final will be played here Saturday.

Make Sure It's Game When Pulling Trigger

Hunter, make sure that what you're aiming at is game before you pull the trigger!

That's one of the cardinal commandments of safety in the hunting field emphasized in the Hunter Safety Training Program sponsored by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, and actively supported by the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters and rod and gun clubs across the province. Since September 1 adults may handle firearms safely is insisted upon before a hunting license is issued in Ontario.

Happily illustrating the gun safety doctrine are the following verses, author unknown, which first appeared in the Philadelphia Ledger in 1926:

A hunter popped a partridge on a hill.
It made a great to do and then was still.
It seems (when, later on, his bag he spied)
It was his guide!

One shot a squirrel in a nearby wood—

A pretty shot, off-hand, from where he stood,
It were, they said, a shooting
Not of brown . . .
And lived in town!

And one dispatched a rabbit for his haul
That later proved to measure six feet tall.
And, lest you think I'm handing you a myth,
The name was Smith!

Another Hinrod slew the champion fox.
He glimpsed him lurking in among the rocks.
One rapid shot—it never spoke or moved,
The inquest proved!

Was it a deer, or Jones, a friend from town?
And, while he pondered on the river's brim,
Jones potted him!

Ploen May Be Answer

Bomber Coach Has Poser

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers turned to the blackboard Tuesday to find out where they haven't been able to score a touchdown against Edmonton in the last 81 minutes of play.

Bombers got all their points by kicking Monday night as they bowed to the Eskimos 10-5 in the second game of the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union final here. The loss left Bombers tied with Esks after a 22-16 victory at Edmonton Saturday.

The teams clash again here Saturday in what should be the deciding game. It will be televised on the CBC's national network.

Bombers last scored a touchdown against the rock-ribbed Edmonton defence in the 30 of the third quarter of last Saturday's contest.

GOT NOTHING WRONG

Coach Bud Grant, after reviewing the films of Monday night's game, said he could find nothing wrong with the Bomber defence and would be happy to see it turn in an equal performance in the third game.

"If we can't score more than 10 points, we don't deserve to win," Grant said.

What may be the key to Bomb-ers' lack of punch—an injury to the running hand of regular quarterback Ken Ploen — remained a question mark.

Ploen is believed to have a crack in a small bone at the base of his right humb.

Fullbacks Gerry James and Charlie Shepard both are under par, Grant said. James has a knee injury and Shepard is suffering from a bad shoulder resulting from a pinched nerve suffered Monday.

Giambra Wins Over Calhoun

BUFFALO (AP)—Joey Giambra showed that he hasn't lost his punch as he left hand Tuesday night as he boxed his way to a 10-round, split decision over Rory Calhoun in a middleweight fight at Memorial Auditorium.

Giambra, ranked seventh in the 160-pound division, came on fast in the closing rounds after a slow start. At the final bell, he had Calhoun retreating under a hail of punches.

The decision was roundly booed by the crowd.

Royals Nip Flyers 4-2

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) —With three goals scored in a whirlwind final minute of play, Niagara Falls Flyers lost a chance to move into first place in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series Tuesday night when they dropped a 4-3 cliff-hanger to Guelph Royals before 700 fans.

The Flyers spotted Royals a gift goal just past the midway mark of the first frame as a Falls defender put the puck in his own net in attempt to clear. The goal was credited to Terry Dilger of the Royals.

Defenceman Ged Westfall got the equalizer for the second. Both teams traded in the last period. Guelph pulled in front as Paul Andrea tucked the puck into an unprotected cage.

With 59 seconds left to play, Andrea made it 3-1 for Guelph. Then Flyer coach Hap Emma yanked his goalie and this paid off six seconds later when Billy Knibbs scored a close-in shot to make it 3-2. In the final seconds of the game Flyers Wayne Rutledge was taken out of the cage and Bobby Cunningham pounced on a loose puck for the Falls end, hitting the open net to end the scoring.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carven, Sports Editor

Word from a former sports pal up around Sudbury way advises "if you're thinking of deer-hunting, stay down there in the banana belt where a buck is something you bet on a football game and a hunter is a gal rummaging around a basement bargain counter."

"Up here," he said, "the deer-hunting is terrible. Where they got one hundred a year ago they have shot ten thus far. But the hunter pickin's are good. They are knocking off each other as fast they're thinking of issuing licences to hunt hunters. Then some people might mistake a deer for a man and wind up with some venison."

But the moose-hunting is tops up thataway. From the Ohn district comes word that 208 moosers were successful as compared with 84 last season. And when you're potting a moose you can take a blast at a wolf. They're plenty numerous up there.

But there are mean two-legged varmints around, too. Up in the Rome Lake district, officers found two dead moose, their heads cut off and their bodies left to rot. You can almost hear these trophy-hunting rats bespatting their buddies in the comfort of their recreation room with stories of the terrific struggle they had before they brought down these kings of the forest.

As for the hunter-mortality rate, there's a nimrod from this city who headed for the deer-hunting timbers a few days ago, looking like a chapter in brown. Last year, he said, he wore all red and was shot at. The year before he wore yellow and barely missed being killed. This year he wore brown to blend with the foliage. He figures if they can't see him, they can't hit him.

Down here in the Tweed district things have been good for hunters. After a slow opening the deer came down from the northern areas. So did the moose.

During the first week of hunting the deer yield compared favorably with that of last year, according to Lands and Forests officials.

The moose yield however, is much better than that of the last hunt two years ago.

Deer surveys at the various checking points of the Tweed district indicate that the hunt thus far has been fairly normal with a 28-23 per cent hunter success. There are lots of deer south of Number Seven Highway, while hunting north of the highway has been good.

Officials state the variation of hunting success in different parts of the province was due to the difference in winter conditions, snow, etc. They were fairly good in the Tweed district with the winter mortality rate not so high.

Generally speaking the hunting situation is good, although the "big-party" hunting bags have been spotty.

In the southern sections of the district, as of this writing, the weather is mild and hunters using dogs are having their troubles.

The Don McNevin party, hunting around Millbridge, report a large number of rabbits in the district and the dogs of the party are having more fun chasing the bunnies through the undergrowth than going for a fast buck along the runways.

The "haul" to yesterday was seven deer and a bear, but five gets you ten the veteran hunter and his party of a dozen or so will emerge with their quota. They tell me young Peter, 17, showed up the "old man" by bagging his first deer.

Bears are reported to be more numerous in the northern districts than in previous seasons. One party bagged three north of Bancroft and at least a half-dozen "jingles" have been shot.

Hunters are requested to turn in reports of their kills, especially moose at the hunt-check stations of the Department of Lands and Forests at Kaladar, Eldorado and Arnprior. Those reports will greatly facilitate the work of officers in their coverage of the hunts.

Detroit Red Wings, specialists in turning a losing game into a winning one, came from behind to edge Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 Tuesday night in the only scheduled National Hockey League game.

The victory lifted the Wings into second spot in the standings with 21 points and narrowed the three - way race between them and Montreal Canadiens and the Black Hawks.

Canadiens are two points ahead of the Wings and Chicago is third, one point behind Detroit.

Alex Delvecchio, Murray Oliver and defencemen Marcel Pronovost scored for Detroit and Murray Balfour and Ab McDonald tallied for Chicago, without a win in seven straight road games.

Some fans, elated at Detroit's current position, are recalling the club's great seasons of the early 1950s when it won seven consecutive league titles.

HABS BACK TO FORM

But the station is tempered by the return to form of Canadiens, five-time Stanley Cup champions in the last five seasons, who flattened at the start of this campaign.

The defending champions have a strong offence, with Dickie Moore scoring 18 goals in 10 games and the team counting 62 goals this season, 10 more than the Wings or Detroit.

But the defence has been shaky, allowing 52 goals, the worst in the league outside last-place New York Rangers who have had 71 goals scored against them.

Toronto Maple Leafs, fourth in the standings with 19 points, can move to Be ggs tonight when they play the Red Wings in Toronto. In the other NHL game tonight, Boston Bruins meet New York Rangers.

Says Canucks Will Take To 10 Pins

TORONTO (CP) — A United States bowling team Tuesday night he has plans for a $30,- 000,000 sports complex to back up belief that Canadians will take to 10-pin bowling.

William Ludwig of Detroit made the statement in opening the 48-lane $2,000,000 Cedar Brae Bowl.

The president of the American International Bowling Corporation, a firm that controls 26 bowling alleys in the U.S. and has 14 more under construction, said the Toronto bowl is the firm's first Canadian venture.

American League

Must Pay O'Malley To Play In LA

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Baseball League goes into its expansion meeting Thursday with baseball commissioner Ford Frick toasting a skeptical eye on its plans and Congress threatening to take anti-monopoly action if a club isn't placed in Los Angeles.

The league wants to place a team in Los Angeles next year and will attempt to complete the proposal and put it to the joint major league meeting in St. Louis on Dec. 7.

Frick said today he would not vote for the amendment unless "a fair and workable plan is agreed upon by both leagues."

He was referring to the Hank Greenberg syndicate which intends to operate in Los Angeles. Frick maintained that Walter O'Malley, who moved the Dodgers to Los Angeles, has spent about $1,000,000 for the shift and is entitled to get some of it back from any AL team that wishes to share the territory.

"Greenberg's outfit wants to play baseball, anything," said Frick. "I won't stand for it. I have only anywhere talking that just because I'm for expansion I'm going to vote for it on that basis.

SITUATION 'SERIOUS'

Frick added that he thinks the situation confronting the majors is serious.

"But," he pointed out, "it is not an impossible situation. They have until next season to shift and out. I hope they can settle things quickly before then and I'll be able to let them know beforehand that I'm going to vote for it."

If the matter cannot be resolved in time to open the '61 season, there is a possibility that the AL might operate with only nine teams—the old Senators, plus the new franchise in Washington and the former Washington club in St. Paul-Minneapolis.

Meanwhile, government action loomed. Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.-Tenn.), chairman of the anti - monopoly committee, warned against any delay in expanding.

"Congress will regulate baseball as strictly a business in interstate commerce if the baseball people break faith with my committee and the public," he said.

WHAT IT FEARS

This is exactly what professional baseball has feared and has been fighting against.

Nub of the problem is rule 1 of the major league agreement. It states "the circuit of either major league shall not be changed to include any city in the circuit of the other major league except by unanimous consent of both major leagues."

The Los Angeles Angels already has a team in Los Angeles.

Frick said he would not accept "just a majority" on the amendment to make the American League entry into Los Angeles possible."

Rule 1 cannot be amended unless three of the four major leagues in St. Louis next month.

Frick's stand does not affect baseball's current plan to shift the Washington franchise to Minneapolis-St. Paul while establishing a new franchise in Washington, nor the National League plan to set up a Houston franchise in 1962.

Gordie Howe picked up one assist Tuesday night as Detroit Red Wings edged Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 in the National Hockey League's only game and it lifted the big right winger into a tie for seventh place in the league's scoring race.

He now has four goals and 10 assists for a total of 18 points, the same as centre Henri Jilard of Montreal. Richard, however, has scored eight goals in compiling his record.

Norm Ullman of the Red Wings maintained his leadership in the assists department, picking up one for a total of 18.

He has scored six goals for 24 points, good for fourth place in the scoring race.

The six Canadiens held firmly on to the first three positions.

Galt Romps To 8-4 Win Over Indians

GALT (CP) — Galt Terriers may not have a league, but it's not affecting their marksmanship.

They breezed to an 8-4 win over Stratford Indians here Tuesday night in another interlocking Ontario Hockey Association senior test before a crowd of 600. Terriers are all alone in the eastern division while Stratford occupies second place in the western division.

Terriers romped to a 4-1 and 7-1 period leads before relenting in the final 20 minutes when Indians poked home three goals.

They outgunned Indians 41 to 25.

The win was Galt's sixth in seven games this season.

Jimmy Brown Still Tops 'On Ground'

The former Syracuse star enjoyed his best day of the season last Sunday when he clipped off 173 yards on 28 carries to boost his season's total to 694 yards on 122 carries for an average of 5.8 yards.

Jimmy Taylor of Green Bay, who led a week ago, has gained 691 yards on 143 attempts for a 4.6 average, while John Crow of St. Louis clung to third place with 531 yards.

Mike Pium of Cleveland is showing the way to the 18 passers who qualified last week. It's seven games the Browns' quarterback has not had a pass intercepted, has the highest percentage in the league at .667 and is first in average gain with 11.13 yards.

TOP YARDS

Johnny Unitas, the pride of Baltimore who is second to Pium in passing, is first in yards gained and first in touchdown passes. Norm Van Brocklin of Philadelphia retained third place.

Ray Berry of Baltimore has snagged 32 passes for 982 yards and nine touchdowns to set a sizzling pace for the receivers. His nearest rival is Sonny Randale of St. Louis with 36 for 539 yards. Tommy McDonald of Detroit moved into third place by snaring seven passes last week for a total of 33.

Green Bay Paul Hornung needs only 29 points in two games to better the individual one-season scoring record set in 1942 by another Packer — Don Hutson. He has scored eight touchdowns, 25 successive extra points, and has booted nine of 17 field goals for an even 100 points. Bobby Walston of Philadelphia is second with 74 and Lenny Moore of Baltimore and Jim Baylor of Green Bay each has 60.

Van Brocklin grips the punters with an average of 44.8 yards on 37 kicks, and Abe Woodson of San Francisco took over first place in punt returns with a 13.9-yard average.

Injuries, Quarters Pose Problems

John Unitas Guest at Big Dinner

TORONTO (CP) — Johnny Unitas, whip-armed quarterback with the champion Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, will be a head table guest at the 10th annual sports celebrities' dinner here Thursday, January 26, it was announced today.

The 37-year-old Unitas, rated one of the best passers in the NFL, led Colts to title in 1958 and 1959. Last season he completed 193 of 367 passes, including an NFL record of 32 touchdown throws.

The six-foot, one-inch signal-caller joined the Colts in 1956 after being cut by Pittsburgh Steelers, also of the NFL. In his four years with the Colts he has completed 611 passes for 1,129 attempts.

Proceeds of the $25-a-plate dinner, sponsored by the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association, will be turned over to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Anthony Loses To Johnson

Johnson weighed 187½ and Anthony 178½.

Johnson, who dropped a decision to Anthony in Baltimore last year, forced Anthony to cover up in the second round with a right and left to the jaw. Using the same combination, Johnson drove Anthony into a corner in the third round.

OTTAWA (CP) — If football statistics mean anything Ottawa Rough Riders should start Canadian quarterback Russ Jackson against Toronto Argonauts Sunday.

Riders hold a 33-12 lead in the two-game, total-points series to pick the Eastern contender in the Nov. 26 Grey Cup game at Vancouver and if they hope to protect this lead they're going to have to keep the ball.

Jackson is a ball control man. He can pass but he much prefers to run his option play around the ends, reverse to Ron Stewart or send Dave Thelen belting the line behind Kaye Vaughan and other heavyweights.

Riders stick pretty well to the ball-control attack, though this strategy is not based on Jackson's preference for running. Alternate five inexperience in professional football.

Riders proved this season that the rushing game can pay off handsomely when it clicks and lets spectacular than the aerial offence.

Riders scored more points than any other Big Four team during the regular season — and more touchdowns, 55. Thirty-six of these touchdowns came by bushing and only 19 by passing. The latter figure was the lowest in the league.

Ottawa gained 3,658 yards rushing during the 14 regular games, far more than any other club. Montreal was second with 2,530 yards.

LOW PASSING AVERAGES

Lancaster and Jackson had the poorest passing averages among quarterbacks and Riders had only two of the 17 top pass receivers in the league and they ranked no better than 8th and 11th.

On the other hand, Riders' Dave Thelen and Ron Stewart finished one-two among rushers and Thelen broke his former rushing record with 1,407 yards.

Riders average gain a plunge was 6.2 yards, best in the league.

Injuries were still his chief problems as he watched Argos run signers and work out indoors. He figures Argos can throw the ball even if it does rain when they meet Ottawa Rough Riders here Sunday to decide the Big Four Football League championship.

Argos must win the game by at least 12 points to represent the East in the Grey Cup game at Vancouver a week from Saturday.

A 12 - point Toronto margin would tie the two - game, total-point eastern final, erasing the lead taken by the Rough Riders when they defeated Argos 33-21 in the series opener at Ottawa Saturday.

If Argos have a 13-point lead at the end of regulation time two 10-minute overtime periods will be played. If there is still a 13-point advantage after the overtime, Argos will represent the East in the cup game because they finished first in the Big Four standings.

THE RAIN ANTIDOTE

There was a chance the turf would be muddy when the two teams clash at 1:30 p.m., in Sunday's nationally televised game.

The tarpaulin was placed over the playing field but not until rain had drenched the ground.

"If it rains we'll have to use our mudders," mused Agase.

The condition of the team still wasn't good. Dick Shatto missed the practice, his second in a row, but the coach said his shoulder injury was improving. Stan Wallace's neck muscle spasms are improving and Jim Mooney's pulled muscle is mending. All will play.

Agase said Lynn Bottoms will replace Bobby Dehlinger, who had an operation on his torn muscle Tuesday.

They had the fewest fumbles—22.

Thus everything might be said to point to Ottawa coach Frank Clair sending in Jackson with orders to bug the ground and using Lancaster as a desperate measure if Argos wipe out Riders 12-point advantage.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks have found that most of their winning effort in the Western Hockey League have come with a 21 - year - old rookie, George Wood, in goal.

He played Tuesday night and Canucks broke a four-game losing streak at home by defeating Edmonton Flyers, who currently lead the WHL by four points, 5-1.

In other league action, Winnipeg Warriors took over second place with a 3-1 victory over Seattle Totems and Portland Buckaroos won 3-2 over Spokane.

At Vancouver Canucks' scorers were Orland Kurtenbach, Larry Cahan, Bruce Carmichael, Frank Roggeman and Murray Wilkie. The lone Edmonton marksman was Dennis Dejordy.

Portland saw 5,584 fans turn out at a new arena to inaugurate hockey after a 10-year absence in that city. They went home happy after Eddie Dudych slammed a long hard shot for the winning counter with less than three minutes remaining.

Other Portland goal - getters were Arnie Schmautz and Jack Bionda. Both Seattle counters were by Dick Lamoureux.

Interprovincial League

Rejects McFarland Entry

OTTAWA (CP)—Cecil Duncan, president of the Senior Interprovincial Hockey League announced Tuesday that a meeting of officials of the five-team loop has rejected a request from Belleville McFarlands to enter the loop.

Duncan also said a proposed Cornwall entry had decided to withdraw because arena space in that city could not be provided.

Reasons for the rejection were that trips to Belleville would be too expensive and that most of the players in the league had jobs that would not permit their travelling that far in time for evening games during the week.

Each team plays four games

Adams GOLD STRIPE CANADIAN RYE WHISKY

There's good reason. It's a gold-refining company and there may be precious metal in the dust and dirt on the floors.

The firm's care in handling gold has been recognized by the London gold market, the major world centre for gold trading. which has given Englehard approval as an acceptable melter and assayer.

This means that the 400-ounce bars of pure gold turned out by the firm meet the rigid standards of international trade and debt payment.

Englehard, Toronto subsidiary of Englehard Industries Inc. of Newark, N.J., shares the distinction of London approval with two other Canadian institutions — the Royal Canadian Mint and Canadian Copper Refiners Ltd., subsidiary of Noranda Mines.

EXACTING OPERATION

The process of converting the 40-ounce bars received from Canadian mines is an exacting one. Such bars may contain only 50 per cent gold and perhaps 15 per cent silver with the remainder made up of such base metals as copper, zinc, cadium and nickel.

Before refining a sample must be drilled out of the bar and assayed for its various metallic contents. Then the bar is melted down and granulated. The silver is removed and other metals are also recovered.

CHECK WASH BASINS

Nothing is overlooked and as a result gold losses are very small," says plant superintendent Ralph Williams.

Besides the standard gold trading unit acceptable in London, Englehard produces the popular Canadian "kilo" bar of 32.15 ounces, quoted on the Toronto Stock Exchange, and bars of 25, 50 and 100 grams and 20 and 40 ounces.

Business in bars has picked up markedly since the recent rush on the gold began, stimulated by speculation that the official price might be increased, said George Scott, president of Englehard.

Charlotte Will Be Candidate For Mayoralty

OTTAWA (CP) — Charlotte Whitton—social worker, writer, reformer and politician—announced Monday she will be a candidate again for mayor in the capital's December 5 civic election.

Miss Whitton, 64, the only woman mayor in the history of the Canadian capital, said she has decided to run after getting assurance of support from men as well as women. She held office from 1951 to 1956.

Old Steel Bridge Knocked Out By Transport

OWEN SOUND (CP)—An old steel bridge over a creek near Holland Centre, about 17 miles south of here, was wrecked by a tractor trailer transport Tuesday. The accident cut off north and southbound traffic on Highway 10, the direct route between Toronto and Owen Sound.

rig rehabilitated. An education campaign is being carried on.

Though deaths due to TB are reduced, the incidence is still high and there are many new cases found each year. Only by continued effort can the disease be kept under control and eventually wiped out, said Mrs. Edwin Allan, executive secretary of the county Association.

WINE CHAMPIONSHIP

For the second successive year, R. H. Brand, R.R. 2, Picton, has won the corn championship at the Royal Winter Fair. He won first prize with Golden Cross bantam and this won the championship among entries from many parts of Canada and the United States.

PICTON — Prince Edward County hunters report good luck in the north. One of the group headed by E. Dueta of Picton included a 500-pound moose in their trophies of the chase. It was shot in Denbigh district.

Members of the Big Island Hunt Club are located north of Lake St. Peter. Early this week the nine members sent home three moose and four deer.

Says Gimmick in Latest Scare Epic Best in History

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — William Castle says the gimmick in his latest scare epic is the best in the history of the theatre.

This covers a lot of ground, since theatre history spans from Sophocles to the Three Stooges.

Yet Castle says his idea for Homicidal has never been tried by any of his artistic predecessors. Just what is it?

"Ah, I never reveal my gimmicks before the picture is released," said the movie-maker.

Castle has made a career and tidy fortune of out-gimmicking his competitors.

HAD INSURED

"It started with Macabre," he related. "I had no gimmick on the screen; the thing was the insurance policy on any patron who might be frightened to death."

He marched upward to The House on Haunted Hill, for which he employed a skeleton sailing over the patrons' heads. Then came The Tingler, which was literally so, the theatre seats being rigged for shock.

His latest excitement was Thirteen Ghosts, which were visible via special spectacles but unseen by the naked eye.

"Columbia ordered only 1,000,000 of the glasses, which I told them was not enough," said Castle triumphantly. "The final order will be 13,000,000."

AT THE PARK — Lovely Victoria Shaw, cousin of Actress Debbie Reynolds, has had theatrical experience in Columbia Pictures' "Rise of Eternity" in Cinemascope. Mickey Shaughnessy also stars in the drama, filmed in Eastman Color on Grand Canyon. Jack Lemmon stars in "The Apartment" and "Homicidal" playing tonight only at the Park Theatre. Shirley MacLaine and Fred MacMurray are co-starred.

"THE BELLBOY"

You need only a small imagination to visualize the many possibilities for hilarity inherent in "The Bellboy" with Jerry Lewis in the title role! The comedian's new Paramount release is based on his own personal experiences as a bellboy-busboy when he accompanied his vaudeville father on the Catskill Mountains "borscht" summer circuit. Too young to be in the family act, Jerry worked at odd jobs around the various hotels he "many years" he cherished the dream of translating his memories of those days into a motion picture in which he would play "The Bellboy."

The dream has become a reality. "The Bellboy" opens tomorrow at the Park Theatre and not only Jerry its star but with the theme so close to his heart the actor decided to produce, direct and write the film as well! Lewis felt that he knew every angle and he wanted to do the title role and that if ever there was a made-to-order opportunity for him to fulfill his other dream of being a quadruple threat movie man (writer - producer - director - star), "The Bellboy" provided it.

The entire film was shot in Miami Beach, right around the fabulous Hotel Fountainbleau. Rated the world's most luxurious and largest hotel, the Bahama and yacht club, the hotel, built at a cost of $24,000,000, provided magnificent sets impossible to duplicate on sound stages.

Lewis' film is packed with many hilarious surprises including the guest appearances of numerous headliners in the world of entertainment.

American TV Far Worse Than Year Ago Says Actor

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—American television, says actor Robert Morley, is far worse than it was a year ago, "It is a shame, too, because today it is your most significant export, a barometer of your prestige abroad."

Morley, a British theatrical star and playwright, is in New York to play a lead in tonight's CBS show of the month, an adaptation of the comedy, Heaven Can Wait.

The performer, a witty man who obviously enjoys making outrageous remarks, suggests that it would be "impossible to make a film under conditions imposed on American television programs."

IT'S LUDICROUS

"It is like an author trying to write a book with four sponsors and a network breathing over his shoulders, and that is ludicrous. Television programs should be created like any other art forms. It can't be run by a committee—nothing really can be created by a committee. The way it works out is that one man is writing a show while 17 people related to him are busy keeping their jobs. Sponsors usually shouldn't be allowed any hand in it. And in England they are not."

Morley cannot understand why there is such a shortage of good writers for television in the United States.

The English find there is a school of new writers concentrating on television. There are plenty of original dramas—about two a week. And we don't give them enormous sums for their work."

Reds Dominate All-Stars

TORONTO (CP)—The over-all power of McGill Redmen was reflected in The Canadian Press senior intercollegiate football all-star team announced today. Seventeen of the 22 players from the college champions for places on the 1969 all-star team.

The Redmen, winners of the title for the first time in 22 years, had seven on the first-team five, and four on the defensive squad—three more than the last-place University of Toronto Blues.

Johnny Metras Jr., all - star centre with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs last year, was the only player chosen from the Mustangs. In 1969, when the Mustangs won the intercollegiate championship, they had nine men on CP's team.

The all-stars were named by writers, coaches and sportscasters from the four league cities—Montreal, Kingston, Toronto and London. Voting was weighted to give equal value to strength in each city.

The Tracks

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Owner C. V. Whitney has romped off four entries at Churchill Downs today for the $1,000,000 pocket money needed to give the Royal Winter Fair. He won first prize with Golden Cross bantam and this won the championship among entries from many parts of Canada and the United States.

If his major entry, Bright Sultan, and three entries from many of the other three horses can get even a piece of Whitney has four horses will have won $1,000,000 this season. Only Calumet Farms has ever passed the $1,000,000 mark.

Whitney needs a measly $3,950 to notch the mark. He will be depending on the two-year-old daughter of Native Dancer to bring in the winner's share of $2,900 in the featured race.

The all-time money won record for a season is the $1,402,-436 Calumet won in 1950. Calumet also has passed the $1,000,000 mark five other times — in 1948, 1949, 1952, 1956 and 1957.

TORONTO (CP) — Wonderwire, a three-year-old owned by Max Cristall of Edmonton, won the feature race at New Woodbine race track Tuesday.

Wonderwire ridden by Bobby Wright defeated Norman B by three-quarters of a length while Brown Panther struggled home in third position, more than 10 lengths behind the winner.

Wonderwire was the favorite and paid $4.90, $3.50 and $2.80. He ran the 1 1-16 miles in 1.47.4-5.

Wonderwire was the second winner for jockey Wright who had captured the fourth race on Kentucsket, which paid $9.70, $5.30 and $4.60.

Sidney Twp. Council

The regular meetings of the Sidney Township council were held for October and November at Wallbridge.

The township road superintendent was instructed to prepare a proposed cost-for an improved CNR grade at Lot 5, Con. 1, Sidney, for the crossing of the railway.

The reeve will attend the adjourned county tax sale to be held on Nov. 22, 1960, at Shannonville Hall. Delinquent taxpayers attended the council meeting, and paid their outstanding taxpayers.

The assessment for 1961 for the Township of Sidney is $4,722,288.00 with a population of 5,836, this being reported by the assessor, J. W. Bailey.

The sodding firm of Fred Page Higgins Company has been engaged by by-law to sodd the accounts of the Township and various boards within the township for the year 1960.

The Court of Revision on assessments for the township was held on the 2nd day of August, items duly dealt' with by the court.

Various by-laws were passed, including one to appoint a place and time for the holding of elections and to provide polling places. Appointments of candidates for the township of Sidney will be held at the Orange Hall, Wallbridge, at 12 o'clock noon on Monday, Nov. 28, and if a poll is required, it will be held on Monday, Dec. 5, 1960.

Road voucher No. 11 for $8,432.66 — welfare accounts of $905.55, and nursing home accounts of $1,000.00 were passed by the regular pay sheet, order-on-order paid at the November meeting. The building inspector, J. W. Bailey, reported 12 building permits for the year, value of which were issued for the month of October.

The Sidney Township taxes for the year 1960 are due on December 15th, after this date a penalty of 5 per cent will be added to the taxes. There will be a change for the due date and penalty in comparison to former years, and ratepayers are asked to note this change in the payment of their 1960 taxes.

Milk Distributors Under Fire

Mischief-Making Letter Enrages Govt. Official

Effort Made to Block Aid for Cheese Exports

TORONTO (CP)—E. M. Biggs, Ontario assistant deputy minister of agriculture in charge of marketing, said today the Ontario Milk Distributors Association is waging a campaign to keep provincial milk producers disorganized.

In a speech to the distributors' 31st annual meeting, Mr. Biggs stressed that the Ontario government supports the principle of collective producer action.

He said the distributors' aid to sending milk producers an anonymous letter which he described as "one of the worst examples of mischief-making I have seen in a long time."

He also warned the distributors that the province plans to eliminate the system of milk distribution areas, supports marketing boards "as the best instrument available" to protect farmers' interests, and to facilitate farmers' co-operatives wherever feasible and useful as a vehicle for marketing efforts among the producers.

HELP PRIMARY PRODUCER

Mr. Biggs said the department's aim is "to strengthen to the greatest degree possible the economic and marketing position of the primary producer and consumer."

Excerpts of his speech were released to the press before delivery.

Mr. Biggs read a copy of the anonymous letter to delegates. Signed "Your milk producer," it criticized a proposal by the Ontario Wheat Mill Producers' League to levy a five-cent-a-bushel drawback charge on all milk shipped. The money would be used to assist Canada's cheese exports.

The first paragraph of the letter, which Mr. Biggs said presumably was circulated throughout the province, implied that the federal government already passed an order-in-council providing for the drawback. Mr. Biggs said the suggestion "is absolutely false."

"Unfortunately, the federal legislation which authorizes the levy does not adopt as such a section such as the league.

"If the Ontario Whole Milk Producers League becomes a marketing board then it will be eligible for consideration of such levy under the federal legislation."

The letter took issue with the principle of the league's milk producers subsidize cheese production.

MUST CONSOLIDATE

Mr. Biggs said "We are quickly approaching the stage in the dairy industry where we cannot see each branch as far as the producers are concerned.

The producers are represented by two groups, the Ontario Producers Marketing Board, the On-

HOPE EARLY START WILL GIVE MP'S SUMMER HOLIDAY

Federal Legislators Beginning Long Grind

OTTAWA (CP)—For the second time this year, Canadian legislators gathered today to participate in the ritual opening of a new parliamentary session.

MPs and senators have been called earlier than usual to begin the fourth session of the 24th Parliament since Confederation, in an effort to get business concluded before next summer. The last session began Jan. 14 and stretched to Aug. 10.

Most of the slow-moving centennial will be the same as at previous openings but this one will also see the unprecedented presence for a former governor general.

While Governor-General Vanier reads the speech from the throne outlining the government's legislative plans for the session, the man who occupied Gen. Vanier's post for 7½ years, Vincent Massey, will be seated on the floor of the Senate chamber.

FIRST TO ACCEPT

All former governors - general are invited to attend parliamentary openings but Mr. Massey, who retired in 1959, is the first to accept.

For the first time since her appointment in 1936 as Canada's first women senator, Mrs. Cairine Wilson, 73, will miss a parliamentary opening. The Liberal senator from Ottawa is recovering from surgery.

All With White Skin Classed As Belgians

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Mrs. Herb Franklin of Peterborough and four other diesel experts arrived at Leopoldville in the Congo to teach the natives to operate and maintain their diesel equipment. The Congolese stoned them and called them "Belgian saboteurs."

"They thought we were down there to take their jobs, not to help them," says Mr. Franklin. He has just returned from Africa after sent there by the United Nations to train Congolese in diesel maintenance.

"Everyone with white skin is classed as a Belgian by the natives," he said, "and they can't tell them you're from Canada. I'll tell you where Canada is. It will take 100 years to educate these people. There are 1,000 tribes, as far as I could discover.

"When the natives could not operate the diesel engines, they decided the diesels had put curses on them, he said.

Youth Admits Slaying Three Women in State Park in March

OTTAWA, Ill. (AP) — The sheriff's office said today that Chester Weger, 21, of La Salle, Ill., has confessed to the slaying of three Chicago-area women in March 14 in Starved Rock State Park.

Sheriff Ray Eutsey said Weger was a subwaiter at the lodge in the park where the women were last seen on holiday. He said Weger gave the confession to police.

The women, wives of three Chicago business executives, were brutally beaten to death in a canyon in the park. They were Mrs. Lillian Oetting, 39; Mrs. Winifreda Lindquist, 50, and Mrs. Frances Murphy, 47. Their bodies were discovered March 16.

Eutsey said Weger confessed at 1:45 a.m. He had been picked up at 5 p.m. Wednesday for questioning. The sheriff said he has been under 24-hour surveillance for a month.

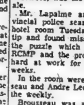
Plot to Sell Fake Evidence Of Phoney Money Revealed

QUEBEC (CP) — A fantastic plot to sell fake evidence that Liberals had thrown $2,500,000 in counterfeit money into the recent provincial election campaign has been disclosed.

Attorney-General Georges Lalonde read a detailed report by Mr. Alphonse Maltz, inspector-general of the Quebec Provincial Police, to members of the legislative assembly Wednesday.



The report into the whole affair is a machination, apparently to embarrass the Liberal party after it won the election.

Mr. Lapalme said the only party implicated in the affair, which culminated in the publication of a report in the Montreal weekly newspaper Le Reflet de Illustrees, was the Union Nationale.

Mr. Lapalme announced proposal police searched a $15-a-night hotel room Tuesday night and up found missing pieces of the puzzle, which has had the RCMP and the provincial police busy for the past few weeks.

In the room were Serge Brousseau and Andre Lecombe, both of the weekly.

Brousseau was armed with a revolver and there was another revolver in the room. Both were arrested. There also were magnetic tape recordings containing hundreds of names mentioning the names of Liberal party members as involved in the distribution of counterfeit money. Police could not find the photos which they also knew existed.

The inspector-general's report names the names of J. D. Begin, chief Union Nationale organizer; Raymond Maher, Quebec City lawyer, and notary Raymond Cantave, former chairman of the Quebec Catholic School Commission.

Mr. Begin, interrupting Mr. Lapalme's remarks, admitted meeting persons connected with the affair but said when they told him they knew of a counterfeit money operation he told them to see the RCMP.

The police report says he asked the plotters to make sworn affidavits.

The report says first discussion of the affair took place in the office of Mr. Maher June 30, two days after the provincial election.

"Get Well" Messages Flood Into Sir Winston's Home

LONDON (CP) — Sir Winston Churchill's doctor said today he was encouraged by the way the tough old statesman is bearing the discomfort of a broken bone in his back.

"He had a very good night and is feeling fine," said a medical bulletin issued by orthopaedic surgeon Professor Herbert J. Seddon.

To reporters standing in the rain outside Chartwell, London home, the physician added:

"It's an encouraging bulletin."

Sir Winston's doctor said the "Get well" messages flooded into Sir Winston's home. They came from the Queen, Prime Minister Macmillan, from people in all walks of life and from admirers abroad.

Three persons who examined him assured an earlier report Wednesday his injury was "noticeable."

The bone damage nevertheless was causing him pain and he was advised to lie as still as possible flat on his back.

Wednesday night, despite the pain, he was reported to be in "excellent spirits" and "extremely genuine—he calls her Clemmie—as ever," wife of Duncan Sandys, secretary of state for

Many Charges Made Against Conduct of Town's Affairs

TORONTO (CP)—Mismanagement of municipal affairs in Ontario suburb of Eastview, including "irregularities" in well-known amounts of town funds, was charged today in the report of a provincial government inquiry commission.

The investigators found town funds had been sold to private buyers at prices below normal and then bought back at inflated prices, firms had been given low assessments, council had paid land they already owned for 1½ years, the mayor a bonus under the guise of entertainment, and numerous drawings had been made illegally, some of these dead to make appear that they were raped.

The report told the sheriff he should "see the grand jury" in the case of the canyon and herded them into a bus and tied them together. He told the sheriff he picked up a knife and that Murphy first and left her for dead, then beat the other two struggling women until they were dead.

Mrs. Murphy had only been married a month, the sheriff said, and got up and began to fight again until they killed her.

State's attorney Harland Warren said the cord with which the women were tied led them to suspect Weger originally. It was the same kind used in the kitchen of the lodge where Weger worked, Warren said.

The three slain women were found frozen in Riverside, Ill., a fashionable Chicago suburb.

Ike Moves To Cut Spending Abroad By Billion Annually To End Gold Reserve Drain

Nations Getting Loans Must Spend Money to Buy Goods Made in U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — The John F. Kennedy administration, due to take office Jan. 20, will launch a new government program designed to reduce American spending abroad by $1,000,000,000.

Signs indicate that Kennedy will retain and possibly expand this program aimed at stimulating business at home and curbing the drain on American gold reserves now down to $18,000,000,000. This is a drop of $5,000,000,000 during the last eight years.

With only 81 days left in his eight-year administration, President Eisenhower announced Wednesday the multi-point program to curb spending retrenchment which could divert new defence and civilian orders to American factories from plants in other countries.

Services wives uttered protests when told that 294,000 of the 484,000 dependents "in the field" overseas service men abroad will be ordered home in batches beginning next January.

SACRIFICES NECESSARY

"Our people accept a new kind of war," said Defence Secretary Gates in explaining the economy drive. "I think our people are accustomed to sacrifice."

Japan and several other countries were dismayed when Eisenhower announced that each country required under U.S. foreign military sales economic aid programs will have to be produced in the U.S.

Underdeveloped countries getting American aid to finance their development will be required to use most and in some cases all of their money to buy American goods.

This is a retrenchment program may have some impact in U.S. spending programs in Canada, possibly in the purchase of defence orders, but officials said that there is no curb on spending in the industrialized countries of Europe, with Britain, West Germany and Switzerland top Japan.

ACTION IMPERATIVE

"A definite improvement in our balance of payments situation is mandatory not only to strengthen economic well-being and military security but to restore confidence in the whole free world," Eisenhower at his Augusta, Ga., holiday headquarters. "We must assure that the United States can maintain a strong partner in the future economic, political and military strength of the free world."

The U.S. government also will take steps with an eye to increasing exports drive, to get more com-

Charges Two U.S. Agencies Control Almost All Canadian News-Stands

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian magazines striving for increased circulation have been told that sales have but a "pious hope," Liberal Edinburgh, retired on Saturday Night, said Wednesday.

He told the parliamentary royal commission in a brief by Canadian Press Limited—which publishes Saturday Night and Liberty—that news-stands in Canada are almost entirely in the hands of two major agencies with headquarters in the U.S.

He identified the companies as the Curtis Distributing Company and Select Magazines, Inc., which said Mr. Cooke is in the process of taking out American citizenship. But the important thing, he said, is that the agency is willing to pour resources into magazines produced by Canadians for Canadians.

Mr. Edinburgh said Canadian magazines, in seeking access to Canadian readers, run an interlocking group of frustrations directly precisely to the economic colonialism which they argue against so strongly.

"Unless some recommendations are arrived at by this commission which the government will implement without delay, the last few Canadian magazines will disappear. Canada must go on forever being paid for out of

Soldier, Two Women Killed Near Delaware

DELAWARE, Ont. (CP) — A soldier and two women were killed Wednesday night when their car was in a four-car collision, three miles west of here on Highway 2.

Police said the car was in the multiple smash-up involving two cars, driven by Windsor doctors, and a fourth by Bertram Wickins, of Don Mills, Toronto suburb. Wiggins was taken to hospital in fair condition suffering from a fractured rib.

Dr. Marian Tuszewski of Windsor, who was uninjured, proped open the door of the McGilp car with a wrench. Two occupants were dead and one of the women died later on the way to hospital.

Police pulled a second man, George Clifford, 24, of Fingal, Ont., from the wreckage. He suffered possible internal injuries and cuts to the face.

Delaware is 14 miles southwest of London.

The car in which the trio died struck the driver's side of a car driven by Dr. Stewart, struck the driver's side of Dr. Tuszewski's car, spun in a circle and struck the third car.

KING OF MOVIES CLARK GABLE, 59, DIES SUDDENLY

Seemed Recovering From Heart Attack

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable, greatest star of them all, dropped his head back on a pillow late Wednesday night and died of a heart attack.

The end came as fast that his doctor said there was no palpitation at the time. He had seemed before he had been asleep. A nurse in his room heard the gasps and rushed across the hall to Mrs. Gable who had moved into Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital when Gable, 59, was taken here after his first heart attack Nov. 6.

Ironically, death came after the best day since that first attack. He ate heartily at dinner, took a little snooze afterwards and then chatted happily with his wife. He had even been shaved. He looked like the 30-year virgin of the king of Hollywood. Sadly, he never ate his first child due in March.

Senior Officers Of CNR Region Are Appointed

MONTREAL — James A. McDonald, general manager of the newly created CNR St. Lawrence Region, announces the appointment of three senior officers on his staff. J. A. Laderman becomes regional passenger sales manager; Harold V. Davis, regional freight sales manager and James Charles Crocketiere, assistant regional freight sales manager.

The new St. Lawrence Region, with headquarters at Montreal, extends from Brockville, Ont., to Riviere-du-Loup and includes most of Quebec. In Ontario it extends as far west as Oshawa. The present reorganization of the CNR witnesses decentralization of responsibility so as to give more authority to the regions and the areas and provides for greater integration of operating functions into a close-knit managerial team at each level.

Art and Crafts Association Plans Exhibit

The expanding policy of the East Central Art and Crafts Association was evident when plans for an art exhibit were announced at its annual meeting held recently in Trent River Hose. Plans were represented by two members, Mrs. Lewis Andrew and Mr. Don Maddock, with other members attending from as far north as Bancroft, from Lindsay and Oshawa on the west, Napanee on the east and Picton on the south.

The organization, formed in April of this year, brought in a constitution and a council was established with two elected members from each of the five districts. East District — Mrs. Roger Williamson and Mrs. Lewis Andrews; North District — Mrs. R. Baker and Mrs. Lloyd Greaves; West District — Miss Dora Pudney and Mr. James Kraemer; South District — Mrs. V. Hall and Mr. David Bennett; Central District — Mrs. Ralph Hall and Mr. Max Heinrich.

The purpose of the Society, to foster the development of art and crafts in East Central Ontario with emphasis upon design and fine workmanship, was evident when it was announced an annual art exhibit will be held in the public library, Peterboro'', from February 4 to 12. It is anticipated that over 300 paintings in the district will be submitted to the jury of out-of-district artists under the direction of Mr. Jori Kraemer. Mr. David Bennett and Mr. Max Heinrich. From the 300 paintings, 100 will be selected for this happy and successful week-end under the sponsorship of the Association.

MISCHIEF-MAKING

tario Concentrated Milk Producers Marketing Board, the Dairy Producers Marketing Board and the W. D. and H. O. Wilson Company Limited.

"It is apparent from time to time that it is the policy of your association to throw roadblocks in the way of any move looking to strengthening marketing efficiency.

"This matter of interference is: the proposed deduction of five cents per hundredweight is the latest of several indications that the Ontario Milk Board is not producers disorganized. I do not believe that this is going to react to your good interests.

He described as "unfortunate" the gradual decline of the cheese industry in Ontario and an increase in the facilities for making milk powder.

The Ontario government was considering the possibility of some eventual discard" of the system of splitting the province into areas for milk distribution.

He praised the action of the cheese p ers' board in making a levy on cheese sales and said he was opposed to fluid milk—to stimulate export of cheddar cheese to Britain.

Without the levy, there is stimulus to the export market, the price of cheese would be reached the world level, now 36 cents a pound.

"That would have resulted, or would result if it happens in the future, in the complete ruin of our cheese industry in Ontario."

Delegation Assured Artillery Camp Will Not Close Down

PICTON — A delegation arranged by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce met with the Honorable Douglas Harkness, Minister of National Defence, in Ottawa on the 15th instant to discuss the future of Camp Picton.

The delegation was composed of Mayor H. J. McFarland, Warden Art Rowe, Reeve G. G. Formoe, Messrs Donald J. Bearse, Harold Cleeve, J. I. Mason, Ray Sharpe, Harold Sherwood, Barney Hepburn, W. D. McArthur, Harold Thompson, Milligan, M.P., joined the party in Ottawa.

Mayor H. J. McFarland acted as spokesman and also provided transportation for the delegation.

The group was accorded a very sympathetic hearing by the Minister and after being brought up to date on correspondence gram, which had been exchanged between the Prime Minister, formerly Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Harkness, V.C., and Mayor McFarland, further plans for the operation of the Camp were discussed.

Mr. Harkness outlined the changes in artillery organization that had led up to the closing-of the Anti-Aircraft School at Picton, but assured the delegation that there was no thought of closing down the Camp, but that the number of army personnel could be expected to vary during the period of re-organization over the forthcoming months, but gave his assurance that Camp Picton would be back at full strength in a year or so.

With regard to civilian employment brought about directly by layoffs from the Camp, he promised to look into the possibilities of a winter works program.

Eaton's Santa Claus Parade Colorful Pre-Christmas Spectacle

Take a thousand fairy-costumed students, a dozen brass bands, thirty colorful floats, and Santa Claus. Then have the ingredients of one of Toronto's biggest annual events — Eaton's Santa Claus Parade. Marchers, bandsmen, floats and old St. Nick himself will be on the move through Ontario's capital Saturday morning, November 19, this year in what promises to be one of Eaton's best parades to date.

The mammoth, pre-Christmas spectacle is 56th in Eaton history. Following the same route as last year, the nine-unit parade will start off from Devercourt and Dupont Streets at 9:30 a.m., and wind through more than six miles of city blocks arriving at Eaton's Main Store at 10:00 a.m. Spectators will see 30 minutes of fairy-land's best-loved characters, make-believe animals, dancing clowns and, of course, Santa himself all pass in review.

Theme for 1960 Santa Claus Parade of the Storyland Alphabet — is a presentation in exciting color of nursery rhyme and fairy tale heroes and heroines from A to Z. From Aladdin and the Old Woman in The Shoe to Punkinhead and Zero — Jack Frost's wintry weather.

Twenty-five major floats, the largest 48' in length, representing the letters of the alphabet, down to four foot pull floats, both animated and static, will be in the parade.

The complete array was put together in Eaton's 25-acre service building on Highway 400 where Santa Claus maintains his permanent workshop. Sketches for the floats were off the drafting board and into the workshop ready to be constructed a month or so after last year's parade. But the amount of work involved in the production of this parade and those in the past is so extensive that finishing touches are still being applied a week or two before parade day.

More than 600 students from 70 Metro and district high schools volunteered for the parade as marchers, with several hundred more accompanying the floats.

Ten professional bands including the Navy and the Air Force, are in the parade this year, and will be supported by a 100-piece Toronto Secondary School bands.

The Metropolitan Toronto Police Department's own 100-piece "Elmer the Safety Elephant" marches in young and old alike to "play it safe" during Christmas and the year, will travel ahead of the parade.

Council Studies New Over-All Zoning Plan

Members of Belleville city council Wednesday night got their first look at the city's new over-all zoning plan as they met in caucus at the invitation of the planning committee of chairman Alderman Dr. John Barlow.

The new over-all city zoning plan recently received from Upper Planning Consultants Jo-ronto with be considered by both council and the Belleville Suburban Planning Board and later will be discussed at an open meeting of ratepayers before final adoption of the plan is sought from the Ontario Municipal Board.

At last night's presentation of the plan to council, Alderman Barlow emphasized that all possibly contentious points would have to be gone over very carefully before submission of the final zoning proposals.

Every effort will be made to publicize the zoning plan prior to its presentation for final approval, including possibly showing slides of various parts of the land use plan.

A public meeting to secure views of the ratepayers is expected to be called in about two weeks time.

Shooting of Owl To Be Probed

TORONTO (CP)—The shooting of a large grey owl on suburban Etobicoke is being investigated by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

The owl, perched on an apartment house television aerial, was shot by Constable Herb Smith with a shotgun.

Dr. C. H. D. Clarke, chief of the fish and game branch, said birds are protected by law in Ontario and "I see no shooting reason or explanation." He said a police claim that the grey owl can be dangerous to pets was "ridiculous."

Also under investigation by the department is the shooting of a golden eagle by Norman Marcellette, 17, of Chesley, Ont., last week-end in Glenelg township, east of Windsor. He said he saw the eagle swooping on a neighbor's farm.

5. Tenders should be called on major contracts.

6. The department should consider whether Lucien Masse and Maurice Menard, the town's outside auditors, should continue to be both municipal auditors' licencees.

7. There should be "effective and complete investigation" of the way in which cash was handled in the office of the town treasurer, Mrs. Adrienne Leroche.

"The manner in which cash was handled in this office could not have been much worse," the report said.

MONEY VANISHED

"There is no doubt," it said, "that money belonging to the town has disappeared, that it disappeared on several occasions and that it disappeared after coming into custody of the treasurer.

"But it will be difficult to ascertain now when this occurred or the actual amount taken because some of the records have been straightened.

Thefe was flicking from paying Hare invoices over by police to the treasurer's office, the report says. It estimated between $912 and $1,000 in 1959 and the first half of 1960.

"It is virtually impossible to determine how much, if any, was taken from this source prior to 1959," the report said, because the duplicate receipts up to the end of 1958 were destroyed in 1959 on the instructions of Leopold Labelle, the town clerk, who stated that he obtained the permission of the chief of police but did not consult the town council.

The report added that "an additional $1,000 or more has have been taken from parking meter collections in 1959.

AUDITING CARELESS

Dealing with audit procedure, the report said it had not been conducted properly. Auditor H. Boudreau, an employee of Mr. Masse's firm, had had the contract. Mr. Boudreau had not done or ignored some normal audit procedures. He was not familiar with Ontario municipal law. His methods were careless to say the least."

"If he had checked the records available, the shortage of cash in the treasurer's office would have been detected earlier."

Discussing Mayor Lavergne's connection with Garchart Investment Company, which did business with the municipality in developing subdivisions, the report said:

"If the mayor had disclosed in the beginning his interest in the company and abstained from supporting or authorizing action by the town on behalf of the company, this part of the inquiry might not have been necessary.

"However, all other members of the council agreed that they did not know the mayor was a shareholder of the company until it was disclosed at this inquiry."

While declaring it appeared the mayor personally had dominated the start of work on municipal services for the subdivision, the report did not comment on the propriety of his actions.

COUNCIL MOTION

The report noted that at the end of 1959 council had passed a motion to "repay" each councillor $200 and the mayor $1,500 for money purported to have been expended in travelling on distinguished guests.

"It seems quite clear that every one of the council was aware that this money was paid as additional remuneration to each of them as a member of council and was not for receiving distinguished guests or for reimbursing councillors for monies expended by them on behalf of the municipality."

The mayor's cheque had been drawn the day before the motion was passed.

Dealing with low assessments for properties, the report said these had been given improperly to Eastview Hotel Limited and Ottawa Iron Works Limited.

Household items including frying pans, toasters, and cooking utensils are needed for Waupoos House. An arrangement is being considered with the Waupoos Canning Company where by the girl guide executive would permit the company to sow ten acres of its property with peas, free of charge. Trenton did not meet its obligation for its share in this area's $6,000 towards the purchase price of the campsite. Mrs. Helen Ferguson at Ex. 2-5570 would be glad to accept donations to put Trenton over the top.

An area scrapbook is being prepared. Pictures or interesting items about guiding may be forwarded to Mrs. Ian Morch, R.R. 3, Belleville.

A training report was read by Mrs. Helen Ferguson. Mrs. Marion Moore is now area secretary of training. She was formerly the division secretary. An area guiders, banquet will be held in Bancroft, Nov. 28.

PRESENT BADGES

District Commissioner Sam Mowbray presented District Scout Master Bernard Fox with a ten-year service badge. Mr. Fox has served the Scouting movement in Point Anne, Belleville, Oshawa and Trenton. In 1955 he was the assistant Scout Master and quartermaster at the World Jamboree of Scouting at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Scout Master Fox presented a Boy Scout "thank-you" badge to Jim Parker. Mr. Parker will be leaving Trenton to take up duties with the Bell Telephone Company

District Scout Master Bernard Fox, District Commissioner Sam Mowbray and Jim Parker, a member of the Trenton District Boy Scout Council, are shown at the organization's leaders' banquet at Trenton last night. Scout Master Fox was presented with a ten-year service badge and Mr. Parker, who will be leaving Trenton in the near future, was given a Boy Scout "Thank You" badge.

Canon McConnell Is Speaker At Scout Leaders' Banquet

TRENTON—Canon A. S. McConnell, rector at St. Thomas' Church in Belleville, was the guest speaker at the leaders' banquet of the Trenton and District Boy Scout Council at Trenton last night. Canon McConnell was the rector at St. George's Anglican Church in Trenton for 10 years. He was the founder of the Trenton Local District Council, which preceded the present organization.

The speaker explained various symbols used in the Scouting movement. He said that the words "Be Prepared," which appears on the Scout badge, applied to leaders as well as boys. One must be prepared to do one's best in all of life's circumstances.

Canon McConnell also explained the significance of the left-handed hand shake used by Scouters all over the world. He said that this custom could be traced to a remote tribe in Africa. The left hand shake means that the persons using it are true friends. The custom was introduced into the movement by the founder, Lord Baden-Powell.

The flour-de-lis, which also forms a part of the Boy Scout badge, was first used by Louis VII of France during his crusades in the Holy Land to symbolize a purity of motive. In Scouting the symbol signifies world fraternity.

Canon McConnell told the leaders that they should make a greater effort to interest parents in Scouting. He said that it is very infrequent that boys who have been Scouts get into trouble. But he stressed that Scouting should not be suspected to take the place of understanding and companionship at home.

The speaker closed his address by quoting from R. L. Stevenson, "That man is successful who looked for the best in others and gave the best he had."

tries to reduce curbs against imports and to allow their native more funds when they travel in the U.S. there will be no surplus on the amount of money that can be taken out of the U.S. at any time.

The plan, an official said, is to show the world the United States intends to keep its economic house in order." But there was some doubt that it would completely plug the drain on gold. Eisenhower said official will meet "to determine whether additional measures should be taken."

Officials emphasized that Kennedy's aides have been kept informed of the proposals. Significantly, just before Eisenhower's announcement, a Kennedy campaign adviser, Canadian-born John Kenneth Galbraith, delivered a speech from which appeared to be sympathetic to the Eisenhower plan.

Galbraith, born on a farm near Thomas, Ont., is now a prominent Harvard University professor, told university officials Wednesday the gold situation was serious. The U.S. had to hold the price line to meet competition abroad. It had to re-examine foreign programs.

Galbraith, who informed reporters later he has not been offered a job with the Kennedy administration, told the university officials:

"Needless to say, we must exclude all talk about devaluation."

Galbraith later quoted other reporters that there should be no talk of the price of gold, pegged at $35 an ounce.

In Belleville shortly. This is only the fourth time that this badge has been given to an individual in Trenton in the past ten years, Mr. Parker has been associated with the Scouting movement for seven years. He was president of the local association for two years and has been the leader of the No. 1 group for two years.

Two Questionable Statements

Michael Wardell, the Briton who deserted Fleet Street to become publisher of the Fredericton, N.B., Gleaner—in a sort of belated trade for New Brunswick's contribution of Lord Beaverbrook to British journalism—is a valued and valuable addition to the craft in Canada, and to Canadians as a whole.

He shares with "The Beaver" a willingness to voice his opinions on any subject, with no regard to whether these opinions are popular or not.

His contribution to civilized and civilising controversy, however, will depend in part on the willingness of fellow Canadians to take issue with his statements, when they feel this is warranted.

We, therefore, show no disrespect but an entirely enhancing his value to his adopted country when we suggest that he established something of a record, for Canada anyway, when he managed to put both of his feet in his mouth on the same day—and while addressing the same organization.

Firstly he expressed himself upon the protest to the Israeli government what he termed the "illegal abduction and trial of Adolph Eichmann." Now this is not only a permissible, but an easily defensible, viewpoint. That Eichmann's abduction from Argentina was illegal seems to be a matter of fact, rather than of opinion. That his trial in Israel is also illegal, while perhaps debatable, is a contention which is certainly not without the bounds of reason. Mr. Wardell, therefore, perhaps deserves the thanks, rather than the criticisms, of Jews everywhere when he urged, as he did at an Hadassah convention in Fredericton, that they "plead that the wretch now awaiting trial be handed over to the proper international authority so that justice can be done."

Surely, though, the reasonable and informed man must quarrel with his accuracy in calling Eichmann's abduction a mistake that will bring sadness in future years "to the people who above all others are today loved and respected in every land." The Jews are hot, and the Jews know they are not, "loved and respected in every land." To suggest that they are is to ignore part of the motivation behind Eichmann's trial—the desire to establish the Jews' right to be treated justly even in lands where they are most disliked. The true kindness is being shown the Jews by those who love and respect them, (if not above all others as much as any others), by pretending that their feelings are shared by everyone. The Jew has been persecuted for centuries in many lands, and is still being persecuted in some.

Having, in our view, taken a questionable stand on one racial issue from the past, Mr. Wardell, addressing the same convention, seems to us to have erred as deeply with respect to a present-day continuing racial persecution. He declared that Prime Minister Diefenbaker "will create a cleavage in Canada" if he opposes South Africa's undemocratic policies at the British Commonwealth after it becomes a republic. Many Canadians, including himself, he said, would consider this course of action unjustified.

Now Mr. Wardell is entitled to his own opinion as to what stand should be taken regarding South African membership in the Commonwealth. But it seems to us evident that, whatever stand the Prime Minister takes, he will not be creating a cleavage on this issue. The cleavage exists—for many Canadians are just as strongly opposed to permitting South Africa to remain within the Commonwealth as Mr. Wardell is opposed to the nation being excluded.

Furthermore, we suggest that Mr. Wardell is not speaking in accord with the facts when he says that nearly half of the white inhabitants of South Africa voted "for Queen and Commonwealth" and that "almost all of this very large minority group are opposed to apartheid." If independent observers from outside South Africa are to be believed, it is a plain, and many people believe an unpleasant, fact that a great many of those white South Africans who disagree with Prime Minister Verwoerd regarding republican status for their country agree with him, in principle if not in detail, regarding apartheid. If there is any doubt that Englishmen, too, can draw the color line, one has only to refer the doubter to the situation in the Rhodesias.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

—DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

WATCH THOSE MOODS

If is a dreadful thing if we become prisoners of our moods. We can have happy moods, and gorgeous moods. Also we can have moods that are deeply melancholy, moods filled with a gnawing sense of injustice, and injury moods aflame with resentment, hot anger, and the resolve to get even for some wrong done us.

When people find themselves in a continual state of dejection they would do well to consult a physician. Such moods may be purely mental attitudes and patterns of thought. Even more often melancholy moods have their basis in some some physical disorder. If we are prosperly get sufficient to sleep, and carefully watched the habits of our living, most of our melancholy would disappear.

Sometimes we are depressed about certain situations. Some of these situations can and should be changed, and if this is the case we should lose no time in changing them. There are other situations in our lives which cannot be changed. God does not intend us to endure these situations, but if instead of allowing it to get on our nerves.

So far nothing has been found for all mankind will power, religious faith, and righteous purpose in the living of a radiantly happy life.

Miracles of the Universe
Man on a Pedestal

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY

ARTICLE 10

The Universe is made up of time (the time it takes to get from point A to point B; the time it has taken for the Universe to develop to its present stage; the time yet to expire before the Universe may roll back and destroy itself; the time man has taken to develop from cave dwelling to space travel; the time that passes while a man's heart beats away every second of his life; the time that passes more slowly on some planets than on stars than here on Earth.)

Space is the second character-istic of the Universe. The layers of the Sun; the energy of all stars, the energy which increases simply as gases get faster; the energy that Einstein spoke of in his famous equation which is the basis of the atomic bomb; the tiny energy of man or the great energy of all the stars).

In addition to "Time" "Space" and "Energy", the Universe is composed of one other ingredient—Matter (Matter means stuff and things).

Those, then, are the four ingredients of the Universe — Time, Space, Energy and Matter. Where does it leave man in relation to each of these?

MAN NEAR BEGINNING

In Time what is man's significance? Is he near the start of time or near the end?

Assuming time is not infinite in both directions, then man is somewhere between the start and the finish. He is not thought to be about five billion years old. The Universe is at least that old and probably many times as old depending on how one defines the measure. Recently, two colliding galaxies were discovered by the telescope which are thought to be over six billion light-years away from us. That is to say it took six billion years for the light to get from them to our eyes. Thus, if this time is correct, the Universe must be over six billion years old. Since it is also said to be infinity, it was likely created between two and twenty billion years ago.

Some cosmologists say that the Universe never began — its history is infinity — some also say it will never end — so its future is also infinity.

There are, that I can find, no two different theories of how the Universe began — some theories are more scientific than others, but really no one knows the answer.

The people fact is that in terms of time, man is almost too small to measure. In space he appears to be about 100,000 years old although recent geological evidence says 500,000 to 900 years. His earth is five billion years old and 5,000 years ago in which his earth exists is likely up to twenty billion years. We would tell how old the universe is because science knows how fast stars (big) are farther and farther away from each other, and how long it has spends apparently proportional to their distance. Until galaxies which are those some sort of evidence of slowing down, cut out the whole of the Universe, (and that may never be), we will continue to push back the date of birth of the Universe.

TIME, SPACE, MATTER

In terms of time, man is significant, but small. Since on the universe has been even less significant (if possible!)

In terms of space, a man is billions of times larger than an electron, but only very much larger than a hydrogen atom, so the Sun is larger than a man, but man is not insignificant in size at all. He is not, he didn't exist.

Take finally it almost impossible to think large enough to even comprehend some of the distances involved in space. For start to crawl from New Brunswick to British Columbia is a reasonable task for man to think about, but for the sun to think in such terms matters.

IN TERMS OF MATTER

In respect to mass, man also ranks very low quantitatively, on the other hand, qualitatively the matter contained in a man's more significant; a man's body can boast that he his made up of some of the atoms found in the universe. Mainly, he is composed of oxygen (65 per cent), carbon (18 per cent), hydrogen (10 per cent) and nitrogen (3 per cent).

Man is made of the golug material, every day material of which all things are made. But man's molecules are very complicated, therefore science understands the chemistry of the stars better than it does that of a worm.

In terms of what makes up the Universe, Time, Space, Energy and Matter — man is totally insignificant. In terms of matter quite incompatible with the Universe.

Strictly Personal

A Simple Truth Is Hard To Practice

By Sydney J. Harris

Purely Personal Prejudices: Unbelievers who complain that they cannot feel the "presence" of God in their lives are like sailors who neglect to set their watches and then fail to detect the presence of wind.

It is as easy for a man to close his face, and he will smile; to call him a boor, and he will take offense, are obvious facts that most of us are more concerned with and less familiar with our morals.

The only trouble with a simple truth is that it is incredibly hard to put into practice; for whatever is easy to enunciate (I is the Golden Rule) is difficult to perform.

Some people's idea of a "helping hand" to a friend consists in removing a wart on the nose with a hatchet.

The supposed measure is more futile or absurd than the one suggested that we jail or fine the parents of delinquent children; if the parents knew their job, the children would not become delinquent, and if they dont know they have even more difficulty to fit them for it.

Time solves the sorrow of a great personal loss, but it does not remove the sorrow; nor should it. We should not cherish the remembrance of the departed in the form of a sorrow, but rather a love we do not want to relinquish.

Orators who prate boldly about "freedom without ever discussing the inevitable limitations should ponder Bernard Shaws shrewd comment that "monsters and non-smokers cannot be equally by law in the same railway carriage.

The most serious minds will find pleasure and instruction in talking with children; it is only the frivolous minds that could see a love we do not want to relinquish.

Madison Ave. Raids Kitchen

Vancouver Province

The Madison Avenue boys have inflicted a new monstrosity on the long-suffering housewife nowadays to the "meal preparation" chore, which they mean the kitchen.

The example will obviously be followed by the new wife-torture in the replacement of one word by another, using each knowledge status to be the bestowed on the "meal" and "kitchen" to call a thing what it is not.

The study can easily be referred as the Madison Avenue Transportation Protective Annex. The bar can be dignified as being known as the Recreational Conversation Unit.

Let's get back in the kitchen and relax, shall we?

Scopes, Hardy Now In Movies

Brantford Expositor

Back in 1925 a young school teacher was charged under Tennessee law with defying a statute of teaching "evolution" to his pupils. The "trial" that followed in the little town of Dayton, Tenn., might better be described as a three-ring circus. But it drew not only crowds, hordes of newspaper reporters and "human interestes" but a double battery of nationally famous lawyers.

The name of the speaking it was a battle between the Fundamentalists, whose chief spokesman and counsel was the once "Great Commoner", William Jennings Bryan, and the Modernists (also including those concerned for the preservation of intellectual, moral and civil liberties) represented by Arthur Garfield Hayes and Dudley Field Malone and often successful defender of supposedly lost causes, Clarence Darrow. Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, Honorary head of the American Museum of Natural History, was among the more important witnesses.

The defendant himself was an inconspicuous figure in the proceedings by the name of Scopes. He was defended, it is generally believed in the evolutionary theory brought forward particularly by Charles Darwin, but he was willing participant in a case designed to test the state's increasingly backward Tennessee law.

The case is still cited in law books and in the encyclopaedias, on the newspaper files of the period, and in the memory, probably of course, but his cause flourished. He is a man of 70 now, still live and not many weeks ago visited the little Tennessee town where the once-hostile townsfolk gave him a cordial welcome! Why not? Times change, and everything. He had put the burg in the headlines.

Now the trial, with all its dramatic possibilities and realities has been turned into a movie, "Inherit the Wind" (United Artists) with whatever in U.S. critics are saying, gets a long and favorable review in the Times of London, no less. So Mr. Scopes scores again.

By coincidence, the adjoining article the Times refers to a film, television and stage production of Thomas Hardy's "Tess of the d'Urbervilles", the Pure Woman Faithfully Portrayed", was published in 1891 and caused a veritable storm of hypocritical Victorians who, like their descendants today, were self-appointed guardians of everything proper. In England other people's morals to be as dirty as their own.

So "Tess" was banned by all the circulating libraries, which then shaped the public literary worship over the popular reading of Britons, despite the fact that a famous periodic said prostitution! Ironically that they never would be slaves.

Anyway the miscalled "Bloaker Thief" is now being made into a edifistation as well as our earlier, Belleville, and I find things to find that Thomas Hardy's work has not been forgotten.

SOAP, WATER AND MORE WATER ANSWER TO BLACKHEADS

"Dear Dr. Molner: My 16-year-old daughter has been having trouble with blackheads on her face. She has tried every-thing, but they still remain. Can you tell me how to remove them? — Mrs. W."

Fifty one of the problems of adolescence, next to pimples, are blackheads, are, isn't wise. A mild, gentle lunch, not a stiff one, not You aren't trying to scrub out the blackheads". You are trying to keep the unsightly particles of sebum moving along.

When a blackhead does appear, don't squeeze it. There is much risk of damaging the skin, or even letting a small infection start.

Instead get a "blackhead expresser" at the drugstore and use it for removing a blackhead or "comedone," which is the technical name. The expresser is a simple thing, but lets you press out blackheads without damaging the skin.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I know it's late, but for next summer do you have anything I can put on my hands and face during the intense sunlight to prevent freckles? — A.M."

Yes, I do suggest the broad-brimmed hat. I don't know of any salves or medications that are effective in keeping with the effort required to use them.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a child who talked perfectly plainly at 4 years suddenly to start to stammer at 5? — Mrs. L."

The likeliest cause is nervous tension of some sort — perhaps the pressure of too much speech, wanting him to learn faster than he can, or some such thing.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WORDS

Words have wings — and fly afar. None of us will ever know just how far some words of ours have taken flight. Certainly words influence many people, some, more than others, but no person is wholly or ever will meet. But our words have will strangely enough, a certain message.

God's messages are silent ones, may being delivered in a whisper! Many of our messages should be "silent" ones, "confidential" to them—"Handle with care."

Some words always need an interpreter. The great, or especially important ones. We don't know how expertly they may be interpreted, so as to make people happy, kindly, and fair-seeing. Words of significance reach the heart.

Words can be so very beautiful when perfectly arranged. There is beauty in words that excite sight and hearing. Read Lincoln's great Gettysburg address. It was made up of less than 200 words — but they were first bathed in the soul of a man. He had a way to give so long as words can live. Beautiful words need no words to give it substance, and recognition, as well as explanation. Some, however need only a kindly smile to catalog them. We need to be careful with these words of ours!

Purchasing Agents Hear About Customs

At the November meeting of the Purchasing Agents Association of Eastern Ontario, in Gananoque, last night, George F. Coldrick, spoke on the topic "General Application of Customs and Excise Laws Pertaining to the Administration of Ports". He was introduced by Dave Willis of Jenkins Machine and Tool Co., Kingston. Mr. Coldrick stated that the four main factors which necessitate the revising of the tariff and customs act, are growth of economy; growth of population; trends in business and industry and growth and development of various modes of transportation.

Mr. Coldrick said that 1956 was the beginning for modernizing and streamlining of custom proceedings, and at this time, an organization and method branch was organized to carry out such a program, and was named Port Administration Branch. He mentioned that in just the last three years 102 custom forms have been abolished, 300 revised and 56 new forms created. Mr. Coldrick mentioned several method improvements made and, at the same time, indicated the thousands of dollars saved due to such improvements.

The speaker said that the primary function of the port administration is, of course, the collection of duty (which totals $2,152,353,200 per year), but aside from this, their main desire is to serve the public and save the taxpayer money. Mr. Coldrick also spoke briefly on port collectors, and mentioned that their position is most important, as they assure public relations, expedite clearances and continually are called upon to use their skill and knowledge in respect to handling the numerous items being imported every day.

Mr. Coldrick's talk was followed by a question and answer period during this period, a number of questions were directed to the speaker.

Mr. Coldrick was thanked by Alf Evans, Stephens-Adamson Mfg., Belleville.

President Jim Lyons, Black and Decker Ltd., Brockville, announced the appointment of the nominating committee for the 1960-61 term. The members of this committee are: Chas. McFarlane, Phillips Electrical Co., Brockville; Leo Mulroney, Globe-Rite Batteries Ltd., Kingston; L. McKeen, Massey Johnson of Canada Ltd., Belleville.

Wm. Templeton, chairman of the membership committee, introduced a new member Lyn Steinke, Automatic Electric (Canada) Ltd., Brockville, and at the same time, gave a general summary of the membership committee's activities during the past month.

Buyers' Market Is Developing Quinte Home Builders Told

The housing construction boom in Canada is just about over and a buyers' market is developing in which potential home owners can be expected to make increasing demands of the type of house they want.

In short the housing honeymoon is over and from here in builders will be forced to place more emphasis on selling if they expect to continue in the housing construction field.

This was the advice heard last night by members of the Quinte Home Builders' Association as they met at the Club Camara for their first dinner meeting of the 1960-61 season. Guest speaker for the occasion was Bill Gilmartin, district representative for the Canadian Coleman Company.

Mr. Gilmartin told local builders that house buyers were now demanding quality construction in homes and also were demanding top quality home equipment.

There was also a return demand for larger type homes with separate dining rooms. In many Canadian centres, the one storey bungalow type home, so popular in recent years, is becoming hard to sell.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Local contractor Maurice Rollins was named president of the Quinte Home Builders with Les Farrell and Howard Thomson as vice presidents and Kenneth Duesbury as secretary treasurer.

Cooking Steaks On Open Grill Cause of Alarm

PICTON — Firemen raced to the former county hospital following an alarm late Wednesday afternoon. A lady resident of the area reported seeing flames in the windows of the 35-room institution which is now vacant. Firemen were unable to find any sign of fire. The mystery was finally solved. On a knoll nearby, Donald Ward was cooking some steaks on an open grill. Flames from the grill were reflected in the former hospital's windows resulting in the alarm.

Three-Stream School System Is Explained

Guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Y's Men's Club was Donald Stirling, vice principal of the Belleville Collegiate Institute. Basing his remarks on the theme, "Education, the key to the future" Mr. Stirling outlined the present three stream system, recently introduced in the high school system.

"Students entering high school for the first year in grade 9 are placed in one of the three streams. This is done after consultations with the superintendent of public schools, the inspectors, teachers and parents of the students. The streaming system aims at giving every student in high school an opportunity of attaining the maximum academic achievement of which he is capable.

"Students entering stream three and who plan to complete four or five years of high school work should select challenging subjects," said the speaker, "and should be proud of their success."

The speaker was introduced by Orville Matthews and thanked by past president Bud Trill. President John Luscomb presided over the meeting.

Bridge St. United Church W.A. Holds Yuletide Tea, Bazaar

Even though the weather had been somewhat unpredictable in the morning, the sun shone in all its glory, when the Bridge Street United Church W.A. held its annual bazaar and tea, yesterday afternoon.

The Sunday school auditorium and class rooms assumed a gala appearance for this most charming occasion, and the color scheme, in keeping with Christmas, was predominantly red and white. Every window ledge was adorned with frosty sprayed evergreen boughs, interspersed with colorful Christmas novelties and red and white poinsettias. In strategic spots about the rooms were beautifully decorated Christmas trees. Mrs. M. M. Davis, Mrs. W. Dellar and Mrs. R. Sherwin graciously received the guests.

The tea room, in the lower auditorium, was especially attractive. The two tea tables were elaborate with snow-white lace trimmed tablecloths, centred by most exquisite arrangements of frosted boughs of northern pine and Oregon spruce accented by miniature trees of scarlet carnations, and flanked by tall tapering red candles, in silver candelabra and gleaming silver tea services.

The guest tables were prettily appointed with dainty luncheon cloths, some centred with miniature fruit-colored Christmas trees; others with small Yuletide decorations with petite red candles.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Barnard Wallbridge are shown signing the register following their marriage in Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Marilyn Jean Garjepy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Edward Garjepy, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sprague Wallbridge, also of Belleville. (Photo by Doug Jones, Belleville.)

WALLBRIDGE — GARJEPY

A lovely double-ring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, November 5, at 3.30 p.m. in Eastminster United Church, Belleville, by the Reverend Alexander McDowell, pastor of the church, when Marilyn Jean Garjepy, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Edward Garjepy, became the bride of Donald Barnard Wallbridge, of Lambeth, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sprague Wallbridge, of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in a French peau de soie gown designed and fashioned by herself, having a fitted bodice with portrait neckline appliqued with pearl beaded imported Venise lace in orange blossom design, which was also carried out on the waistline. The long sleeves ended in V points, and the graceful skirt was finished with butterfly bow and embroidered Obi sashes at centre back. Her double illusion tulle veil was held by a braided nylon headdress entwined with seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white Shasta mums mingled with deep pink rosebuds.

Miss Donna Garjepy of Belleville, attended her sister as maid of honor, wearing cerise velvet with matching headdress of velvet leaves. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and deep pink rosebuds.

Mrs. Cameron Coulter of Frankford, and Miss Lenna Chatterson of Colborne, cousin of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids, wearing emerald green velvet gowns with matching accessories, and carrying bouquets of pale yellow carnations. Their dresses were similar in design with fitted bodices, rounded necklines and full bouffant skirts with bows and sashes at centre front.

Mr. Cameron Coulter, Frankford, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Wallridge of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom and Mr. Glen Palmerton of Ingersoll, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother, gowned in Carribean blue pure silk sheath with matching jacket and accessories with purse corsage of pink Sweetheart roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of mushroom brocade in sheath style, with matching jacket and dark brown accessories, and corsage of pale pink Sweetheart roses.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake misted with tulle and deep pink rosebuds about the base, and flanked by tall white candles in crystal candelabra. The bridal bouquet lent an added nuptial accent.

For the wedding trip to Western Ontario and northern Michigan, the bride chose a light beige orlon knitted dress, light beige hat, rose-green accessories with dark brown Borg jacket and brown and beige orchid corsage.

Guests attended from London, Harris, Lambeth, Ingersoll, Toronto, Oshawa, Peterborough, Enterville, Picton, Milford, Trenton, Belaiwa, Colborne, Frankford and Brighton and Belleville.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Arthur Powell of Belleville, with her daughter, Miss Elaine Powell, as co-hostess; at a crystal shower at the home of Mrs. Harry Trepanier, of Belleville; at a trousseau tea by the bride's mother and at a rehearsal party at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wallbridge, Belleville.

The bridegroom was also entertained at a presentation party by the staff of the Royal Bank in Lambeth, Ontario.

"Lines on Life"

By Dr. Sigurd S. Rosenberg

Man; it has been said, is quite unlike other creatures. They are animals of prey, while he is a praying animal.

Why does man pray? In a word: He seeks strength and understanding to gain victory over conflict.

Essentially there are three forms of conflict, each different in character. There is, of course, first, the conflict of man with nature. The human being is a frail match for the powerful physical forces at work in the universe. He must seek to obey the laws he discovers, humbly to submit to those forces he cannot control. A logical man does not defy the law of gravity by supposing that he will fall up; he can only fall down. Elementary wisdom dictates that he surrender his will before a law and a force mightier than he. But much remains for him to do. He continues to wage unceasing and successful battle, triumphing over the perils of nature by tunneling mountains, bridging waters and climbing to the moon.

There is, moreover, the conflict of man with man — perennially and universally. In every age and place, men have rubbed shoulders; they have also locked horns. They think; but soon use their pulses' strength to destroy other heads of brothers. The recognition of civil wars' folly sometimes leads men to an equivocal understanding that fratricide leads to suicide; wars have sometimes led to thoughts of peace.

The principal conflict facing man is, of course, his conflict with himself. As long as he remains incapable of resolving this difficulty, he will stand helpless before Nature and fearful before his neighbor.

Unceasing battles go on within the inner folds of man's mind and soul. The problems of atomic energy, of international diplomacy are real and significant. But until we conquer ourselves no other victory is truly meaning. Noah in the "Green Pastures" said: "I ain't much, but I've all I got." We may not be very much in contrast to Nature's grandeur and to the imposing significance of the great world scene. Remember though: "We're all we got!"

Prayer, then, must primarily be thought of as an aid in becoming ourselves by overcoming ourselves. Too often we pray for the unnecessary, irrelevant victory: Over others, instead of over ourselves. Prayer must begin with ourselves. Any our search for our souls and as a quest for our own inner harmony.

The most thoughtful, the most necessary prayer may be summed up in a phrase: O, Lord help me to change the world by helping me to begin with me!

East Section United Church WMS Rallies at Cannifton

MARSH HILL — The autumn rally of the Belleville east section of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada was held in Cannifton United Church on November 7th, the theme of the rally was "Into All the World Together."

Mrs. Leslie Fickle, sectional vice-president, presided for the morning and afternoon sessions.

The morning worship service was conducted by the Bethel Zion Auxiliary of which Mrs. John Ketcheson is president. Mrs. Percy Ray presided at the piano and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Lloyd Ray.

Mrs. Roy Sills read the Scripture reading from Isaiah 40:18-26. Mrs. Robert Nicholls gave the meditation. Mrs. Ketcheson closed the service with prayer.

Mrs. Douglas Brenton, president of the Cannifton Women's Missionary Society, extended a warm welcome to all present.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes, president of Belleville Presbyterial, introduced the Presbyterial officers present, and the guest speakers, Miss Aileen Ratz, B. R. E.-Port Worker at Halifax, and Miss Mirmada Brown B.R.E. working at the Church of All Nations in Toronto.

Mrs. H. M. Davis, Presbyterial Christian stewardship secretary, gave an interesting talk on "We Are the Church."

Mrs. R. G. Coulter, Presbyterial treasurer, gave a detailed account of the Presbyterial finances. There had been an increase in the givings which is to be used for United Church retired missionaries. Mrs. Coulter stressed the importance of systematic givings. She said that $17,200 had been sent to the branch treasurer, but more is needed if the allocation is to be met.

The morning offering was taken and dedicated by Mrs. Wesley Farrell, president of Moira Affiliated Society.

Mrs. Harry Pierson, Wellington, "Missionary Monthly" and "World Friends" secretary, reported, stating that the subscriptions to the Missionary Monthly are down. There is a wealth of reading material in the monthly and all should strive to get more subscriptions.

Miss Hettie Unger, candidate secretary, stated if a church is not active in missions it is dead, and she quoted our Lord's last command, "Go ye and teach all the nations." She suggested, if at all possible, sponsoring young people to "Five Oaks."

BOOK REVIEW

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, literature secretary, gave an informative book review. Many books are available for every church group and many for gifts for adults and children.

Mrs. MacMullen said, "If we spent one hour reading on Sunday we would be surprised at the number of books we could read during the year."

The ladies of Cannifton served a delicious dinner at noon. At this time, greetings were brought by Mrs. ". Davidson, president of the Belleville Presbytery Woman's Association. She said the purpose of the new organization is to unite all the women of the church.

Greetings were also brought from the Bay of Quinte Conference Woman's Association by Mrs. Garn Dobbs, president. Mrs. Dobbs had attended General Council in Edmonton. She said "Women must accept responsibility."

Miss Hettie Unger showed slides on Five Oaks, and Trinidad. Miss Ratz and Miss Brown also showed slides on their work at Halifax and Toronto.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon session opened with Bethany Auxiliary having the worship service. Mrs. Clayton Eggleton presided at the piano playing quiet music. Mrs. Harold Pound the president, read the Scripture from Acts 26:13-19. Mrs. Russel Ellis and Mrs. Douglas Tummon gave readings and Mrs. Pound closed with prayer.

Eighteen Auxiliaries answered the roll call with 11 answering that they used the systematic offering envelopes.

Miss Mirmada Brown, B.R.E. told many of her happy experiences and also discouragements she had, but she always kept in mind the following line, "As thy days so shall thy strength be."

Miss Aileen Ratz shared her experiences as a part worker at Halifax. She told how encouragement was given to displaced persons and immigrants, who had come to this country.

The afternoon offering was received and dedicated by Mrs. George Priest of Foxboro, and newly appointed recording secretary of Conference Branch.

The theme hymn sung for the rally was "Reconciliation".

Mrs. Douglas Brenton of Corbyville, gave a full report of School for Leaders at Whitby which she had attended in August as a delegate from the Belleville east section.

Report of the courtesy committee was given by Mrs. Charles Woods, of Shannonville and had been assisted by Mrs. Milligan of Melrose and Mrs. Fred Wellman of Halloway.

An invitation was received from Shannonville W.M.S. to hold the 1961 rally at Shannonville.

The appointing of a delegate to the school for leaders was left in the hands of the executive.

The Rev. J. A. McCartney, Minister at Cannifton pronounced the benediction which brought to a close the 1960 rally of the Belleville East Section of W.M.S. of the United Church.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: The daughter of a friend of mine is being married soon. I wish to give her a U.S. Savings Bond. I'd like the bond cashable by either bride or groom. Shall I use the married name? Which name comes first, and should it mailed with a wedding card, written note or be presented to them at the reception?

Mrs. F. H. L.—Baltimore, Md.

ANSWER: Since a gift is traditionally given to the bride, I'd would present the bond to her alone. Place her married name upon it, because otherwise she will have to have the name changed after the ceremony. I would write a note to the bride, enclosing the bond, sometime before the wedding. This would be addressed to her in her maiden name, because she is not married yet. A gift, whether it be a bond or a piece of silver or what have you, should never be presented to the bride on the day of the wedding. It should be sent to her ahead of time.

West Section WMS Holds Autumn Rally at Wallbridge

The autumn rally of Belleville/ West Section, Woman's Missionary Society, was held in Wallbridge United Church, 8th concession of Sidney, on November 4, with Mrs. Reg McMullin, vice-president, presiding for both morning and afternoon sessions. Her theme for the rally, "All the World Together" was used.

Scripture from 2 John 4. A meditation on the Scripture, prayer and the hymn, "O God of Love, O King of Peace," concluded the service.

Mrs. Morley Phillips, Wallbridge W.M.S. presidial, welcomed the ladies, saying she hoped they would gain much from their study at the rally. Mrs. R. McMullin spoke on behalf of her husband, the Rev. R. McMullin, who was unable to attend due to illness, saying that he had always been amazed at how much the W.M.S. members were able to accomplish.

Mrs. H. F. Davis, Christian stewardship secretary, gave a challenging talk. She said, "Every time a W.M.S. member walks down the street, everyone has a right to say, 'there goes the Christian Church.' The church is judged by you. Our gifts are an estimate of our personality. Money can be our legs, arms, voice and thoughts. Nothing is ever enough or great enough for God.'

The Presidential treasurer, Mrs. R. G. Cosier, gave as an encouraging report.

The literature secretary, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, introduced many interesting books as well as the study books to be used by the various groups for this year's study.

The offering was dedicated by a member of Mount Pleasant-Lawdon Auxiliary.

Mrs. Pierce, "Missionary Monthly" secretary, reported a gain in subscriptions. It is felt that the younger women are taking the same interest as the older.

Mrs. Percy Johnston, Alexandria, sang a solo, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Harley Hamilton.

The candidate secretary, Miss Hettie Unger, reported that one young woman from this Presbyterial is studying at the United Church Training School. She stated there was a need for household science teachers to go overseas and also to Trinidad. Miss Unger left the rally with the thought that one never meets an unhappy missionary.

MORNING SESSION

The morning session closed with the theme hymn, "Lord We Thank Thee for Our Brotherhood." The ladies were then given an opportunity to visit the literature table with its display of many fine books.

The afternoon worship service was in charge of the Auxiliary from Mt. Pisgah, Sidney. Mrs. Sid Williams read a poem and the hymn, "Breathe On Me, Breath of God," was sung. Mrs. Earl Eggleton led in prayer. Selected verses of Scripture were read from St. Mark 16, 14 and 17, by Mrs. Robert Patterson.

Mrs. Williams gave some thoughts on the theme, "Into All the World Together." "Guided by Thy Grace," was sung and the service closed with prayer.

The guest speakers were Miss Ethel Rais and Miss Bess Jones, Belleville Presbyterial president. Miss Mirmada Reeves, B.N.E., has been doing missionary work in Toronto at the Church of All Nations, but at present is on furlough. Miss Allene Rais, B.N.E., has been doing past work with the incoming immigrants in Halifax, and working as a W.M.S. worker in Brunswick Church and is now on furlough.

Miss Brown told of many interesting and challenging experiences she had in her work. First at a high school residential home for boys and girls in Battleford, Saskatchewan, where she held a prayer group every night for the girls, some of whom were over 300 miles from home.

For her next term, she worked in a section of Alberta 100 miles north of Edmonton, that had been settled mostly by Ukrainians. Here she taught youngsters 18 years of age who had never had a chance to go to school before. She said, "These girls and boys go out of United Church schools to give Christian leadership. Miss Brown told of many other incidents in her experience, illustrating the worthwhileness of W.M.S. work.

THIRD TERM

Her third term was spent in the slums of Sydney, Nova Scotia, where she worked with many different nationalities, Negroes, and some people who were just social outcasts. She told of teaching two little boys whose parents had come from Hungary and who have since become ordained ministers in the United Church.

Her work in Hamilton, Ont., was in three different downtown churches. She found there was a great need for temperance work and, after much thought and labouration of the children, she was gratified when many signed pledge cards. Miss Brown said she is still hearing from many of these students who have since become men and women and have never broken their pledge.

In Toronto, her work was in two churches, Bloor Street Church and the Church of All Nations. There was much social work with the homeless, the unemployed, the local ex-mental institute. Miss Brown left the assembly with the thought that God lets us do things for Him.

SLIDES SHOWN

Mrs. McMullin called on the candidate secretary, Miss Unger, who showed some interesting slides she had taken while visiting at "The Retreat at Five Oaks," also the Ladies' College at Whitby; the training school in Toronto, and a number of scenes taken on a trip she made to Trinidad; the Mission homes; the missionaries and some of their helpers; their churches and several of their schools and colleges.

Before showing her slides on her work in Halifax, Miss Rais said that she feels the time has come in United Church missionary work, when it is going to receive as well as give, the gospel missionaries not only take but get also. Miss Rais quoted a thought-provoking verse: "You are more than the world, though you are but a dot, for you can love and think, and the world cannot".

One of the slides Miss Rais had, showed the small tugs towing the large ocean boats into the dock. She said, "Little people as well as little boats can help do God's work".

Miss Rais showed pictures she had taken of the various rooms where the customs people do their work; the United Cross rooms, and the different church rooms.

The immigrant often has to spend six to eight hours in the United Church rooms waiting for their luggage to pass through Customs. Each immigrant is given a small gift supplied by local church groups. Miss Rais said, "We cannot set what is ahead", but she feels "we should be glad that we are living in such a time of opportunity".

Mrs. J. Thomson and Mrs. E. Caudaur, of Wallbridge, sang a duet, "The River of Life". They were accompanied at the organ by Mrs. R. G. Evans, who also played for the hymns sung during the day.

The afternoon offering was dedicated by a member of Johnstown affiliated group.

Mrs. George Carlisle, 1st vice-president, Belleville Presbyterial, read the report of the Country Committee which was adopted. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison and Mrs. H. McMullin closed with prayer.

The W.A. president, Mrs. McMullen, presided over the business period. The December meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Bruce Stapley, with Mrs. Harry Clarke and Mrs. Stanley preparing the program. A motion was made that fuel oil be purchased for the church and that a new Study Book and recording secretary's book be paid for.

A thank-you card from Mrs. Ashley was read by the secretary.

Mrs. Harlow, W.A. treasurer, gave her report, showing a nice sum in the bank.

H-S Assoc. Area Body Meets at Peterborough

DESERONTO — Six went from Deseronto to attend the recent Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, Area C conference, at Peterborough.

The theme of the conference was "Wake up Home and School". The Belleville Council put on a role play "Frustrated Home and School". It was amusing as it exaggerated the faults all too common in many associations.

The speakers who followed, spoke on how these defects should be remedied. Mrs. Glassbiz, executive vice-president of the Ontario Federation emphasized that the aim of the Home and School Association is to reach the parents who need the help of the Associations. She said, "Belonging is not enough. We have to work at it".

In the afternoon she highlighted some of the outstanding accomplishments of the Home and School Associations when they spoke with one voice: examples — raising the training of Kindergarten teachers from one to two years; getting a course in music in High Schools counted as a credit and opportunities for Indian children. They are now working on similar opportunities for Eskimo children. A library service for children and T.V. programing during children's watching time.

FILM SHOWN

Mrs. Crown, camp director, showed a film, and gave a warm invitation to the Leadership Training Camp June 15th to 18th, 1961.

Miss Barbara Smith, Children's Library Services, Toronto, warned the parents to be sure the children read and read good books. She charmed the ladies who registered, with excerpts from a number of good books.

A panel gave an idea of "Council at Work" and several experts answered the questions handed in by the busy groups which met in the tea hour.

The six, who went from Deseronto, found it a worthwhile conference and were only sorry that every member of the Association did not have the privilege of being there.

Week-end Cooking

By Mary Moore

Eleanor was housecleaning the bathroom and got to the kitchen at 5:15 p.m. and had Saturday night's supper on the table by 6 o'clock.

Shortly after being Sunday, they went for a walk and ended up at the minister's for tea, getting home at 4:45 p.m. At that time Brute Bruce suggested inviting them back for dinner. They did. The invitation was accepted promptly, and the two of them set to work.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Baked Cottage Roll with Brown Sugar-Orange Juice Glaze; Sprigged Tomatoes and Onion Casserole; Creamed Limas; Lettuce Hearts with Blackstone Dressing; Calked Freestone Peaches; Crackers and Cheese; Tea.

SUNDAY

(minister and wife for dinner)

SPAGHETTI SUPPER:
(Serves 4)

Three-quarters pound Italian style spaghetti, 1 package Italian Style Spaghetti Sauce Mix, 1 6-oz. can tomato paste, grated old cheddar cheese. Put the spaghetti in a deep kettle, add as much boiling water as the kettle will accommodate without boiling over, add 1 tablespoon salt and boil vigorously, uncovered, until tender, stirring frequently — about 12 minutes. Drain through colander.

Meanwhile prepare Sauce by adding tomato paste to Italian Style Spaghetti Sauce Mix. Then stir in 1 3-4 cups water and 3 tablespoons margarine and simmer, stirring occasionally, for 10 minutes. Turn drained spaghetti onto large platter, pour hot sauce all over and sprinkle generously with grated Cheddar cheese. Note: Eleanor says next time she makes this she will also make small meat balls to serve over the sauce under the cheese. Four of them licked the platter clean.

FRIED CHICKEN:

Cut up one 3 1-2-pound frying chicken. In a paper bag mix together 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 teaspoon celery salt, 1 teaspoon paprika and shake the chicken in the bag. In frying pan Eleanor (see her electric one) melt about 1-3 pound margarine and when it is bubbly brown put the floured chicken pieces in it until golden on all sides. When all are brown, reduce heat to very low, cover and cook at 60 minutes in all, time depending on how crisp you like the skin. Turn 2 or 3 times during slow-cooking period.

Eleanor served quick-cooked pure white cauliflower with a cheese sauce and a tossed salad, throwing in all the little salad seasoners she could lay her hands on garlic and celery salt, minced instant green onions, parsley flakes, salad lift and it was one of the best salads she ever made.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, advice and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Minette B.: I tell my sister to keep her daughters apart.

Ursula W.: So far, they seem to get along fine.

Minnette B.: My sister is headed for trouble with her two daughters. The older one, Sybil, is 15 and brilliant, but homely. The other is Norine who's 13 and so beautiful she takes your breath away. She's bright, too. But her marks don't come near Sybil's. Maybe it's because she doesn't try as hard.

When they were small, the differences didn't matter. But now, whenever I see them together at a party or a dance, it breaks my heart. Last summer I gave a garden party in honor of Sybil's birthday and all the boys I invited as Sybil's friends flocked around Norine!

I'm urging my sister to send them to separate camps this summer and certainly to plan for separate colleges for them. How can a plain, homely two girls go side by side all the time, when one is so dazzling that people can hardly see the other?

Sybil doesn't seem to mind being the Ugly Duckling, but deep down inside she must be suffering terribly from the contrast with such a looker of a sister!

Ursula W.: I know Minette has my daughters' interest at heart, but I don't see what she's so worried about. I've always treated the girls alike and helped them appreciate each other's good points. They love each other. I don't see any signs of jealousy.

I admit it hasn't been easy. It seems like a trick of Nature to give us only two children, both girls, one a plain Jane and the other a Venus. What can parents do?

You can't keep people from stepping over Sybil and cooing over Norine. You can't stop boys from mailing a bee-line right past Sybil to her sister. But here's where my sister is wrong. People come back to Sybil. That's why she doesn't feel bad. She has friends, too.

I don't see any point in separating the girls. Norine thinks there's no one so witty and kind as Sybil. And Sybil likes being around a sister who looks like a starlet and has a lot of respect for her. Norine is really no menace to her big sister.

The Council: Aunt Minette sounds as though she's identifying with the less beautiful niece and trying to rescue her from a fate complete with bonby grief! In this case, Mama may really know best.

We agree with both women that it's hard when parents are to deal a hand of such extremes. Hard, but fascinating and challenging! What to do about the very tall daughter and the very short son? Or the brothers, one athletic and extrovert, the other the dreamer and aesthete?

Keeping Sybil and Norine apart may have a temporary value during a summer or a term at college. Sybil would be better able to meet people on her own, without the constant distraction and competition of her sister. And the whole family would have a quiet, think-it-over period in which to see things straight and add up the score realistically.

But the more solid approach is for the mother, for it is based on the sisters' feelings about each other. Sybil might want her sister with her at the same college, possibly as Campus Queen. Norine in mind following in her brainy sister's Aspius trail. Even if she fills it with C's.

As to beaux, Sybil doesn't need "tricks." One at a time will do. And there are always fine boys who, after the first once-over, do see through and find the hidden charms of an unspectacular girl.

Norine's problem of physical perfection, these girls are both attractive and can remain so whether together or apart.

Many Mothers Attend 'Open House' at SS 24

MADOC JUNCTION — A number of mothers and friends interested in the work being done by the pupils attended "Open House" for Education Week which was held at Eggleton School, S.S. No. 24, Sidney, on Wednesday afternoon.

A senior pupil, Grant Reid, presided and opened the program.

The various grades took part in songs, memory work selections and a short play.

After this the teacher, Mrs. Bert Reids, invited the visitors to view the pupils' work-books which they had open on their desks. These were all neat.

Also on the walls were sheets of art work and writing done by the senior pupils, and at the front was a table on which were displayed articles, modeled by the juniors.

After all were seated again, two contests were conducted by Mrs. Reid. "An Island Contest" for the visitors and seniors. This was won by Mrs. Maurice Clancy. Another for the juniors who made three-letter words from the word "Remembrance," with Gerald Shipley having the greatest number of words.

Mrs. Reids thanked all who had attended and Mrs. Bruce had arranged a delicious lunch.

All You Need Is Strong Ankles Says Beauty Queen

By JUDITH AYER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—At the age of 21, Canada's Danica d'Hondt is up to being a beauty queen.

Mind you, no sour grapes. She has won her fair share of contests. It's just that she got tired of being a clothes-horse.

"Being a beauty queen is rather like being a model," she told a reporter. "Apart from being reasonably nice to look at, all you need is a strong pair of ankles," she said, laughing, grey - eyed beauty, who has lived in Montreal, Vancouver and Toronto, was interviewed after surviving to the last 15 among some 60 competitors in the Miss World contest, held recently in London.

The English-born Miss d'Hondt has won two contests in Canada—Miss Canada of 1960 and Miss Maple Leaf of 1961.

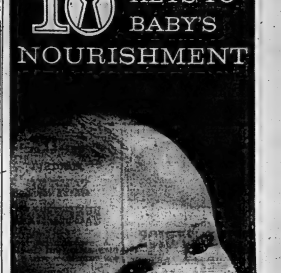
WANTS TO ACT

But she hated rather act. She has appeared in films, on television and on the stage.

"Often I have to go to the United States to work. There just aren't enough acting jobs in Canada."

Also supplements her income with modelling and writing.

She has done some journalistic work in Toronto, and would eventually to write and direct plays. She is engaged to American painter Paul de Kalb, who now lives in Toronto. The wedding date has not been set.



Born in Surrey, she emigrated 11 years ago with her family and now considers herself "a part of Canada."

On her return from Britain she will spend some time with her family in Vancouver, and shortly afterwards will begin rehearsals in Montreal for a new production of The Marriage-Go-Round.

WOULD NAME DAY

OTTAWA (CP) — A private member's bill naming Dec. 31 as a national holiday to celebrate Canadian independence will be introduced at the parliamentary session opening Thursday by Maurice Allard (PC — Sherbrooke). The same bill also would give the Canada Council a year to prepare a design for a Canadian flag and a "distinctive national anthem."

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1960.

Private Member's Bill Would Add Desertion, Cruelty and Insanity as Divorce Grounds

OTTAWA (CP)—Another campaign for new Canadian divorce laws is in progress.

A private member's bill adding desertion, cruelty, narcotic addiction, insanity and habitual drunkenness as grounds for divorce will be introduced by CCF MPs Frank Howard (Skeena) and Arnold Peters (Timiskaming) at the fall session of Parliament.

The odds against passage of such a bill are great. The sponsors have the traditional arguments against so-called "easy divorce" and observers here see no evidence of widespread public support for such a move.

It is understood that even Mr. Howard and Mr. Peters have little hope of success. For them it will be an attempt to keep alive the public interest aroused by their divorce filibuster at the last session and by limerick editions into phoney academy evidence in the Ontario courts.

Aim of the bill would be to enact the first all-Canadian divorce law framed by MPs. It would be effective not imposed—as an alternative to the individual provincial statutes on divorce, most of which have stood unchanged for more than 100 years.

ADULTERY MAIN GROUND

Only Parliament can make the change. It was given that sole right in the British North America Act of 1867. Each province enacted its own legislation on whatever matrimonial laws it had at the time, but surrendered divorce jurisdiction to the federal government.

In general, adultery is the only divorce ground common to the eight provinces that have divorce statutes. It also is the only ground on which arrangements will be made anywhere for residents of Quebec and Newfoundland, which do not grant divorce courts.

But each of the provinces has additional grounds which, although set out in law, seldom are used.

Ontario and the four western provinces apply an 1857 British law under which a wife can sue for divorce on the additional grounds of rape, sodomy and bestiality.

Oldest divorce law in Canada, enacted in 1758, is in Nova Scotia. It provided also for divorce on the grounds of adultery, three years' separation, impotency, and prohibited degrees of blood relationship.

A 1958 amendment to the N.S. statute eliminated desertion but added cruelty. Nova Scotia is still the only province allowing divorces for cruelty. Nowhere is desertion a ground.

THEIR LAWS OLD

In New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island the additional grounds for divorce, besides adultery, are sexual impotence and impotence or frigidity. The N.B. law enacted in 1925 and succeeding a 1787 law which had been passed but was never printed.

The P.E.I. statute was passed in 1788 but was not brought into the island province's legal structure until 1835. Either province entered Confederation in 1873, the statute still being in use — residents sought parliamentary divorces instead—until 1940 when it was repealed.

When Ontario entered Confederation the province's position was that the Supreme Court of Ontario could hear a marriage for lack of parental consent. After a long and heated debate, Parliament in 1930 gave Ontario its own divorce jurisdiction, with new judicial powers being added in addition as of 1870. The object was to put an end to divorce by private bill on the same basis as Western Canada's.

The prairie provinces have had divorce rights since 1870.

CAN'T DISOWN LAWS

British Columbia got its divorce jurisdiction from an 1858 proclamation by Governor James Douglas. The courts have ruled that the proclamation gives B.C. the English law of 1857.

The provinces lack authority to change these statutes. Only Parliament can do so that under a federal right that has been exercised only sparingly.

The first federal divorce act was the Marriage and Divorce Act of 1925. It ended the so-called "double standard" by providing that a wife could sue for divorce on the ground of adultery alone—a right previously limited to husbands. Until then, a wife had to prove incestuous, adultery, bigamy coupled with adultery, or adultery coupled with two years of desertion or with cruelty in such a degree as to warrant a judicial separation.

In 1930 Parliament also passed the Divorce Jurisdiction Act, Order-in, if a husband has deserted his wife for two years or more and has become domiciled in another province, he may sue him for divorce on the ground of adultery provided that immediately prior to the desertion the husband was living in the province where the divorce suit is launched.

"LEX" DOMICILE RULE

This was a modification of the domicile law, which provides that a divorce may be granted only in the province where they were married. It is impossible to have, say, a Manitoba domicile and get a divorce in Ontario.

Domicile does not mean residence or nationality. It means the province in which a person intends to stay or intends to return. Thus a person may possess a "country" for the purpose of divorce. It is possible to live in British Columbia for three years but still be domiciled in Saskatchewan.

In Canada the domicile of a married woman is always that of her husband. If the husband's domicile changes, so does that of the wife whether she goes with him or not.

Legal experts say the domicile law would have to be altered along with any change in favor of a general Canadian divorce law. If Mr. Howard and Mr. Peters and their bill by proposing such a change, they would alter domicile, eliminating the provincial "courtroom."

This would make it possible for the resident of one province to divorce the husband elsewhere.

APPROVAL UNLIKELY

Parliamentary members have a history of defeat. The Senate attempted divorce in 1926 on the basis of the 1901 Herbert Act in the United Kingdom, which recognized cruelty as a ground for divorce and added incurable insanity. The Senate passed the measure but died in the Commons.

Another attempt was made in the Senate in 1955 by Senator Walter Aseltine, Saskatchewan Conservative, in 1956 by Government Senate leader, with a duplicate of the 1926 bill. It was defeated 27 to 20 and never reached the Commons.

The Howard-Peters bill offers the Commons a chance to debate the whole question of divorce for the first time since 1930. There have been several debates on isolated proposals—such as setting up a federal court to handle the Quebec and Newfoundland petitions—but none covering the whole country.

But there are many barriers in the way of the Howard-Peters bill. They would require government cooperation for even extended debate. Only a Cabinet Minister would be debated briefly and, under House rules, would revert to the bottom of a long list of private bills and die at prorogation.

In any case, there seems little chance that the bill will pass unless the government supports it or, at least, happens to be interested in cases where a private member's bill is passed—made it from the sponsors' end—makes whatever changes suit the cabinet. This appears unlikely.

Tax Proposal Is Welcomed But Not Politically Feasible Say Speakers at Conference

TORONTO (CP) — D. J. Kelsey, Vancouver accounting executive, says he sees a qualified method for taxing company earnings when they're paid out of the Canadian Tax Foundation.

Several speakers welcomed the proposal in principle, but also gave it a good-natured brush-off on the ground that, in their opinion, it is not politically feasible.

At present company profits are taxed when they are earned and then, when they're paid out to shareholders in any way, are subject to a second tax, a per cent like shareholders' personal taxes.

Under Mr. Kelsey's proposal profits would be taxed once and for all when they are earned, at whatever rate may be deemed necessary, but Canadian-resident shareholders would not be taxed on their taxable .on what they received.

"I think it is wonderful, but it's politically not feasible. I was elected to Parliament and put it across. I can't imagine any Conservative Liberal government ever saying it is abolishing taxes on dividends. That will be the new political party a wonderful election issue."

Mr. Kelsey also recognized the political objections, but said public let men should base their decisions on the basis of what is best for the country.

He said the proposal as accomplishing the broad objectives of existing methods, and at the same time giving encouragement to Canadian investment and the repatriation of Canadian equities held abroad.

He added:

"As to the comment, 'the rich will get richer,' I say they are already getting richer under the present system and there are better ways to diminish economic inequalities among people; for instance, let consumption taxes be high; or let the right to pass on liability by inheritance be restricted, perhaps much more than now."

At another point in the discussion direct provincial sales taxes, rather than indirect, were supported by retail representatives.

Prof. Carter of sales tax necessary, the system now provided by law and followed in the various provinces which levy sales taxes—all but Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta.

They disapproved of an individual retail tax as would be unpossible by a constitutional amendment suggested by President Edward Carter.

The session ended the three-day conference with a unanimous position, a non-profit tax-research body sponsored by the Canadian Association and the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

Big Stride Toward Closing Missile Gap Made by U.S.

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States has made a big stride toward closing the missile gap with the Soviet Union.

It has developed a highly valuable rocket for manoeuvring spy satellites around the moon, Marine George Washington left Charleston, S.C., Tuesday carrying 16 missiles fitted with incredibly deadly thermonuclear warheads. Each warhead is packing many times more powerful punch than the bombs dropped on Hiroshima in 1945.

Polaris subs are some of the strongest stewns in the U.S. defence network sitting ducks for enemy attack. While well-aimed enemy rockets might wreck missile sites and destroy airfields on land, a submarine is elusive.

Pushed by atomic power, able to stay away from base for extended periods and capable of holding a heavy load of deadly Polaris submarine has a fairly small chance of being detected and attacked in the stretches and depths of the ocean.

Eventually there will be 45 subs similar to the George Washington. It is also equipped with the existing type of Polaris missile, which has a range of 2,500 miles; they would comprise a frightening deterrent force.

It has been suggested that the advent of the George Washington will make obsolete the entire American vulnerability in the present nuclear attack.

While it has changed the picture, it has not yet brought about that. Premier Khrushchev said last month that Russia also has missiles of intercontinental ranges.

The uproar in Britain over providing a base for the Polaris missile in Scotland is because it's not so much about the target the installation itself would provide. Britain's four Polaris subs will be sited in the southern part of the country, a location considered important for an enemy to knock out.

What disturbs many in Britain is the amount of control the British claim has to be taken on firing weapons more deadly than the A-bomb used in anger yet.

Always when a Polaris submarine is at sea (which will be most of the time) the commander and his lieutenant, according to one analysis, "are as effectively a nuclear power as, say, Britain or France."

There will be consultation "wherever possible" between London and Washington about pushing the button. But just as to the novel On The Beach, where "one poor wireless man" he saw something on a radar screen, Britain will have to be sure so aboard the Polaris is there the danger of irreversible error.

Services Return To Normal At Lakehead

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Public utilities services returned to normal in the Lakehead cities of Port William and Port Arthur today following settlement of a week-long wage strike by civic telephone servicemen.

Mayor John O. Booth said Wednesday night that Port William had reached an agreement in its wage dispute with 41 telephone employees, members of local 508 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW).

The announcement came 24 hours after agreement had been reached between Port Arthur and its telephone servicemen and 65 Hydro employees, also members of the brotherhood's Local 339.

The strike started Nov. 9 when negotiations between the two civic utilities and the employees broke down. Wage discussions had been going on for 19 months.

Port Arthur Hydro workers joined the walkout three days later on grounds that a wage agreement they had with the city was not applied to 27 per cent of eligible employees.

Picketing in Port William kept all non-striking hydro men from working, tied up street cleaning and garbage removal services for four days and halted bus services for two.

In Port Arthur, picketing stopped bus service all day Tuesday.

Both cities' telephone services reached there Tuesday night.

Port Arthur officials in both cities received the same wage offer. They got a 10-cent-an-hour increase on wages in each of the years 1959, 1960 and 1961. The union had asked for a 20-cent-an-hour retroactive increase for 1959 and three per cent more for 1960 and 1961. The basic hourly rate for linemen is $2.54.

The Port Arthur Hydro workers' contract is unchanged, although two more employees are added to the contract group. They are to receive raises of 2½ per cent for the 1959-60 contract period and five per cent each for each of 1960-61 and 1961-62.

City spokesmen said the strike did not create much inconvenience for the 80,000 residents of the twin cities. Police were pressed during the transit lieups and telephone service was virtually unaffected. Lack of garbage collection bothered some West William stores and restaurants.

Brampton Farm Wins 16th Ribbon At Winter Fair

TORONTO (CP) — Two United States riders teamed up Wednesday night to regain the lead from Canada in the team championship at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair.

Hugh Wiley and George Morris, piloting their own mounts in the international two and two class, gathered enough individual points for their team to put the U.S. ahead with 28 points. Canada is second with 22, Ireland third with 14, Mexico fourth with 12 and Venezuela last with seven.

Wiley also took over in the individual points standings, with 16 leads with 11. Morris and Tom Gaylord of Canada are tied for second place with 10 each.

Mrs. Armstrong's four entries gave her the grand champion, two champion classes, six firsts, five seconds, a third and a fourth prize.

In the competition for a pair of harness ponies with long manes and tail: Gilmour Girl, shown by Mr. and Mrs. Eric Burton of Brooklin, was first.

The conformation hunter, thoroughbred, went to Deirdre, Mrs. Lorna Jean Knight, Guelph, with March of Times, W. D. Whitaker, Caledonia Ont., second.

U.S. Magazines Are Warned They Cannot Protect Position By Shouting Freedom of Press

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's publications royal commission has delivered a sharp warning to American magazines competing in Canada that they cannot protect their position simply by shouting the merits of freedom of the press.

Time magazine unfurled the argument Wednesday — and received an immediate, chewing out for its efforts — in counter-attacking claims by Canadian periodicals that unfair American competition is driving them toward disaster.

Commission chairman M. Grattan O'Leary, veteran newspaper man and president of the Ottawa Journal, said the publishers of Time Canada Limited are not aiding their cause with this kind of "inaccurate" argument.

He told lawrence C. Laybourne, managing director of Time International of Canada Limited, that freedom of the press "belongs to the democracy of the individual, and is not a tool for the use of publishers of property of any magazine or newspaper.

Mr. Laybourne repeated twice during questioning by the three-member commission that the freedom of the press would be jeopardized if the Canadian edition Time's competition in Canada was inequitable and acted by the United States anti-trust laws.

Shortly before the sitting was adjourned, Mr. O'Leary was asked to come back today so the questioning could continue in examination—the Time executive repeated to Mr. O'Leary his belief that competitive practices would constitute restraint of the right of expression.

Mr. O'Leary snapped back in disagreement.

"I tell you, you could still read Time to your heart's content, Mr. Laybourne, if you wanted to whatsoever. The government would merely be a referee between two contending forces within the trade.

"This is the very essence of our . . . government. If one citizen is being bullied by another under some unfair practice, he goes to the courts for remedy the situation."

Time's brief to the commission disagreed that the Canadian edition gained any unfair advantage over Canadian periodicals because of access to the editorial material and other economies available through Time-Life's world-wide organization.

The Time Canadian edition was started in 1943. It is substantially the same in editorial content as Time issues except that it carries Canadian advertising and has a separate section on Canadian affairs.

Time Canada, the commission was told, will be printed in Canada starting with a target date of November, 1961, but they it is hoped be feasible now adjustments to switch editorial operations to Toronto from New York.

Circulation in Canada was listed as 223,073 — which Time said is approximately 10 per cent of all magazines in Canada out of 2,211,990 if the "uniquely Ca-

Egg Producers Take First Step to Form Marketing Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's 30,000 egg producers have taken their first step towards forming a new egg marketing plan which will set up a new way of establishing egg prices.

The egg marketing committee made up of members of the Ontario Egg Producers Association and the trade Wednesday released details of a suggested marketing plan.

The proposed plan suggests the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board license persons engaged in handling, processing or marketing eggs. Grading stations, including producer graders would be appointed by sub-agents of the egg marketing agency. Licence and classification fees would be established by the marketing agency in consultation with producers.

Under the suggested plan, minimum prices would be established weekly by the agency in consultation with the trade on both standard and premium sales. Premium eggs are sold generally to retail outlets, he said.

The objective is to retain most of Ontario's egg production in the hands of a substantial number of small and medium-sized egg producers.

KING OF MOVIES

said, "He hadn't even had a cold in the five years we've been married."

Gable was born Feb. 1, 1901, in Cadiz, Ohio, the son of a farm boy, oil-field worker and rubber plant employee. Then he took a job as a backstage call boy in a touring stock company. From then on, he was an actor, touring the country with stock companies. Lionel Barrymore spotted him once in a Los Angeles play and got him a series of bit parts in the movies.

A director saw him and took him to Darryl Zanuck, then head of production at Warner Brothers.

"I took one look at him and said: 'Buddy, your ears are too big. You'll never make it.'" Zanuck recalled. "Whenever my publicity department would call me a genius, I'd always remind them of the time I let Gable go. It kept me from getting too big a head."

The depression ended the era of the patent-haired lovers of the screen and spawned the Gable era. His old friend, Lionel Barrymore, suggested to Louis B. Mayer that Gable would be ideal for the gangster role in A Free Soul, starring Barrymore and Norma Shearer, a native of Montreal.

The hard-hitting script demanded that Gable slap Miss Shearer and shove her into a chair. When the picture was sneak-previewed, Mayer wanted the scene cut but Irving Thalberg fought to keep it in—and won.

Mayer thought women would be repulsed by such brutal treatment of one of MGM's top females stars.

"The reaction was astounding," said one MGM executive. "Instead of the letters of protest we expected, women by the thousands wrote in that they would like to be slapped around by Gable."

Thus started the King's reign in Hollywood. Joan Crawford said recently that "No one, not even Brando, has ever approached Gable. He's the king—and he always will be."

When the United States entered the Second World War in 1941, Gable was 41 and earning $200,000 a year. Although three years past the draft age, he enlisted as a private and came out a major. He flew five combat missions with the air force as a bombardier and was decorated.

Gable was married five times and seemingly only found happiness in two of them—his third to Madge Carole Lombard and his last to the former Kay Williams.

Sprockels in 1935, then a 27-year-old divorced wife of sugar heir Adolph Sprockels.

Carole, who was killed in a wartime plane crash, and Kay were similar in beauty and in their fun-loving approach to life. Even when his pictures were a flop, Gable's great hits, currently favorites on TV's late late show, were Mutiny on the Bounty, Idiot's Delight, San Francisco, Boom Town, Test Pilot, and Red Dust.

Luxury none ever grossed under $5,000,000.

Gable's own favorite was Gone With the Wind, in which he starred with Vivien Leigh.

Bad Omen for Argos

Clair Mutters Over Hurts

OTTAWA (CP) — Other things being equal, the football team with depth can usually emerge on top over the long haul of the regular schedule and playoffs.

And Ottawa Rough Riders have depth. Even with serious injuries this season, they have been able in the main to play platoon football—use two different teams for offence and defence.

But like all coaches, Frank Clair of Ottawa has been dourly muttering all this week about injuries in his camp while dismissing similar complaints by coach Lou Agase of Toronto Argonauts. And Agase, in turn, doesn't put any stock in Clair's moanings.

Of the two, Clair probably has less cause for complaint as the two teams prepare for their Dominion Sunday contest, the second of a two-game, total-points series to decide the eastern entry in Dave Thelen, who missed two the Grey Cup. The game will be nationally televised. Riders lead the series 23-21.

In his first three years here, Clair had some excellent linemen—and still has. But until this year his rear ranks were pretty thin and many of his ablest backfielders had to fill to play both ways.

Clair has been able to estimate this year in that he has rarely had to use his offensive backfielders and ends on defence.

Even when he had troubles in this department — ends Lou Bruce, Ted Smale, Bill Sowalisk and Jon Jelacic were racked up at almost the same time, for instance—Clair was able to bring in capable substitutes like Jim Reynolds.

Clair has been able to use tackle Mill Graham at end and defensive halfback Gerry Nesbitt at offensive fullback in place of games through injuries.

Furthermore, Clair has two good quarterbacks — Canadian Russ Jackson and American rookie Ron Lancaster—whom he has used alternately all season. Fortunately, when one was hurt, the other was fit.

Having two quarterbacks has raised some problems for Clair. He dug his hand when he sends in each because Jackson is the better runner, Lancaster the better passer.

Ottawa fans tend to favor Jackson. Last Saturday Lancaster at one point was nailed for a big loss. "We want Jackson," howled the stands. Lancaster stayed in and engineered three touchdowns.

Platooning became possible for Clair with the development of good Canadian players like Ron Stewart, Gary Schreiber, Bruce Sowalski and Gilles Archambault and the acquisition of "Canadian American" players like Gene Daigneault and Jim Conroy. Ottawa defensive unit is almost entirely Canadian.

Maroons Paid Tribute

CHATHAM (CP)—Some 2,000 hockey fans, government, city, Canadian and Ontario Hockey Association officials turned up at Memorial Arena Wednesday night to pay tribute to the Allan Cup champions, Chatham Maroons.

Woodstock Athletics turned up too, and thumped Maroons 6-3 to move out of the OHA basement. It spoiled the Maroons' final home appearance before they leave for Russia on a 21 - day goodwill hockey tour Nov. 22.

Jack Roxburgh, CAHA president, and Ken McKillan, OHA president, assisted Chatham Hockey Association officials in the presentation of CAHA and OHA medals and crests to last year's Canadian senior champions. Twin members also received blazers from the Chatham association and Blueline Club.

George Parry, member of the Ontario legislature for Kent West presented a cheque for $1,300 to captain Jack Douglas. The money will be used to purchase uniform coats and hats for the 19 players making the trip to Russia.

EARLY RALLY PAYS OFF

The Athletics scored four goals in the first 12 minutes of the game for their first victory over Maroons this season. It put them in fourth place, ahead of Strathroy and four points back of second-place Windsor and Stratford.

Ed Harrison and Junior Barash each scored twice for Woodstock. Jake Smola and Gord Loveday bagged the others. George Monogue, Jack Dougrie and Joe Maio tallied for Maroons.

Ray Dunn's brilliance in the Woodstock nets weighed heavily in the win. Only in the first period did his mates dominate play. He stopped a total of 32 shots compared to 18 stops by Chatham's Al Bennett.

Referee Fred Blackburn assessed 11 penalties, five to Chatham and all netted out against playing-coach Ted Power.

Power picked up two minors, a major for fighting with Smola and a misconduct, all in one swipe late in the third period.

BUYS SHARE IN TRACKS

CHICAGO (AP) — Mrs. Marjorie L. Everett, daughter of the late Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of Arlington and Washington parks, Wednesday purchased her mother's and brother's holdings in the two tracks for approximately $4,000,000. The purchase gives Mrs. Everett, who for 20 years actively helped her father run both horse racing plants, an estimated 60 per cent of Washington Park and 36 per cent or Arlington.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Janet Yates, a three-year-old westgen - bred filly which changed hands in her last start, won Wednesday's feature race at New Woodbine for P. J. E. Schultz of Kitchener.

Janet Yates sprinted through the mud to run six furlongs in 1.14 4-5 as she defeated Rash Decision by a head. Treasure Quest finished third, less than two lengths behind the winner.

On Nov. 7, Janet Yates won a $4,500 claiming race for her breeder, W. J. Yates of Calgary. However, Schultz claimed the filly for $4,500.

Ridden by Al Coy, the western filly made no mistakes Wednesday as she rushed into a five-length lead and just lasted to defeat Rash Decision. Janet Yates ended a prospered riding career for Coy and paid $17.80, $6.40 and $4.10.

Wednesday's daily double of Irish Duke and Druid paid $15.50. The quinella of Steve B and Sea Daisy in the fifth paid $107.70.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Spectators's cornucopia, the athletic horn of plenty, pours out a stream of appreciated goodness over the course of a year, but usually at this time, known as the pre-Grey Cup Mystery Period, it produces a family of beings known as "armchair, television and post-mortem quarterbacks."

You cannot get away from them. Every home, office, factory, service station, hospital, and in later years, barns, yards and even more of them.

A newspaper office breeds 'em. Its news rooms crawls with 'em. Everybody from the managing editor down to the copy boy will tell you that if Peggy Yokum had thrown Penny a lateral pass instead of hurling an end-zone fly to Lil Ahner, Dogpatch would have won the Sadie Hawkins Cup by seven points.

Right now, this village is agog with predictions, backers, supporters, groundliners and whatnot of the Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders. A nerve-frazzled sports editor who goes out on the limb merely because it is part of the job, hasn't got a chance. Not even in his own office.

The morning after a game the staccato of the telegraph and the rat-tat-tat of typewriters are almost smothered in the verbal argumentative thunder. Brother, those eight o'clock quarterbacks really go into action. People are beginning to throw names at the windows when they can get no answer to telephones.

Even if someone does get a phone answer he's liable to get a wacky reply. Fr'instance a lady called last Saturday morning to inquire if the writer were in yet.

She was told, "Not yet. But they'll win by two touchdowns this afternoon."

Later one of the telephone "linebackers" called. A phone linebacker is a guy who says Ottawa will win and backs it up with a quarter. He is different to an offensive end. This is the bozo who will bet you a dollar via telephone and if he loses, that's the end.

Then there is the condescending type. He is the guy with the bass-profundo voice who harrumphs once or twice before a cheery "Concerning Mr. C and what is your choice for the game this afternoon?"

You have to be careful with this breed. While you are struggling to identify the voice, he interrupts. "Come, come, sir, don't you know your own mind?"

"Yes sir, I think Ottawa will win."

"Harrumph, thanks. If I recall you called the Yankees in the series and the Tiger-Cats last year." In the distance you hear him say to someone, "That settles it. Put fifty on the Argonauts."

Sometimes in this job it seems you can save the future of a family. A sweet feminine voice calls and asks, "My husband thinks the Argonauts will win. I think some of the Riders are cute. I think they will win. What do you think?"

Now there's a spot that calls for tact, diplomacy and no hurried decisions. If you know the guy it is not so bad. If he's bigger than Big Daddy Lipscombe you go along with the Argonauts. If you do not know him it is better to say while you favor Ottawa the game could end in a draw.

Then there is the inevitable back-scratcher type. You get at least one a year.

"Hiyah, Hiyah, there, Ole Kid," the voice booms over the phone. "How's the health? Say what about getting together for a short one some of these days? Oh, yeah. I called to tell you the little woman just loved that column you wrote the other day. I thought it was tops, too."

Here's where you have a little fun.

"She did, eh?.. Which column was that?"

"Er . . . er, the one about . . . about, ah sumpin' about a goose and a moose bein' on the loose. Yeah, that was the one. Boy, were you hitting logs on that one."

"Well, thanks very much . . ."

"Oh, say, by the way I'll be in Vancouver within a couple of weeks and I was wondering if you could set me right on a couple of Grey Cup tickets?"

Speaking of Vancouver, there's an old gridiron warhorse living in Winnipeg who breathes hellfire and brimstone if you say one word about his beloved Bombers. He's 79-years-young Frank Pringle, formerly Belleville resident and uncle of Jim Cook of this city.

Mr. Pringle has been a season-ticket holder of the Blue Bombers for the past thirty-five years and hasn't missed a game nor a Grey Cup tussle. He's Vancouver-bound shortly with his precious Grey Cup pasteboards clasped tightly in his hand.

And woe betide any "Ottawa!" fan who mutters anything detrimental to the Bombers. He'll feel the Pringle verbal wrath, and brother, the near-80 Bomber patriarch can really turn on the blast. We met him last year, and found him to be a fine gentleman, one of the old school.

But the chink in his argumentative armour is the Bombers. Just be careful what you say about them, or recip me, I believe you'd get a punch in the nose.

EPH, GAME CALLED OFF — KITCHENER (CP)—An Eastern Professional Hockey League game scheduled for Wednesday night between Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers and Hull-Ottawa Canadiens has been postponed. Difficulties in getting the ice ready forced the postponement. No new date was set for the game.

McFarlands Senior Hockey Club Folds

Players Said Free To Go

By George H. Carver
Sports Editor

The most colorful saga in Belleville's hockey history came to a climax or less expected close Tuesday yesterday afternoon.

The end came with the announcement the McFarlands senior hockey club will be disbanded.

Coach Gordie Bell reluctantly gave out the statement following a management conference.

"We are not retaining any hold on the players," Bell said. "They are free to go anywhere they choose."

The decision to disband the Macs did not come until the last vestige of hope to secure playing facilities had gone aglimmering.

The rejection of the club's application for entry to the Interprovincial Senior Hockey League sounded the death knell.

DISAPPOINTMENT

Coach Bell and manager Keith McDonald had faced nothing but bitter disappointment in their efforts to locate the Macs since the season started.

They agreed to play in a five team eastern Ontario division of the OHA senior hockey league at the beginning of the season.

They attended meeting after meeting and met suggestion with co-operation all along the line.

Then alleged professional skullduggery caused the Whitby Merchants to withdraw. The Macs refused to enter a loop consisting of Galt, Oakville and Whitby.

However, on advice of Mayor H. J. McFarland, they decided to enter the four-club circuit. This lasted about a day when Welland decided to drop out.

The rest is history. Finally, disgusted at the turn of events, the Macs withdrew from the OHA league unwilling to operate in a three-ring set-up.

In desperation, Bell and MacDonald turned to the east. They applied to the Interprovincial Senior Hockey League operating out of Ottawa.

As is now known the Interprovincial League unanimously decided to reject the Belleville application, transportation being beyond their financial ranges.

Top credit goes to Mayor McFarland, manager MacDonald and Coach Bell for their all-out efforts in trying to keep senior hockey alive in Belleville.

They had secured and gathered a club of veterans and newcomers which, in the opinion of this writer, would have compared with the best in all Ontario.

GORDIE BELL

Had other clubs and individuals displayed the same spirit of willingness and co-operation as did the McFarlands, senior hockey would be alive here today.

A FORERUNNER?

As matters look at the present the demise of the McFarland Senior Hockey Club is perhaps the forerunner of mass burial within the near future.

What remains of senior hockey in Ontario is having its troubles and unless it can get together on some common-sense 'basis' this writer doubts if senior hockey in Ontario will be in existence, next season.

Regardless of what some will say, the senior McFarlands were the best ambassadors of good will to ever to leave this city and Canada in search of world hockey supremacy.

In their brief but brilliant comet-like streak across the hockey horizon, they defeated the best senior clubs of the nation to win the Allan Cup and go on to world honors in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Whatever other circumstances, the glory they won was theirs and ours and cannot be taken away, not even by death or taxes.

This writer was closely associated with the McFarlands in Belleville, Canada and Europe. They were gentlemen both on and off the ice—played the game like Canadians — and played it for Canada.

Perhaps there are the traces of tears in this typewriter's eyes. They are there unashamedly.

Leafs Tie Red Wings

Rangers Rally To Shade Bruins 4-3

By The Canadian Press

New York Rangers came up with a cliff - hanging performance Wednesday night in a National Hockey League game which promised frantic changes for the last-place club unless it managed to win.

Don Prentice scored the winning goal for Rangers in the last second of the game when they came from behind for three third-period goals to edge runner-place Boston Bruins 4-3 in New York.

Prentice took a pass at 19:59 of the final frame from Ken Schinkel and drove a hard, high shot from 30 feet out which went over Boston goalie Don Simmons' shoulder.

Schinkel and Camille Henry counted earlier goals in the last period after Rangers trailed the Bruins 3-1. Andy Bathgate scored for New York in the second period.

PROMISED CHANGES

Ranger coach Alf Pike promised before the game he would make some drastic changes if the team didn't win. He did switch the lineup slightly, putting Bathgate, New York's leading scorer, at right wing with Red Sullivan at centre and Johnny Wilson on the left flank.

"We won't change our defensive combinations," Pike said earlier. "I don't think they've been at fault."

New York now has 11 points, one less than Boston which has a game in hand over the Rangers.

At the end of the standings, Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings provided proof that the race for the NHL championship could be one of the closest in recent seasons.

GET CLOSER

The team tied 3-3 in Toronto to edge closer to the league-leading Montreal Canadiens, who have 21 points.

The tie gave Red Wings 20 points, two more than Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto, tied with 20 points each. Chicago and Montreal were both idle last night.

Bert Olmstead scored twice and former Red Wing Red Kelly once for Toronto. Norm Ullman, Murray Oliver and Warren Godfrey tallied for Detroit.

Hunter Wins Daily Double On Long Shot

HALIFAX (CP) —Milkman William Henry gets afternoons off and every afternoon since the hunting season opened Oct. 15 he's been in the woods searching for deer.

He saw several, but never managed to bag any until last week. Then he bagged two—with one shot.

Mr. Henry said he saw a buck and doe standing side by side. His shot from a .308 rifle went through the buck and struck the doe.

This reporter rode with the Macs to the crests of triumph and down with them into the troughs of frustration and lows.

They formed a tremendous club, individually and collectively. Perhaps seldom in the history of senior hockey did team spirit exemplify itself as outstanding as that final series in Prague when the honor of the Macs, Belleville and Canada was at stake. They came through, like the grand guys they were.

And as they pass into hockey's Valhalla, the survivors of Belleville's pitch who perhaps were the pawns of circumstance yet who go into forced retirement with honour unsullied and escutcheons unblemished.

Perhaps their spirits will roam for the feeling persists that sometime or another the name "Belleville McFarlands" will again echo in hockey corridors.

And the flowers at their graves gentlemen both on and off the ice—played the game like Canadians — and played it for Canada.

Perhaps there are the traces of tears in this typewriter's eyes. They are there unashamedly.

Evans May Join Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Claude Evans, 37, much-travelled goalsender, may join Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League within a few days.

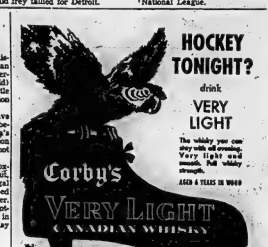
Now with Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers of the Eastern Professional League, he became expendable earlier this week when the parent New York Rangers sent Jack McCartan to Kitchener.

New York has made it clear McCartan must play regularly at Kitchener and Vancouver hopes to get Evans.

"I've been after Evans for some time," said Vancouver General Manager Coley Hall, who spent last weekend negotiating with the Rangers.

Evans was the EPHL's leading goaltender last year while with Trois-Rivieres. He has had brief trials with Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens of the National League.

Judge Orders Title Fight



NEW YORK (AP) —A U.S. district court judge has granted an injunction ordering world welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Paret of Cuba to defend his title next against former champion Don Jordan.

What affect the order will have on the scheduled title bout between Paret and Argentina's Fredrico-Thompson at Madison Square Garden Dec. 10 was not known immediately.

Madison Square Garden Boxing Inc., promoters of the bout, said Paret's attorney and legal counsel for the Garden planned a meeting to consider the order. Paret won the title by outpointing Jordan of Los Angeles, in 15 rounds a Las Vegas last May 27.

Chatham Readies For Russian Tour

CHATHAM (CP) — Eighteen hockey players, including the nucleus of Canada's last amateur team last year, are preparing to leave on a nine-game exhibition and goodwill tour of Russia and Sweden.

Chatham Maroons, 1958-60 Allcup champions, leave Tuesday, Nov. 29, by plane from Toronto for the 31-day tour which opens in Moscow against the Russian national team Nov. 24.

Maroons will play one other game in Russia against a national team, the equivalent of an all-star lineup. Both games in Sweden will be against all-stars.

Maroons' coach Ted Power is firm believer in the theory that a win-hungry player is a good player. Feels the club will do very well on the tour.

HAVE DESIRE

"Success is unlimited . . . if the desire is there. We have it right now. That's why I feel we'll do well on this tour."

Power says Chatham has "more inspirational hockey players than the average team could hope to find in three years." He added: "If mental attitude of the players is right we will win at least five of the nine games."

Seven games will be played in Russia, five in Moscow and two in Kiev. The two against Sweden's national team in Stockholm Dec. 7-8.

While Maroons are long on desire, they are not exactly short on talent. Ten of the players from their Allan Cup team will make the trip.

FOUR SENIORS ADDED

Maroons have added four proven men from Senior A ranks. Windsor Bulldog captain and centre Lou Bendo, one of the best skaters and scorers in senior hockey, will join Power and Floyd (Dutch) Martin, formerly with Galt Terriers of the defunct eastern division of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior loop, makes one of Maroons top scoring lines.

Others up from Senior A ranks are defenceman Ted Makil and goaltender Harold (Ghost) Hinsley, both from Galt. Hinsley was with the Canadian Olympic team last year.

Available from the Allan Cup team are defencemen Jack Kozlas, Elmer Shov and Ivan Tennant and forwards Power, Fred Pistach, Frank Battagzie, Billy Inman, George Aitken, Jack Stoddart and Joe Make.

Newcomers on the team include netminder Al Bennett and centre Ernie Dick from Wallaceburg Hornets, Eddie Busch, formerly with Toledo and a member of Chatham's 1956 Allcup finalist team, and Stan Long, from the defence ranks of Strathroy Rockets, 1959-60 Ontario Senior B champions.

PLAYED IN OLYMPICS

Douglas, team captain, and Martin were with Hurley on Canada's Olympic team in Squaw Valley, Calif.

Dick, Make and Pistach will make up another forward line and Power has indicated he will play Battagzie between Forban and Aitken for a third unit. Stoddard and Busch will be the extra forwards.

Douglas and Makil will form one pair of defencemen with Shov and Long providing the other unit.

The series marks Chatham's first foray as a team—under its International hockey rules, but Power doesn't expect too many penalties because of the rule forbidding body-checking in the attacking team's zone.

"We have a team that skates well. We don't have to rely on checking," he said.

Power plans to use positional hockey to fight the speed and the passing attack they anticipate from Russia.

"We will try to keep them playing along the boards . . . trying to force them to shoot from the corners."

Surprise for Ottawa?

Now It's Argonauts Turn!

TORONTO (CP)—The football rumor mill continued grinding today and one of the rumors that popped out was that Toronto Argonauts may have a surprise play available Sunday when they meet Ottawa Rough Riders in the final game of the two-game, total-point series to decide the eastern Grey Cup representative.

The word is out that even new coach Lou Agase and his staff are searching for something a little different — something that will keep the Ottawa line from charging in and giving quarterback Tobin Rote a bad time.

Rote says the rushing by Ottawa defenders did not bother him too much, but the 13-point spread indicated to Agase's coaching staff that if Ottawa bothered him even less, there would be a better chance of overcoming the 6 deficit Sunday.

Meanwhile, conditions at the Canadian National Exhibition stadium have not improved much. The tarpaulin is on the field now, but serves only to keep off additional rain. The field got a soaking overnight Monday and most of Tuesday when the CNE ground crews got caught with their tarp up.

The weather office is forecasting clearing skies for Friday but adds cautiously that "whether this will hang on for Sunday is uncertain."

The field needs a dry or more dry weather and wind before it will offer solid footing.

Agase fears that a muddy field would favor Ottawa's running attack, but others within football circles feel slippery footing favors the passing game — providing the quarterback can handle a greasy ball.

Bahama Loses To Rodriguez

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Luis Manuel Rodriguez, undefeated top contender for the welterweight crown, ran his victory string to 34 Wednesday night with a 10 - round unanimous decision over Yama Bahama of Bimini, Bahamas.

Rodriguez, 22, and weighing 147¾, clugged his way to the win over Bahama, 159¾, with strong body punches.

A hard right cross at the end of round three sent Bahama to the canvas for a count of six before the bell.

The defeat was Bahama's 15th in 77 fights.

Judge Lou Gardner gave it to Rodriguez 99-90, Referee Billy Regan and Judge Cal Jacobsen both had Rodriguez 97-94.

Rough, Rugged Battle

Juniors Trim Picton 10-6

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Lambert - Rollins scored a 10-6 Junior "B" hockey decision victory over the Picton Merchants in a rough and rugged fixture at Memorial Arena last night that saw 78 minutes in penalties handed out to the two clubs.

While several rookies turned in spanking performances in their first start for the Lambert-Rollins, it was the seen and heard faces that piled up the penalty-box total and ignited a near-riot in the stands in the game's dying minutes.

Defenceman Larry Mayer picked up 21 of Belleville's 41 total minutes in penalties and drew four minors, a major for fighting with Ron Weese and a misconduct. The ten-minute sentence came at 19.27 of the final period. Bob Kennedy of Picton got getting one when he tried to oblige Mayerly in his attempt to turn the hockey game into a full-scale brawl.

A number of Picton fans who had ridden Mayerly and a couple of his mates throughout the affair found at least one Belleville man ready to do battle at this point. One of the contestants in the brief but spirited battle in the stands took a header down three flights of seats, with a little help. Order was restored by cooler heads before police arrived on the scene.

Turning to the hockey part of the evening, rookies Roger Smith, Pete Weston, Paul McGill, Pug Kellar and Ron Dolmage played a major part in the L-R's win. Smith skated miles both ways and earned two goals and an assist for his fine effort. McGill also had two goals and the third member of this all-rookie line, Pete Weston, had three assists.

Kellar played well, although getting only one assist, while Dolmage played strong goal in the winners nets over the second half of the game. He took over from veteran Bill Moxon near the half-way mark.

Gerry Goyer, sidchandling at his best was Belleville's high point man overall with two goals and two assists. Ron Ellis, "Whitey" Hull, Larry Mavety and Don Forsythe had the other goals while Doug Moreau, another first-year man and R. Hull had assists.

The Picton Pero-Beatty-Kennedy line looked after nearly all Picton's scoring. Larry "Pocket" Pero and Brian Beatty had two goals and three assists each while Bob Kennedy had a goal and two helpers. Bill Waddling added the other goal.

Belleville outshot Picton 40-35 and forced the Merchants' alternating goalies, Les Pendleton and Don Branscombe, to make a number of close-in stops.

Picton took advantage of early Belleville penalties for a 2-0 lead on goals by Pero and Beatty but Goyer and "Whitey" Hull tied it on breakaway goals within ten seconds of each other. Forsythe and Pero (trading goals to make it 3-3 at the end of the first.

McGill and Waddling kept it tied at 4-4 before the winners pulled ahead to stay on goals by Mavety, Smith and Ron Hull for a 7-4 lead after forty minutes.

After McGill made it 8-4, Picton cut the margin on goals by Kennedy and Beatty before Smith and Goyer wrapped it up for the final 10-6 score.

Picton: Pendleton, Branscombe, Rutherford, Boyle, Hess, Nichols, Waddling, Keep, Davis, Westfall, Hawker, Weese, Woodcock, Pero, Beatty, Kennedy, Taylor, Elsbury.

Dick Groat Is National 1960 M.V.P.

BOSTON (AP) — Dick Groat, captain and shortstop of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, today was selected the National League's most valuable player for 1960, ending the two-year domination of Chicago's Ernie Banks.

Groat, who led the Pirates to their first pennant in 39 years, won in a landslide.

He was named first on 16 of the 23 ballots cast by a special committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America, and listed on every ballot and picked up 208 points. That voided him ahead of teammate Don Hoak who was second with 162.

"It's a wonderful thrill, of course," the Pirates' field leader said from his home in Pittsburgh, then quickly gave credit to the team.

CREDITS TEAM EFFORT

"I honestly feel it wouldn't have been possible without the fabulous year enjoyed by the Pirates. Just to play on the club was great, but great it was a wonderful team effort and I was just a part of it."

He was the first Pirate named to the coveted award since the writers took over the selection in 1931. And his teammates drew all the other first-place votes, Bob Friend getting five and strong - armed outfielder Roberto Clemente one. Clemente finished eighth in the voting.

San Francisco's Willie Mays was named on 21 ballots and was third with 153 points. Banks, Chicago's hard-hitting shortstop who won the last two years, was fourth with 100 points.

Groat was the National League batting champion with a .325 average. The 30-year-old native of Swissvale, Pa., included only two home runs in his 186 hits last season, but was generally credited with being the sparkplug of Pittsburgh's drive to the pennant.

He suffered a broken bone in his wrist when struck by a pitch Sept. 6, and didn't rejoin the Pirates for the last week of the season.

He had 30 runs batted in. Groat's .325 average, his first batting title, is the highest of his eight-year major league career.

AT THE PARK — Jerry Lewis as "The Bellboy" has his hands full, but not nearly as full as the poor guests he serves in this new Paramount release which arrives tonight at the Park Theatre. The comedy, starring Jerry, was also produced, directed and written by Jerry. The all comedy show is made complete with Laurel and Hardy in "Bonnie Scotland".

Good News for Eskys?

Ploen Doffs Cast, Throws

WINNIPEG (CP) — Star quarterback Ken Ploen removed the plaster cast from his injured right hand and started throwing a football Wednesday night as Winnipeg Blue Bombers sought to regain their scoring punch in time to win a berth into their Grey Cup playoff with Edmonton Eskimos.

Ploen suffered the injury as Winnipeg defeated Edmonton Eskimos 22-16 Saturday in the first game of the two-game total-point series in the Western Interprovincial Football Union. He was forced to wear a cast and play defensive safety as Bombers lost the second game 10-5 Monday.

Ploen was replaced at quarterback by rookie Vernon Colgate from North Texas State. Colgate turned in a creditable, performance but Bombers were unable to put together a touchdown drive against the Eskimos.

The nationally-televised windup game is scheduled here Saturday with the opening kickoff at 2:05 p.m. CST (3:05 p.m. EST). The winner goes against the East in the Grey Cup at Vancouver Saturday, Nov. 26.

TRIED IT OUT

Coach Bud Grant said the team decided to let Ploen try working the hand to see whether there is a chance he can take over at quarterback, but unless definite improvement is shown Cole will be used Saturday.

Other ailments continue to plague the Bombers. Halfback Ray Jauch, has showed well in the first-game victory and who was replaced by Carver Shannon Monday, has a case of bronchitis. He showed up for practice but had difficulty running.

Rae Goss, defensive - back fielder who suffered torn rib ligaments in the first game, is reported out for the season.

Eskimos went through a 2½-hour workout at Edmonton, their longest practice of the year.

But while his team seemed to revel in the hard work, coach Eagle Keys found little room for happiness in news that veteran halfback Rollie Miles was in hospital with a throat infection.

Miles went both ways for Eskimos in the second game. He is expected to play Saturday but could be in a weakened condition.

Should Have Sports Agency Skaters Say

MONTREAL (CP) — Barbara Wagner and Robert Paul, Canadian gold medalists at the 1960 Winter Olympics in Squaw Valley, Calif., said Wednesday, Canada must have a government sports agency if it is to compete on equal footing with the rest of the world.

The Olympic pairs figure skating champions were speaking in an interview after their professional show here.

"The time is far gone," they said, "when athletes took part in the Olympics for regretion.

"Nowadays, Olympics are where nations compete not only for their love of sports but for their reputation.

"Before we represented Canada at the 1956 Games in Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, we had to get on our hands and knees to scrape up enough money for the trip. Our parents even had to help half the costs."

Miss Wagner said the United States Olympic Committee asked her and Paul to participate in a benefit show for the American Olympic team.

The show netted $10,000 and $500 was given to the Canadian Olympic Committee, she said.

"We would have been very happy to do the same in Canada," she said, "but we were not asked."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, November 18, 1960

General Tendencies: A real upset can occur today that can have long-time repercussions if you try to force your ideas or your way upon others. However, if you be charming and adept at understanding attitude, with a smile for all you meet, you can turn the potential dangers of this day into active opportunities and gain respect and great support.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Be very certain you complete whatever you have started, especially if you have committed yourself to others. Also, politely give fit-ter to every idea proposed by higher-ups, but study them well before following them.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Avoid that member of clan now who is on a rampage. It will then be possible to handle outside business wisely and you can talk over affairs in a poised and sensible manner. Don't mistake courtesy for barbed innuendoes. Expand.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Work labor diligently, and don't let fellow workers today, you can advance quickly and gain prestige. Also, be very careful while out driving or in motion anywhere, or there could be considerable danger of accident.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) — You are tempted to cast aside important work and obligations just now in favor of some pleasure or other. This would be very unwise right now. Buckle down and be a perfectionist instead, strive for a greater income.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — While members of own family do not quite agree with you in your ideas, remember that each is-ha-, happily, his or her own mind and is entitled to express it. Be loving and broad-minded or you can cause an unfortunate rift to occur.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Don't vent your spite on others simply because all is not working out as you expected it to. With time all will be ameliorated, so rise above petty annoyances and big, private worries. Carry through with day's obligations.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — While you may not have enough money to do what you like, don't make the mistake of venting your ire on those around you. Be loyal to good friends and don't be extravagant with what you have. Economize and start getting rich.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — It is best not to do that civic chore you have been contemplating on or it could result unfavorably. Concentrate upon a more efficient mode of life instead and you can open a whole new vista of success through hard work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you permit, that private worry could really throw you. Get out of your rut and be with persons of the theater who are expanding and contemplate on the best way to improve conditions in your life. Be cheerful. Think.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Avoid that jealous personal alliance now, or one who thinks you have more money than is actually the case, or you get in Dutch. Stand by loyal comrades who will give you the right ideas and help you to get ahead faster instead.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — A quaintish associate could really throw the monkey wrench into some affairs you are trying to put over, if you allow. Follow ideas of high executive instead and you will be quite successful. Show your ability — have savoir faire.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Your regular duties seem very tiresome today, so be sure you study more efficient ways of operating and make new contacts who can be very helpful in the future. Then this becomes a productive and happy day for you.

If your child is born today ... there is bound to be a great deal of change in his interesting life and adjustments will have to be made quickly, so it is important that you give your progeny an excellent foundation in religious and ethical matters so that the right decisions can be made, that will lead to true happiness and success. Help your fascinating child to bring out to the full the wonderful promise that is in this chart.

Cuba Maintains U.S. Navy Patrol Threat To Peace

Is Termed Smokescreen Hiding Plot for Attack

HAVANA (AP) — The Fidel Castro regime charged today that U.S. Naval patrols in the Caribbean were an intervention in Latin American affairs, a grave threat to world peace and a smokescreen for an attack on Cuba.

President Eisenhower Thursday ordered U.S. warships and planes to be ready to seek out and prevent Communist-led attacks from abroad on Guatemala and Nicaragua.

The president acted on the written request of the two governments, targets in the last week of counterrevolutionary uprisings which they charged were assisted by Cubans.

The action came as pleots and possible uprisings were reported in two other countries—Bolivia and El Salvador.

The U.S. state department said warships, including at least, four destroyers and the aircraft carrier, Shangri-la, were patrolling the high seas between Cuba and the central American coast. The department said, however, that any action by U.S. military forces would be limited to the three-mile territorial waters of Guatemala and Nicaragua.

CARRY TASS STORIES

Three Cuban newspapers carried a story by the Soviet news agency Tass warning of invasion plots against Cuba being prepared in Nicaragua and Guatemala.

A Moscow radio broadcast recorded in London said the U.S. navy alert is "fraught with too danger of a military conflict". The broadcast, noting the White House statement that the move was requested by the Guatemalan and Nicaraguan governments, said: "The anti-Castro and popular regimes of these two countries can exist only with U.S. support."

The semi - official newspaper Revolucion ran a four-column headline saying "U.S. endangers world peace". Yankee threats of occupation of Central America could be step toward attacking Cuba."

El Mundo's banner said "U.S. intervenes in internal struggles in Guatemala and Nicaragua."

The reaction of Cuban officials and the government-controlled press and radio was indignant.

The newspaper Carte said the president's action was an intervention in Guatemala and Nicaragua and a grave threat to world peace.

Avance said the U.S. navy was out to protect "U.S. colonies."

Pasorlal, a high ranking Cuban official as head of the government's agrarian reform institute, said in a television program that the invasion of Central America, were a smokescreen to hide plans for an

WEST CONFIDENT IT CAN WIN VOTE ON CONGO SEAT

Hope to Block Move To Delay Decision

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) The West was confident today it has the votes to give the Congo's empty United Nations seat to President Joseph Kasavubu despite efforts by the Soviets and a group of Asian-African nations to block him.

The 99-nation general assembly meets to deal with the recommendation of its credentials committee that it seat a delegation headed by Kasavubu.

The West expects a quick call for adjournment by the Soviet bloc and Asian-African nations supporting Patrice Lumumba, deposed Congo premier and bitter rival of Kasavubu.

Western diplomats predicted, however, that they have enough strength to block such a maneuver. They reason that if they succeed it may be possible to put through a vote to seat Kasavubu since this requires only a simple majority.

Kasavubu told reporters Thursday that if he is absolutely indispensably" that the United Nations send him to the assembly before it sends a conciliation commission to his troubled country.

Informed that the 15-nation Asian-African commission is about to leave next Tuesday, Kasavubu declared it had no right to act in the Congo and set out to do so.

The commission announced it will begin work in Leopoldville Nov. 26. Jaja Wachuku, chief delegate of Nigeria, has been named chairman of the group.

Kasavubu told reporters he was opposed to the commission's going to the Congo at this stage.

"I am sure that the Congolese people themselves will not accept the commission," he said.

"We consider it an imposition because it is done without even considering the interests of those people most directly interested, without even warning them, without even asking their agreement."

Kasavubu said he got official word only this week that the commission was about to leave. He said the Afro-Asian Congo advisory committee which set up the commission should have consulted Congo before going ahead with the project.

Will Bury Gable Beside Body Of Third Wife

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable, recovering from a heart attack when a second blood clot broke loose in his left leg, said today he will be buried beside the body of Carole Lombard, the third of his seven wives.

Private services will be conducted Sunday for the actor at nearby Glendale. Only members of the family and close personal friends will attend.

Miss Lombard was killed in a 1942 plane crash. Gable said Gable never got over his grief at her death.

The decision to bury him in the crypt was made by his wife, Kay, three months pregnant with Gable's first child.

Killed by Train

OTTAWA (CP)—Carol Callan-Jones, six-year-old daughter of Mrs. K. Callan-Jones, died of head injuries Thursday after being struck by a train here. She was struck by a train near her home, Carol was crossing the tracks at Island Park Drive and Scott streets, in Ottawa's west end, but ran back into the path of the train.

Church Unity Arrested in Arizona Admits Slaying His Foster-Mother

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Police arrested Grant Bradley Connor, 21, in Phoenix early today and confessed, said the county attorney.

Detective Roy Yazzi said he arrested Connor while on routine patrol. Soon after spotting a Michigan licence plate number, Yazzi learned from Michigan by teletype.

Accompanying Connor, the officer said, were a woman acquaintance and a hitchhiker. Both were held as material witnesses.

Yazzi said the murder victim was Mrs. Harriett Connor, 48.

When questioned about the death, Connor, a window washer, first denied any knowledge of it and then broke down, Yazzi said.

The detective said Connor, an ex-convict who had been deported from Australia to Windsor, Ont., gave this account:

"I remember he climbed through a window of Mrs. Connor's apartment, walked until she came to him, fired a shot at her and fled after taking $400 and a set of car keys from her purse.

"I shot her once. She didn't even fall down. I left the house."

Connor said in a statement.

He was booked "Held for Murder-Robbery."

Connor worked at the post office in London, Ont., last year and was married a month ago to a Toronto girl. The couple had been living with Mrs. Connor in Detroit.

Ontario Provincial Police had been asked Thursday to be on the lookout for the couple.

School Recess for One Week To Relieve Integration Battle

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A school recess for a week, starting Monday, promised a breathing spell for New Orleans in the bitter battle over integration.

The recess was announced late Thursday night by Dr. James Redmond, public school superintendent. It will permit teachers to attend teacher association meetings in Baton Rouge Monday through Wednesday. Pupils will observe U.S. Thanksgiving Holiday Thursday and Friday and classes will not resume until Nov. 28.

The New Orleans school board yesterday asked suspension of a federal court order directing school integration and a hearing on the motion was scheduled for today before a three-judge panel.

The suspension plea was filed after four days of tension over integration last May 9 of four small Negro girls to two white schools. Unruly demonstrations, sporadic violence and an almost complete boycott by white students of the two schools followed.

The three Negro first graders at McDonogh No. 19 arrived today a few minutes before the school bell escorted by three federal marshals. Reporters and police did not see any white child enter the school.

William F. Frantz school, the lone Negro pupil entered at 9:20 a.m. also escorted by federal marshals. A handful of spectators jeered. Three white pupils were seen to enter the school earlier.

U.S. district judge Skelly Wright who signed the integration order, has overridden several moves by the legislature to halt racial mixing.

The three - judge panel which included Wright, also is expected to hear two other cases involving New Orleans schools.

One is Wright's order restraining the legislature and top state officials from interfering with the integration move. The other is a contempt citation Wright issued against Shelby Jackson, state superintendent of education. The judge said a school holiday ordered last Monday by Jackson, effective date of the integration order, was contemptuous interference.

The plea for suspension, filed by Samuel Rosenberg, school board lawyer, was for time to let tempers cool and a return to segregated schools pending a decision on issue on which the board said the United States Supreme Court should rule.

Time and Reader's Digest Make Poles-Apart Replies

OTTAWA (CP) — Time Magazine and Reader's Digest have issued in post-election letter at charges that they and other publications with home offices in the United States are using the Canadian periodical press through unfair competition.

Time Canada is arguing that it is a Canadian periodical in all but ownership and that Canadians get Canada makes no claim to ownership of the Reader's Digest point of view, although priding itself with being a solid corporate citizen.

The two approaches to the problem of competition-making the separate publishing forces alien in advertising — are outlined study by Canada's publications royal commission.

Time Canada's digest brief submitted Thursday to the commission followed by a day the Time argument — brought back by Reader's Digest in a statement in which both publications were featured.

In conclusion in the Reader's Digest brief that the royal commission should recommend the expulsion of questions pending in the courts over charges by the chairman M. Grattan O'Leary.

He said the three-man commission would not permit an unsettled court case to hinder total investigation of claims by Canadian magazines that competition by U.S. publications is threatening their survival.

The court case grew out of Canada's imposition in 1931 of a special 30-per-cent excise tax—since repealed—on the gross advertising revenues of foreign magazines.

The tax was imposed by the former Liberal government and lifted by the Progressive Conservative administration that followed. Time paid the levy—the Reader's Digest refused.

The reference to the court case in the Reader's Digest brief said:

"There is pending before the courts litigation concerning the right of the provincial government to regulate the publishing industry by the imposition of the tax on one sector of the industry.

"Pending the outcome of that litigation, it is presumed that the commission will not enter into a discussion of the matters under consideration by the courts."

Said Mr. O'Leary, addressing himself to E. Finlay Freeman of Montreal, Reader's Digest president:

"My colleagues and I have confidence that you will await the conclusion of your submission and which refer to the litigation pending before our courts and the Reader's Digest Association Canada Limited.

"We have no intention to interfere with the course of the administration of justice; no desire to cause prejudice to any judicial proceeding or any party that may be before the courts. Indeed, we can find nothing relevant to this investigation in the questions at issue before them.

MAY LAY CHARGES IN MONEY HOAX SAYS LAPALME

Plot Is Outlined At Press Conference

QUEBEC (CP) — Attorney-General George-Emile Lapalme indicated Thursday charges may be laid in connection with an elaborate counterfeit money hoax apparently designed to discredit the Liberal party and laid by men with criminal records.

The plot, outlined, by Mr. Lapalme at a press conference, consisted of three phases:

1. Two former Union Nationale party supporters and officials to believe the Liberals were involved in a fabulous counterfeit money racket.

2. Get these supporters to pay money for elusive evidence which never showed up.

3. Revive the whole affair for a weekly newspaper, les Nouvelles Illustrees of Montreal, to get it to publish a story and to back up the last clause of this plot with trick magnetic tape recordings and pictures.

This was the story as it has emerged so far, partly through a mass of documents mailed to the legislative assembly, and partly through Mr. Lapalme's press conference.

CRIMINAL RECORDS

Mr. Lapalme summed up the affair by saying some men with criminal records worked out a scheme against the Liberals and decided to use it on the Union Nationale party after the latter fell in their trap.

The men with criminal records said by the attorney-general to have figured in the hoax are: Gerard Gagnon, 42, of Montreal; Gaston Alain, 27, Lorettville; Jean-Guy Lemieux, 27, Montreal.

Razor Wit Wins Star Role in UN For Hot-Tongued Nigerian Lawyer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) A pepper-tongued African lawyer with a razor wit who is making his way into a star role on the United Nations colonial scene.

Jaja Wachuku, stocky delegate from Nigeria — newest member of the UN family—has in the less than two months become one of the leading champions of the new African states.

A commanding figure in his white robe and matching skull cap, 42-year-old Wachuku combines scholarship when he takes the floor. Few delegates forget the day he made his first appearance before the General Assembly.

It was the day Nikita Khrushchev waved his shoe in the air and denounced a delegate; a day that was to see Assembly President Frederick Boland bang his gavel with a fury that smashed it.

Wachuku mounted the rostrum, gazed at the aroused diplomats for several moments, then turned to the chair.

"My original intention," he said, "had been to stay in my seat . . . to feel the atmosphere of this assembly."

He paused again and gave an impromptu lecture on the colonialism question direct to the assembly. Then he sat down, later won unanimous approval.

In the General Assembly, Wachuku led a motion to postpone the important discussion on the Security and Economic-Social Councils until the African states figured out their voting.

With the solid backing of the 45 Asian-African states

Proposals Aimed At Beefing Up Nation's Economy

Fleeting Will Present "Baby" Budget Soon

OTTAWA (CP)—A hefty sheaf of legislative proposals aimed at beefing up the Canadian economy has been presented to Parliament.

The throne speech at the opening of the new session Thursday gave notice that the treasury will furnish countrying loans, grants and capital works assistance. And it sparked talk of tax concessions by announcing that Finance Minister Fleming will present a "baby" budget before Christmas.

Plans for welfare measures for aged got a minimum in the speech, prepared by the cabinet and read in the Senate by Governor - General Vanier as the fiscal point traditional ceremonies launching a new session.

Otherwise, the breadth and scope of the government's economic plans had all the hallmarks of an impending election, especially if its tax cuts materialize in the pre-Christmas budget as the federal polls to arrest a dip in the economy.

However, such speculation was discounted by Mr. Fleming who said the program isn't intended to indicate that. Observers suggested that the government has moved into a position where it could call an early election on the basis of the planned record at this session or wait a year or so to claim as an accomplishment any economic improvement that may come along.

Today the Commons meets largely for the final reading formalities; addresses by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Brooks Southam and Remi Paul (PC)—Hochelaga and Lapalme - Dolbeau-Mistassini (Lib.) moving and seconding the traditional reply to the throne speech.

PARTY LEADERS

The party leaders — Opposition Leader Pearson, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and CCF leader Argue, in that order — will fire the opening salvos next week. The opposition already has Liberal Leader Lesage's statement will be the major issue.

The throne speech made no mention of the unemployment situation. It dwelt on record levels of forest production, employ-

Sir Winston In Some Pain During Night

LONDON (CP) — Sir Winston Churchill, 85, who suffered a fall at his home Tuesday, had a "rather disturbed night," it was announced today.

A statement from his Hyde Park Gate residence said: "Sir Winston has had a rather disturbed night but his spinal injury is progressing satisfactorily and is giving no anxiety."

Friends of the statesman said he had been in pain during the night and consequently did not sleep as he should.

Sir Winston, who will be 86 on Nov. 30, fell in his bedroom Tuesday night after returning to his London home from a dinner with his old friend, Lord Salisbury.

The fall broke a small bone in his back.

An informant in touch with the Churchill household said:

"Very often in this sort of situation, the reaction caused by a fall, or injuries is delayed," said the informant.

Lady Churchill was at her husband's bedside most of the night.

When the statement on his condition was issued today his wife, Lady Churchill, issued a simultaneous statement to reporters thanking them "for their consideration in not telephoning the house" for deails of his condition.

Churchill is under the care of Sir Russell Brain, Queen Elizabeth's physician, and Dr. Robert Reid, prominent orthopaedic specialist.

Sir Winston's private secretary Antony Montagus Browne said he will give any details to reporters. He is usually communicative.

UNFAIR TO PARENTS

BERLIN (AP)—A reader of the Cap et Marteau daily News Deutschland complained today that too many children of high officials are "born with a silver spoon in their mouths" while teachers have to walk to school in the rain. Weaving Guild Holds Meeting

The Weaving Guild met recently at the recreation room, Bancroft Street, with Mrs. C. Hayes in the chair in the absence of the president, Mrs. Godden. The minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report were read.

It was decided to leave the round robin at the rooms for the guild to go and see and also that the books in the weaving library be catalogued and a record of them kept. The December meeting will take the form of a Christmas party, pot-luck, December 12.

It was decided to have a project going on both of the looms at the rooms, and have them ready to start the first of the year.

The secretary gave a full report of the weaving workshop held the last of October. This was very successful. Weavers from Madoc, Marmora, Peterborough, Eldorado, Tweed and Belleville attended. A display was arranged by the Community Program Branch and Recreation Commission. Mr. and Mrs. George Reid, of Kingston, taught ground weaving, and Mrs. Lee, of Madoc, Scotch tartan. Mrs. Burton of Hamilton taught rug hooking. Looms were arranged and loaned by the department and the recreation room loom, along with the local guild looms and the personally-owned looms.

Mr. Hugh Maddocks of the Ontario Program Branch, and Miss Muff, craft consultant of the Program Branch, who directed the workshop, spoke at the meeting. Evaluation sheets were filled in at the completion of the course, which ran October 31 and 32. The result of this survey was mailed back to the Guild. It proved very helpful.

Mrs. A. Gilroy looked after the refreshments and Mrs. Hayes the finances. The woven samples were mailed to the different weavers.

Bank of Canada Interest Rate Edges Upward

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada interest rate edged upward Thursday at 4.23 per cent compared with last week's 2.48 on a following the sale of $95,000,000 in 91-day government treasury bills.

The rate, an indicator of conditions in the short-term money market, has been tightening since April and resumed a seven-week climb interrupted last week when it was almost steady.

The bank announced that $95,000,000 of the bills were sold Thursday at an average price of $99.16 for an average yield of 3.46 per cent. Highest yield was 3.58 and, low 3.37.

The bank also announced the sale of $25,000,000 in 182-day bills at an average price of $98.15 for an average yield of 3.78. Highest yield was 3.93 and the lowest 3.69.

Less Than 30 in Attendance As Four Ratepayers' Groups Hold Pre-Election Meeting

Absence of any contentious issues to stir up the electorate has resulted in a falling off of interest in ratepayer associations in the city with last night's meeting of the four local associations attracting less than 30 persons.

Called by executive officers of the Belleville Voters' Committee, Ward One Ratepayers' and Parkdale Community Centre, it had on its agenda the election of officers for the four local ratepayers' associations, suggestion of names of persons as possible candidates in the forthcoming municipal election, and a brief session giving the opportunity of expressing complaints and criticisms.

But owing to the slim attendance it was decided to continue into next year with the same slate of officers. And only two names were suggested for city council.

Voters' committee chairman Don Bacon, who chaired last night's meeting, said that his committee would go ahead with contacting a number of municipal candidates with suggested names to be presented before ratepayers' groups for reaction before to be held in the near future.

Names of present aldermen whose one-year terms in council are running out, will be considered.

Last year's local association meetings were filled to capacity with overflow crowds. Ward One was packed to the doors in October 31 and 32. The result of this survey was mailed back to the Guild. It proved very helpful.

Mrs. A. Gilroy looked after the refreshments and Mrs. Hayes the finances. The woven samples were mailed to the different weavers.

ELECTION TIME

Bacon said that apparently by the ratepayers' association on Ward One, which has been ignored when a petition had been raised protesting against what was said to be a "spite fence" to erect a 12-inch two gasoline stations in the "industrial" section of Bird Bridge Street.

"Everybody apparently likes the project," he said, but had the matter been placed before a ratepayers' meeting, many more persons may have been greater," he said.

To a question from the floor as to the number of the signatures on the petitions, Mr. Bacon replied he had counted them.

And one man attending the meeting who did not sign was new to the city, said he did not know there was a ratepayers' association in the district.

To this Ex-Mayor Jack Allin added that apparently there was a feeling the ratepayers' associations had been formed last year for a specific purpose.

Chairman Bacon agreed that there was no issue this year to arouse interest.

WANT MORE BRIDGES

Other matters brought up included the city's street lighting policy and whether this policy was to call in private early year's school allocation for grade XIII high school students, and the building of Belleville and district cular bridges.

Mr. Bacon wondered why Grade XIII students in the east end of the city should be bussed to classes at Belleville Collegiate when students from the Marysville area, on the opposite side of the city were let off at Moira Secondary.

The same man, who admitted he was a newcomer to the city, suggested another bridge across the lower Moira as a means of eliminating much traffic congestion.

Ex-Mayor Allin suggested there were three bridges in the city which were inadequate for present day traffic conditions. They were on Dundas Street, North Front Street and College Street. He said he would like to see some project action to remedy any of them.

"I agree with you," Mr. Bacon said, "but last year was elected a council which we felt would economize."

Instead, council had hired outside help on the low survey he claimed could easily have been done by engineers.

He couldn't see the need for the $15,000 traffic survey approved by council. The fact that 75 per cent of the cost was paid by the province did not have to change his opinion. "Who are the provincial people who pay their money come from?" he asked.

SAYS STREET RUINED

"Another beef from Mr. Allin was the result of the summer street planning program on Bleecker Ave. "The street has been ruined and will have to be resurfaced", he claimed.

"I think our council this year has accomplished", he said.

Mr. Bacon complained of the slowness of the street lighting program in the annexed area. He was told that the program was being carried out according to pre-arranged policy, the slowness of the installation resulting from the fact the public utilities commission was doing the work with their regular personnel and not bringing in any extra help.

There was considerable discussion on the merits of electing city council by wards instead of under the present system of city wide vote.

Ex-Mayor Allin said it was conceivable under the present system that all councillors could be elected from one ward, leaving no representative from the west side of the city.

And another man, again a newcomer, felt that something could be done about Belleville's appearance from the front, which he said should be tidied up and beautified.

He was told about the city's committee of the whole and proposal program and how this was working toward a waterfront clean-up.

"All these things are nice, but they all cost money," Chairman Bacon replied as the meeting was adjourned.

To Commence Work at Once On Provincial Police Building

Construction of the new Ontario Provincial Police headquarters building on northern outskirts of Belleville will be started immediately, Clarke Rollins, MPP for Hastings East, announced today. He said the contractor intends to get the project far enough advanced that work can continue throughout the winter.

Ontario Public Works Minister Ray Connell said the contract was awarded to H. L. Mc-Farland Construction Co. of Picton, lowest of seven bidders, with a price of $194,321. Strategically located to serve the counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward and Frontenac, the building will be built on No. 2 Highway and just west of 14 highway, in Thurlow township.

The administration section of the headquarters building will be two-storey and full basement with brick walls and concrete floor and roof slabs. The single-storey garage section to the rear will have space for 14 patrol cars, four repair stalls, wash-rack and storage facilities.

The design will be similar to the OPP headquarters building under construction at Burlington and to one at Cornwall for which the contract was also awarded today. Other buildings of this type are already in operation at Niagara Falls, Port Arthur and Barrie.

Number 9 District of the Ontario Provincial Police Force, with headquarters at Belleville, is comprised of nine detachments located in the four counties covered by the district. There are 99 uniformed and 14 civilian personnel.

Two Prisoners Use Compasses To Stab Guard

PETERSBOROUGH, Ont (CP)—Draughtsmen's compasses were used by two prisoners on a guard Thursday at the Millbrook maximum security prison.

Guard Donald Bjordgale was in satisfactory condition in hospital here today with wounds in his right shoulder and back. He was supervising two men on a scrubbing detail when they attacked him, prison superintendent J. M. Marsland said.

He said the prisoners had borrowed the needle-pointed compasses from other inmates using them in mechanical drawing courses. He described the pair as "disgruntled types."

The two men were taken to the county jail at Cobourg.

Construction of this administrative centre at Belleville constitutes a continuation of the long-term program of construction of facilities for the Attorney General's Department.

Mr. Lapalme walked out of the legislative assembly and promptly called a press conference during which he announced to reporters the documents he was to table in the legislature.

Mr. Lapalme told reporters last-minute evidence uncovered by police indicated charges will be laid against persons who had connected the whole affair.

In the legislative assembly, Deputy Premier Leslie Frost told Mr. Lapalme under Parliamentary custom he could not table a document in the House unless it was tabled by the minister responsible for it.

Later Frost asking that RCMP investigation into the affair be enlarged and deepened. He said the provincial government was not turning the whole thing into a political issue.

United Appeal Contributions May Pass Last Year's Total

A late surge may show contributions to Belleville's United Appeal last year's record—but will still leave them far short of the objective of $80,000.

A check of the total received up to last night revealed that almost $60,000 has now been received or pledged. There are still some canvassers who have not reported to their kits. When returns are complete, the total objective may be as high as $65,000. Last year less than $63,000 was obtained, and the objective was higher—$85,000.

The United Appeal office, which has been located at the old Rexall Building at the corner of Pinnacle Street and Victoria Avenue, for the duration of the campaign will on Monday be moved back to the Bridge Street office. The telephone number will remain the same as it was during the drive campaign, WO 2-6866. United Appeal officials and representatives of the eleven participating agencies are still hopeful that community - spirited citizens who have been missed during the campaign, or who feel that it is their duty to them to increase their earlier contributions, will communicate with the office. The United Appeal office at the Kiwanis Centre is normally open half a day a week during the year, but until further notice it will remain open daily from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Former Trenton Residents

One Child Dies, Two Others And Mother Critically Ill Following Peterborough Fire

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Two-year-old Max Sadler, Jr., died in hospital Thursday night of burns suffered when a small fire broke out in a house here early in the day. His mother, Mrs. Eleanor Sadler, 24, and two other children, Stephen, 5, and Carol, three months, are in critical condition.

All four were trapped upstairs when fire broke out at the top of the only stairway leading to the top rooms of the 1½-storey home of Mrs. Sadler's mother-in-law.

Although the blaze caused only minor damage, the heat and choking smoke made it impossible for the four to escape. Firemen used ladders to break into upper rooms and rescue them. All were unconscious.

Brick Tenement Tumbles Down

NEW YORK (AP) — A five-storey brick tenement in the midst of a demolition area, crumbled and collapsed with a roar Thursday night.

All the tenants escaped injury, but an 83-year-old woman had to be forcibly rescued from her fourth-floor apartment.

The building was on East 34th Street between Lexington and Third Avenues.

The building superintendent, Andrew Lipsky, said he felt some across the street, said he heard "just a rumble" before the structure came tumbling down in a shower of bricks, mortar and timbers.

Mrs. Mary Giles, 83, one of seven tenants, was in the building just before it caved in.

Joseph Granahan, 29, was in a tavern across the street as the building began to crack up. He heard Mrs. Giles screaming from her window, dashed into the building and carried her to safety on his shoulders, ignoring her furious protests at the manner of her rescue.

Lee Jouard, Harry Mulhall and Ian Darling, who portray the lovable felons in the Trenton Drama Group's "My Three Angels," are shown gleefully plotting the early demise of the villain of the piece.

'My Three Angels' Gets Off To Good Start at School

TRENTON — "My Three Angels," the latest and perhaps themost ambitious production of the Trenton Drama Group, opened last night at the high school.

Jim Alexander, producer and director, can be relied upon to present only top-notch entertainment to local audiences, and according to audience reaction last night, this play is no exception to the rule.

The story concerns the attempts of three "lifers" on the French Guiana penal colony to solve a young girl's love problems and to get her "bumbling" father "back on his feet," financially speaking. They face that the angelic convicts twice commit murder to remote control (utilizing the acknowledged talents of "Adolfe," the snake), but their actual and prayed-for results, wills and so on with unconscious regularity in order to achieve their ends. Does nothing to detract from the gaiety of the situation. It's all in good clean fun and the interest never wanes.

Harry Mulhall, Lee Jouard and Ian Darling play the lovable criminals. The Ducatel family, the objects of the lifers' philanthropy, Ducatel (Bert Burns, Margot Hall and Fric Yanover, Henri Trouchard, the Ducatel uncle and Paul, his equally hateful nephew, are portrayed expertly by Bill Wilkins and Barry Nellen. Madame Perole (Nicky Thomas) and the lieutenant (Al Hall) put in sterling performances. Adolphe is played by Adelaide and Henriette, who puts in a brief, but quite as dressed Gouf, puts in a platter, is played by Henrietta. Behind the scenes workers are house manager Ann Larry; stage manager Alan Bowles; business manager, Nell Ramsay; large props, Lenore Rathbun; hand props, Jane Dowell, Pat Wallace; lighting Norm Campney, Rowland Dykes; stage crew, Gerald Cole, Tyrell, Ron Baker; make-up, Mary Halloran and Inez Heeney; costumes Jean Causey; publicity Nicky Marchese, Ann Larry; programs, Win Christian, Nevie Starkey; poster design, Julia Segar; sound effects, Mary Mohr. Mrs. Greenwood is assisted by Mrs. Pauline Dykes.

Letters Fail To Strike Responsive Note

TRENTON — Two letters from Douglas Whitley, president of the Canadian Legion, have failed to strike a responsive note with town council at yesterday's committee-of-the-whole meeting.

The letter was listed on the agenda as concerning parking meters.

"I object to this letter being read", said Mayor MacDonald. "Mr. Whitley has objected to the parking committee yet. The committee should go out and report back to us on its contents. We have a real mess on the same subject last week."

"Yes", agreed Councillor C. V. Graham. "I had all kinds of people raising hob about being charged for Friday night parking."

The second letter, proposing that the members hold a meeting at which every person nominated on the municipal ballots during the municipal elections would be allowed to speak, did not meet with council's approval, either.

"We already have a citizens' meeting", said Councillor Bryant. "I think only those who are nominated and qualify should have the right to speak to criticize and don't show the courage of a public citizen by qualifying and running for office."

"Some of them just want to spout off", said Councillor Ashley. It was pointed out the chamber would be notified that it was free to book a meeting room if desired, following the citizens' meeting, at which any citizen might speak. The meeting would take place in the council chamber.

Councillor Graham asked for some definite action on the air pollution by-law.

A few weeks ago, council gave the third reading and passed a by-law which would, in effect, force local industries to control the gaseous products which enter the atmosphere. Subsequently, council was informed that the Minister of Health must give his approval to this by-law before it may receive a third reading and become law.

Following the approval and passing of the by-law, the Board of Health must advertise the intentions of the by-law in local newspapers for a 30-day publication period. Consequently, the members of the board have little hope that the by-law will become law before early 1961.

Present at the meeting Wednesday night were chairman H. S. Pane and members Dr. E. W. Dow, Miss Marjorie Gothard and E. D. Topping.

Mr. Pane said 18 persons who had been notified that action must be taken to correct an "outdoor toilet" situation, have had the necessary facilities installed at their own expense. Mr. Pane said that he hoped six more persons would attend to their toilet facilities by the end of the year.

Persons who cannot afford the installation may make arrangements with the town to have the work done and repay the town in their taxes over a five-year period.

There will be the last meeting of the health board for this year. The 1961 council will appoint members or re-appoint the present members after the first of the year.

Council Briefs

TRENTON — The following resolution made at the committee-of-the-whole meeting yesterday will be voted upon at the day night:

That the Lakeland Gas Company be asked to submit a price for the purchase of a street fund, 460 feet by 20 feet, for easement over a town-owned lot at the southeast corner of Byron Street.

That Robert Temple, solicitor for the owner of Bayview Drive be notified that the city has no's cheque for $200 for the services will be returned, and that town understood that one section only was hooked onto the main. Subsequent development have proven that a second section of the line is open, living near the dairy, have been hooked onto the sewer. Mr. Johnson refuses to pay $200 for this service; dairy refuses to pay an additional $200 to cover Mr. Johnson's sewer. Dairy feels it will be asked to make a further agreement with the town.

That George Ferguson's application to build a non-conforming multi-unit construction on Bayview Drive be approved, that Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher, Sundas Drive, be notified that they should attempt to obtain an indication of neighbors' opinions before making an object to their home, which would be non-conforming.

Accept Offer From Township For Protection

TRENTON — At yesterday's committee - of - the - whole council meeting, councillors hesitantly accepted an offer by the Murray township council which will bring the services of firefighting the township up to a more realistic figure than the $5 per year Trenton has received in the past. It is expected that the resolution will be passed at Monday night's council meeting.

Township authorities have offered to pay the basic cost of $25 for the first two hours of a fire fighting; $100 per hour for each additional hour, plus $350 a year for the first three years after agreement comes into effect.

Trenton council asked for a $1,000 annual retainer, plus higher basic rate, but feels the offer is a step in the right direction, and step by step council is to notify Armillasburg of Trenton's willingness to consider township council rates must be increased also.

A vote was taken on Mayor Hall's original proposal that it was decided "that Mr. Bell should be allowed to purchase the land for the $25, plus deed, and the town lose money", said Councillor Whitley. "I don't care."

Examination Statistics

A fascinating opportunity for conjecture and for the manufacture of new theories or the parading of pet ...his is provided by statistics on the rate of failures in ...ade 13 departmental examinations this year. These ...atistics, released by Deputy Minister Winston C. Hodgeth, show that the percentage of students passing ...ded from a low of 51.68 per cent in accountancy ...ctice to a high of 97.43 per cent in Greek Authors.

...It is comparatively easy to suggest a reasonable ...planation for the magnificent record in Greek Auth...rs. Normally only brilliant students would attempt ...h a course.

...Dr. Brown had a simple answer for the low mark ...Accountancy practice—"the students don't know the ...ules well enough"—but this is an explanation of the ...ame type which is universal throughout the ...ter-olds—"'Cause, that's why, 'cause". Nor is any ...rther light thrown on the matter by the fact that the ...ther Grade 13 subject most nearly comparable in ...ature, secretarial practice, provided the second lowest ...rcentage of pass marks, 60 per cent.

Many will find it surprising that the three mathe...atical subjects, algebra, geometry and trigonometry, ...roduced relatively high percentages of passes, 82.61, ...3.13 and 80.69 per cent respectively. And will some...ow please explain what has happened to physics, pro...ucing an impressive 81.47 percentage of successes? ...our day, this used to be considered the killer subject ...the old Fifth Form.

...Finally, how many subjects do you suppose are ...ught in Grade 13? Ten or a dozen? Oh, more than ...at. remember the days when the languages—Latin, ...ell, all right, be generous and say a score? Wrong and ...ll the same reason as before, too low a figure. Dr. ...rown's statistics list 29.

...Any old-timer want to make a remark about the ...ntent generation having an easy time at school?

What Omen This?

The proprietors of a Rhode Island restaurant have announced that its prices for coffee and hot dogs have ...en dropped to five and ten cents each. It is the announced intention that these prices will remain in ...ffect as long as Mr. Kennedy is president.

...What we would like to know: — — is the price drop ...e to them being Democrats who desire to celebrate ...ld influence voters for the future election four years ...rom now; or are they Republicans who feel that de...ression level prices will be necessary in order for their ...ustomers, and themselves, to survive during the forth...oming administration?

...Whatever might be the answer to our query it ...ould seem that pollsters and political forecasters might ...ell take into consideration a new factor when they ...et into their prediction huddles. The price of a cup ...f coffee and a hot dog may well be an omen of how ...hings will go in the country at large.

...The next thing to look for, perhaps, is a fifty cent ...ictator. Then we'll really know how the great country ...o the south of us is headed.

Monkey Business

...For some time now man, male that is, has been ...arried about someone else, female mostly, taking his ...lace in fields that have been—traditionally his for ...enturies—the man-versus-woman conflict area. ...owever, be clouding an even more important and vital ...ssue; that of the ascendancy of the simian family of ...animals.

...Most recent news of development on this obscure ...ront is the use of chimpanzees on a furniture ...actory assembly line in Houston, Texas. The plant ...eneral manager is apparently enthusiastic over the use ...f these animals and visualizes more widespread use of ...hem in assembly line work in industry.

...The use of chimpanzees is not new. A British ...herry grower made use of them for cherry picking and ...ound that a chimp could do a faster job than any ...uman and a better job than any mechanical device.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

STILL WORK TO DO

"Grow old along with me
The best is yet to be
The last for which the first was made."

So wrote the great poet Robert Browning. He was hopefully trying to feel the walls of old age close in upon him.

...But with what persistence does life push back! ...hey do cheat it, makes many people think. Nothing is more pathetic than to see a man a period of declining powers as thrilling as was the period of growing and expanding powers. The interests of old age become somewhat retrospective. Old people tend to live their lives through children and grandchildren, and this is how it should be. There is a kind of immortality which goes beyond the grave and up into heaven. There is another kind of immortality which Almighty God...

...remains here on earth in the memory children have of wonderful parents, of their achievements and of the things they have done before failures.

...There is also an old as the world itself is the statement that it is never too late to mend.

...The art of reclamation continues to be made in the most active productions of modern life because of maturity and experience.

...You will not be dead until you have ceased to do something to the will of Almighty God.

Miracles of the Universe Man Not So Important

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

Article 4

Scientists have struck one telling blow after another at the egocentrism of man. Man has for thousands of years believed he was pretty special and that he lived on a pretty special planet. Man believed that both he and the Earth were created to be the center of everything—the centre of the universe and the centre of life—and that everything revolved about man and the Earth.

It began to look as if man has been deceiving himself to some extent. Instead of the Earth being the centre of the universe, in fact, the Earth relatively speaking, is not the centre of anything.

...Nicholas Copernicus and Galileo maintained that the Sun and not the earth, was the centre of the universe and that the Earth revolved around the Sun. What a blow to man! Copernicus tried in a religious court and forced to recant what he said.

...Galileo was luckier.

It is interesting to recall the stage to which science had declined when Copernicus and Galileo, one of the world's most famous astronomers, not only confess that his writings, as a scientist, that the Earth revolved around the Sun, was a heresy. The following is an excerpt of Galileo's confession:

"that I must altogether abandon the false opinion that the sun is the centre of the world and immoveable, and that the earth is not the centre of the world, and moves and that I must not hold, defend or teach in any way whatsoever, verbally or in writing, the said doctrine."

Ultimately, it became so apparent that the Earth does revolve around the Sun that disbelievers had to surrender and the controversy subsided long after he died, however, as is usually the case).

...In recent years it has become apparent that the Sun is only an insignificant star and not the centre of the universe: that it is a tiny part of the Milky Way, which, in turn, is a huge collection of billion or more stars, forty per cent of which are just like our Sun. Our Sun is not even in the centre of the Milky Way, but out on the edge. Our Milky Way is really an immense soup-bowl of stars and planets, and it has gone like a pin-wheel (called a galaxy). There are over one billion known galaxies and there may be more. In the universe and the distances between them are so immense that axies are unbelievably large.

So, not only is man not living at the centre of the universe, he is not even in the centre of the Milky Way, but out on the edge. Our Milky Way galaxy is but one of over a billion galaxies.

...What stands to the egocentrism of man?

...And now scientists believe that there is not anything special about man himself either.

Many scientists believe that there are men on other planets upon which life exists. Furthermore, many scientists believe that life will develop on any planet, if the conditions are favourable. The only thing that seems to be needed is star, earth, water, carbon, oxygen and other atoms which are, apparently, present everywhere in the universe.

If this is so, then there are other planets, millions of them, whereon there is life. Some life forms may be in our form, or other forms. Some less advanced and some more advanced. Some, perhaps, more evolved and their life, we will look next.

How Chummy Is Your Bank?

Toronto Financial Post

Here is our latest bit of low down on how the Canadian chartered banks are vying for your patronage.

This has to do with the big executive decisions in the arts of "How to get chummy with the customers" and "Just how chummy do you get."

Since we've seen the last of the wire eyes which weren't much if any help in protecting the cash but did make one look like a pretty forbidding place. The "come hither" look now has everybody's endorsation.

But the reason for this present dissertation is our discovery of the battle about counter-heights ("How chummy do you get.").

Bank of Nova Scotia was the first to lower counter space to a standard height is 39½ inches — very chummy and by 19th century banking standards almost immoral.

Canadian Bank of Commerce comes close with it 40-inch standard.

Toronto-Dominion seems to be doing all right with its customers despite its dignified and well-curated entrance, but putting its counters below 43 inches.

Strictly Personal
Others Besides Physicians Are Doctors

By Sydney J. Harris

If I remember rightly, the opening line in Thurber's "The Male Animal" is a girl's remark who answers the phone with, "Dr. Turner's residence — No, I'm sorry, he's not the kind of doctor who does people any good." Our country almost nobody except a physician or dentist is called "doctor," and this is a commensurate respect. Not so in Europe. Engineers are called so, for instance, are always referred to as "Mr.," and there is a "doctor" as a lawyer, a teacher, a philosopher, a biologist, or a mathematician as a medical man.

Throughout the rest of Europe, the title "Prof." is unknown; it is much more of a cachet than a mere "Dr." To be a professor in the university system is to attain the secular equivalent of an Archbishopric, and in the old days the educated man held there.

Dr. Freud, in this respect, was seriously impeded by the refusal of the Viennese to grant full professorial rank he could achieve the goals he desired under the accolade of "Prof." was given him. (If, the time he died, is usually the case, he didn't get it at all.)

...saw a notice on a newspaper office bulletin board recently, advising staff members that it is to our policy to designate anyone with a Ph.D. as a physician or dentist." It'd all to see the reason for the distinction. Should a man (or woman) who has labored to win a doctorate be obliged to abandon a cherished status by any other? learned specially be entitled to call himself doctor as him or her

It is this haunting sense of social inferiority to the medical man that compels faculty members in all small colleges to call each other as "Dr. So-and-So" in public. It is not done on the large schools like Harvard, where the habit is considered pretentious. But it is an understandable vanity, and I think the public should give more recognition to doctors in every branch of human learning.

It might at least disabuse the public of the fantastic notion that the medical man is the only doctor who "does people any good." Whoever said that, suggested that knowledge does all people great good.

Mistaken Reactions

Ottawa Journal

Sunday the CBC's "Newsmagazine" reported on the election in Canada and the United States.

In this there have been two reactions which seem mistaken.

One has been the protest of the CBC on the ground that such groups should not be given publicity. It is not a right but like criticizing doctors for giving cancer publicity.

The other reaction which seems mistaken is that of Mr. Diefenbaker in a letter. It says that these people are warped and dangerous, and that's right. It also says that they should all be thrown in jail, and that's wrong.

If this particular group were to be thrown in jail they would be just like shedding tears for them or making martyrs of them. But if we can't do anything about them simply because they profess beliefs which would wrong to us we have taken the first step toward the cycle of tyranny these Nazis support.

If these people break any laws, let prosecutions be made in the usual way and start thinking more of our own responsibility to do what we can to preserve and strengthen our free system of government. The best defence against threats and lies is truth and reason. Mr. Adlai Stevenson as "not less necessary but more democracy."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 18, 1940

One night each year the men of Belleville Chapter No. 53 Order of the Eastern Star, provide the entertainment which is given after each regular meeting, and this year they provided the programme on Monday evening. The program was under the very able chairmanship of the Worthy Patron, Clifford Barragar.

The first number was a character song given by Bob Adams. The next number was a mock wedding and for real fun and nonsense it was a knockout. Clarence Clapp acted as clergyman and from his performance he must be a regular church attendant. The eager bride was Harold Symington and the heavy father part was taken by Billy Brooks. The parade of the guests to the home of the wedding was a treat, while the impatience of the bride and the gentleness of the groom showed suspicion. The attendants were Percy Law and Alex McCutcheon, with the usual spectators following in to see the ceremony. The part of the timid and reluctant groom was taken by Harry Sager, while the best man was Monty Barlow in the character of Mortimer Snerd.

During the ceremony the groom tried to back out of the dire things which seemed to be coming his way while the usual trouble of a last step was experienced; but his overbearing bride promptly brought him to time and at the conclusion of the ceremony triumphantly led him away on a leash. During the signing of the register, Bob Adams sang "The Rose of No Man's Land."

November 19, 1930

Feasibility of a reduction in the Board of Governors of Belleville Collegiate Institute, the addition of another physician at the institution and the appointment to inaugurate the "open stuff" used in the institution were discussed at a meeting in the city hall last night, at which the city Public Utilities Board, the Women's Christian Association and the Ratepayers' associations were represented.

The carvings of the local Collegiate Institute service flag are equal a dividend of 35.2 per cent on a private company basis. Reports show that as an investment, Belleville citizens now have two dollars for every one invested. Figures were revealed by the manager of the Belleville Hydro Commission, Mr. O.H. Scott.

40 YEARS AGO

November 18, 1920

The first snow has arrived and snow shovels are in use again. As a result of the snow (more or less) the Belleville Automobile Club, which is the term we use for measuring the fall twice or three times a year.

The calorie, however, is a more convenient term for the fall.

There's a "small calorie" which is used for precise laboratory research — and this is a very small unit. And there's a "great calorie," which is the unit we use mean when we speak of food. A calorie of this type is the amount of energy (or heat) needed to heat a pint of water by four degrees. Or roughly to lift a 150 pound person a hill about 150 feet high.

If we eat a day's food, it has to supply the energy to keep the body warm, to keep it going and 25,000 or 30,000 times, to make the heart beat, to breathe 20 times and to give us the energy we need to walk, run, work, think, struggle, to keep the eyes, talk.

If we eat more than we need to supply warmth and movement the body (neurones) saves the excess and stores it away as fat. Maybe a fraction of an ounce a day, over a year, would mean about half an ounce of fat a day. Not enough to notice.

Half an ounce a day is almost a pound a month... almost 12 pounds a year, almost 60 pounds in only five years!

So it doesn't take much weight per day, to make you terribly fat in five years or less, does it?

Well, let's say you store up only a tenth of an ounce a day — one ounce. Forget it. But doesn't that explain your question? And doesn't it explain why it's easy to pack on weight at a fraction of an ounce a day, and then expect to take weight off at, say, half an ounce, 10 pounds in a week?

"Dear Dr. Molner: I read about the woman who was 5'4" tall and 200 lbs. and because of her snoring. . . I mean, I'm serious. I'm not trying to be low or some at all! My wife says I snored so loud I loosened the light fixture that was on year ago...J.J."

Thank you, sir. For a few, this will work. It's always worth a try.

Now, when you eat a steak, a candy bar, a piece of cake, or a sandwich, what happens? The food is, in a very real sense, fuel for your body — for the human machine.

Part of this fuel is converted into heat. What do you think keeps your body at 98.6 degrees? It's heat from the fuel — or food. And where do you suppose the energy comes from? Well, when you eat your 100-to-200 pounds of lunch and then go from the street to catch a bus or go to work, it comes from your food.

It would be perfectly possible to convert the fuel-value of food into some other form. It could be ergs (energy) or foot-pounds (force) or even, M.U.'s or British Thermal Units, which is the term we use for measuring the fuel value of coal, oil and gas.

The calorie, however, is a more convenient term for food.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G Molner, M.D.

FAT COMES FROM EATING YOUR BODY MORE FUEL THAN IT USES

"Dear Dr. Molner: My dietitian defined 'calorie' as a heat unit. How, then, can a calorie affect a person's weight? —E.F."

Remember, in the army, how a training instructor would begin with a tough question, used to stall for time with the phrase, "That's a good question!"

Well, yours is a good question but I am low upon the scales and in a hurry.

Yes, a calorie is a measure of heat. However, you can translate heat into energy, or energy into heat. For example, you can generate heat by rubbing two sticks together to start a fire. That's energy converted to heat. Or you can convert steam into power to drive a locomotive. That's heat converted to energy.

I could cite other instances until you become utterly bored. So will you accept the principal?

Now, when you eat a steak, a candy bar, a piece of cake, or a sandwich, what happens? The food is, in a very real sense, fuel for your body — for the human machine.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BE ONE WITH THE GIANTS

Who is there who does not want to grow, to improve himself, to step up and place himself in the line of progression that places you in the world.

The greatest mind which ever existed never was once a quiz ignorant. But it unfolded its package — and went to work. It decided to be a giant — and so that is what it became!

I have an idea that as Napoleon played with his schoolmates and took their jibes, he saw himself as a leader in merit over them.

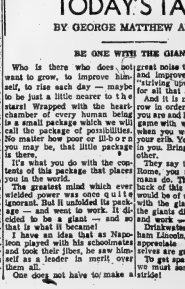
One does not have to make a great noise to show one's growth and improvement. One may be a quiet worker, but recognized for all that anybody knows.

And it is not necessary to borrow in order to climb. Use what you have and have. And keep at the game with what you were given when you were placed gently in your cradle. The princess within you. Bring it out some way or other.

They say that when you are in the dumps you must do as the Romans do. Perhaps a great idea back of this statement. If you would be of use and be numbered with the giants you must do as the giants did — work and work and work — all the way!

Your birthday, in his day "Abraham Lincoln," said that when we appreciate greatness, we ourselves are great.

To get space among the giants, you must somehow learn their stride!



THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

There appears to be a conspiracy against all meaning in painting, sculpture, music, there have been no periods of greater confusion. The reason in which meaning has not merely been ignored, but has been deliberately destroyed. Even from about 1905 when the Paris autumn salon showed the works of les Fauves, "the wild beasts," on up through the Cubists and the Surrealists into the present welter of phases through which art has passed in the half century, it is now difficult to visit an exhibition of art that is not dominated by the abstract and non-representational painter and sculptors. Serious music has experienced the same fate. The uninitiated, to whom nearly all of us belong, could find some meaning in the music of Bach and Beethoven and Mozart and so on right up even to Rachmaninoff. Of late years, the public response has been a little uneasy in the presence of both the composer and what apparently accepted composers. And poetry has turned turgid, obscure, cryptic.

Today, design has gone meaningless. Unless it makes sense in its design the meaning of light, unless it says some definite thing in lines or flowers, unless the mural decoration on a new architectural work is of a kind that is readily bland despair is strange, loose and wholly unrelated to anything it is not art.

What this means may be this: our artists have taken flight at all meaning. Life has taken on meanings that our most sensitive souls, our artists, dare not face. So they coodle, to occupy their hours.

Social Credit Will Contest Every Seat in N.Z. Election Despite Bad Defeat in Last

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP) — Social Credit is again contesting every seat in the Nov. 26 New Zealand general election but few outside the movement believe this prepares to be a good year.

Since the main political parties, Labor and National, are also contesting all 80 seats for the House of Representatives, most of the fights will be three-cornered affairs.

Social Credit made its first major political bid in New Zealand in the 1954 general election. It failed to win a seat, but scored a surprise by gaining 11.04 per cent of the total popular vote.

Evidence of such strong dissatisfaction with established parties worried both the Labor and the National parties, which was largely responsible for the setting up of a monetary, commission to examine all aspects of the country's finance.

SHARPLY CRITICAL

Its report roundly condemned the Social Credit evidence and dismissed its contentions as unproved.

Nevertheless, Social Credit again fought all 80 seats at the next general election in 1957, but with less success. Its proportion of the popular vote fell to 7.35 per cent. Nor did it again fail to gain a seat, but no Social Credit candidate came ahead of either Labor or National candidates in any constituency.

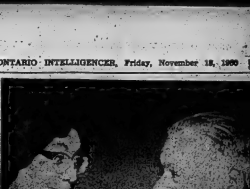
It was widely expected the movement would not make another effort on such a scale immediately, especially as internal differences appeared to have split and resignation of the leader, Wilfred Owen. However, the old field has been presented once again.

The manifesto of the Social Credit Political League makes comparatively little of Social Credit theory but pays much attention to sweeping promises of tax reduction, increased pensions, higher subsidies on butter and clothing and higher social security benefits.

INTEREST-FREE MONEY

On finance it says the league will take steps to restore the use and ownership of their own credit. Money required for governmental purposes within New Zealand and above that obtained from taxation would be provided from the reserve of the country, or where the circumstances dictate, from

The manifesto and opening speech of the new leader, H. Matthews, were published in substantial length in most newspapers. The speech was also broadcast on a national broadcast, in the same way as the speeches of the other party leaders.



Many newspapers ignored the party's policy in their editorial columns, however. Papers which commented mostly were the Auckland Star which said: "The sincerity with which a social faith is held is no test of its practicability, no guarantee that it would not in practice turn out to be a 'nightmare.'"

PROTEST ALLOTMENT

The league has been allotted 5 1-2 hours of radio time during the campaign substantially less than that awarded the other two political parties. The allotment has been accepted under strong protest, since the league maintains it should have equal treatment as it is contesting the same number of seats as the main parties.

Impartial observers believe there is an outside chance of Social Credit making a strong bid in two seats where the movement is well established and where members with big personal followings have retired.

But elsewhere they believe the chief effect of the Social Credit intervention will be the comparative numbers of votes it draws from the rival major parties in marginal seats.

ment and labor legislation. Only mention of the word was the announcement of plans to amend the unemployment insurance act. These include doubling the fund from which unemployment payments are made.

The fund has dwindled from a 1956 peak of $800,000,000 to $519,-476,000 at Sept. 30. The government also proposes to "correct abuses which have developed" in unemployment insurance.

The speech called the major emphasis on spurring the economy to new expansion to provide jobs for record numbers ushering the labor force and those displaced, by automation and technological change.

Parliament will deal with a proposal for government-guaranteed loans to small businesses to improve their plant and equipment. Early action on this was indicated in the pronouncement that many projects should be able to "go forward" this winter, boosting employment and acting as long-term stimulus to growth of private enterprise.

Re-emphasizing the government's philosophy of economic nationalism, the speech recommended steps to encourage greater participation by Canadians in ownership and control of Canadian industry and resources, now largely controlled in some sectors by United States investors.

Such encouragement could be given in bonds, which Mr. Fleming is expected to bring down early in December.

BUSINESS AND TRADE

Also in the general field of business, trade and commerce, the government gave notice that the "modernization" of the tariff structure will be speeded up. The tariff board would be enlarged and enabled to sit as two panels to make this possible.

In addition, Parliament is to be asked to "review the definition of 'goods of a class or kind made in Canada.'" This usually face stiffer tariff barriers when imported into this country.

A productivity council, proposed last year by Mr. Fleming, is to be set up as an employment conference with business, labor and farm leaders, would be set up to strengthen Canada's competitive position in export and domestic markets by improving productivity of secondary and service industries.

Forecast controlled business and labor organizations would be required to disclose information about their Canadian operations, presumably financial statements.

In the area of capital, and the government proposed two rail lines—one to rich base metal deposits at Pine Point on Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories and the other to a new mining area near Mattagami Lake in Northwest Quebec.

The speech made it clear that the Pine Point line will take a western route, from the railhead at Grimshaw in Alberta's Peace River country rather than the alternative of an eastern route starting at Waterways, Alta.

The construction assistance included proposals for federal-provincial partnerships to buy and develop existing buildings for low-rental housing in slum-clearance programs; for long - term, low-interest loans to hold university student residences, and for similar loans to local authorities to build sewage disposal and treatment plants with special incentives to begin early construction of these anti-pollution projects.

Another plan is to improve the terms of mortgage lending under the National Housing Act, which informants suggested may include extending the repayment period beyond 30 years and allowing loans up to a large percentage of the new home's value.

The speech gave notice that the federal hospital grants of $2,000 a bed will be continued for another five years after the current program — under which about $150,000,000 in federal funds has been made available since 1948 — expires in March, 1963.

The social and welfare measures included substantial increases without designating the actual amount — in pensions to Canada's 71,000 disabled war veterans and their dependents.

Delightful Film Italy, Sicily, Sardinia Thrills Large Audience

Adventure lovers were thrilled and delighted last evening with the superb showing of the travelogue, "Italy, Sicily and Sardinia" at the Collegiate auditorium, by Carl Thomsen, narrator and photographer of the film. The beautiful clarity of the pictures, their composition and coloring, coupled with the descriptive commentary which accompanied them, added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

Before the meeting, paper and pencils had been given to members to jot down their preferred ideas for future programs. These were collected by program convener, Mr. Stafford McKenna, at the conclusion of the business session.

Leaving New York by steamer, a relaxing mode of travel, he and Mrs. Thomsen set out for the sunny climate of Italy a literal delight to the eyes, a feast for tourists, and home of art, music, fine weather and native homeland of Marconi, Caruso and Toscanini, noted figures in the world of science, art and opera, of the past and present.

SICILY

Leaving the Rock of Gibraltar with its massiveness, the island of Sicily, which is separated from the toe of Italy by a narrow neck of water four miles wide, they enjoyed the beautiful scenery, a cliff backed by green mountains and topped with castles. Here'Hitler, during the World War, went often to resort. Later it was used by the allies as headquarters. Mussolini's mansion was peddled by carts, one being almost hidden by the pots and pans at one cart. A cathedral was shown, and nearby a donkey cart, which created the appearance of a 'horse-laugh' at the quality of the music — an adroit bit of entertaining, and expertly interwoven.

Industries here showed the making of rope; the 'apparent' joyful eating of boiled octopus; modern new apartment houses; and new churches; a Basilica with fine mosaics; a breakaway coast with acombs where the dead in by gone centuries were buried. On the west, the salt works were shown where 1,000 pounds of pure salt were harvested, one way; ancient Greek temples, with pillars 35 feet in circumference; Mussolini was the Temple of Concord and the Temple of Juno.

Other points included Mount Etna; the "Roman theatre; folk dancing; Taormina; the Leaning Tower of Pisa, and the Italian Riviera, with its sandy beaches and pleasure seekers completed the tour.

At Genoa, the sky scrapers, the large harbor where 331 ships were docking during the last war; modern office buildings, and a lovely garden with floral design depicting the three ships of Christopher Columbus, its native son.

Panel Tells Federation To Concentrate on Home And School, Not Politics

TORONTO (CP) — The executive of the Canadian Federation of School and Parent-Teacher Federation was told Thursday night it should concentrate more on the home and the school and less on nuclear disarmament.

A five-member panel of press and radio personalities was unanimous in chastising the federation for adopting a pro-nuclear position at its meeting earlier in the day seeking discussions with political leaders toward a statement of nuclear disarmament.

The panel questioned the member of the federation executive under the theme Spotlight on Home and School. But the interrogators turned to lecturing as they suggested campaigning for nuclear disarmament should better be left to governments and groups formed for the purpose.

The television panelists all defended the disarmament resolution as dealing with the most important quest ion of modern times, particularly to the interests of Canada's children.

TOO CONTROVERSIAL'

Frank Tumpane, columnist for the Toronto Telegram, said the subject is far too controversial and for the federation, having split the Quebec section.

Panel moderator was Arnold Edinborough, editor of Saturday Night. Press and radio panelists were J. Sazoom St. John of the Toronto Globe and Mail; Greta Dempsey of the Toronto Star; Brown, collection of nonsensical tongue - twisting rhymes.

U.S. Lawyer, Mother Wins Great Victory

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) Mrs. Mary E. Coleman, unlike so many other wives, knew exactly what her husband is talking about when he discusses law business over the dinner table.

As Calhoun County's new probate judge, Mrs. Coleman is the wife of a judge in addition to being a lawyer and mother of two girls.

Judge-elect Mrs. Coleman, 45, has two teen-age daughters, Lelie Ann and Carol, and regards her victory in the Nov. 8 U.S. election as "the greatest honor of my life."

Her husband of 21 years is circuit Judge Creighton R. Coleman, a Michigan state legislator until his election to the bench.

For a long time Mrs. Coleman has divided herself between duties as wife and mother and the law as a juvenile referee in the court system.

In defeating municipal Judge William C. Burke, she carried every precinct of Calhoun County, winning 22,100 to 14,451.

The attractive Mrs. Coleman has served since 1957 as referee in charge of the juvenile division of probate court. She was given the job when it was first created. Among her projects was the establishment of home and family training courses for mothers. This is said to have aided in reducing juvenile delinquency.

Mrs. Coleman, who takes office Jan. 1, was a member of her husband's law firm for a time prior to her appointment as juvenile referee.

W.H.A. Presents $10,000 To Hospital

The highlight of the meeting was the presentation of a cheque of $10,000 to Mr. F. Domenico, chairman of the board of governors of the Belleville General Hospital, by Mrs. R. Burley, president of the Auxiliary. This large sum of money represents the contribution given towards the furnishing of the first floor of Education Hall, the new nurses' building provided for the education of nurses in this area.

Following the ceremony, Mr. Domenico addressed those assembled, in expressing the thanks of the members of the board of governors, he commended the women for their interest and support of hospital undertakings. The board had spent much on alterations and new wings and this donation representing many hours of labor would be used wisely. He also noted that the food was great and there was at the present time a waiting list of over 300.

Mrs. R. Burley presided at the regular meeting. Mrs. P. Allcorn, a new leader of a group making puppets for the hospital, was introduced and spoke briefly. She asked for donations of new cotton prints to ensure the supply of 70 puppets a month for hospital use.

Miss N. Merry was pleased to announce that Mrs. A. Gilroy has assumed charge of the Coffee Shop during the illness of Mrs. Madden.

VOLUNTEER SERVICES LISTED

As a reminder to all, Mrs. J. Bunnell, director of volunteers, listed the services of that department as visiting in waiting room supervision, hairdressing service, junior volunteers and those to be included in the rolling library for the use of patients. She asked for more volunteers for weekends.

Mrs. Arnold Wolfenden, convener of the recent "Fashion Fiesta," gave a detailed account of that most successful project, including all those participating in it, she mentioned the many who were capable and hard working. The magnificent sum of $674 was realized and would be used for the comfort of hospital patients.

CONVENTION IMPRESSIONS

The program for the afternoon was shared by Mrs. R. Burley and Mrs. F. Beeby, who recounted their impressions of the recent convention in Toronto at which they were delegates. Such topics as displays of hospital equipment, carnivals, motoramas, new drugs—their use and abuse, care of the aged, topics for meetings and panel discussions, were discussed at the convention. It was felt that many people all over the province were seriously concerned about hospital improvements.

After discussion, it was decided by the Auxiliary to accept the responsibility of working towards providing new beds for the hospital. For this purpose, a sum of $18,000 was suggested as needed for an initial purchase.

The date of the annual meeting to be held in Education Hall, on January 18 was announced. The speaker for the occasion will be the Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan. A Christmas dessert party will be held at the December meeting.

Cakes and coffee were served. Mr. F. Domenico and Mr. W. Daechsel remained as guests of the Auxiliary.

QUESTION.

I am President of the Mothers' Auxiliary, Scouts and Cubs and we are preparing for the "Father and Son" Banquet. We are serving hot turkey as the main meat, and I am wondering if you could give me some ideas as to: 1) how much turkey we would require 2) what vegetable would be suitable and how much to buy 3) a suggestion as to dessert and amount 4) amount of tea and coffee for say 100 people (we never milk to the younger members). — Mrs. R. O'H.

ANSWER:

You did not say how many people would attend the banquet. If there will be 100 adults and 100 children you must double amounts given below.

You may be surprised to know that to serve 100 people will need 75 pounds dressed raw turkey. The weight loss after turkey is roasted reduces this to approximately 47 pounds when cooked. The average allowance of sliced meat is just slightly under 1-3 pound per person.

FRIDAY

Clam Chowder; Melba Toast; (Separate Course): Spinach Souffle; Cheese-Stuffed Celery; Warm Custard Pie; Coffee.

I think at a father and son banquet mashed potatoes would be expected and welcome. However, stuffed baked potatoes are exceptionally good for this type of meal for they may be prepared in advance. Bake 50 very large potatoes at 425 deg. (F.) until very soft*. Cut in halves lengthwise of the flat side of the potato. Scoop out centres leaving 1-3rd shell. To scooped out potatoes from 50 large potatoes, add 1 dozen eggs, 2 cups hot milk, 1 pound butter or margarine and 2 tablespoons salt. Beat in electric beater until perfectly smooth. Pile back in shells. Keep cold until half hour before serving time when you should reheat in oven of 400 deg. Fahr. until hot and golden.

I think green beans would be the best vegetable accompaniment because they are so little trouble and could be served with a garnishing of grated cheese if desired. You will need 25 pounds fresh beans to serve 100.

Would you like to serve an economical steamed pudding with a lemon sauce since this banquet is in December? If so, here is a dependable recipe.

STEAMED CARROT PUDDING:

(23 pounds yields 100 3-ounce servings).

2 pounds flour, 1 1-3 ounces baking soda, 5 tablespoons cinnamon, 2 1-3 tablespoons allspice, 2 teaspoons ginger, 4 ounces salt, 3 pounds dry bread crumbs, 3 pounds brown sugar, 1 pound 8 ounces grated suet, 2 pounds raisins, 2 pounds 8 ounces grated carrot, 2 1-3 cups egg (approximately 13), 1 1-2 quarts milk.

Sift flour, baking soda, spices and salt. Add bread crumbs, sugar, suet, raisins and grated carrot. Beat eggs slightly. Add milk. Add to mixture. Mix well. Half fill greased tins. Cover tightly with wax paper. Steam approximately 2 1-2 hours. Remove from tins and slice. Serve hot with

LEMON SAUCE:

4 pounds sugar, 8 ounces cornstarch, 3 1-2 tablespoons salt, 2 quarts lemon rind pressed, 4 quarts boiling water, 8 ounces butter, 1 cup lemon juice.

Combine sugar, cornstarch, salt and lemon rind. Add boiling water gradually and mix thoroughly. Bring to boiling point and simmer, stirring constantly, until no flavor of raw starch remains (5 to 10 minutes). Remove from heat. Add butter and lemon juice.

A QUIZ FOR CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS

Yesterday afternoon I bumped into Mrs. Inexperienced as she was returning from her first Christmas shopping foray. Minor frustrations and clashes with the salespeople had put her in what is an extremely irritable frame of mind.

Her lament was a series of criticisms of the salespeople, their lack of courtesy, etc. The thought crossed my mind that perhaps her own attitude had brought about many of the discourtesy she had encountered. Not that the salespeople are not to blame some of the time! The "Well, what do you want" attitude is evident so far too often these days. They are doing you a favor not the other way around. However, on whichever side of the fence you find yourself, it seems to me that during the next few weeks, when Christmas shopping will be at its height, courtesy should be the most important thing. Remember that a gracious word is an easy obligation, and pays big dividends. Based on this idea, ask yourself a few questions.

Before you start on a shopping trip, do you make a list of the people for whom you are going to buy gifts, planning beside each name a suggestion or two of the articles you might buy?

Even though it is not easy to maintain a friendly smile and considerate manner when you are resentful stares following you as you go, perhaps smiles (and more courteous service in the store) will be your reward. Try it and see!

Above all, do you take into consideration the poor salespeople? Some of them are impossible, I will admit, but the majority are anxious to serve you as best you can. Remember that you have to deal with 25 or more of them at a time. They have to deal with hundreds of women every day, and all of them aren't as polite and understanding as you are trying to be. Suppose you had to face all these customers every day? Many of them convinced that they, and they alone, should be waited on next? If a salesperson is rude to you, do you try to take this into consideration and act graciously towards her?

Do you start out early to avoid the noon-hour shoppers? Do you try to be considerate of your coshoppers? Bumping into other people is bound to happen in the crush. Do you apologize, or glare disdainfully, when accidentally trodden upon? Above all, are you planning to start that Christmas shopping now and not wait until a week before the great day arrives?

Perhaps doing unto others as you would like to have them do unto you, will help during this next few weeks. Instead of a long string of ruffled tempers and resentful stares, there will be a string of pearls of courtesy.

Time Just Noise Clock Makes Says Mary Pickford at 67

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Petite Mary Pickford, once known as "America's sweetheart," at 67 enjoys "not growing old" is a terrible waste of time." To her at 67, "time is just a noise the clock makes."

The Toronto-born actress, who retired from movie - making a quarter-century ago, spoke Tuesday of time and heeds of elderly persons at a press conference called to publicize the White House conference on aging Jan. 9-12.

To a Canadian reporter she added a few asides, such as recollecting the time she first appeared on the stage "at the age of five at the old Princess Theatre in Toronto."

Miss Pickford, whose forbears came from Britain, said she still has a great love for Toronto and Canadians.

LOVES CANADA-U.K.-U.S.

"England is my grandmother, Canada is my mother and the United States is my husband," she said. "I love them all—differently."

About 2,800 delegates, including some Canadian observers, will attend the White House conference which is designed to stir up ideas on how to cope with such issues as better housing and medical care for elderly persons who cannot fend for themselves.

Miss Pickford said that from her personal experience, she found that senior citizens require more love and affection. They need to be helped financially without interfering with their personal freedom.

Her hair neatly coiffured and tinted a bloodish shade, Miss Pickford appeared at the conference in a leo-piece black brocade cloth suit. Only five feet tall, she placed a heavy book on her swivel chair to give her height as she addressed reporters. Asked if she would like to discuss her own age, Miss Pickford remarked:

"Just say I'm 21, going on 30."

Eastminster United Church Sponsors Winter Moderne Tea

Red, white and black dominated the decorating scheme at Eastminster United Church annual fall tea and bazaar on November 12. The Rev. A. McDowell officially opened the bazaar at 2.30 p.m.

After greetings from Mrs. A. McDowell, Mrs. G. E. Mayhew, Mrs. H. F. Swan and Mrs. W. J. Holmes, the eye was caught by the corner to the right. There a white driftwood tree hung with red baubles was planted in red velvet. Black and white poodles lounged over hassocks and surrounded a heavy wrought iron chair. The whole was enclosed with a black fence and gave a cheerful thought of the winter to come.

The bright red ticket table, in charge of Mesdames D. F. Lamb, D. Rose, D. B. Kilns and E. L. Horning, was next visited. Here a cone-trimmed piece of white driftwood filled out the color scheme.

The Girl Guides and Explorer groups, under the supervision of Mrs. C. Hewks and Mrs. R. Edwards, manned a used book stall and a candy table on the Northern Lights available products were popular items. Orders for Christmas cards and seasonal necessities were also taken here by Mrs. N. Britton and Mrs. L. Sandwick. The door to the nave was open to allow visitors a view of the new interior.

The tea room was fast to be seen. The main tea table, covered in red, had a large piece of white driftwood with red and white carnations and mum's bedded in oasis. This was flanked by lovely wrought iron candelabra. Presiding over the silver services were Mesdames J. E. Kuntze, J. R. William, N. I. Mellroth and J. W. Flatt. THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each week it is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Lorna P.: Nobody forces her to have the crowd for dinner.

Florence P.: Lorna and I are married to brothers. On Thanksgiving and other occasions when the family likes to be together, I'm always the one who must open my home, make the dinner, be the hostess. My husband and all the in-laws take this for granted. No one would think of expecting Lorna to take over the job.

She has them all bulldozed with her "creative talent." She's organized in another Little Theatre and she makes sure it takes up all her spare time. There's what left for me. I'm really piceties. But she manages to favor us all the time. Once or twice per season, after the dishes are done.

She goes away with this because her husband pampers her. He thinks she's a genius. But nobody else does. The other night we all went to see one of her productions. I had to know what the blood, sweat and tears were about. Well, I've never saw such tripe. She'd do well to learn to cook a square meals.

Lorna P.: I don't criticize how Florence spends her spare time or her money. That is her affair. Let her speak up. The family would find some other way to feed.

I'm doing something I like and enjoy. Because Florence from doing what she likes. The trouble, is that she doesn't like what she likes. All she knows is what she doesn't like — me! She's always tearing me down.

I'm not hurting anybody. My husband is satisfied with the way I slave over a stove. Only Florence objects. It's none of her business whether our show is a hit or not. The whole process, from beginning to end, is a joy to me and the members.

It builds me up inside, the way a stiff highball builds Florence up.

The Council: "Always believe in the little of a popular cartoon with universal appeal, because many of us have found when up against something that seems too big to tackle, Florence's method is best — when she takes Lorna down a peg.

Never departing from the beaten track herself, she finds relief in the fact that Lorna, who has ventured forth, in ridiculing the end-product. We are accustomed to this kind of show, never dare, trying to discourage those who do, as a transparent form of self-defence.

Florence feels approval. Here's Lorna, somehow looking with favor on Lorna who's doing something that's like Florence herself is just taken for granted for performing the usual housewifely roles. The family finds Lorna exciting, Florences humdrum, she thinks.

Instead of casting green eyes on Lorna's direction, Florence would do well to take stock of her own talents and tastes and see whether they are being realized. Perhaps she is a rare artist as a housewife and is recognized as such by her husband and in-laws, but in her own confused eyes she downgrades the importance of this achievement.

Incidentally, how a venture turns out isn't so important to an innovator. It's the trying that counts. What if Lorna pulls a dud? Even the most severe critics respect the effort put into a hard job.

No, Florence won't find contentment by finding fault with Lorna. She can't build up her own ego by tearing at Lorna's. Her best bet is to decide where her own fulfillment lies and if it's right there at the family parties, well, hats off to the hostess with the mostest!

Proper Preparation, Cooking Make Venison Dish for Epicures

TORONTO — "Little venison need be wasted even the bones can be used for soup, just as beef bones are", comment officials of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. "In most cases, deer meat is cooked much as beef is prepared for the table. Some prefer to remove the fat from venison because they feel it has a tendency to cling to the roof of the mouth. "Tender cuts are cooked with dry heat as in roasting, less tender portions with moist heat as in stewing. A pressure cooker is useful if the deer is an aged animal. A tablespoon of vinegar generally eliminates the "wild" odor sometimes noticeable in cooking.

ROAST TENDER CUTS

"Tender cuts such as ribs and loin chops, round steak and top roasts usually are pan or oven broiled or roasted; less tender neck, shanks, chuck and breast cuts are cooked with moist heat or ground for "deerburgers". They're also excellent for mince meat.

"Loin or round roasts should be sprinkled with salt and pepper, placed on a rack in an uncovered shallow pan and put in a pre-heated slow oven at 300 to 325 degrees Do not add water or cover; this is most important. Allow 20 to 25 minutes to the pound in cooking.

"Roasts of venison should be hung for some time before cooking. A little vinegar or sour wine rubbed into the flesh is advised. Spear the roast to keep the juices in, then cook slowly.

"Stewed venison is tops on any hunting camp menu. Here again, a couple of tablespoons of vinegar in the pot keeps down the "wild" odor.

FAVORITE VENISON STEW

"Here's a favorite recipe for venison stew: Cut meat into pieces about three inches square by an inch and a half thick. Heat an iron frying pan and allow a heaping teaspoon of suet or lard but not burn. Add two tablespoons of butter, or some of the animal fat may be used. When it is smoking, add the meat and turn until it is well browned. Remove to the stewing pot and cover with lukewarm or cold water. Peel and slice thin four onions, five potatoes, six carrots and add them to the stew along with a cup of chopped celery, leaves and all. Let all simmer gently for three hours or more with the pan well covered.

"If necessary, add water from time to time. After it has cooked for two hours, add two cupfuls of shredded cabbage leaves, two teaspoons of salt, one of pepper and one of paprika, as well as a teaspoon of mixed pickling spice. Stir in half a cup of rolled oats or rolled wheat flakes to thicken it enough so that ice floes do not form. Cook for two hours longer. Old timers say that the stew tastes even better when reheated on a second or third day.

"If the fat is removed from venison before cooking, as some prefer to do, suet, pork fat or bacon may be mixed with ground venison, or strips of bacon or salt pork may be placed over the outside of roasts to keep the meat from becoming too dry. Tomatoes, onions, spices and herbs often are added if the flavor is objectionable."

Winter Cottons

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Good winter cottons are just coming along.

For wear now and right through the season is a tunic dress of dark brown winter cotton twill in a simple but smart design.

Fashion Industry Will Not Be Providing Spring Wear

By RUBY WEIL

NEW YORK (AP)—Spring may be a song in the park, but in the fashion industry it's a headache.

Depending on the area and the time of year, spring can be long enough, starts too late (when Easter is in April), or is practically non-existent. As a result, women shoppers are likely to ask, from winter to winter:

Unlike those of us who talk about the weather but do nothing about it, some people in the fashion industry are doing something. They simply out to abolish spring.

The evidence was presented to the store buyers and the press who have been looking at spring fashion collections while ordinary mortals were still stashing the mothballs out of their winter wardrobes. They found a spreading movement toward all-season fashions.

YEAR-ROUND CLOTHES

The movement has been under way for several seasons. But this year it is crystallizing. Fabrics, colors and types of clothes that contribute to the trend toward clothes that can be worn practically year round.

And more and more, the anytime vacation is influencing fashion. Resort fashions merge into those for spring and into summer, until the line often is wiped out.

For the fashion details: Culottes, introduced last year, may become classic in another few seasons. They're still a novelty for street wear. But they are everywhere in sportswear, in at-home fashion, in travel clothes. Knee pants are around, too, under skirts which may be slit, wrapped or unlined-on.

Knitted dresses, suits, coats and costumes are so all-pervasive that sometimes one wonders whether they will crowd out woven fabrics. They range from the popular Italian flat woolknit to all sorts of novelty textures and the cotton knits.

NEW SHAPES

Costumes, with short or long coats, are everywhere. Sometimes they have a new name—"compositions." Coat dresses appear in new, interesting shapes.

The most interesting prints are vivid and original. Fabrics are in the strictly fabulous category in the designer fashions. More and more, it's hard to tell cottons from silk or wool synthetics from natural fibres. And such combinations as cotton jackets with wool jersey dresses suggest cross-season purposes.

For evening, chiffon goes flat-tersingly from season to season. Sequins and rhinestones glitter on spring ballgowns instead of going into storage after the "big" season as they once did.

Colors are gay or subtle, again proclaiming freedom from the old customs. Spring's navy blue is likely to be a brightened shade just a bit deeper than royal. Or it may be ignored for the pastels which were more really into summer. Brown comes out of winter's popularity into unaccustomed prominence for the warmer seasons.

High School Activities

TRENTON HIGH SCHOOL

Contributed by the Students

Students and former students are making plans to attend the annual commencement exercises which will be held in the school auditorium on Friday, November 25.

The guest speaker will be the Rev. Minto Swan of St. John's parish, Portsmouth.

Mr. Swan is the chaplain at Collins' Bay penitentiary, near Kingston. He is a well known speaker and is noted for his rehabilitation work with young offenders.

Bad news: The first exam, English Comp., will be held this Friday. The next one, English Lit., will be on the 28th.

There will be a high school band in the near future, we hear. We have it on good authority that at one time Trenton High School had quite a famous orchestra. Some of the members were: Miriam Sutcliffe, Pearl Swan, Walter Wrightman, Claude Huffman and Jim Wallace.

Walter Wrightman still plays his violin upon occasion. Miriam Sutcliffe is now Mrs. M. Kidd. Pearl Sutton is Mrs. John Shortt of Montreal. Claude Huffman and Jim Wallace are now Trenton businessmen.

Many students enjoyed the film "Macbeth" on television this week. "Julius Caesar" is scheduled for Dec. 19.

Last Thursday's address by Rev. J. T. Irwin at our annual Remembrance Day service gave the students a lot of food for thought. Pointing out that the unknown soldier was not unknown, he said that he was "sound of mind and body and full of youthful ideals." He asked us to work towards world peace. He said that there is no real glory in war.

This "cute" remark cannot be attributed to a high school student but it should draw a laugh.

A local clergyman was somewhat astounded last Saturday when he answered the door and a small boy asked him for a donation for the "retired children".

The minister pointed out to the youthful canvasser that he meant "retarded children". Maybe by "retired children" the youngster was referring to some students at the high school. We wonder.

Harvey Scott former Trenton High School student, won the George McCullagh Trophy for the best football player of the year at the University of Western Ontario.

NICHOLSON COLLEGE

By KEL - KEEF

On Saturday, November 12th, the Nicholson Catholic College Juniors, travelled to Port Hope as representatives of the Quinte Valley "B" League. The Nicholson Juniors had a very good season, losing only one of eight games.

In Port Hope they chalked up their third shut-out, winning by a score of 30-0. The game was marred only by a serious injury to Dave Beam, the home town quarterback, who had to be taken to hospital. The strong Irish team were forced to punt only twice in the first half. The big gun for the green was Doug Duminie with two majors on plunges of 30 and 14 yards, in the first quarter. Duminie kicked converts on his own touchdowns

The only other scoring play came in the second quarter when Don Holoway broke loose for a 45-yard gallop off tackle. Duminie again kicked the convert but it was nullified by a holding penalty on the green centre man John Halloran.

P.H.C.V.S. threatened in each quarter but each time the green defense put up a goal line stand and turned back the threat. Port Hope went to the air in the fourth quarter completing two long passes on fake punts. Otherwise the Port Hope play was disorganized with Nicholson's star defensive centre "Shakur" Ryan intercepting a pass and recovering several fumbles. The entire squad played errorless ball, under quarterback Jon Boon in their triumph over the blue and white of Port Hope.

Much praise is credited to coaches Doug Foley and a former star of Toronto St. Michael's and Bob Arbuthnot. These men along with Father McGee have finally been rewarded for their tireless efforts in shaping up a Junior "B" championship team.

CORVAIR WINS "CAR OF THE YEAR" AWARD

Torque Talk

by DOUG PHIPPEN

There are many ways of having fun with a car. If you treat it as something more than just a means of conveyance between point A and point B. Not only can an automobile owner, or a part owner the way some high school students operate, get some degree of pride of ownership through having a properly maintained and prepared vehicle but he can also find that he can use his car as means of recreation and relaxation.

Ever since the end of World War II the appreciation of Canadians, and Americans, for having motoring fun has been increasing. This has been due mostly to the spreading popularity of sports cars and the attitude of using a car for fun engendered by them has also spread through the ranks of small, compact and domestic car owners as well.

Sports car clubs and their members have been responsible for the establishment of such events as driving skill tests, gymkanas (a sort of novelty test of driving ability), rallies (where contestants are given a map and directions and are supposed to find their way over a pre-determined route), and auto-cross (where an owner can test his car's ability to ford streams, field, mudholes and climb terrain, where no road exists — a rugged type of event, this).

For the more competitively-minded, high speed events such as hill climbs and race meets are held over closed circuits under properly controlled conditions. Through the efforts of the Canadian Automobile Sport Club, which is the governing body for the safety rules and regulations for these events, an enviable safety record has been maintained over the past ten years.

Somewhat distant from the sports car organizations are the limiting clubs which organize the drag strip meets. These feature quarter-mile acceleration runs and are usually held on abandoned air strips in Ontario.

Everything from the family sedan to specially-constructed "dragsters," which appear to be all engine and tires, can participate in the various classes available at these events.

Far removed from either of the above types of events are the "concours d'elegance" meets held mostly by vintage and classic cars clubs, although both the sports car and "hot rod" clubs hold somewhat similar displays. At these meets cars of special interest or of famous lineage are prepared by their owners for show.

Pre-war Cadillacs, Lincolns, La-Salles, Duesenbergs, Cords, Auburns, Rolls Royces, Bentleys and other famous models and makes usually form the meat of such a show although some more modern cars are often on display as well.

All of which goes to show that there can be much more to owning a car than just driving it to and from work and puttering about the highway on a Sunday afternoon.

GM'S CORVAIR CITED

Canada Track and Traffic magazine just announced, in their new issue now on the news stands, that the General Motors' Corvair has been selected for the domestic "Car of the Year" award, made annually by the publication.

This car certainly introduced a new trend of thought on the part of North American auto manufacturers when with fully independent suspension on all four wheels and the "pancake" six-cylinder engine mounted aft. These engineering innovations, domestic-size, have been complemented by the usual high standard of passenger comfort which marks our domestic products.

The resultant unit certainly merits the attention of any interested in automotive engineering or those interested in the compact car field.

HOW LONG IS LONG

Many manufacturers and owners have plugged the longevity and durability of their products on various occasions. None has taken this point so seriously, I believe, as the German firms, however.

The Volkswagen firm have for some time been giving gold watches to owners of their products who could achieve 60,000 miles on their auto without requiring any major repairs.

Now the Mercedes Benz people have announced that they are prepared to give special claims to any agent who achieves 200,000 miles in a Mercedes product. Already two Canadians have received this award, both driving diesel-powered units.

When one considers just how long it would take the average driver to total 200,000 miles (from 16 1-2 to 20 years), one can well wonder just how long a car can last.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

None received this week but anyone who wants an answer to some problem or query automotive, is cordially invited to submit them.

Copy deadline for news of your teenaged group is Wednesday, 5 p.m., for same week publication in the Intelligencer Review. Address correspondence to Don Harvey, Ontario Intelligencer. News of Your Local Sea Cadet Corps

(A Member of the Belleville United Appeal)

READY FOR VISIT BY CHAPLAIN OF THE FLEET

The officers and men of "Quinte", supplemented by Sea Cadet divisions from the Corps "Hallowell" of Picton and "Trent" of Trenton, will be on parade this Sunday for an inspection by the Reverend Ernest G. B. Foote, OBE, CD, RCM, Chaplain of the Fleet (P) and Deputy Chaplain-General of the Armed Forces (P).

Following this inspection the Sea Cadets will have a church parade to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, which is celebrating its 129th anniversary.

NEW ENTRIES PASS COURSE

Eight new entries passed their examinations for admittance to the Corps as Ordinary Cadets last Thursday evening. The successful candidates were: R. McCormick, A. Lewis, W. Hood, J. Pedder, R. Zachariah, T. York, D. Finkle and G. Hyderman.

Another new entry course is just underway and any lads between 14 and 18 years of age are welcomed aboard 'Quinte' to join the corps. The new entry course takes about four weeks to complete, provided there are not any special parades or events on the regular Thursday training nights.

A number of openings should be available as those who have been slack on their attendance are being weeded out.

VICTORY CELEBRATION

Last Saturday evening the ship's company of "Quinte" gathered at the Sea Cadet building for a bun feed and movie show to celebrate the "recovery" of the "Cock of the Walk" award from RCSC "Hollowell".

Close to 30 cadets were on board for the celebration with free soft drinks and hot dogs provided by the local Navy League. A number of films were shown on sailing, navy flag signals, and ships.

SPORTS DAY PLANNED

A sports day is now in the planning stages for some time following school examinations at the request of RCSC "Hallowell" who has issued a challenge to "Quinte". It was hoped that a game of football could have been arranged but, due to the lateness of the season, a hockey or basketball game will be more probable.

CURTAIN TIME COMING UP—Above the principals of "The Heiress" get a bit of direction from Ted Schwab during rehearsals for the Belleville Theatre Guild's forthcoming production. The curtain will go up on this play a week this coming Monday at the BCIVS. In the cast are (left to right): Phil Flagler as Dr. Sloper; Vera Thompson as Catherine; Bill Goldie as Morris Townsend, and Betty Sneller as Aunt Penniman. At the extreme right is director Ted Schwab.

Grade 13 students will have a first-hand opportunity to see the play of their English literature course come to life a week this coming Monday. "The Heiress," by Ruth and Augusta Goetz, is being presented by the Belleville Theatre Guild for three nights running at the BCIVS auditorium.

So far there has been a great deal of enthusiasm on the part of both students and staff of the local and district secondary schools to see the play and a large section of reserved seats have already been spoken for in several of the schools.

For those not taking the play as a required subject the local presentation should be an interesting experience just the same. Hardly what one might nowadays call a serious effort, the play is one of those real gore melodramas that used to send thrills and chills up the spines of theatregoers of the Victorian era and at the turn of the century.

Although there are no fair maidens being thrown in the path of an oncoming train or being led into a lumber mill buzz saw, "The Heiress" should prove to be something a bit out of the ordinary as far as good entertainment goes.

The production as a real live melodrama of the Victorian era has such fine ingredients as the possessive, proud papa (played by Phil Flagler of broadcasting fame), the demure, innocent heroine (played by Vera Thompson), the cunning, conniving fortune-seeker, alias the beau (played by Bill Goldie), and a bustling, harrowly aunt (played by Betty Sneller).

All of these ingredients are mixed together by director Ted Schwab who is trying his hand at this phase of the footlights and the boards game for the first time. Supporting actors in the cast are Beryl Statler, Rodger Greig, Flo Yanover, Ruth Nightingale and Nicky Thomas.

The Belleville Collegiate auditorium will be the site of the presentation, which will run for three days, with curtain time at 8.30 p.m.

IMMIGRANTS LEAVE — Not all immigrants are able to make a new life for themselves in Canada. Most, like Daniel Musie and his family (left), settle happily. They are making a six-month visit to their native Holland but plan to return to their new home in St. Catharines, Ont. Some immigrants have found their expectations unfilled and are returning to Europe. Among them are the Dutch youths at right: Jan Salomons, Maarden Verweel and Willem van der Velden. (CP Photo).

'Immigration Propaganda' In Europe Does Canada Lot Of Harm, Views of Returnees

By ALEXANDER PARRELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The handsome young Dutchman said an Ontario girl left him stranded in the middle of a dance floor because he spoke English poorly.

An older compatriot complained of the "lack of warmth and trust" in Canadians.

An itinerant writer from British Columbia let us say that "immigration propaganda" in Europe does Canada a lot of harm, creating for immigrants an impossible gap between promise and fulfilment.

They were among six passengers interviewed aboard an ocean liner in Montreal before it sailed for Europe. Three of the six were returning home to Holland after having lived in Canada for two or three years and deciding against settling in this country.

The itinerant writer, Angelo Roman of London, spent two years travelling in Canada and found he did not like the "spiritual climate." Leo Meitler of Vienna agreed with him on this point but did not think it applied so much to Vancouver, "where I spent my happiest time in Canada."

Only one of the six had a round-trip ticket. He was Daniel Musie, a greenhouse-gardener in St. Catharines, Ont., travelling back to Vlissingen, Holland, with his wife and three small children for a six-month visit. The children, aged seven, five and three, have little or no recollection of their grandparents.

In Canada five years, he professed himself "perfectly satisfied" with his life and with life as a whole on this side of the Atlantic. Mr. and Mrs. Musie will become Canadian citizens next year.

Mr. Musie said "people in St. Catharines have treated us well and been very friendly to us. I have been able to work at a job I like and I think my children are being brought up in a good place."

Mrs. Musie, busy with the youngsters in their cabin, was unable to join the conversation in the ship's lounge, so her husband spoke for her too. "She loves Canada, you can be sure of that," he said.

The most articulate spokesman for the other side of the story was the Dutchman abandoned on the dance floor. Willem van der Velden, 25, recalled the incident with amusement and then went on to speak of his "real reasons" for leaving Canada.

Speaking earnestly but without bitterness, he said in fluent English that he thinks Canadians put too much stock "in what you have, and not what you are."

"If you have money and if you have a car and you speak good English, you are accepted—unless you are a bad character, of course."

Endorsing this view, Maarden Verweel, 22, said the Canadians he has known usually seemed too unsatisfied with what they had to be happy. They seemed to need to acquire more possessions.

He was also concerned about Canadian attitudes toward foreigners, which he found sometimes patronizing, sometimes indifferent.

"Yes, exactly," van der Velden said, picking up the thread of the argument. "Once I heard a man say about me to another fellow: 'Oh, he's all right, he's a Dutchman.'

"If I am really all right," he said, flashing the only trace of anger that crept into his entire conversation, "it is not because I am a Dutchman. There are better reasons for being all right. I want to be judged by what I am personally, not by my nationality."

Jan Salomons, third and oldest of the Dutch trio returning home, thought this kind of judgment "is really a pretty common failing, but I have noticed it more among (North) Americans than Europeans."

They had "good points" they wanted to take about Canada, if they were going to be quoted.

Salomons: "I think there are especially close, good feelings between Canadians and Dutch. I appreciate it when I am treated well, even if it is just because I am Dutch."

Verweel: "Undoubtedly, the standard of living is higher over here. A lot of things are possible to the average guy that are just impossible in Holland, such as owning his own house."

Van der Velden: "I was very young when the war was on but I remember how excited and happy everybody was when the Canadian soldiers arrived. Many people remember that much better than I do and I am sure most Dutch look on Canada as a great friend."

Many Dutch, they noted, now have family bonds with Canada. Salomons, for example, has three brothers and three sisters in St. Catharines where he lived for a year and a half.

Salomons worked as a carpenter in Canada but wants to go back to the post-once business in Emmen, a city near the German border in north Holland.

Van der Velden plans to go back to selling and servicing musical instruments in Utrecht. This is the business he has always wanted to be in, he said, but he found little scope for it in Canada. He was an insurance salesman in Canada, living most of the time in Barrie, Ont.

Verweel's home is in Rotterdam but he hopes to settle "here in the country." During his year in Canada, he worked on a farm near Ingersoll, Ont.

Acting Cpl. Chico, Chimp Adopted by Canadians, Can't Get His Pay and Allowances

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP) — Canadian signalsmen serving in the Congo haven't lost their sense of humor, despite heat and humidity, the hot-and-cold political war and the routine job of handling messages for the United Nations.

The story of acting corporal Chico and his guardians' attempt to get him the usual 65 francs ($1.30) a day paid all UN soldiers, is an example of the quiet humor that makes life in the Congo bearable.

Chico is a chimpanzee adopted by the Canadian signals detachment at Matadi, the Congo River port about 175 miles southeast of Leopoldville.

An exchange of messages between Matadi and Canadian headquarters here tells the story:

Matadi: "This detachment has recruited a new operator. Here are his particulars: Age reckoned Tarak and name A-Cpl. Chico, age two months, male, dark habit of 11, complexion fair, nationality monkey family commonly called chimp. At the present time he is undergoing basic training. . . ."

"It is requested that you look into the matter of pay and allowances for him. He is single so therefore is not entitled to any marriage allowance. However, since he is separated from his family it would be advisable to give him separated family allowance. . . ."

The message went on to say Chico was happy in his new home and looked forward to signal duty. Ingrid, 25, of Welland, Ont., "assures me what I needed was a bit of giving him (Chico) his daily feeding (him)." Uniforms were being tailored by Cpl. Ronald Tooke, 24, of Amherst, N.S., but "some trouble is being encountered getting a blue hat to fit."

The message landed on the desk of Maj. Don Kaye of London, Ont., paymaster of the Canadian contingent. He fired Cpl. Armand Desmoustier of Montreal doped out this deadpan reply:

"Request for granting separate family allowance declined as . . . SFA payable to married personnel and widowers only."

They suggested Angral complete a new income tax exemption form "Use to becoming a mother. Blood tests not required as it is obvious in all concerned that resemblance between mother and child is sufficient proof."

Not to be outdone, headgear for Corporal Chico, the reply suggested the detachment officer, repeat Alex Taschereau of Quebec. "Dispatch dispensable signalman to nearest warlike tribe for headshrinking while wearing blue beret."

It added:

"Taking on strength for issue of 65 francs per diem is correct but must be shown on strength return under column either 'officers' or 'men.' Any suggestion that he be shown under column 'officers' would mean that the day whole detachment whistle for their 65 francs per diem and rest of pay staff feel the same way about being shown under column 'men.'"

Tailor Lefebvre later said the stir signalfers in his detachment has resulted in 300 francs ($1) to buy Chico.

House Briefs

OTTAWA (CP)—A broad program of proposed legislation was outlined in the throne speech read Thursday at the opening of the new parliamentary session. Among measures forthcoming, the speech said, are Criminal Code amendments "having to do with capital punishment."

Information available was that the government favors a system whereby capital punishment would be retained for cases of vicious or premeditated murder, with prison terms provided for so - called "accidental" murders and crimes committed in passion.

However, informants did not rule out the possibility that the government may be thinking only of changing the method of execution. All death penalties in Canada now are carried out by hanging. Some MPs and others favor the electric chair or the gas chamber.

TO INCREASE PENSIONS

Substantial increases in war disability pensions to veterans or their dependents were forecast. There are some 154,000 war veterans drawing disability pensions. Nearly 33,000 dependents of these veterans also receive pensions, with annual cost to the government is about $140,000,000.

TO OVERSEE TRAINING

Federal grants aimed at building more provincial technical training or train workers for the automation era were foreshadowed.

No dollar amount was placed on the new federal program, but the speech said the government will seek approval for grants of 75 per cent of the cost of federally approved technical schools and apprenticeship courses.

The program would extend to March 31, 1965.

TO TREAT SEX DEVIATES

Treatment of criminal sexual psychopaths also is proposed.

The speech contained no details on the treatment plan, beyond saying it would involve amendments to the Criminal Code. It is likely the amendments will constitute government action on a 1958 report of a royal commission headed by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of Ontario's supreme court. It recommended that special provision be made in the penitentiary system for the custody, control and treatment of every sex offender.

NO FEDERAL COALING

Parliament will be asked to pass new legislation to Dominion-provincial fiscal arrangements. The speech used the phrase "in the near future," usually taken in parliamentary circles to mean "not now — but eventually."

TARIFF REVISION URGED

The tariff board is to be expanded and put to work on a speeded-up program of overhauling the 1,000-page schedule of Canada's customs tariff structure.

The Bank of Canada will be authorized, the five-member board to set a minimum rate of interest to sit in two "panels" so that more than one tariff study can be carried on at the same time.

DISARMAMENT SOUGHT

Disarmament under international control is the key to ensuring world peace, the government says.

The speech said the government must "accordingly" maintain its "unremitting efforts" to achieve progress in the disarmament field.

"Until such time as disarmament under effective control can be achieved, however, it is necessary for the free nations to be trained and well - armed Canadian defence forces, adequate to the task of collective defence obligation."

IMMIGRATION A TOPIC

The long-awaited overhaul of the controversial Immigration Act will be placed before Parliament at the new session.

An opportunity will be given to individuals and organizations to present their views on a future immigration policy for Canada.

The speech said only that "a bill to amend the Immigration Act will be laid before you."

The government is also "seeking authority to amend the Immigration Act since it took office in 1957."

RURAL PROGRAMS SOUGHT

The government will seek authority to join the provincial and local groups throughout Canada in encouraging measures for rural rehabilitation and development.

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton tried out the idea last week on the federal - provincial agricultural conference and found unanimous interest qualified by reservations that the provinces will want to see what is in the pie first.

Purpose of the program is to help farmers improve, strengthening the position of the small farmer by turning marginal land to better use.

Patrol Stumbles On 80 Mutilated Bodies in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — An Ethiopian Army patrol stumbled into 80 mutilated bodies in the northern Katanga bush, the United Nations Congo command announced today.

A message received by the headquarters said the patrol was en route to Langwe'.

The United Nations spokesman said the Congolese were killed in fierce political and tribal strife in the northern part of the secessionist province.

Reports of mounting tension and trouble poured in from other points of northern Katanga, where Baluba tribesmen revolted against the authority of Katanga's President Moise Tshombe and his Belgian-led police.

The United Nations said the Baluba demanded the evacuation of the police from Kabonco under threat of armed attackers.

Two gendarmes were injured by ramaging Baluba who invaded the airstrip shaking mats and firearms. Belgian officers appealed to the UN for help in evacuating the men.

Moreover, UN troops are stationed in Kabongo.

London Herald Newswoman Wins Acquittal

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Joyce Eggleton, New York correspondent for the London Daily Herald, was acquitted in municipal court Thursday on charges of assaulting a police officer, resisting arrest and failure to move on.

Miss Eggleton was arrested during Wednesday's demonstration by 1,000 or more teen-agers against the integration of New Orleans elementary public schools.

The arresting officer testified Miss Eggleton kicked him and left him bruised when he arrested her. She was taken into custody after trying to mount the steps of city hall, a move already approved by other officers on the scene. She spent about 15 minutes in jail.

Fleming Warns Canada Will Not Stand By

STE. ADELE, Que. (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming warned Thursday that Canada "simply won't stand by and watch the European Common Market practice Canadian trading concessions seen in the past through multilateral negotiations."

He indicated clearly that if barriers to Canadian exports are raised by the six - nation Common Market, Canada's tariffs on imports from those countries may no longer be bound against increases under the current Geneva negotiations of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Mr. Fleming also said Canadian interests will be damaged to some degree and "perhaps seriously" if the United Kingdom aligns itself with the Common Market countries in some form of free trade area. For Canada this would mean a loss of Commonwealth tariff preferences in the U.K. and possibly new preferences against Canada.

"Certainly under such circumstances the pressures for Canada to embark on closer trade associations with other countries particularly the United States, would undoubtedly be greatly increased," Mr. Fleming said.

He addressed the annual conference of the Canadian Industrial Editors Association.

WATCHING ECC

Mr. Fleming said the Canadian government has been watching with "vigilance and concern" the developments in the European Economic Com m u n i t y formed by France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Canada also was vitally concerned with activities of the Organ repean Free Trade Association—the so-called "Outer Seven" consisting of the United Kingdom, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Austria, Switzerland and Portugal.

The biggest threat to Canada was the Common Market which, in addition to severe tariffs on trade among its members, is developing a common external tariff against imports from outside countries. Canada is vitally concerned only with tariffs among it, seven member countries.

PERSONNEL HEADS MEET

KINGSTON (CP)—The second annual conference of the Association of Canadian Personnel Associations opens here today. A presentation will be made to Professor C. E. "Buy American" Attitude Of Eisenhower Govt. May Hurt Some Canadian Firms

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The stiffening "buy American" attitude of the Eisenhower administration may hurt some Canadian manufacturers and possibly help others.

Canadian authorities in Washington, watching developments closely, have been told by American counterparts that the flow of United States defence sub-contracts to Canada may be increased as American defence production is stimulated by Eisenhower orders to reduce military procurement abroad.

The reasoning here is that as American plants get new contracts for munitions their defence might have been produced in a German or French shop. U.S. procurement officers would try to encourage their domestic factories to place some of the sub-contracts for component parts in Canada.

This would be in line with Canada-U.S. production - sharing arrangements. Canada has been pressing for more defence direct American defence orders to help balance a deficit in Canada-U.S. trade and officials say some progress has been made.

SWAP NOT EFFECTIVE

In the same way, the proposed Canada-U.S. swap of American fighter planes for Canadian transport aircraft would not be effective in bringing about defence aimed at reducing the movement of American dollars and gold overseas.

This proposed swap has been pending since 1958 and the final decision is right. Canadian officials here say they have been affected by the Eisenhower move to encourage buying at home. They think no final decision would be made until the Kennedy administration takes office next January.

While Canada might thus possibly get a few more defence sub-contracts, there is some fo reboding that the flow of orders for Canadian goods by underdeveloped countries under the new American dollars might be reduced.

Under existing practices, the international co-operation administration in the United States, which provides needy countries with grants and loans and directs recipients to shop around for most of their commodities in top essentials at the lowest price possible.

Now the Eisenhower order is to place most of these orders with American suppliers.

DISRUPT WORLD TRADE

The over-all Eisenhower policy may have some disruptive influence in world trade, its aim is to reduce the flow of American dollars abroad. With smaller purchases by foreign countries, some countries might in turn reduce imports of their own. Any such trend would tend to hurt Canada's own world trade.

The "buy American" move by itself is not likely to plug the gap in the American dollar outflow. Part of the reason for the export of dollars and gold is the attraction of high interest rates and higher interest rates overseas. American investment in the Common Market, for instance, is growing over for the construction of new plants behind the inside Europe's Common Market.

Eisenhower concedes that more than half the gold in the world is in the U.S. is to balance her international books. This might possibly lead to tighter American credit policies, which could hurt U.S. foreign military and economic aid programs.

Eastview Mayor Says Report Will Be Studied

EASTVIEW (CP)—Mayor George Lavergne said Thursday that a judicial inquiry into this town's affairs will be held "if a unanimous" is warranted.

The mayor Wednesday night received a municipal affairs department report on a provincial inquiry into the affairs of the town within the boundaries of Ottawa. He said it is being studied "to the fullest extent."

Mayor Lavergne, a Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Russell, said:

"I, after studying the report, we think that anything would relieve the judicial inquiry we will move in that direction."

The provincial report, delivered by hand to council, created a storm in this little community separating it into 3 municipal factions.

DEMANDS RESIGNATIONS

If the mayor and council "leave any pride left, they will step down," said Emmanuel Renaud, president of the Children's League that sparked the provincial inquiry.

The provincial report charged interference by the mayor and civic officials and Mr. Renaud said "there must be no question" of the present council seeking re-election in 1961.

Mrs. Clitheroy Lagrue has entered candidates in the election. Mr. Lavergne said the report is being studied but "it would not be appropriate to make any comment on specific aspects of the report until that study is completed."

Charles Leclerc, secretary of the league, said the group's report recommended that "a number of people be called for investigation." He said that if "responsible authorities" do not make investigations "we will see that this is done."

MAYORS NO

OTTAWA (CP) — The "social end of the pier" days are numerous in Ottawa's too time-consuming, says Controller Paul Tardif. He is one of a number of the 200 - S civic election but he will not be a candidate for board of control. Mr. Tardif also is Liberal MP for Russell.

Some Claiming Govt. Program Has Earmarks of Early Election

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's legislative program for the new parliamentary session has all the earmarks of an early election appeal to the voters, but informed sources say it is not in the cards.

The program outlined in Thursday's Throne Speech is said to be one of the heaviest in many years. The government is widely appealing for the voter—a kind of "vote now, prosperity or more federal money pouring into the economy and announcements of Christmas cheer in the form of the unemployment problem from 1961 onward.

The speech also forecast a pre-Christmas supplementary budget, probably labelled a "baby budget."

Other parliamentary parlance, a budget means tax changes and observers feel that in the present state of the economy, tax changes mean tax reductions.

The speech indicated that at least three dozen separate bills will go before the session. Other sessions have produced more government measures but the throne speeches have promised so many.

It is the kind of something-for-everybody legislative menu that usually precedes an election. But Prime Minister Diefenbaker told party executives and organizers less than a month ago he has no thought of an early general election.

However, a senior Commons official said Thursday that this, in effect, is a short, one-session of the Parliament. It began in 1958 and can remain in office until the spring of 1963.

The senior official said he thinks the cabinet plan its program said it is one that has more bed in it than it can possibly digest. The plans for economic development will be spread over a number of years, suits 18 months from now than in the next future.

However, other observers said the government has neatly put itself to the position of being able to call an early election if it wishes on the basis of the planned record for this session, or of spike or defeat on specific issues—both economic and political — may have improved the chances that have a solid record of accomplishment on which to run.

Shakespearean Festival Had $64,308 Profit

STRATFORD — A net profit of $64,308.73 on the 1960 season was reported at the annual meeting of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival Foundation of Canada, held in the Festival theatre.

"It has been widely recognized as the most successful season which the Festival has ever had," said Wilfrid Gregory, president of the Board of Governors. "Fortunately this can be said to be true, both from an artistic and from a financial point of view."

Mr. Gregory pointed out that the profit was shown after allowing $58,301.30 for depreciation of fixed assets.

"The Canada Council grant of $75,000 was of great assistance," he added, "as we are committed to heavy financial obligations. We really cannot rest easily financially until we have paid off our bond mortgage, which now stands at $200,000. Besides the interest requirements of $36,077.10 we have a sinking fundto meet each year of $30,000. This is a sufficiently extensive objective to encourage us to keep on a fiscally quite sober about the financial position."

The year-end audit, just completed by Monteith, Monteith and Company, showed that the 99 performances of "Romeo and Juliet," "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "King Lear" played to 203,730 people, who paid $633,514 in admissions. The 1960 Festival theatre, representing 91.2 per cent of capacity. Music attended 27,230 persons and the box office gross of $99,789. This included 24 performances of "Pinafore," and weekend concerts in the Festival theatre. The two-week Film Festival grossed $11,826.

Sunday School Lesson

Healed by Our Own Thinking

By ROY L. SMITH

Even a casual reading of the Psalms of the Old Testament reveals the fact that it is a layman's book, born out of the personal experiences of plain people who were blessed with the ability to put their feeling and inspiration to song.

The temple in Jerusalem had developed a very considerable ritual, a succession of ceremonies, and an elaborate system of sacrifices. It was in business for the purpose of helping men commune with the spiritual forces. It seems to have been a success for again and again someone rises somewhere in the Old Testament to sing his praises of the temple, or express his profound devotion to "the law."

But the Psalms with which we are most familiar are all the personal songs of men who have won spiritual victories for themselves without the benefit of clergy. In most instances the victories were won in some spot far removed from the temple, and unassisted by any priest.

SING YOURSELF WELL

A discerning nurse, trained according to the best standards in Denmark, had been assigned to care for a patient critically ill in a small Canadian hospital. Her cheerful presence, her abundant strength and her vigorous faith was a tonic badly needed in that room.

One morning, when the patient was in a particularly low mood, she stopped alongside of him for just a moment after her professional duties were over, and said, "I isn't in any of the doctor's books, so far as I know, and I didn't learn it in any nursing school. But I've a good piece of advice to give you. If you will sing while you're sick, you can sing yourself well."

The uniform Sunday School lesson for November 20: "Thanks Be to God," Psalms 96; 100; 126.

With that she was gone, and the sick man had the rest of the morning to think it over. At first it wasn't easy, for it had been years since he had tried to sing. But after a while an old Sunday School hymn came back to him, and he hummed the tune to his mind, trying at the same time to remember the words. It seemed like a good game, and he continued with it. Within the space of 24 hours the thermometer showed that the plan was working. Within a week he was ready to return home. The nurse's prescription was worth more than any drug store.

The psalmist who wrote this week's Scripture had, quite evidently, passed through a sickness that he had recovered he went on singing. So many people forget to sing, once they have come back to their desks.

FORGET NOT HIS BENEFITS

There is an illness that is particularly hard to heal. It is that kind which develops when one of the digestive organs begins to produce poison, and spread it through the body. The doctors sometimes speak of it as "autointoxication." By that they mean the illness that wells up from within us, rather than that which is contracted from without.

Sometimes illness is one of the best spiritual antiseptics one can administer. The old gospel song, "Count Your Many Blessings," was good psychology, good religion and good medicine.

The Apostle Paul, in writing his immortal 13th chapter of First Corinthians, said, "Love does not reckon up her wrongs." By that he must have meant that the loving person does not keep a list of his affronts, his insults, his grievances, or his slights.

He who makes a list of all the benefits he has had at the hands of God, and who reviews the list at the beginning of the day, has insured his well-being and happiness for the day. There is emotional futility in the attitude of gratitude.

MARK VS. CHRIST

The central doctrine of Marxism is the proposition that all the issues of life can be traced back to economic forces and secular (or material) activity.

The central doctrine of Christianity is that all of life issues from the heart of God, and that "God is love."

Christianity has been a singing religion, and Christians undertaken to be scientific. Before the Christian church was as old as the Russian Communist Party it had composed and was singing perhaps as many as a hundred hymns. Some of them are to be found in the New Testament.

No one can estimate how much of the world's hurt has been healed by Christian hymns.

H.S. Students Getting Chance To Use Computer

HALIFAX (CP) — St. Mary's High School is educating a group in routine mathematics by using electronic computer.

Fourteen students, from 13 to 15 at the secondary school attached to St. Mary's University willingly give up their Saturday mornings to use the machine.

Rev. John Power introduced them to the computer, teaching them to use it in a new angle of an old card game, blackjack. Now they have learned out, playing it with quadratic equations and algebraic problems.

"This generation must master the implements of tomorrow and the computer is a major tool of the future," said Father Power. "Three children constitute the beginning of an experiment at high level, the implications of which should teach adults to underestimate the ability of children of their years."

Hamilton Does Not Expect Easy Hoeing in New Role As Fed. Agriculture Minister

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Alvin Hamilton, Canada's new agriculture minister, is a dogged idealist who lost six elections before winning a seat in the Commons.

He now faces the task of attempting to satisfy the country's farmers and, like his predecessors, he doesn't expect easy hoeing.

The 53-year-old former Saskatoon high school teacher entered the federal cabinet in 1957 without legislative experience. As minister of northern affairs and natural resources, he was regarded as the author of the vision of northern development preached so zealously in the Progressive Conservative election campaigns of 1957 and 1958.

He now occupies a hot seat capable of generating at least as much warmth as national defence in the general forum of national politics and undoubtedly more at the crop - roots level where the price of eggs talks larger on election day than the Bonnie missile.

To paraphrase the old song, Mr. Hamilton's problem is how to keep the happy days on the farm now that they've seen how much better they can be, once they've tended to prosper in the last decade.

COST-PRICE SQUEEZE

Net farm income last year totalled only $1,288,000 or just about what it was 10 years ago. Costs have risen faster than produce prices in what is called the cost-price squeeze.

"Canadian agriculture is in the same fix as the man on the cliff — he's all right as long as he don't fall over," Mr. Hamilton commented—after his appointment.

Conditions in Canada, where a declaration of war found us 11 15 years favored the large-scale operator and left the small producer particularly hard-pressed, being dispossessed in other parts of the world as a unit of economic production.

Mr. Hamilton views as a main immediate objective the establishment of good personal relationships that will be grain-growing groups settled by federal representatives, especially requests for large-scale assistance. They sought confidence payments on wheat, oats and barley that the government calculated would cost $325,000,000.

They got—for the second time since 1958—a $1,000,000 was worth up to $300 a farmer as the government's reward for putting the assistance through to the small operator who most needed it.

WASN'T FARMER

Alvin Hamilton's appointment as agriculture minister already has been questioned on grounds he isn't a farmer, unlike his predecessor, Douglas Harkness. Mr. Hamilton was born on a farm at Conron, Ont., and went to Saskatchewan as a youngster, working at farm labor.

Before graduating from the school of political hard knocks there, he learned something more about the farmer while running six times for office as Progressive Conservative provincial leader and organizer. Two of his three losing provincial campaigns were in rural ridings and he contested three federal elections in rural constituencies before winning in 1957 in Qu'Appelle, a farm area of southern Saskatchewan.

A former hockey player and teammate of the famed Bentley brothers of Delisle, Sask., Alvin Hamilton is a gentle-looking six-footer with a receding hairline, brown hair.

He has a reflective air and the ability to establish a casual classroom earnestness. Informal, he loves cigars and prefers to nurse his drinks.

He doesn't lack critics although many regard the hard-working cabinet minister as among the most likeable — if sometimes naive—ministers.

TACKLES WHEAT ISSUES

His willingness to slug it out in the Commons hasn't always been equalled by his facility in debate. But supporters say he is the man who put, as one phrased it, "natural resources into what had been a department of Eskimos."

In his new job he has the massive task of supervising Canada's efforts to market her chronic wheat surplus, the result of a realignment of ministerial responsibilities that shifted the wheat board from trade and commerce to agriculture.

A graduate of the University of Saskatchewan with an honors arts degree in history and economics, he married the former Beulah Major of Tessler, Sask., in 1936. They have two sons, both in school here.

He flew as a navigator with the RCAF from 1941 to 1945, part of the time in Burma, and fought his first election in 1945 on special leave.

APPROVES NATO

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP)—President-elect Kennedy says he believes the Atlantic alliance is "one of the strongest bulwarks of the free world." He has pledged strong support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as president.

AGRICULTURE MINISTER — Alvin Hamilton, new federal agriculture minister, is a former high school teacher who has never operated a farm. He lost six elections before winning a seat in the Commons for Qu'Appelle in 1957, entering the cabinet the same year as minister of northern affairs and natural resources. He became agriculture minister in October this year. Mr. Hamilton, 48, is a native of Kenora, Ont., and a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan in history and economics. (CP Photo).

Dawson City Not Isolated During Winter

MAYO, Yukon (CP)—For the first time since its founding during the 1898 gold rush, Dawson City this year is not isolated during the fall freeze-up of the Lewes, Pelly and Stewart rivers, all of which cross the road between Whitehorse and Dawson City, south of Mayo.

The Stewart River was bridged last year and the completion of bridges over the Pelly and Stewart in August has made the far north road an all-weather highway.

Since construction of the road in 1950, traffic crossed the rivers by ferry in summer and by ice-bridge in winter but was halted by floating ice for about six weeks in the fall and spring.

Work on the Pelly and Stewart bridges began in June, 1959, and continued throughout the winter under parlin defibens. The total cost for both was about $2,000,000.

The Pelly bridge is 905 feet long, the Stewart 662 feet, and both are of steel truss construction.

The bridges will be an advantage to the miner in the Keno Hills, at the northern tip of the north of the road which goes through Mayo. Formerly, during spring and fall, they had to pickpike millions of dollars worth of silver, lead and zinc ore until trucks could get through.

Mayo and Dawson City are served by commercial airline, but flying in perishables caused an increase in retail prices which now may be avoided.

TWEED

Ralph Banbury Addresses 4-H Club on Farm Management

TWEED — Tweed 4-H Club members, their leaders and their parents were entertained by the Tweed Kiwanians at the annual 4-H Club Night which was attended by over 100 at the annual dinner held in the IOOF hall on Thursday night.

Ralph Banbury, Agricultural Representative for Northumberland County, with offices at Brighton, was the guest speaker. He complimented Tweed Kiwanis Club in encouraging 4-H Club interests in this district. "There are many factors involved in farm management which young people learn in their 4-H Club work. Times have changed, and with modern-ization, agriculture has become a highly specialized industry," Mr. Banbury noted.

He advocated that farmers keep their buildings painted and clean. "Some countries are producing agricultural and manufactured commodities much cheaper than Canada. This is a challenge we have to face. While at the same time the general income of all employed people in Canada is four times what it was in the 1937's. These two situations present a problem."

Dwelling briefly on the changing times, he pointed out that it costs approximately $25,000 to establish a young man on a farm today, while a few years ago it was a small fraction of this amount. He suggested, however, that farmers should not mortgage their future too far ahead. "Young people must discipline themselves; they have access to higher education, and their parents must pay for it whether their children make the best possible use of it or not," the speaker told the young 4-H members. He felt that Canada offered the most opportunities of any country in the world.

Wes Farrell, one of the 4-H Club leaders, who has been in agricultural work for 33 years, introduced Mr. Banbury. He also expressed thanks to the Tweed Kiwanis Club for their interest in the young people.

Thanks to the guest speaker were expressed by Frank Peterson.

Russell Green, president of the Kiwanis Club, was chairman, and he welcomed the 4-H Club members and their parents.

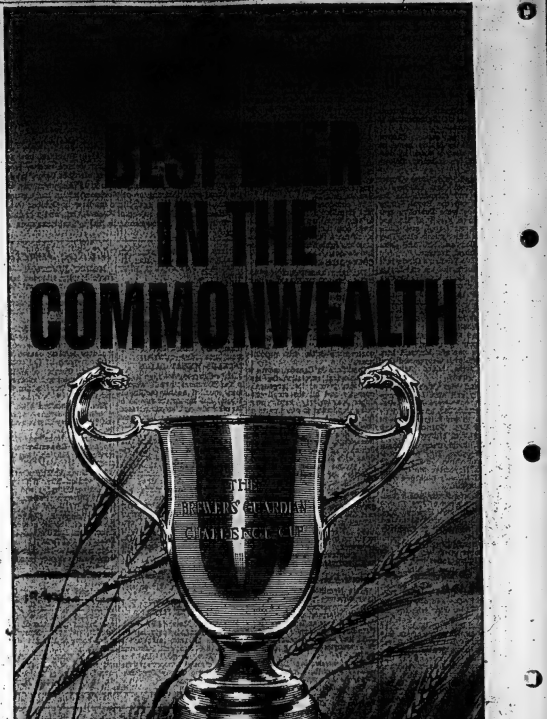
Over 30 Wreaths Placed at Cenotaph

STIRLING — At the Stirling cenotaph on Remembrance Day the Rev. J. F. O'Neill gave the invocation and the Rev. K. J. Rooney read the Scripture. All sang "O God our Help in Ages Past" and the Rev. W. G. Fletcher presented the special message. The prayers were given by the Rev. C. R. Gale and the Stirling-Rawdon Junior Band provided the music.

The names of those who are inscribed on the Stirling cenotaph and also on the cenotaph at Harold for Rawdon Township were read. The memorial wreaths were laid in memory of those who had paid the supreme sacrifice. The "Last Post", was sounded and the service closed with "Unto the Hills".



Over 30 wreaths were deposited and the service was under the direction of the Stirling Legion.

Those in the parade from the Community Hall in the cenotaph included: Legion members, Girl Guides, Brownies, Boy Scouts and Cubs led by the Junior Band. At the cenotaph there were representatives of Stirling and Rawdon Councils, the Rotary Club, I.O.D.E. and many of the next of kin.

A public address system was used in order that all who were seated in cars could follow the service.

After dismissal, a group of Legion members and the Rawdon Council proceeded to the cenotaph at Harold, where a brief Memorial Service was held and several wreaths were laid in memory of the fallen.

Most Canadians think that Labatt's is just about the best beer you can get anywhere. But it's also nice to know that independent brewing experts rate it as highly as we do. In a brewing contest held recently in London, England, among 120 competitors from all over the Commonwealth, the Brewers' Guardian Challenge Cup was awarded to Labatt's as brewers of the beer judged to be finest in all classes competing... the best beer in the Commonwealth. This is the latest of 28 occasions on which Labatt's quality has brought top honours to Canada in International Competition, including the Prix d'Excellence won at the World Beer Contest in Belgium in 1958. So any time you call for one of the great Labatt brews—Labatt's IPA, Labatt's Pilsener Lager Beer, or Labatt's 1960 Ale—remember you're drinking the Commonwealth's best beer.

Welland Canal, ridden by Jimmy Fitzsimmons, moved to the front entering the stretch in the final race and pulled away to win by 1¼ lengths. Dark Jet finished second, Mongold third by a head.

Welland Canal, winning his fourth race of the season, paid $3.20, $4.20 and $2.70 as he ran the 1 1-16 miles in 1.50 2-5 over a slow track.

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second consecutive week, jockey Manuel Ycaza from Panama has been absolved of blame by Aqueduct stewards in the disqualification of one of his mounts for interference.

Although there has been no definite decision, there is a possibility that the Cain Hoy Stable's Bald Eagle, ridden by Ycaza, will fight it out for 1960 horse-of-the-year honors with the Bohemia Stable's Kelso Saturday in the $75,000 Gallant Fox Handicap at Aqueduct.

Friday's Fox, with Ycaza up, finished first in Thursday's second race but was dropped to second for brushing Nate's Rule, who was awarded first money. Stewards decided Ycaza was blameless.

Redmen Not Worried Over Title Tilt

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill University football coach Bruce Coulter says he is having a hard time getting his players keyed up for a game against University of Alberta Golden Bears Saturday for the Canadian Intercollegiate football championship.

"We're having a tough time getting the boys to concentrate on the game."

"Naturally, we all regard last Saturday's win over Queen's as the big one. Nothing we can do now can top that."

McGill Redmen beat Queen's Golden Gaels 21-0 in Kingston to win their first senior intercollegiate football crown in 22 years.

The game Saturday for the Churchill Cup will start at 1 p.m. EST.

"We don't know much about the Alberta team, so there isn't much we can do to prepare for them," said Coulter.

Golden Bears, travelling in three separate groups, were expected to arrive here today. The team only heavily on a ground attack and McGill's trademark is passing but Coulter is preparing for anything.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Welland Canal won the Inglewood Klondyke Purse for Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor's stable at Greenwood Wednesday. It was the second winner of the day for the Taylors, who had captured the second race with Whitebrough.

A high-powered ballybunion to the good stakes horse, Grey Monday.

Welland Canal, ridden by Jimmy Fitzsimmons, moved to the front entering Dark Ari on the final turn and pulled away to win by 1½ lengths. Dark Ari finished second. Mengold third by a head. Welland Canal, winning his fourth race of the season, paid $9.20, $4.30 and $2.70 as he ran the mile and 1-16 miles in 1.50 2-5 over a slow track.

The daily double of Briarbelle in the first race and Whitebrough in the second paid $40.70. Du quindale of Welland Acres and Dark Jet in the sixth paid $28.30.

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second consecutive week, jockey Manuel Yeaza from Panama has been absolved of blame by Aqueduct stewards in the disqualification of one of his mounts for interference.

Although there has been no definite decision, there is a possibility that the Cain Hoy Stable's Bald Eagle, ridden by Yeaza, will fight it out for 1960 horse-of-the-year honors with the Bohemia Stable's Kelso Saturday in the $75,000 Gallant Fox Handicap at Aqueduct.

Fabulous Fox, with Yeaza up, finished first in Thursday's second race but was dropped to second for brushing Nance's Rule, who was awarded first money. Stewards decided Yeaza was blameless.

Redmen Not Worried Over Title Tilt

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill University football coach Bruce Coulter says he is having a hard time getting his players keyed up for a game against University of Alberta Golden Bears here Saturday for the Canadian Intercollegiate football championship.

"We're having a tough time getting the boys to concentrate on the game."

"Naturally, we all regard last Saturday's win over Queen's as the big one. Nothing we can do now can top that."

The game Saturday for the Churchill Cup will start at 1 p.m. EST.

"We don't know much about the Alberta team, so there isn't much we can do to prepare for them," said Coulter.

Golden Bears, travelling in three separate groups, were expected to arrive here today. The Bears rely heavily on a ground attack and McGill's trademark of passing. Lakers Nov. 12.

Referee Jim Duffy's report said Russell flagrantly fouled Krebs, knocking him unconscious and causing a serious laceration of the lip." According to accounts of the game, played at Providence, Russell hit Krebs with a left-hand punch.

Krebs has not played since.

Hawks Share Second Slot With Wings

Hand Bruins 4-2 Defeat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks would probably have few challengers for the Mafalda Hockey League leadership if they could play all their games in friendly Chicago Stadium.

The Hawks are master of home ice this season—undefeated in nine games with seven victories and two ties.

Their latest success came last night when the "million dollar line" of Bobby Hull, Murray Balfour and Bill (Red) Hay scored three goals for a 4-2 triumph over Boston Bruins in the league's only game.

Everything seems to work out for the Hawks on home ice. Hull, Balfour and Hay usually come up with their best performances there and goalie Glenn Hall is practically unbeatable.

While the Hawks have been uncomparable on home ice they have also been tops in road at least four of the other five teams on foreign ice.

Their inability to win away from home has prevented them from staying in first place. Last night's win pushed the Hawks into a second-place tie with Detroit Red Wings, each with 26 points. Both trail first - place Montreal Canadiens by a single point.

The Hawks' record at home is impressive. Besides being unbeaten, they have also scored 37 goals in nine games and allowed opposing teams only 16.

On the road they've won only twice, lost six and tied two others. Hall, the league's all-star goalie for the last three seasons, has been beaten 36 times in 10 games while his teammates have scored only 22 goals.

Only in Montreal Forum have they been able to come up with good showings. There they beat the Canadiens once and held them to a tie on another occasion.

Hull, Murray Balfour and Hay each scored last night and Hull turned aside 29 shots before a slim mid-week crowd of 6,963.

PREPARE FOR MEET

HAMILTON (CP)—More than 200 runners from Canada and the United States will take part in the cross-country championships. In the senior men's race at McMaster University campus, Gordon Dickson of the Hamilton Olympic Club will defend his title against Harry Kennedy of Detroit, runner - up winner of the event, and others, Michigan state runners are expected to prove strong contenders for the team championship.

Flyers Dump Petes 6-3, Irish Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers took a one-point lead atop the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Thursday night by overpowering Peterborough Petes 6-3.

The loss dropped Petes into second spot with nine points.

The standings took some more shuffling in the other game at Hamilton, where the Red Wings lost 3-1 to Toronto St. Michael's College Majors.

The win lifted St. Michael's to a third-place tie with St. Catharines Teepees. Hamilton, with only two wins in seven starts, is wallowing in the league cellar.

The Peterborough game erupted with flaring tempers in the second frame. A crowd of 2,829 fans saw Petes' Doug Senior and Gilbert of Flyers banished for fighting. Flyers drew 13, all 25 penalties.

FAIR TALLIES TWICE

Bob Awrey and Dave Nicholson were credited twice for the winners. Nelson Leclair and Ed Westfall each got one apiece. Wayne Boddy, Senior and Tom Carty scored for the losers.

St. Michael's hit pay dirt on power plays while Wings were sitting out penalties. Terry Clancy was in the box when Lowell McDonald connected in the first frame.

Dave Draper slapped in one while Jim MacLellan was off and then collected his second of the night when teammate Roger Galipeau and Hamilton's Ron Harris were serving fighting sentences. McDonald scored Hamilton's only goal before a hometown crowd of slightly more than 2,000.

Junior Loop Will Fold

OTTAWA (CP)—The Junior Interprovincial Hockey League probably will fold.

President Laurent Tessier is expected to resign at an executive meeting at Renfrew today.

The situation developed when Jean Volaire and Hull Education Club were unable to find adequate financial backing. George Maquire, manager of Ottawa Montagnards, claimed the championship started when Hull Social Canadiens took over the junior league's best playing dates at Hull, Que.

Other members of the league are Pembroke, Renfrew, Buckingham and Hawkesbury.

Greenberg Bows Out of LA

Washington Given AL Franchise

NEW YORK (AP) — The bedraggled American Baseball League, determined to go through with its plans to expand to 10 teams next year, today made available 56 players to be sold to the two new clubs—Washington and Los Angeles—for an aggregate $4,200,000.

Joe Cronin, league president, after awarding the Washington franchise to a 30-man syndicate headed by Kirkwood Spessels, administrator of the federal aviation agency, said a new club would definitely be placed in Los Angeles.

Hank Greenberg, who had been expected to head an operating syndicate in Los Angeles, bowed out, presumably because of commissioner Ford Frick's insistence that "equitable" indemnity be paid to Walter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers, for damages accruing to the pioneering effort in the west coast.

Cronin was certain the league would have no difficulty in selecting a suitable group for Los Angeles to round out the 10-club league. The league, after an all-day meeting Thursday, was scheduled to reconvene today.

INTERESTED PERSONS

"I know several people who are interested in obtaining a franchise and I expect some of them to be present at the meeting," said Cronin. "We will certain bids today."

So certain were the American League club owners in playing in Washington and Los Angeles in 1961 that they spelled out a plan to stock each new club with 28 men from the current 40 - man rosters of old clubs.

Each of the eight incumbents was obliged to designate a list of 15 players, seven of whom must have been on the club's active roster last Aug. 31.

Each club is required to sell seven players, at $75,000 a player. No more than four can be taken from one club by any one of the new clubs. All purchases must be made before midnight, Nov. 30. At the end of the player sale, each of the two new clubs will have purchased 28 players at a cost of $2,100,000.

Each new club also will be permitted to select two minor leaguers at $25,000 each after the completion of the annual minor league draft Nov. 28 at Miami Beach. This total of 30, eight more may be purchased for $25,000 each from the 16 farm comers from each of the American League club's farm system. That will give each of the new entries 38 players.

Hull Whips Beavers 6-2, Royals Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The hockey fanatics of Kitchener - Waterloo fought last season to obtain Cliff Pennington for their team. Today they wish they had never heard of him.

Thursday night in Hull, Que., the flashy centre opened and closed the scoring for Canadiens, who fortified their position atop the EPHL with a 6-2 victory over the Beavers.

It gave the Canadiens some breathing space over Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds, held to a 2-2 draw by Montreal Royals and now five points behind Hull-Ottawa's 23.

The Beavers blew a chance to grab third place to themselves and remain tied with Kingston, even with 16 points, Royals, with 12 points, also missed a chance to pull share last place with Sudbury.

Bluenoses Have Their Big Day Too

HALIFAX (CP) — Saturday, Nov. 26 will be an extra-big day for the Maritimes, although the game is still in its infancy.

Scheduled for Halifax's 7,000-seat Wanderers grounds is the Atlantic Bowl game and with it will go the parades, beauty contests and festival trapping of the Grey Cup game being played in Vancouver the same day.

Those attending won't have to miss the Grey Cup game. Halifax, on Atlantic time, is four hours ahead of Vancouver and the local festivities will be over in plenty of time for spectators to get back home to their television sets.

The football will be between University of Ottawa Ge Gees, champions of the Ontario Intercollegiate Conference, and the Atlantic Conference champions.

The Atlantic championship will be decided here Saturday between St. Francis Xavier University of Antigonish, N.S., and Stadacona Sailors. The undefeated X-men are strong favorites to repeat as champions.

PLAN PRE-GAME BALL

The social activity begins Nov. 25 with a round of receptions and the judging for the Miss Atlantic Bowl contest during a ball at the Shearwater Naval Base.

Football, introduced in the Maritimes only 16 years ago by navy teams, got a big boost this year with the formation of the Atlantic Conference, an amalgamation of the league in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. The PEI section also has teams from Prince Edward Island.

Until recently most Maritimes high school games played English rugby, but each year more schools switched to the Canadian game. This year, nine halfplay teams for youngsters 11 to 13 were formed and more are expected next year.

APC President Phil Carr-Harris, former player with Toronto Argonauts, says football is developing at the "grass roots" level in the Maritimes and predicts that within a few years the region will be supplying material for the professional leagues.

Thelen Rider Worry, Shatto To Play

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

"GEOFFRION WINGS THEM IN"

You don't have to be a mathematical genius to figure out that the faster the puck is shot the more chance it has to beat the goalkeeper. But in spite of this important fact few hockey players really concentrate on shooting hard. Boom Boom Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens is one outstanding exception.

Though the husky Canadien right winger is a fine all-round offensive player, it has been his powerful and explosive shot which has made him a star. And this trait didn't happen — Boom Boom spent hours practising shooting as hard as possible each and every time. This practice resulted in two things — a pair of powerful wrists and forearms and the habit of shooting hard. Most young players fail to develop really hard shots because they never achieve the muscular power needed and they, or their coaches, rarely emphasize an all-out effort to shoot hard.

Sports College tests have demonstrated that the average player can increase his shooting speed by as much as 25 per cent. through concentrated effort. This increases his goal scoring potential proportionately. If a whole team achieved the same results their total offensive power would be greatly strengthened. Why shoot at 50 M.P.H. when you can wind them in at 75 M.P.H.? For more hints on developing a hard shot send a stamped, self addressed envelope and 10c to Hockey Hints, 80 King Street W. Toronto (or my bullitin "Geoffrion, The Board Breaker".

OTTAWA (CP)—There is some concern in the Ottawa Rough Riders camp over the condition of fullback Dave Thelen.

The champion plunger of the Big Four Football League has a twisted ankle, is heavily taped, and has not been able to run in drills this week.

The Ottawa ground attack would be seriously handicapped without Thelen, the league's second-breaking ground - gainer the last two seasons.

Also on the limp are end Bill Sowalski and defensive halfback Gerry Nesbitt who had replaced Thelen earlier in the season as offensive fullback.

Thelen, Sowalski and Nesbitt are the only casualties listed as the Riders prepare to meet Toronto Argonauts Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the second game of the two-game total-points series for the eastern berth in the Nov. 26 Grey Cup game at Vancouver. Sunday's game will be televised nationally.

TOUR OPENER

Riders hold a 12-point edge as a result of their 33-21 win over Argos in Ottawa Saturday, so the event the teams are tied on at the round, after regulation time Sunday, there will be two 10-minute halves.

If they're still tied after that, the eastern title will go to Argos by virtue of their first-place finish during the regular schedule.

An overtime game would place Riders under a handicap. They would have to score while Argos would not unless Ottawa did.

Riders will leave here by plane Saturday at 5 p.m. and return at 7:45 p.m. Sunday by air. Fans plan an airport sendoff and a welcome home, whether Riders win or lose.

Confident of the outcome, some 100 Ottawa fans have purchased tickets for the Grey Cup game. Ottawa's early allotment is 2,500.

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts' fans have been asking themselves all week whether halfback Dick Shatto will play in Sunday's Big Four Football League final against Ottawa.

The only person they didn't ask was Shatto. And he says he'll play.

Shatto, a strong link in Argos' offence, sustained a bruised chest last Saturday when the Rough Riders took a 19-point lead in the first of the two-game total-points series by whipping Toronto 33-21.

A chief worrier was quarterback Tobin Rote, who rates Shatto as "one of the best halfbacks I've ever seen."

Many of Rote's passes are thrown at Shatto's outstretched hands.

PLAY BIG PART

The fate of Argos may well rest on these outstretched hands when they meet Ottawa here in the nationally televised game starting at 1:30 p.m.

"I'm still a little hampered in my arm movements. But I've still got three days of treatment left," said Shatto.

He said it still hurts to catch a pass.

Coach Leo Agase has more than ailments of his squad to worry about. Ottawa has a strong running attack and it may come in handy if the gridiron becomes a mud bowl. A torpedo was sent down on the field, but not before the turf was soaked. And rain is predicted for today.

If the teams are tied at the end of regulation play they will play two 10-minute overtime periods. If they are still tied Argos become champions and contenders for the Grey Cup in Vancouver Nov. 26. Ottawa, by their first-place finish at the end of the season.

Ticketa—and fnother 1,800. If Riders make it to Vancouver.

Minor Hockey

The Bombers took a 7-3 win over the Eskimos in a BMHA Juvenile game played this week at Memorial Arena.

Bobby Duggan and Gary Duval started the winners with a pair of goals apiece. Steve Galpin scored once and added two assists while Dennis Sinclair had one and Chris Dave Reid fired one other goal and Norm Richards drew an assist.

Hugh Pelmer trigered a couple of the Eskimo markers and Ernie Seames had the other. Ted Rowland and Rod Turner earned assists.

East Wins Overseas 'Grey Cup'

METZ, France (CP) — No rash conclusions should be drawn from the result but the Little Grey Cup this year goes to the East.

In a spectacle patterned on ceremonies that will be enacted in Vancouver before this year's real Grey Cup game Nov. 26, Eastern Canadian members of the RCAF's European Air Division defeated the West 33-6 last Sunday.

A crowd of 5,000, including Canadian and United States service personnel and local French citizens, watched the sixth annual Little Grey Cup game following a parade of 16 floats and bands.

Even the crowning of a Miss Grey Cup Europe was included and the title went to Leading Aircrwoman Carolyn Kulas of Swanson, Alta.

The overpowering eastern attack in the game was led by the three touchdowns of LAC Tom Thomas of Saint John, N.B.

Cpl. Rick Gans of Port Arthur and Flt. Sgt. Art Foster of Ottawa each added six-pointers and Cpl. Bill Parker of Ottawa converted all five.

LAC Barry Loma of Regina scored the West's only touchdown and Flt. Lt. Don West of Vancouver kicked two single points.

Over 'Ome Soccer Clubs Vote Strike

LONDON (AP) — England's soccer players Thursday voted to strike if their clubs fail to meet demands for more pay and better contracts.

The players' union now is studied to meet with English League officials and peace efforts in the labor ministry Tuesday in a bid to find a way out of the deadlock.

The players demand abolishment of the £20-a-week maximum wage to seek the right to negotiate their own contracts. Under current rules, a player is tied to one club for life unless the club wishes to transfer him.

The management of the 92-team English League recently turned down demands for pay raises, saying two-thirds of the clubs were in the red.

Western Hockey

CALGARY (CP)—Sid Finney rifled a breakaway shot past Harry Lumley with less than four minutes remaining in the third period Thursday night to give Calgary Stampeders a 5-3 victory over Winnipeg Warriors before 3,179 Western Hockey League fans.

Lou Jankowski added Stamps' fifth goal little more than a minute later.

Rookie Cliff Bristow made his first two goals big ones for Stamps after Ron Leopold had notched their first goal.

Lorne Davis, Ray Brunel and Barry Ross scored for Winnipeg.

This May Be All Right In a Pinch

HALIFAX (CP) — Mayor John E. Lloyd is willing to bet a half-dozen fresh Nova Scotia lobsters that Ottawa Gee-Gees get beaten in the second Atlantic Bowl football game here Nov. 23.

Mayor Lloyd made the challenge Thursday in a message to Mayor George Nelms of Ottawa. The Gee-Gees, Ontario intercollegiate champions, will meet the Atlantic Football Conference champs —either Stadacona Sailors or St. Francis Xavier University —in the bowl game.

All Grist For the Mill

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union have imposed a $5 surcharge on Grey Cup tickets purchased by non-holders of season tickets.

Holders of season tickets pay $1 extra for their allotment and $5 extra for each ticket above their quota based on the number of season tickets held.

Joe Ryan, Eskimos manager, said Thursday the club raised the surcharge to avoid a loss on handling the tickets, "a losing proposition for the Eskimos every year." He said the club paid for its share of tickets whether or not they were picked up by fans.

Eskimos Lick Wounds

Ploen Return Doubtful

WINNIPEG (CP) — The odds favoring rookie quarterback Vic-tor-son Cole as the one likely to direct Winnipeg Blue Bombers' attack against Edmonton Eskimos here in the deciding game of the Western Interprovincial Football Union final are growing steadily.

Bombers Bud Grant said Thursday night that veteran Kenny Ploen, removed from offensive duties because of a hand injury, will not return to quarterback Saturday's final game. "He is too be is 100-per-cent ready."

Ploen suffered a hairline fracture in a small bone of his throwing hand last Saturday as Winnipeg won the first game of the best-of-three series 22-16. He was used defensive safety with a cast protecting the right hand and until Monday as Edmonton won the second game 19-5.

Kickoff time is set for 2.05 p.m. EST with the winner representing the West in the Grey Cup at Vancouver Saturday, Nov. 26. The game will be televised by the CBC.

Grant said Ploen, who had been throwing the ball for short distances in workouts the last two days, has not been counted out. Bud has hopes.

UP TO PLOEN

"But we're leaving it up to him," Grant said. "So far, he doesn't look real good. He'll have to be 100 per cent. His punch throw wobbly passes. They have to be sharp and accurate, especially against a team like Edmonton."

Grant said "the whole practice schedule has been going along supposition that Cole will be the quarterback."

Cole, 22-year graduate of North Texas State, has been running Bombers. Grey Cup championship the last two years, well in practice.

At Edmonton, The Eskimos worked through a final 30-minute drill on their home grounds and prepared to take a plane to Winnipeg today.

Coach Eagle Keys said that defensive halfback Steve Bendiak, who suffered a bruised cheek in Edmonton's semi-final series against Calgary Stampeders, will play with a special protective mask. Tackle Toby Deese is a doubtful starter and halfback Cowboy Woodruff is definitely out. Both had injuries.

Keys said he feels the Eskimos must score 21 points to win. Although billed as the deciding game, it may not be. If the teams are tied at the end of regulation time, they will play two 15-minute overtime periods. If they remain tied after that, a fourth game will be played, with the time and date to be set by the WIFU executive.

Estimate 75 of 492 Divorces Granted in Quebec by Govt. Last Session Were Rigged

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—There are two ways to get a divorce in Canada—by proving a real case of adultery or by lying about it.

No one knows how many times the latter system was used in last year's 492 successful divorce actions. One estimate is that 75 of 492 Quebec divorces granted by Parliament at the last session were rigged.

Existence of phoney adultery evidence—much of it the so-called "hotel" type—has been confirmed not only by chairmen of Senate and Commons committees processing private divorce bills, but also by judges in provincial divorce courts.

A petitioner caught lying could spend up to 14 years in prison for perjury. But seldom is anyone caught. Almost all divorces cases rely on collusion between evidence and are uncontested.

Meanwhile, undetected perjury continues. Those campaigning for revision of Canadian divorce laws contend the root of the trouble is inability of unhappily-married couples to get divorces on any other grounds.

Except in Nova Scotia which recognizes cruelty as an additional cause for dissolution of marriage, adultery is the only ground in Canada—with minor exceptions.

WANT LAW CHANGED

At the fall session of Parliament Cliff Cates Fraser (Canso) [illegible] Arnold Peters (Timiskaming) will propose a new Canadian divorce law which could be offered—but not imposed—as an alternative to individual provincial statutes. It seeks to widen divorce grounds to include narcotics addiction, insanity, habitual drunkenness and desertion.

Chances of the bill being passed are slim. But even a limited public debate would serve the sponsors' secondary aim—to keep the Canadian public interest they stirred at the last session through their filibustering blockade on private bill and parliamentary divorce bills.

All provinces except Quebec and Newfoundland have their own divorce courts. Possibility of collusion and connivance in the Quebec and Newfoundland cases is implied by Parliament's role as the basic grievance of the CCF members. They wanted to shift these cases to a federal court, getting them out of Parliament. They complained of Parliament's constitutional inability to ensure the ends of collusion of "broken marriage—a provincial matter.

COLLUSION IN ONTARIO

Collusion also became the subject of an Ontario government investigation which turned up at least three divorce cases. Consecutively, the CBC interviewed—on television a Toronto model who claimed to be a professional divorce co-respondent, who had acted in 100 cases. Later she said her story was a hoax.

With public interest already excited, late in July a 45-year-old free-lance writer and photographer, William Eccles of Toronto, went before a Commons committee to contend that adultery evidence in his wife's divorce petition—previously passed by the Senate—was faked.

After rehearing the case, the committee rejected Mrs. Eccles' petition and ruled that her claim of adultery by her husband was "not proven." It sent the case to the Justice department for further investigation "having regard to the conflict of evidence as to collusion and connivance and as to possible perjury."

In that statement the committee touched on two of the three statutory bars to divorce—connivance and collusion. The third is condonation, which simply means that the divorce petitioner forgave the adultery and returned to cohabitation.

EVIDENCE FAKED

Connivance, as a legal term in divorce cases, means that husband and wife agree beforehand that one of them will commit adultery and the other will engage for detectives to get the evidence.

The main form of collusion occurs where one of the parties registers at a hotel with the or her correct name and then goes away without ever occupying the room, leaving detectives to fabricate a case of adultery from their imagination.

There also are discretionary bars to divorce decrees, which apply generally across Canada. A divorce court may refuse to grant a decree if it finds that the divorce petitioner has been guilty of adultery during the marriage, cruelty against the spouse, neglect or misconduct which was conducive to the other party committing adultery, desertion without a reasonable cause, unreasonable delay in launching the divorce action.

These are provisions of provincial laws and, also are followed generally by parliamentary divorce committees which do not operate under a law, as such.

ADULTERY SECONDARY

has a divorce on any ground it likes—or on no ground at all. In each divorce petition Parliament merely exercises its power to legislate in any subject it wishes, as long as it is within its constitutional authority. Each divorce requires a separate act of Parliament.

However, Parliament has developed its own customs and procedures from which it rarely, if ever, bodges. No parliamentary divorce has ever been granted on any ground except adultery, although it's no secret that in many cases adultery evidence ranks a distant second to proof of cruelty or desertion.

Robert McCleave, Conservative MP for Halifax and chairman of the Commons committee handling divorce bills, says:

"When you get a divorce case where the woman can prove that she had been beaten to a pulp or that her husband doesn't look after her or the children or that he has given her a disease or something like that, I don't think we look any further.

"The real can be just like the crashing of an irrational prayer wheel. They can go through the formula but we say that here's a case in which collusion obviously should not continue."

ANNUL MARRIAGE

Mr. McCleave estimates that half the cases going through Parliament—about 492 this year — are legitimate beyond question.

"A few more fall into perhaps the borderline category but I'll give them the benefit of the doubt. And about 150 are hotel-motel—and that's 75 per cent of those are dishonest, or rigged."

Senator Arthur Roebuck, Ontario Liberal who is chairman of the Senate divorce committee which initiates the proceedings in private divorce action, agrees.

He cites the case where a marriage has broken up, for one spouse to "another, and no longer exists except technically. How do you give that effect to the marriage?

"There's only one way, and that is for one or the other of them to commit adultery—or at least to go to court and admit adultery—so that witnesses can come forward to testify and make them in an embarrassing position.

". . . And we all know it is not true, that the marriage broke up for other reasons than that from that of adultery, and that the Divorce Court or other of the parties committed adultery for the very purpose of getting the divorce."

WOULD UPSET BALANCE

Why can't Parliament grant divorces on grounds other than adultery?

Partly it is a matter of convention or custom. But there is a more practical reason: Wider grounds in Ontario would lead to a flood of divorce petitions to parliamentary committees which would complain of being overworked by nearly 500 petitions a year.

Anyone in Canada may apply to Parliament for a bill of divorce. But as long as Parliament continues to...ntact divorce bills only on the ground of adultery, there is no advantage in coming to Ottawa from a province that has its own divorce laws.

Parliamentary procedure costs more than action in provincial courts. Parliament also has the power to make judgments on alimony and child custody, thus forcing a separate action in the province concerned on that aspect.

Day Dreams of TV Watcher Will Never Come True

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Daydreams of a dedicated television watcher:

The time when the sponsor's scouring powder doesn't do a thing for half the stain in the dirty sink and brandX cleans its half sparkling white.

The time when the housewife in the cola-operated laundry picks the pile of clothes washed by detergent X as cleaner-looking than the sponsor's pile.

The time when the spokesman chokes over the words, "Filter" and cigaret.

The time when the ballplayer draws blood with the sponsor's superior blade.

The time when the 1961 automobile has a blowout and skids into a ravine while maintaining mountain curve.

The time when the hungry collie rakes up to a dish of the sponsor's dog food, then backs away in disgust.

The time when the model's hair is out of the home permanent curlers all frizzy and dry.

The time when the beer puts fist and headless into the glass.

The time when the smiling housewife slips and falls on the freshly waxed kitchen floor.

Speaking of commercials, the U.S. federal trade commission recently issued a com plaint charging that a maker of a shaving cream mixed toothpaste with his product for a commercial showing a skin diver shaving under water. The manufacturer says, however, he has time proving the accuracy of the commercial . . . and speaking of shaving, a committee investigating television it is common practice to use shaving cream to demonstrate the "rich suds" of shampoos because the rich suds don't stand up on hair long enough to shoot the scene. . . . Variety, the show business paper, has hinted that sponsors are withdrawing from a number of new shows to which they were committed only for 13 weeks.

Tour of Duty For Canadians To Be Shortened

OTTAWA (CP)—The army favors a new makeup for Canada's Standby United Nations peacekeeping force, informants said Wednesday.

The army would prefer to keep its readiness for UN duty a force of technicians rather than an infantry battalion. The battalion now designated for UN duty is the 2nd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment at London, Ont.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the tour of duty for Canadian soldiers serving with the UN force in The Congo will be six months instead of the normal year because of harsh climate and other conditions. The tour of duty in Egypt and Indochina is one year.

Not all soldiers will be relieved in The Congo as soon as the six-month period is up next February, however. Rotation will depend to some extent on technicians available so that it is possible that some soldiers may remain in The Congo eight or 10 months.

There are approximately 250 Canadian soldiers and RCAF personnel in The Congo. The U.S. federal trade commission recently issued a com plaint charging that a maker of a shaving-cream mixed toothpaste with his product for a commercial showing a skin diver shaving under water. The manufacturer says, however, he has time proving the accuracy of the commercial . . . and speaking of shaving, a committee investigating television it is common practice to use shaving cream to demonstrate the "rich suds" of shampoos because the rich suds don't stand up on hair long enough to shoot the scene. . . . Variety, the show business paper, has hinted that sponsors are withdrawing from a number of new shows to which they were committed only for 13 weeks.

Giant Balloon Satellite Gets Closer to Earth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Echo I, the giant balloon satellite, is gradually bringing closer to the earth at greater speeds and is rushing farther out into space on progressively shorter orbits, the space agency reported Thursday.

This means that Echo's orbit will be becoming increasingly elliptical in shape because of the pressure of sunlight on its aluminum-coated plastic skin, National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientists say that this progressive distortion of the satellite's orbit will continue until mid-December.

Then, as the sun's position with regard to the earth and Echo I changes and sunlight pressure diminishes, the satellite will return to the more-nearly-circular orbit it had at its launching August 12.

Nasa said Echo I had completed 1,173 orbits as of 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Hon. Howard Green, Apostle Of Disarmament, Looks Like Diplomatic Gary Cooper

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. Howard Green, apostle of disarmament, looks like the Gary Cooper of diplomacy.

But he has none of Cooper's reputed shyness when it comes to talking about disarmament.

Almost sledgehandedly, he backed the Canadian government away from acceptance of American military hardware.

When he took over the external affairs portfolio June 4, 1959, the government had already committed itself to arming the Canadian services with nuclear weapons.

Mr. Green argued that cost could not preach disarmament while acquiring new arms, especially nuclear ones. By June of 1960 the government was saying it had yet decided whether the nuclear weapons would be obtained for Canadian forces.

In June, too, Mr. Green kept the issue of disarmament alive even after his cherished hope of some East-West agreement at Geneva in the summer of 1960 were cruelly shattered by the Soviet stak-out from the meeting.

WOULDN'T GIVE UP

Even after Soviet Premier Khrushchev's walk-out at the United Nations, Mr. Green kept pressing for resumption of disarmament negotiations.

He was against waiting for any big meeting of the minds of the fact. He was in favor of immediate adoption of small "package deals" of balanced concessions on both sides.

Mr. Green is used to an uphill fight. He was a member of the Progressive Conservative opposition in the Commons for 22 years before his party finally came to power.

He once told a friend he didn't give a damn about the next big long hours, day and night, in the Commons. He knew that sitting in the government was a much better one than two decades in opposition.

In the opposition, the tall, lean and hawk-faced Vancouver lawyer was noted for his grinding persistence, especially during consideration of spending estimates. It h s wanted an answer to a certain question, he would rise in the Commons in session half the night until he got it.

Nowadays, when the opposition uses the same tactic Mr. Green accuses them of "whining." And, he adds with a smile, he knows what he's talking about because he was one of the biggest whiners of them all.

Mr. Green heads a department of External Affairs composed of 800 of them foreign service officers. The department was established in 1909 but the first legation abroad—Paris—was not established until 1927. Canada now has representatives in more than 30 countries. The department's annual budget is more than $80,000,000, most of it for foreign economic aid.

Mr. Green was born at Kaslo, B.C., Nov. 5, 1895, and was educated there and at the University of Toronto. He served overseas in the First World War with the Canadian Infantry Battalion and one of his closest friends is fellow Vancouver lawyer Herridge, CCF MP for Kootenay West.

He picked up the nickname "Gary" during the war when another Green with that nickname started derailed thus leaving a spare nameplag lying around unused.

He was first elected to the Commons in 1935 and has been returned in every subsequent general election.

The Conservatives assumed office June 21, 1957, Mr. Green was appointed works minister and acting minister of defence production. He immediately drew the private anger of some MPs and wardheelers by declining to have anything whatever to do with patronage.

Mr. Green was also government House leader at this time and won a reputation for effection is not too strong a word —of the opposition.

Prime Minister Pearson Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister, and Mr. Green are the Commons that he had to be careful what he said. He charmed out of his shoes by Mr. Green and thus forget the opposition's role of criticizing the government.

Mr. Green dislikes travelling and until his appointment as external affairs minister had not been back to Europe since the First World War.

His two sons, Lewis and John, live at Manotick, Ont., and Agassiz, B.C., respectively and Mr. Green is fond of playing with his grandchildren. After the death of his first wife, the former Marion Mouser of Vancouver, Mr. Green married the former Donna Kerr of Duncan, B.C., in 1956.

O. Channon by Day Editor Of Quebec Paper, Nights and Sundays Presbyterian Pastor

By JOHN YORSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—When Owen Channon was in high school in Westmount, Que., in the 1930s he couldn't decide between a career in the ministry or newspaper work.

"Today," he says with characteristic tongue-in-cheek humor, "I still can't make up my mind."

He has resolved the problem by choosing both. By day he is editor of the Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph. At night and on weekends he's a Presbyterian minister.

He tries to keep the jobs separated although, he admits, they sometimes overlap, "thanks to the telephone."

"As far as this job is concerned," he said, waving his hand around his cluttered cubicle at The Chronicle-Telegraph, "the Reverend Owen doesn't come here at all."

Sometimes he leaves the newspaper office to go directly to a function requiring his service as a minister. Then he'll slip on a clerical collar "and become my other self."

RAIL SWITCH POINT

But most of the time there is a spot in his daily routine where the change from one personality to the other takes place. It's at the railway crossing on the 13-mile drive in his station wagon between his office and his Valcartier home.

"Driving home I come to the tracks and often say to myself: 'Well, I'm a Reverend Channon again,' and on the way back I become Editor Channon."

Newspaper work brought Mr. Channon here in 1953 as editor-in-chief of The Chronicle - Telegraph. Holder of a bachelor of divinity degree from Presbyterian College, Montreal, he was asked to preach one Sunday in Valcartier in a church that had been without a regular minister for more than 20 years. He returned periodically and within a year agreed to become its full-time minister.

His pastor's salary from the 75-member congregation. Money that would normally go into a minister's salary is used instead for missionary and other work. He works about 50 hours a week as the Rev. Mr. Channon and another 40 as Editor Channon.

JOBS NOT INCOMPATIBLE

"Preaching is pretty much like writing editorials, in that you're dealing with words," he says. "The purpose may differ but words are the ammunition used to convey the message and the work is not that far apart.

"I'm hired to do a job on the newspaper and I intend to live up to it. I know what the policy of the publisher is and I try to follow it. It's possible that my other self may from time to time disagree. But I don't think it shows."

At 42, Mr. Channon has been in the newspaper business off and on since 1934 when he graduated from Westmount High School and started in the business office of the defunct Herald in his native Montreal. He became a reporter in 1937.

He joined The Canadian Press in 1941 and worked for the national news cooperative in Montreal, Quebec and Toronto until 1945.

Toward the end of the Second World War he entered McGill University, graduating in 1946 with a BA. He graduated from divinity school in 1951, winning the John Calvin Gold Medal for highest scholastic standing in his class.

Two years later he came to Quebec to become editor-in-chief of The Chronicle - Telegraph, founded by early English-language daily. As editor he writes editorials and has a hand in running the newspaper's newsroom.

A sturdily-built 210 - pounder who stands five - foot - 11, Mr. Channon speaks in the same mild-mannered voice whether in the pulpit or giving orders in newsroom.

Married to the former Marian Adams of Tendavia, Idaho, he is the father of five daughters ranging from 5 to 17.

PUBLISHER ON BOARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of Charles Gwyllym Dunn, 74, president and publisher of the Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph, as a Quebec member of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada was announced Wednesday.

EDITOR AND PREACHER — Owen Channon, editor-in-chief of The Chronicle-Telegraph, Quebec City's only English-language daily, spends 40 hours a week as editor and about 50 unpaid hours as Presbyterian minister for a small church in nearby Valcartier. He started in newspaper work when he graduated from high school in Montreal in 1934 and later entered McGill University where he graduated from the divinity school in 1951. (CP Photo).

Wrong to Make OHSC Staff Civil Servants

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. R. W. Ian Urquhart, chairman of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, said Wednesday, it would be inadvisable to make the OHSC staff civil servants.

Appearing before the Ontario legislature's select committee on the administrative and executive problems of government, Dr. Urquhart said the commission's employees might regard such a move as "a breach of faith" on the part of the government.

He said he understood that the co-operation of the Ontario Hospital Association, the hospitals and the Ontario Medical Association was predicated on the understanding that the hospital insurance plan would be administered by an organization other than the civil service.

A move to bring the organization within the orbit of the civil service at this particular time might be regarded with apprehension and distrust as a step toward state control of hospitals and medical services," he said.

Attorney - General Roberts, committee chairman, replied to one criticizing the OHSC, but the trend in government seems to be to bring OHSC in civil service as many employees of agencies and commissions as possible.

Ernest Carlisle, Carmel, Mrs. and Mrs. John Rainie and Mrs. Emma Rainie, Wellman and Mrs. Thos. Laycock, Bethel.

Mr. and Mrs. Elden Walt, Consecon, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Will Potts.

Mrs. John Morgan was badly cut about the face when she was in a two-car collision near Alan's Hills. She was taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital and it required several stitches to close the gashes.

The November meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon W.M.S. was cancelled, as there were two funerals in the community.

Uneasy Calm Prevails, Three Judges Study School Case

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—An uneasy calm settled over this troubled city today when a federal judge court decided what course school integration will take.

The judge—all southerners, considered these paths:

They can put off integration until emotions subside and a federal - state bugle unravels the order that admitted four Negro first-grade girls to two white schools.

Or they can dismiss legal action against Louisiana which blocks its legislature from using New Orleans schools on a segregated basis.

New Orleans' first public school integration since the late 1800s brought a week of school boycotts, unruly protest demonstrations and street fights.

Tension finally cooled as schools reopened for the week to allow teachers to attend state-wide conventions in Baton Rouge and for the Thanksgiving holiday.

The court's decision could set in motion the lowering of the traditional segregation barrier in the city's Roman Catholic schools.

Catholic officials say parochial first-grade classes will admit Negro pupils next fall if public school racial mixing is working. Of some 46,000 pupils in New Orleans' 70 Catholic schools, about 8,700 are Negroes.

In Baton Rouge, Louisiana's state legislators toned down their tempers and called for an end to violence. The legislature adjourned until Wednesday and turned the case over to the federal court's action.

Gov. Jimmie Davis' request to suspend integration — until federal-state differences resolved — came before the school board. The state contends it has full sovereignty over public education.

Samuel Rosenberg, the board's lawyer, told the special session Friday the dispute could force Orleans' New Orleans schools through loss of funds.

The school board earlier indicated it would ask federal funds as a result of state efforts to cut off integration.

U.S. Says Cuba Acquires Huge Stock Of Soviet Arms But Castro Moderates Tone

Think Kremlin May Have Advised Him to Stop Rattling Red Rockets

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials pictured Cuba today as building up a huge arsenal of Soviet-bloc military weapons in spite of revolutionary movements throughout the Caribbean area.

The state department announced Friday night that the government of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro already has imported 26,000 tons of arms through ports of Communist countries, including 45,000 from Communist Czechoslovakia; 10,000 subversion kits; 5,000 rifles; 20 heavier weapons and 10 Soviet helicopters.

BIGGEST ARMY

The state department said Castro now has the largest army in Latin America. His militia was built up from Communist and officials estimated that his regular army totals 40,000.

Russia and Red China are cooperating in the supply of arms to Cuba, it said, to the state department said, because they "apparently desire to spread Communist influence by burdening the Cuban economy with excessive arms expenditures and to support the aggressive policies of the Cuban prime minister."

Washington officials expressed the hope that disclosure of the Cuban arms information, evidently obtained from intelligence sources, would warn other nations throughout the hemisphere of the danger of serious Communist-directed trouble-making by Castro.

Privately, officials put their fears in blunter terms. The Communists have, they said, a perfectly using Cuba as a base for encouraging unrest with which to supply revolutionary movements wherever there is an opportunity to stir up serious trouble.

HAVANA (AP) — The muting of Fidel Castro's rocket-rattling warnings to the United States heightened speculation here today that Moscow has advised him to take a more moderate course in his dealings with Washington.

The Kremlin's hand may be behind the lessening of attacks in the government press against President Dwight D. Eisenhower during U.S. Navy ships and planes set up defensive patrols off Guatemala and Nicaragua.

The Eisenhower warning came result of a request from Guatemala and Nicaragua that the United States prevent successful revolts against their governments in the last year of Eisenhower's term in office.

Castro's newspapers and radio made no mention of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's and President Eisenhower for ordering U.S. Navy ships and planes set up defensive patrols off Guatemala and Nicaragua.

Official City Plan Expects City's Population Will Climb To 40,000 in Two Decades

A population figure which, according to present growth, could be expected to reach 40,000 by 1978, is forecast for Belleville in the official City Plan recently received at city hall from Urban Planning Consultants in Toronto.

The estimated figure is based on population growth in the city since the last annexation, which is considerably higher than the actual population growth since 1871.

The official plan for the entire city includes suggested policy for development aimed at encouraging the trade and growing the economy of Belleville.

The plan notes present conditions and facilities in the city and attempts to look into the future, with the aim of providing facilities that would be required to provide the needs for increased population.

LACK SHIPPING

The lack of deep water shipping facilities Belleville can not hope to compete on the same basis with industrial centres in southern Ontario for heavy industry, the report states, but points that Belleville lacks air transport and limited highway 401 is completed will not be the only need to improve communication with other areas.

The development policy for Belleville is a program of industrial development based upon new techniques and new industries to be instituted.

The planning policies of the city will depend on the development presently being done to develop and encourage training and industry for the community, and specialized and easily transported finished products.

Further commercial development could take place following the needs revealed by the survey pursuance towards higher technological development and specialized products.

AGRICULTURE BACKBONE

Agricultural development, will always form the background for a healthy economic framework and Belleville should encourage agricultural marketing as well as agricultural education in the Moira Valley and Prince Edward county. Any measure of effective assistance would reflect itself in economic stability, the report states.

Suggested zoning of lands for residential, commercial, and industrial is contained in the report.

Industrial locations are of primary importance and early passing of a zoning by-law to establishing lands for industrial use, is urged.

Redevelopment of lands where so called "derelict" homes now exist is recommended in the report. Some of these areas are designated as future industrial areas.

The report says that the downtown Belleville commercial area requires improvement. One way of encouraging people to live is restrict its use to (C-2) but definite areas with strict policy of permitting expansion only after existing commercial space is substantially used.

Residential use in the downtown area should be discouraged and spaces presently vacant should be improved and occupied for commercial purposes.

NEED PARKING AREAS

In order to encourage redevelopment in the downtown area concentration of commercial use should be kept high. To compensate, the municipality should acquire additional lands for off-street parking.

It is agreed that certain other commercial facilities would be required outside the downtown area, but it is recommended that zoning regulations call for minimum-sized shopping areas with yard requirements, parking, loading height, buffer and construction requirements acceptable to such a project.

According to the official plan, adequate open space or greenbelts would be designated. Existing greenbelts, parks and playgrounds in the city total 138 acres. The 1978 requirement would be 270 acres.

In general the greenbelt land would be along the Moira River banks, and along the shore of the Bay of Quinte.

POLLUTION PROBLEM

Pollution of the Moira River and the Trent River is said to be seriously affecting Belle-ville's water supply and special engineering studies in conjunction with the Ontario Water Resources Commission are recommended to evaluate the future water resources required by the municipality.

It is suggested also that steps be taken in conjunction with the Department of Transport for the establishment of a municipal airport to serve Belleville and the local area with air transport.

Highway No. 2 leading through the city from Hastings Drive to the western limits is stated to be "totally inadequate" for the traffic generated outside the area and it cannot be expected that even completion of 401 highway would reduce traffic on this artery for any appreciable period.

Therefore, the report states, it is extremely important to improve the east-west traffic capacity of No. 2 highway in the city area.

URGE NEW BRIDGE

And here Urban Planning Consultants recommend what has been a dream of Belleville residents for many decades, another bridge across the Moira River.

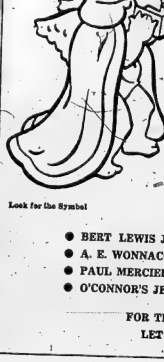
The positive geographical features of Belleville are listed along with the negative aspects.

The present city area is listed at 12,852 acres of which 1,712 are water. The 1959 population of the city is given as 18,700.

City Planning Committee Chairman, Alderman Dr. John Barlow, notes that neither city council nor the Belleville and Suburban Planning Commission has approved of the new official plan but comments will be sought both bodies, as well as from the general public, are being invited.

To this end a public meeting is expected to be called in the near future at which time comments and possible criticism on the suggested plan will be invited.

White Cheese 32 Cents Here



A total of 8,137 boxes of cheese were offered for sale on Belleville Cheese and Exchange this week, the average price for white being 32 cents and for colored 32 5-16 cents.

Of the total cheese offered 2,106 were specials, 3,260 were No. 1 grade white, and 1,418 were first grade colored.

At the Stratford exchange this week the price received was 31½ cents for white and 32 cents for white cheese, 1,118 colored and 381 specials offered. Ninety-seven boxes were held.

Market Grows Smaller as Winter Nears

Although the local market is getting smaller now that winter is approaching, the quality of the produce being offered is by no means deteriorating.

Today, for instance, only about a dozen district farmers came to town and set up their stalls on the market square. By mid-morning, the shoppers had not come but in their usual numbers, but the farmers reported they were satisfied that by late in the day much of their produce would be sold.

Someone onte said there is nothing new under the sun. Much the same could be said for today's market. There was nothing for sale that had not been offered in abundance during the past several weeks except, of course, that it was colder. The vegetables were the same. So were the prices. Fruit prices were the same, although delicious apples were up to $3.50 a bushel some places and $2.25 at others.

Eggs went at 60 cents a dozen large, 55 cents for medium and 45 cents for small.

Fowl was offered at 40 cents a pound dressed, while roasting chickens went at 55 cents a pound dressed.

Inside the market building was a fine assortment of home baking and handicraft going at various prices.

Councillor Fraser Tells Kiwanis Club About Town's Problems During Past Year

TRENTON — At Thursday night's meeting of the Kiwanis Club, Councillor D. R. (Nick) Fraser, immediate past-president of the club, spoke to his fellow members on municipal government with particular reference to Trenton council's problems during the year.

Councillor Fraser said that misquoting Gilbert and Sullivan, "a councillor's life was not a happy one." He said that a councillor must make decisions and stand or fall by them.

"That which is everybody's business is nobody's business," Mr. Fraser said, "and this is true in municipal affairs. Every-one criticizes, but few people offer constructive criticism."

He deplored the attitude of individuals who fully intend to run for public office but refuse to say an until the last minute, thus giving the voters no chance of examining the various platforms of the candidates and judge them.

The councillor outlined the circumstances surrounding several contentious issues which have faced council during the past year. He said that the beginning of the year, council had considered it would be a wise move to subsidize the building of a new section of the Wooler Road. This would have cost the town $35,000. Trenton would have received several side benefits from the construction of this road, but when the budget was struck in March, it was found that this sum could not be used for this purpose.

The town zoning bylaw has been another bone of contention with many Trenton residents, he said. He explained that the preferred way of handling the situation would have been to have an official plan first, then a zoning bylaw. This way, a committee of adjustment could have been set up to deal with minor variances to zoning. However, this had not been done and, Mr. Fraser praised members of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board for the way in which they had handled many difficult situations which had come up since the zoning bylaw was passed.

BIG ISSUE

Councillor Fraser said that education had been a big issue this year. He said he would have liked to see school boards in any controversy and he said that results had proved that the board had been right in the stand it had taken in the staff-board impasse last spring.

"I feel that we're missing the point which exists in Canada at the present time," Mr. Fraser said. "We make huge capital investments in buildings which are used for a few hours a day only."

He wondered if some system would not be worked out whereby staggered classes could make better use of the schools. He also suggested that the shortened holiday could be shortened and the students given holidays throughout the year to make up for this.

Mr. Fraser said that in the ambulance issue, he had voted to subsidize the present ambulance service after examining several other alternatives, which, in every case, would have been more expensive to the taxpayer. This issue he had voted upon at the coming municipal elections.

He said council had decided that persons living outside town enjoying the services, should pay in excess for these services. He said this was one way of encouraging people living in the fringe areas to petition for annexation.

"A town must protect its fringe areas," he said, "otherwise, the residents of these areas could be subject to building practices, which proves to be detrimental to the town unless taken into the corporation."

SIGN AGREEMENT

In reference to individuals having built structures out onto street allowances, he said that street allowances, he said that persons to sign agreements with the town to the effect that neither they, nor their heirs, would obstruct the town from using the allowances should the occasion arise.

Mr. Fraser said that many citizens criticized council for allegedly spending money recklessly. He said he had be found out in his first year as councillor that there are many facets of municipal spending over which council has little or no control. He said that such improvements as a sanitary sewer disposal system and new schools did not come under the jurisdiction of council.

"Trenton is in a transitional stage," Mr. Fraser said. "We have a caviar regime on a bread and butter income."

Mr. Fraser expressed himself as being in favor of amalgamating departments of public works and sanitation and waste, and carrying on the town's maintenance of public works department. He said that the system engineer had come in for a lot of unjustified criticism this year. He said that there is no doubt about responsibility within council's various committees.

Staff Donations To Hospital May Reach $3,000

TRENTON — Staff donations for the Trenton Memorial Hospital extension are well ahead of expectations and the campaign within a campaign presents a mark for individual people in the town and the district to shoot at.

In July, hospital purchasing agent Mrs. Agnes Williamson sparked the movement to make collections from the staff members. The objective was set at $1,000.

She explained that the enthusiasm blossomed after the beginning and bloomed quicker than anyone imagined. As a result the total sum reported to date is near $1,700 and more pledges are forthcoming. There is every reason to believe the $3,000 mark will be reached and possibly exceeded. Subscriptions are now being sought from members of the hospital's medical staff. This particular project is open only to hospital executives and employees.

The extension designed to double the hospital's present accommodations and service is costing $775,000. The Board of Directors has appealed to local and district people to provide $150,000 of this sum.

No Indication Who Will Run for 3 Seats

TRENTON—This year, candidates for public office in Trenton seem to be reluctant to come forward and say whether they choose to run or not.

With three positions on town council to be filled, Councillors D. R. Fraser and R. J. Whitley have indicated that they will stand for a second term. Councillor H. G. Aits is as yet undecided.

Mayor James MacDonald and Councillors Graham Lange and McNair will automatically all on council for another year.

On the Board of Education side of the municipal picture present members T. S. Ketcheson (1940 chairman), Paul Tripp and Lew Phinney say that they will run for office, if nominated. J. C. Dobby, retired C.N.R. and Electronfcs, has thrown his hat in the ring as a candidate for a seat on the board.

Board members F. J. (Pete) Aits, George Green, Robert Hollow and Frank Fillion said they are undecided.

Charles Hilton, a local plumbing contractor, has announced that he will stand for election to a seat on the Public Utilities Commission.

Albert E. Atkinson, this year's chairman of the commission, will again seek the support of the voters in the elections December 5th.

Robt. Cockburn To Be Candidate For Mayoralty

PICTON — "I will be a candidate for mayoralty of Picton and will run against all comers", Robert Cockburn stated yesterday.

"I have definitely decided that I will contest the office and I am hoping that all other offices will be contested. I feel that there is a good deal of dissatisfaction with many things, and that the public should be given an opportunity to express their opinion through the ballot box", Mr. Cockburn added.

Mr. Cockburn recently stirred up considerable interest in municipal affairs when he called a public meeting to discuss municipal matters. Most of his criticism was aimed at Mayor H. J. McFarland and included the waterworks and sewerage system and the County Centre.

Mr. Cockburn served as reeve of the town after being a councillor several years. He contested the mayoralty against the late J. C. Cooper and since then, some 13 years ago, has not sought a council seat.

Mayor McFarland, out of town, was not available for comment but had indicated earlier that if Mr. Cockburn contested the mayoralty he would be a candidate. Mr. McFarland has been given acclamation for the past 12 years.

Nomination meeting in Picton is set for Queen Elizabeth School Thursday night, Nov. 24.

U.S. Tightens Purse-Strings

It would require a much greater knowledge of economics than we possess to accurately forecast the results of the retrenchment program initiated by President Eisenhower, apparently with the blessing of President-Elect John Kennedy.

Even granted this knowledge, the full results might not be impossible to predict because, as with most such programs, much may depend upon the way that is administered.

It would, however, seem obvious that many countries will find it bad news. Underdeveloped countries getting U.S. loans will be required to use most, and in some cases all, of the money to buy American goods. In some cases this may reduce the effectiveness of the loans, since similar goods might be obtainable elsewhere at lower prices.

Countries which previously found a ready market for goods in underdeveloped countries, shopping around money provided by the U.S., may find their products similar to those raised by Canada concerning the conditions under which the U.S. has shipped surplus products overseas.

Yet, in the final analysis, surely one cannot blame U.S. for its attitude if there is. Indeed, an urgent necessity to curtail spending abroad in order to protect the soundness of the dollar and avoid devaluation.

Incidentally, the new regulations may help the U.S. in the phase of the cold war, enabling it to compete more effectively with the Russian foreign aid program.

Russians, of course, have always limited their aid in the same manner as that being followed by the U.S.

No rubles have ever found their way outside the Iron Curtain as the result of Russian loans to needy nations.

It is worth noting, too, that the proviso foreign aid be spent for U.S.-produced goods will serve to stimulate employment in the U.S., at a time when that country, like Canada, is experiencing difficulty in providing jobs for all its would-be workers.

All these are superficial observations. We shall, doubtless hear, in the course of the next few weeks, a variety of opinions from economists. Only time, though, will provide us with a full and accurate picture of the meaning of this development.

King of the Films Dead

There is something incongruous about Clark Gable being, almost comfortably, in bed, the victim of a heart attack.

It is out of character with the type of man Gable portrayed in so many movies, all of the portrayals different, yet with all of them basically the same.

If this were all, it would only serve to point up the difference between Hollywood's world of make-believe and real life—but in real life Gable had lived as he did in his films. He had worked at hard, manual jobs, the boy, oil field worker and factory hand, had fought gallantly, enlisting in the U.S. Air Force at the age of 41, flying in a plane rather than at a desk. He had loved frequently, being wed five times, yet had escaped any suggestion of being a playboy.

He jumped into stardom in a gangster's role in a picture whose most sensational scene had him slapping Norma Shearer—but while his screen roles were frequently tough they were seldom brutal and never sadistic. He was not a great actor—and never claimed to be. But he was able to make plausible even the most unlikely characters. There were those who hated him for his success, but there were not automatically divided his admirers by their sex—men as well as women loved seeing him on the screen and men, as well as women, were amongst the much smaller number of those who disliked him. There was a universality to his appeal which sustained it throughout three full decades, in which the movies came of age.

He was a man whom many men would have liked to have been—and whom many women would have liked to have known.

Miracles of the Universe
Other Planets

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 24

Are there other planets in the Universe which support life?

To this course we will discuss what other life looks like and how life begins, but for the moment let's just limit our discussion to the simple question posed above!

Some people feel that when you look at what man has done with the earth, there's not much logical in looking to find other earths. But there is no sense in such a head-in-the-sand approach as that. So let's go planet hunting together.

A number of factors have been determined many scientists to believe that there are 100's of Millions of stars, if not billions of stars which have planets like our Solar System, requiring about them. Let's look at these factors for a moment.

(1) The evidence is clear from scanning the stars in the Universe that there is a common ordinary star, like 100's of billions of others. There is nothing unusual or exceptional about our Sun, and therefore, there is positive evidence that something like our Earth or our Solar System.

(2) There has been various estimates of how many stars there are in the Universe. Harlow Shapley estimates it at 100 billion, billion stars. With so many stars in the sky it is thought probably that our Sun's Solar System must differ greatly from many others. As I pointed out in another article this week, the concept that the Earth is not unique and may have been the exception in the Universe (and on all their planets) is nothing short of different kinds of atoms on Earth. The same atoms are common to stars (and all planets). Furthermore, man's body and animal's body are made up of the same common atoms. The same is true with plants and the soil—in fact, using special here on Earth. Our ingredients are common to everything in the Universe. We are made of what everything else is made of. No mystery of chemical or physical uniqueness, that has to Earth or his Sun.

(3) All the currently tenable concepts of the process of the formation of the Universe, our Sun and our planet, demand that the stars there are hundreds of millions, if not billions of times over elsewhere in the Universe. It is thought that the Earth and its Sun were born in a cloud of dust and about the same time as billions of other stars. This dust cloud, when a star had "pups", it seems logical to believe that billions of other stars have planets, too. Put another way, the currently accepted theory is that new planets form, make it hard to believe that the Sun's family is unique.

(4) Time is available.

Clearly, there are many reasons to believe there are likely billions of stars in the Universe with planets. How many of these planets are like our Earth is not a guess! Let me list, however, some of the requirements for life and in this way millions, if not billions of planets will fall by the wayside leaving perhaps one billion planets that would support life.

What are we looking for in a planet?

(1) The temperature must be above freezing and below boiling point of water, at least in liquid. This is a more demanding requirement than one might think. A) The planet cannot be too close to its star; B) the orbit must not be too eccentric, as it is at this it is about and A distance from the star; A strongly elliptical orbit would produce too much heat, then too much cold.

(2) Life involves a biochemical arrangement using carbon, nitrogen and liquid water, so this chemical environment must be available. (Water is made of hydrogen and oxygen).

(3) The planet must be large enough to have a sufficient density to hold an atmosphere. A strong enough gravitational force to hold an atmosphere once one is created. The atmosphere is not only for life to breathe but also to help screen out ultra-violet rays which would kill life here on Earth and attempt to establish itself and voilese

Life itself and evolves? Some life action by ultra - violet light is necessary. It has become apparent that the genetic code dictates the direction of inheritance and which are the blueprint of development of life have been altered or changed by stray radiation. Without the ozone layer, we might all still be green algae clinging to a rock (not even able to vote).

(4) The planet should have a non-poisonous atmosphere.

MUST ROTATE ON AXIS

(5) The planet should rotate on its axis not too rapidly enough so that the portion in the shade does not get too cold and the sun create too great a differential of temperature between day and night, or between one portion and another. The portion in the sun's light should not become too exposed either.

(6) The planet must not orbit around a double star. It is thought that over 50 per cent of the billions of stars appear as pairs or triples. A planet orbiting around a double star or triple star would have too eccentric an orbit as to be subject to extreme gravitational forces from two or more at a time. Even if it could exist, it is likely be unable to keep water in a liquid state.

Taking into consideration all of these "ifs and don'ts, there could still be millions of stars which have planets that are just right for life to become established, develop and thrive.

The final test would like to present is that it is possible that we may never see any planets other than those in our Solar System. This is so because these planets are dark and do not have their own and their reflection would be too weak from Earth. Furthermore, it would be difficult to see any such planets because of the glare given off by the star around which they revolve.

My own belief is that it is unlikely that man will escape far beyond from the earth, but other planet outside of the Solar System. We are limited to the Earth beyond the Sun in Alpha Centauri, which is a million miles an hour the voyage would last 2,000 years. At the speed of light it would take four years to reach that star.

Many scientists hold to the view that man's body could never stand such speeds, but if man could live forever and travel at the speed of light slowly as fuels and motors develop.

Letters From the Northwest

(Article 139 in the series sponsored by the Hastings County Historical Society).

(Editor's Note: The following articles were written and the Canadian Northwest by George F. C. Stanley of the Royal Military College, Kingston. The original Wrigley letters are in the possession of A. A. Scullion of Trenton, whose permission to make copies of them is gratefully acknowledged).

On March 5th, 1885, late at night word was flashed to various cities across Canada that Louis Riel had broken out on the banks of the Saskatchewan River in the Northwest Territories. Word was that Canadian troops had suffered a defeat at the hands of the Metis, and that the Permanent Force units, including the artilleries at Kingston and Quebec, and the Infantry School Corps were under orders to move to the west and that units of the Canadian Militia would be mobilized.

There was truth in these reports. On March 23rd the General Officer Commanding the Canadian Militia, Major General Frederick Middleton, had been closeted with the Minister of Militia and Defence, Honorable Adolphe Caron, and had received his instructions to start as early as possible for Winnipeg. The militia units had been completed between central Ontario and the prairies, but the General reached Winnipeg with only three. Among them was the famed the news of Duck Lake. Taking with him the 90th Rifles of Winnipeg he set out to search for Qu'Appelle in the District of Assiniboia.

HINDREDS VOLUNTEER

Meanwhile the excitement of war spread throughout Canada and hundreds of young men offered their services to carry the obnoxious Soldier-Settler rifle with which the Militia was armed. Canadian Militia units were equipped with the Snider-Enfield rifle but Louis Riel, his Metis adherents and his Indian supporters had the and every 7,000 men were mobilized. These no fewer than 9,338 militiamen.

Of the largely militia force, General Middleton, Major-General T. B. Strange, and Colonel W. D. Otter succeeded in conquering the Saskatchewan rebellion. The actual battles were those fought at Fish Creek and Batoche between the Metis and General Strange, pleased many of his listeners. Tempering his review of past events in the history of the village with recitations of various types, Mr. Herity emphasized the need of a more public spirit in the smaller residential towns. "We may travel far away but our home town always remains dearest and nearest to us," he declared.

Mr. Lorne O'Ray of the RCAF at Camp Borden spent the weekend with friends in Belleville.

Judge C. A. Cameron has been in St. Catharines for a few days this week.

20 YEARS AGO

Weekend activities in Stirling were centred about the 47th anniversary of the erection of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. A congregational banquet was held in the church parlors on Sunday evening, with Mr. J. O. Herity of Belleville being guest speaker for the occasion.

A former pupil of Stirling High School, he paid tribute to the men who were responsible for the establishment of the high school in that community among whom was Mr. T. F. Ward who was present and who has served for forty-two years on the Stirling School Board. Other prominent men, many of whom have since passed on, included such names as Metlike, John, Parker, Clute, Milne, Faulkner, Lazier. Middleton's men, Belochie, in particular, was a brilliant leader.

Among the militia battalions which served directly under Middleton were companies until called the Midland Battalion. The Midlanders comprised companies from the 15th (Belleville), 40th (Cobourg), 45th (Lindsay), 46th (Port Hope), 47th (Kingston), 49th (Stirling), and 57th Peterborough) Battalions.

The Midland Battalion was commanded by Lieut.-Col. A. T. H. Williams of Port Hope, it served a month part of March-October; for it was Williams and the Midlanders who led the charge on May 12th which brought the fighting at Batoche to an end.

TURNED TIDE

In his Order of the Day, Lieut.-Colonel Williams wrote with obvious pride and without discretion of the truth.

"The flank movement entrusted to us was so rapidly and determinedly made that it is admitted that by it the tide of victory was turned. Amid a shower of lead from the front and left flanks, the red line of the Midland Battalion, with the British cheer and pluck, through the entangling brush on the river slope, until the proper time arrived for the charge across the open prairie front to the top where the capital of the rebels, a distance of about three hundred feet. The response to this was a noble one, and would have been credit to the most experienced soldiers, as amid a shower of bullets the men rushed on with the cheers went up. The Midland had the honor of leading the front of the advance, and the Midland and the prairies, but were held by the rebels, as they emerged from the cellars of the settlement, and on to the reward for the noble-effort of the day, the victor ours."

"One or the volunteers who took part in the charge was Sullivan Thomas Wrighton of Belleville. Wrighton served as a private sergeant with the Midland Battalion and was slightly wounded in the left arm during the fighting.

WROTE HOME

While in the North-West, Wrighton wrote several letters to his friends in Belleville telling them of the adventures of later all, the Saskatchewan rebellion was the great adventure of his life. The three of Wrighton's letters, to be printed in succeeding articles are the simple, straight forward accounts by a responsible observer whose knew as much and as little, of what was going on as the average soldier; more significantly they reveal the normal reaction of the men in the ranks to a military operation which, small as it may appear to those who have taken part in the two world wars was important both in the history of Canadian Militia and in the history of the Canadian people.

The response to this was a noble one, and would have been credit to the most experienced soldiers, as amid a shower of bullets the men rushed on with the cheers went up. The Midland had the honor of leading the front of the advance, and the Midland and the prairies, but were held by the rebels, as they emerged from the cellars of the settlement, and on to the reward for the noble-effort of the day, the victor ours."

"One or the volunteers who took part in the charge was Sullivan Thomas Wrighton of Belleville. Wrighton served as a private sergeant with the Midland Battalion and was slightly wounded in the left arm during the fighting.

WROTE HOME

While in the North-West, Wrighton wrote several letters to his friends in Belleville telling them of the adventures of later all, the Saskatchewan rebellion was the great adventure of his life. The three of Wrighton's letters, to be printed in succeeding articles are the simple, straight forward accounts by a responsible observer whose knew as much and as little, of what was going on as the average soldier; more significantly they reveal the normal reaction of the men in the ranks to a military operation which, small as it may appear to those who have taken part in the two world wars was important both in the history of Canadian Militia and in the history of the Canadian people.

To be continued.

Mr. Herity emphasized the need of a more public spirit in the smaller residential towns. "We may travel far away but our home town always remains dearest and nearest to us," he declared.

November 19, 1930

After wandering aimlessly about in the bush north of Marmora since Saturday last, Norman Davies, 30, shell shocked veteran, stumbled upon the log of a farm house near the community of Millbridge seeking food and shelter. He stated that he had completely lost his bearings and could not find his way out of the bush until now.

Hunting parties are returning from various parts of the district laden with varying tales of luck, some good and some bad; but a motor truck was observed passing through Tweed yesterday with 18 deer dead.

The Dutch Fair which was held in the Belleville Town House under the auspices of the Women's Guild was a great success.

It is reported that 480 hunters and 250 hounds were north of Bancroft when one day last week. The train which carried them was four hours late in reaching Bancroft.

Mr. C. A. Cameron of Toronto has arrived in Belleville to take charge of the legal business of the late Thomas A. Wallbridge. Mr. Cameron has been connected with the legal firm of Blake, Lash, Cassels, MacDonnell and Gordon of Toronto.

Mr. John Burke of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, is spending a few days in town.

It is reported that a very valuable deposit of hematite iron ore has been discovered about a mile north of Madoc. It is said that there are about two to three million tons and that further tests show much more. The new line of the railway runs close to the property, so transportation will be easy.

NOT IMPORTANT FOR PATIENT TO KNOW BLOOD TYPE

Some inquiries about blood types prompt today's essay. One asks, "Shouldn't technicians examine a person each time before he or she is a blood donor? And shouldn't the blood type be determined?"

Another writes that 20 years ago "My blood was called Type Two. I understand that blood types are no longer called by number. I'd give anything to find out just what my blood type is. Why the mystery?"

Well, let's go behind the scenes, take a look, and find the answers.

First of all, if you made all the tests before a blood donor gave blood, it would take time. As a practical matter, it would usually be impossible to draw enough blood for the tests and then still get it back in the same body. Sometimes this is a hasty and life-saving fact.

Except in such emergencies, there is no reason to check the exact type, check for Rh factor, and in the future we may (or may not) find a better method to check for other characteristics. In an emergency, such as the M. Ng and M. type.

Suppose it happened to a Pigeon to know his own blood-type? I rather doubt it, because if he is in such urgent need of require transfusion at once. Type tests are valuable, and anyway, the patient is usually in such dire straits that he can't talk anyway.

As to a tag around the neck, well, in a battle, yes. In civilian life? What would you do, if you were a doctor? If the patient was in desperate condition, you'd use Type O in preference to taking a chance on what a tag said. Tags can be lost, traded or whatnot. If you has time, you'd check anyway. So a new test and cross-matching.

No, I don't think a person has to know. But if sheer curiosity demands that you find out, for a few dollars your doctor can get the answer for you.

Your type doesn't change. If it is once A, B, AB or O, it will always be.

THE CLEAR VISION

I believe that the very atmosphere contains the wraith-like essence of thoughts, feelings, desires of our beloved. Their love long ago, their prayers, their love into a lifeling spiritual belief. And much of the sustaining power that was theirs we have drawn on in the way of courage, patience, and divine belief.

We are lonely creatures, though not alone. Our Heavenly Father is always with us. This is the comforting piece of knowledge. He gives to each one of us a task. I like to state is the clear Vision. We can't see the whole picture but in our journey across Life. We clear need it as a spiritual inspiration. We need it for fuel 49 the Soul. We need it for encouragement purposes. We need it when low in morale. It's the clear VISION ahead we must strive for. It is upon which we call Life.

We also need our friends tried and true—to help us across the bridges of life. Life is not safely through dangerous traffic. We need replenishers to travel with us.

We all need as sojourns this life given to each one of us. Let us keep us out of the ruts, with a forward Vision for fresh and

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

When I saw the first of these new hats that are decreed as the fashion for this season. I resented myself that there was any other fashion that would not cater to the lazy loafer. Instantly I began to plan a tremendous publicity holdup in given to new style that sputters out like a damp squib.

But with the majority of women and girls you see downtown are still as surmounting, however, the number who have taken to the new hats is larger than I expected.

A Lift for Living

Seeds of Hope From Disasters

By DR. RALPH SOCKMAN

As we in the U.S. approach another Thanksgiving Day, we prepare to give thanks for the fruits of our labors. Truly we are grateful for the crops which the good earth has brought forth. We thank our Creator for the breath of life in our bodies and the light of reason in our minds. We shall gather in our homes as families and our hearts will swell with gratitude for the fidelities of love and the joys of friendship.

But when we lift our eyes to the larger world scene, we think it not easy to find grounds for gratitude.

Some years ago a father speaking before a group said: "I lost a son in the last war, and now when I look around and see what's going on I ask myself, 'For what did my son die?'"

What about those lads who gave their lives on the promise that they would help to free the world from war and injustice? Did their sacrifice bring forth any harvest of betterment?

When governments, decade after decade, keep summoning their citizens to die on the altars of their countries, men are bound to ask, "To what kind of a God have nations built their altars?" Remember, we always declare in war that we fight for God and country. If our God is a good God why does He allow them to kill one another, believing they are doing it for His sake? Yes, why does God, if He is a loving Heavenly Father, permit the disasters which befall us?

To be sure, we cannot see clearly behind God's curtain. His ways are higher than our ways, as the heavens are high above the earth. If we could understand God fully He would cease to be our God. His mystery is part of His majesty.

But in addition to the glimpses of God which we ordinary persons get, there are seers and prophets who peer farther into the recesses of the divine mind and purpose. The Bible contains an inexhaustible wealth of such insights.

And here on the eve of the Thanksgiving season I wish to look at, or rather with, one of these Biblical seers.

This prophet, whose name was Jeremiah, faced a world-situation which was smaller than ours but also darker. His country was rotting with corruption and threatened by foreign foes.

Jeremiah has left on record the account of his divine call in the first chapter of his prophecy. He writes "The word of the Lord came to me saying, 'Jeremiah, what do you see?' and I said, 'I see a rod of almond.'" Now what does that figurative remark mean? It means that Jeremiah saw the budding signs of hope, for the almond tree is the first to awake from the sleep of winter.

But read a little further. The record is, "The word of the Lord came to me a second time, saying, 'What do you see?' and I said, 'I see a boiling pot facing away from the north.'" The vision of the boiling pot was a symbolic reference to the danger facing his nation from the Chaldeans. Jeremiah was a realist. He saw both the signs of hope and the warnings of danger. This two-fold vision is mark of a true prophet.

Today the prophetic eye sees the perils but also the new possibilities, so fraught with frightening dangers. But if we can keep the cold war from breaking out into hot conflict it may prove the sowing time for a vast new crop of Christian convictions. The competition with godless communism should drive us to a deepened understanding of our Judaeo-Christian faith.

Consider also the heated discussion of religion in the recent political campaign. We can leave God to judge the motives which generated the fires of controversy. But out of it may come a revived study of our religious beliefs.

Sinclair Lewis in "Main Street" described the spiritual condition into which a doctor had drifted. "He believed in the church but seldom attended its services. He believed in Christianity but never thought about it. He was worried over his wife's lack of faith, but was not sure just what she lacked."

There are signs that we are being roused from such sleepy faith. And these are seeds of hope.

Chi Rho Hears Fine Talk on Biblical Lands

Sgt. Ray Tavener is currently stationed at R.F. Repair Depot, and posted to his present unit from a tour of duty with the United Nations Emergency Force in Arish, Egypt. While in the Middle East, he went on four tours of the area, one of which was through those Biblical lands and visited the political boundaries of Israel. Using maps and colored slides, last Wednesday, Sgt. Tavener told the Christ Church Chi Rho Fellowship of the sights, sounds, and impressions he gained on a four-day conducted tour of the cradle of Christianity.

LAND OF CONTRASTS

The birthplace of Christianity is a land of contrasts— abject poverty and ostentatious wealth; luxurious hotels and desolate and barren, wind-blown sand; airplanes and Bedouin women carrying large earthenware jugs on their heads; a modern highway and a camel train in the middle of the Jerusalem air terminal (the only one in that part of the world).

A tour of this type is a memory of a walking tour than the modern method of transportation. Some of the narrow streets in the cities like Jerusalem are wide enough to take only one camel, and many are not; and the car must negotiate these steps have to be navigated. "One of the things we started counting the number of steps to a mosque, 300 in front of Jerusalem. He gave up counting when he reached the two thousand mark."

MANY FINE SLIDES

The Rev. Lloyd Sgt. Tavizer brought with him, a small portable screen and projector, and he took on his four tours, pictured for the group many of the places which he mentioned right from the "red carpet" — from the River Jordan 'do to the Wailing Wall. The Wailing Wall to Herod's Castle (now a school for boys), from the Tomb of Christ to Gethsemane, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, to a spot outside the present city of walls considered by many Biblical scholars, including General Gordon, as Khartoum Tave, to be the true Garden Tomb.

The Rector closed with a worship service led by president, Margaret Eagle, Marjorie Butler gave the Bible reading.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Ronald Hall and thanked by Herb Cavalier.

Following the short business meeting, refreshments were served, provided by Eleanor Butcher and Marilyn Crozier.

Harmony Topic at Aikin's M.B.

As table at the front of the school laden with vegetables and a pot Bible in the centre added much to the general effect.

The meeting was opened by a short memorial service in memory of Mrs. William Bush who passed away a month ago. She was led by Mrs. Perry Hamilton read the poem "Abide With Me." A moment of silence was followed by a short prayer.

The meeting was given over to the new president of the Mission Band, Elaine Bush. The Scripture lesson, Psalm 100; 1-7 was read by Gwen Sickle.

The offering was gathered and dedicated by Nancy Delaney.

Carmel Hamilton read a poem "Be Thankful", a poem, "Autumn Leaves," by Barbara Wager was given.

Mrs. P. Hamilton introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Brian Thrasher, Viminitier of Johnstown, and the North Trenton Church. Mr. Thrasher showed the children on "Harmony" and "Thankfulness" with appropriate illustrations. He used the black and white keys on the piano to show the children what harmony was. He also had an interesting story to tell to the Juniors.

On behalf of the Mission Band, Elaine Bush extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Thrasher for his interesting talk.

Indian Education Addresses Given At U.W.C. by Lt. Col. H.M. Jones

Lt.-Col. H. M. Jones M.B.E., E.D., the Director of the Indian Affairs Branch in Ottawa, spoke on "Indian Education," at the regular meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and District, held on Thursday evening in the St. Thomas Parish House.

Colonel Jones said that he had started his career in the Indian service as Indian Agent at Fort Frances and it had been a privilege to work with the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte. They were fine people, whose integrity, loyalty and ability added much to the character of this county. They had been the first Indians band to assume full control over the expenditure of their own revenue.

Colonel Jones stressed the magnitude and diversity of the Indian Administration and said that there were presently about 600 Indian communities of various sizes located in all provinces and territories except Newfoundland and within this group 7,000 reserves set apart for their use. Improved medical and sanitation practices have contributed a once vanishing race into one which was increasing at a rate greater than any other ethnic group in Canada. Ten years ago the Indian population totalled 128,000 and today it was in excess of 180,000. Five years from now it would probably be close to 254,000.

INDIAN EDUCATION

Colonel Jones said that the Canadian Government was spending $27,000,000 on Indian Education this year, in 1960 there had been about 16,000 Indian children at school and that what remained to be achieved is over 40,000. For a number of years the Department of Indian Affairs had made available increased funds to provide educational assistance to any Indian would be denied the opportunity of attending high school education because of lack of funds. In addition a system of scholarships had been established which were awarded on the basis of scholastic standing, irrespective of the students' financial condition. The Scholarship Committee had set its standards high and required a gradual increase in the awards which in 1960 had reached 18 scholarships to a value of $17,000.

The considerable improvement in the academic progress of the school age children was largely due to the program of integrating Indian and White children and said so vigorously during the past ten years. One of the most encouraging aspects of this improved educational status was the increasing number of young Indians who were returning to the reserve to serve their own people. The Department, for example, presently employed 118 teachers of Indian status. The Branch had also recently embarked upon a plan of establishing education committees on reserves. These committees had played an important role in the administration of the schools, in being consulted on such matters as attendance, maintenance, repairs and curriculum.

ADEQUATE HOME LIFE

Colonel Jones said that maximum benefit could not be achieved from an educational system unless an adequate home life was provided for. Housing had been a serious problem for years and while large capital funds were available at the end of the last war, post-war conditions combined to prevent the provision of adequate housing on the shortest possible time. In May 1958, when a survey showed that all but about 20 per cent lacked the sanitation reserves and in Indian communities could be classed as adequate by the standards found in adjacent non - Indian communities. This was no mean achievement, but in the future more homes had to be built on the reserves and the housing programs increasingly emphasized that each Indian band and each individual had to do as much as they could to meet their own requirements.

MODEL HOME

Recently a model home had been opened for inspection on the Peguis Reserve in the Fish River Agency which had been designed by Indians in the Indians what could be done with relatively little money and had been built entirely without the use of skilled tradesmen. Construction of the house, interior furnishings, the furniture, the drapes, the rugs, the bedspreads and the other decorations had been carried out entirely by the Indian students of the Indian day school nearby. The design was simple and had been planned in such a way that most persons would be able to build it themselves. The purpose had been to provide an adequate standard of housing with all essential services at the least possible cost and sufficiently flexible to meet varying conditions on reserves throughout Canada.

INDIAN AFFAIRS BRANCH HELPS

Many Indians had the means to purchase the materials to build houses of adequate standard. A substantial number of Indians, however, could not afford more than a small portion or the cost of materials. Recognizing these individual circumstances, the Indian Affairs Branch was prepared to help Indians to acquire the materials they required providing the Indians would contribute their labor and any materials they could obtain locally.

An interesting question period followed Col. Jones' talk.

At the business portion of the meeting, a motion was carried that the club will arrange the principals of the high schools in Belleville and district, about the possibility of awarding distinction events to honor graduates in grades 11 and 12.

So-Ed Club Plans Future Events

Belleville So-Ed Club met on Wednesday night at the YMCA and the highlight of the evening was the address by Dr. Evelyn Williamson, local psychiatrist. She based her talk on trends in treatment of mental illness over the past 20 years. She stressed the important changes in public attitude toward mental sickness and the willingness of people to seek treatment. Club members showed their interest in the subject by the many enquiries directed at Dr. Williamson during the question period. Margaret Snell introduced the speaker and the club's gratitude to Dr. Williamson was expressed by Jo Ann Hall.

Mr. Diamantides, executive secretary of the Y.M.C.A., spoke briefly to the members telling them that they formed part of the YMCA family and should member should prepare himself to properly accept places of responsibility in the organization for planning activities and assisting in their execution in a manner present committee members were doing. He also brought to their attention the swimming which will soon be under way for members and prospective members. Christine asked all members to lend their support by attending a series of public swimming in the New Year- to assist the project.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

In this land of ours, we may easily come to take technological inventions, which create comfort and pleasure, in our stride or too much for granted. Let's hope we never become so much so that we cannot be thrilled by the news that a Belleviliian has created a new invention which will add to our pleasure wherever we may go. And we may take great pride in the news that William (Bill) Slavin, a local radio and television service technician has had his invention patented, that it has been purchased to be sold and distributed across the nation by a Canadian firm.

The Pentenna will be on the market shortly and in time for Christmas shopping.

The name is colored from 'pen' and 'antenna' because it is no larger than an old fashioned fountain pen and will fit into your pocket so conveniently.

The Pentenna will make the difference between our transistor radios working or not working in our cars. Mr. Slavin has worked towards this accomplishment for a long time and success has finally crowned his perseverance and his faith in his own ability. He has put your transistor radio with you to go on a journey. It is designed to go vialting, to go anywhere, the Pentenna will make it possible to get better reception while you drive to and fro. Actually all you do with it is to remove your fountain pen, unscrew, fasten it down beside your transistor. The Pentenna has received all the necessary test and has passed them with enthusiastic success.

We have seen the Pentenna and it has to be seen to be believed, which in these days of scientific wonders is the sign of the times.

Mr. and Mrs. Slavin came to Belleville from Saskatchewan twenty years ago. They are interested in community work. It is quite natural that they have become interested in Home and School which was particularly because last week was Education Week. Everyone child at home of pre-school age, from the Girl Guides to two attend Queen Alexandra School; one boy is at BCIVS, where he has won a scholarship prize for top marks in both grades 12 and 13. One daughter is taking a course in furniture and design at the Ryerson Institute and another daughter is at Queen's University where she is specializing in English.

It have been a privilege to know one of this talented and evidently inventive, family very well in the person of our friend- ly paper boy, who is financing his own music lessons out of his paper money.

And it is thus that every community of people is enriched. T & T knows it will only share with its readers the congratulations which will attend Mr. Slavin and to him and his wife and children we extend best wishes for the future.

A friend said to us yesterday, "Can't it maddening and frustrating to think of all the changes that will take place and all the things that will happen when we won't be here to see them?" We are sure most people have these feelings at one time or another.

Another minor frustration to us is, while driving through the country, having to pass the entrances to all those unknown sideroads, wondering where they lead and who lives on them. Of course, these frustrations can be overcome easily but if you have time enough. One such road we travelled over this week, the Ridge Road from Stirling to the Tweed-Belleville highway. It brought us for our first visit to the village of Moira and to some of the loveliest vistas, of the valleys on either side.

Wedding

SHANNON — ADAMS

A recent autumn wedding was solemnized at St. Columba's Roman Catholic Church at Cornwall, Ont., by the Reverend R. Shannon, brother of the bridegroom, when Valentine Maureen Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Adams of Cornwall, was united in marriage to Thomas Edward Shannon, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Shannon of Plainfield.

The bride was attended by her sisters, Miss Carol Adams, as maid of honor, and the Misses Joan and Debbie Adams as bridesmaids.

Mr. Patrick Shannon attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. Joseph Shannon and Mr. Robert MacDonald were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for the immediate family and friends at the Cornwallis Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Shannon will reside in Cornwall.

Pr. Ed. Belleville L.C. Enjoys Eskimo Film

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince Edward - Belleville Ladies' Club was held at the "Y" with 20 members and two visitors present. The president opened the meeting.

After welcoming remarks from the president, the secretary read a letter from OBMM.

The corresponding secretary reported eight cards sent during the past month and read "thank you" notes from Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. MacFarlane, for flowers and cards sent during their illness.

The Salvation Army is to be invited to assist at the December meeting and a donation is to be made at that time, also a donation to the Retarded Children's School in Belleville.

The election of officers for 1961, which was to take place at this meeting, was postponed until the January meeting.

Mrs. Garbutt, program convener, presented the following program. In honour of Remembrance Day, two minutes of silence was observed, followed by the group singing "O God Our Help in Ages Past," Mrs. Insley reading "Flanders Field," followed by the singing of a solo, "O William Heart," with Mrs. Farnsworth as pianist.

Mrs. Garbutt introduced Mr. R. E. Riley of the British American Oil Company Cavalier, who showed the film, "The Living Stone." This pictured the life of the Eskimos and their way of living, their winter igloos, summer tents, seal hunting, dogs and sleds, making of the clothing they wear from the skins, also their stone carvings and how they carve them. This was most interesting.

Mrs. Garbutt thanked Mr. Riley and the B.A. Oil Company for coming and showing the picture.

The president closed the meeting and a social half hour was enjoyed with Mrs. Garbutt and her group serving lunch.

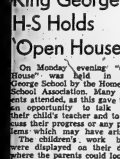
King George H-S Holds 'Open House'

On Monday evening "Open House" was held in King George School by the Home and School Association. Many parents attended, as this gave them an opportunity to talk with their children's teacher and to discuss their progress or any problems which may have arisen.



The children's work books were displayed on their desks where the parents could look at them and study them at their leisure. Five room members were in their individual rooms to introduce the parents to the teacher and to chat her in one way she could.

Refreshments were served in the auditorium, where many of the parents stopped in visit before they left the school.

THE UNSEEN HOST

"A hotel never sleeps"—from an hotel advertisement.

The annals of American and Canadian innkeeping, locally or at large contain many honored names.

For the hospitality industry continued to grow.

This was due largely to road improvements. The revolution in transportation between 1830 and 1850 was a half century during which the canal boat was first seen, and the railroad replaced boats and horse-driven vehicles, and inns and taverns gave way to hotels located near the depot, and thus came into being "The Downtown Hotel."

Here in Belleville, Mr. W. C. Mikel tells us Dozier's Hotel was built opposite the C.N.R. depot, and further informs us: "The late William Dozier, the first proprietor, had the reputation of never taking a drink of liquor in his own hotel and of using his influence to prevent railway men and others from drinking to excess on his premises."

As the west and southwest opened, so were hotels built and the doors of many landmark hotels are still open today. As new and swift technological changes came into being, new improvements were installed. For instance, the Old Astor House in New York introduced plumbing in 1834. In 1853 the Fifth Avenue Hotel, in New York, had a steam-operated lift elevated. While electric lights appeared in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania in 1883.

After the Civil War, and the amassing of huge industrial and banking fortunes, the great era of resort hotels blossomed and lasted from 1850 to 1920. The gay 90s were never gayer than at Saratoga Springs.

By 1875, however, it was time for the largest and most expensive hotel in the world. Where else should such a structure be so fittingly placed but in San Francisco? Thus was the Palace Hotel built with its 800 rooms usually 20 feet square, at a cost of five million dollars. From an entertaining history of hotels,one comes the following description:

"Built around a central court in the fashion of some Viennese hotels, the guest could be driven inside the building and deposited on a marble-paved court amidst potted trees and plants. Around the—court, tiered balconies extended up the seven stories of the building to a great domed roof of opaque glass. It was a sensation, the Waldorf-Astoria of its day."

In the East, the first resplendent hotel was the Waldorf built by William Astor in 1893. It was adorned with marble, hand-carved mahogany and hand-painted ceilings. It opened with much ceremony, and was then attended by the social elite much be-jewelled. Other landmarks of hospitality and history are Boston's Parker House which succeeded the old historical hotel of the same name, The Palmer House of Chicago and Philadelphia's Bellevue-Stafford.

The 1920s were heyday years for hotels during which time chain hotels entered the field and local, regional and national conventions became popular. Times were blank, however, during the depression and business met an all time low. During the Second World War the occupancy rate rose very high, and though has levelled somewhat since, still, business is good.

And now, the most recent development is the motor hotel designed to meet the needs of motorists unprepared "in mind and body" to parade hotel lobbies. It is said that the motor hotel business began in New England the mid 1930s when an enterprising family built log cabins to rent to vacationers. So the cycle is completed for the present; from New England with inns and back to New England with motels.

PLANNING THE RECEIVING LINE

During recent weeks I have endeavored to go into the basic customs to be followed to make the wedding ceremony the perfect, dignified occasion it should be. Today, suppose we discuss the receiving line at the gay celebration that usually follows the solemn religious ceremony.

Too often the happy occasion of the wedding reception is anything but happy for the parents of the bride. Usually they worry too much about whether this or that is being done correctly. To clarify the question of who should stand in the receiving line, and where they should be placed (this seems to cause more doubt than anything else), the following will prove helpful:

First, care should be taken in selecting the place where the receiving line is to form. Every effort should be made to place the group where the incoming and outgoing guests can be kept moving easily. Placing them in one end of the room, near the door where guests will enter, helps to facilitate matters. Never put the line near the refreshment table or near where drinks are to be served. A bad bottleneck will develop if you do.

A receiving line may go from left to right or from right to left. Either way is correct. The important thing is to make sure which way will prove most convenient to keep the flow of guests moving. Getting them through the line in orderly fashion is of paramount importance. If this item is not carefully thought out, confusion will result.

Suppose we assume, for argument's sake, that the line is to form from right to left. First in line is the mother of the bride, then the father of the bridegroom, the mother of the bridegroom, the father of the bride, the bride, the bridegroom, the matron of honor, the maid of honor and the bridesmaids.

There is some dissension as to whether or not the father of the bridge has to stand in the line. Personally, I think he belongs there. However, he may mingle with the guests, if he so desires, for there is no definite rule about this. If he does not stand in the line, the mother of the bride would still be first in line, then the mother of the bridegroom, the father, the bride and so on in the formation.

The best man and the ushers never stand in the receiving line. Only in the case where the father of the bridegroom acts as his best man, do any of the grooms-men receive the guests. Their duty is to see that all the guests receive refreshments and are introduced to others present.

tel Quinte now stands. . . . A meeting was held on March 31, 1891 . . . to consider the question of erecting a hotel . . . on the site of the Dafoe House which had previously been destroyed by fire." This resulted in the incorporation of a company which built the Hotel Quinte. It was sold to J. F. Jenkins, May 1, 1899. Upon his death it was operated by his son, the late Gerald L. Jenkins. We also read: "The Queens Hotel was erected by Captain William Power, was carried on by members of that family for three generations."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

* * *

Mrs. N. D. — He wants to marry my sister's maid.

Roger D. — Except for our background, Olga and I are alike.

Mrs. N. D. — Roger has brought us home a bolshevik! We don't know how to handle it. He says he's in love with a 20-year-old girl my sister brought home with her this summer from the backwoods of West Virginia. The girl came up here to serve as chambermaid in my sister's home.

Roger is 34 and teaches school out there, so he stops in at his aunt's for lunch and, once in a while, he sleeps over to save commuting.

Of course I'm glad that Roger's education has been such and selects his friends for their fine qualities. But friendship is one thing, marriage another. Marriage brings the two families into the picture.

I haven't met the young lady. Roger wanted to bring for lunch. My sister says she's charming, but frankly I'm not of daughter-in-law I could be comfortable with.

Roger D. — As soon as I set eyes on Olga I felt drawn to her in ways I never felt before when meeting a girl. Here was someone who, for once, didn't impress, no straining. She exuded simplicity and natural humour.

She was helping in the kitchen at lunch-time. I was glad later I joined her and the cook and had my lunch with them on the back porch. Next noon lunch alone with Olga in the kitchen. Then, one day, I dared her. We've been on bicycle-picnics together and to the movies.

I admit, I haven't given thought to what my family and friends may think of Olga. All I know is that this girl I feel closest to and most comfortable with and I'm beginning to love her with the intensity that says marry her!

Although she comes from a mining town (not backwood), as my mother said) she's a high school graduate and was valedictorian of her class. She is eager for learning and even now is taking courses by correspondence. We see things the same, even politically and Mort Sahl!

The Council: The immediate moral answer for Roger and his mother is that marriage, in the final analysis, is a person-to-person project and, given two intelligent and mature partners, almost any handicap can be surmounted.

But fit get to specifics, Roger, you do marry a family, too, because as John Donne put it — no man is an island. There are deep ancestral currents which cannot be denied, save at the cost of mental health. Better to accept them and come to peace with them.

So a reproachment between Olga's "hillbilly" kin and Roger's sophisticated relatives is important and possible, with adequate ground-paving by the lovers. But Roger must decide in whether the love and convictions he shares with Olga are strong enough to surmount the inevitable snipings that will come her way from both camps, through the years.

Aside from this external problem, Roger and Olga meet the requirements for a successful marriage in their internal "alikeness". At any rate there's no danger of the tragedy we see everyday: The union of two people who are outwardly similar, but are inwardly as opposite as the poles.

Occasionally this sort of nonconformist romance is "sprung" on a family for maximum effect or out of rebelliousness, in order to strike at parents where it will really hurt. Or, Roger might be suspected of reaching out in a spirit of de-gradation, of uplift. Such motives, of course, are valid as a basis for marriage which, we repeat, is the intimate meshing of two persons, almost cell-for-cell.

Roger, however, seems sincere in his love and appreciation for Olga. At the risk of affronting the family, he is ignoring the superficials and reaching for the solid cure of marriage—a matching temperament and philosophy.

STORIES of FAMOUS HYMNS

"THINE FOREVER, GOD OF LOVE"

Thine forever! God of love,
Hear us from Thy throne above;
Thine forever may we be
Here and in eternity.

Thine forever! O how blest
They who find in Thee their rest!
Saviour, Guardian, heavenly Friend,
O defend us to the end!

Thine forever! Lord of life,
Shield us through our earthly strife;
Thou the Life, the Truth, the Way,
Guide us to the realms of day!

Thine forever! Thou our Guide,
All our wants by Thee supplied,
All our sins by Thee forgiven,
Led by Thee from earth to heaven!

An English clergyman's wife, Mrs. Mary F. Maude, penned these verses in 1847 as a hymn of confirmation for a girls' Sunday School class.

She was the teacher of the class in the Girls' Sunday School of St. Thomas, Isle of Wight, and when she found herself compelled to be away from her pupils for a rather considerable time, she kept in touch with them and with their spiritual interests through weekly letters. The stanzas which later became a hymn were included at the close of one of her notes to her girls.

A year or so later, Mrs. Maude published her correspondence to the girls as "Twelve Letters to Confirmation, By A Sunday School Teacher". The hymn as it appears here was used as an introduction to the booklet. Four years later it was published again in a collection of "Memorials of Past Years."

"Horsham" is a traditional English melody. It was used also for several other hymns popular with young people and children.

It was through the interest of Bishop William Walsham How, the author of "O Jesus, Thou Art Standing" and "O Word of God Incarnate", that after Maude's hymn first found a place in a church hymnal, in 1864, he and the Rev. T.B. Morrell published an enlarged edition of Hymns and Hymns," and Mrs. Maude's hymn was included.

LETTER:

A couple of weeks ago Dee S. asked you for a fruit cake which calls for crushed pineapple — I am sure this is the cake. I have made this delightful cake twice every year since it was first published in October or November of 1953. This is the 10th time I'm copying it. Every year I have friends who drop in during Christmas and New Year's for a taste. It is my most treasured fruit cake recipe, because it never fails. I have many, I usually prepare all the fruit and nuts the night before, pour the juice over and cover tightly till morning. it makes it easier for me. Hoping this is the recipe Dee S. wants. Wishing you many, many more years of success . . . Margo G.

EMERY'S 1953 DELUXE FRUIT CAKE (Medium Dark)

Cream butter and brown sugar till light and fluffy, add white sugar and beat thoroughly. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Add well-drained pineapple and vanilla, beat till light and smooth (by hand). Sift flour, mace, cinnamon and soda. Prepare fruits by washing raisins and currants and drying them on a towel. Mix all the raisins, currants, cherries, peel and nuts in a very large container, separating Muscatel raisins if necessary. Pour over the reserve pineapple juice. Add flour-spice mixture and mix well until the nuts are all coated. Slowly add the fruit-flour mixture to the butter-egg mixture, mixing carefully, but thoroughly. Pour into pans which have been greased with unsalted shortening, lined with triple thickness of brown paper and 3 thicknesses of waxed paper and greased again. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. (no higher) with a pan of water under pans during the entire time of baking. Small cake takes about 1 1-2 hours. Medium and large — 3 1-2 to 4 hours. (Do not overbake).

Airlines Show Sky's the Limit When You Dine up in the Air

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

NEW YORK — One day back in the meandertal age of commercial aviation, about midway between the brothers Wright and the Boeing 707, some bright young airline executive directed the "steward-esses" to step on their way to work and pick up a few loaves of bread, some sliced ham and a bag of apples on that historic day, the first passenger ate lunch "way up in the middle of the air."

Today we have people like Phil J. Parrott, commissary superintendent for Pan American-Grace Airways, who makes jet flights across the oceans not to mention the haute cuisine of the continents but to check up on the quality of his own and competing airlines' provender.

It takes some checking. Since 31 international airlines are now flying with comparable safety, comfort and speed, only in the exotic realm of first class food service is there much room for competition (all the moments economy class service is strictly limited by regulations).

Each line and nationality has its own gimmick: the Germans roll a beer barrel down the aisle, the Swiss offer a year-long menu so the passenger to choose from one week before his flight, and Scandinavians, for their smorgasbord, stock as may varieties of fish as passengers.

Pan Am was working against a historic Yankee reputation for distinguished cuisine. So, to overcome it, it decided to put to work the advantages of Yankee ingenuity when the fierce competition of the jet age blossomed. It chose for its gimmick — along among the airlines — almost anything no less than seven gourmet entrees, all available on board, ranging from roast prime ribs to pheasant in cream and brandy sauce.

This problem in logistics is tackled daily by Parrott from a full-acre hotel type kitchen at Idlewild Airport. For its Atlantic and Pacific divisions alone, more than $15,000,000 is spent by Pan Am each year on more than 7,000,000 meals' encompassing everything from caviar to crepes suzette, and on more than 300,000 bottles of alcohol from aquavit to zinfandel.

The everyday miracles of the age have bred into Parrott an adventurous but nonchalant attitude is staggering operation. It's almost like European hotel, at all the lobster thermidor is prepared to New York and sent across the ocean for service out in Europe. American sole is flown to European, as Parrott put it, Paris, Pan Am's caterers on the continent, makes like Escoffier Albert for crossing.

The secret of this success, he is, or course, the peculiarly genious Yankee institution of catering, a process at which all the foreign lines look down their aristocratic noses.

None of this in the least fazes Pan Am's veteran steward Parrott or its Chef de Cuisine Joseph di Grandi, himself an aristocrat among chiefs whose experience dates back to preparing be e for Gaspard for the czars of Russia.

"We've proven with blindfold tests that properly cooked airline food is as delicious as anywhere," says Parrott. "Our biggest problem is seeing that the airline attendants are properly trained in preparing it."

The system used by Pan Am for food preparation is to par-cook all courses, blast freeze them, and then have defrosting and cooking completed in the infra-red ovens of the jet's galley, itself a major wonder of science, as dazzling as the cockpit.

Obviously, girls who are young, pretty, can speak at least one foreign language and can cook are hard to come by and harder to keep. Training them is a program the airline has to keep on top of constantly.

For the 40 first class passengers a jet holds, Pan Am used to board 32 meals to allow for selection. These included 23 roast beef (sliced on a rolling cart in the aisle), 15 lobster, 15 lamb chop, five sweetbreads, 10 guinea hen, five sole, and 10 partridges not in pear trees. Experience has enabled them to cut back to an average count of 25. Almost everyone orders the roast beef hardly surprises the sweetbreads. Back to the freezer with them.

All the carriers make a great to-do over their vintage wines. But a line as large as Pan Am does so much it can no longer specify the chateau and year on its menu. Its wine-list runs dry. For a long time Pan Am featured Charles Deidelock "blanc de Blanc"—champagne, as private stock worth about $20 a bottle, but shall see if it were available which it isn't.

We asked Parrott if he was sure he'd like to add to his food service, and his dark brown eyes lit with the fiercest of storms under a waiter captain's chafing dishes.

"There's no reason why it can't be done, and I'd like to make it one of the best in service. Some night when I feel like it, after-dinner liqueurs will be going to dim the cabin lights and I'll serve Grand Marnier crepes suzette, and flame them."

Even if it never happens, we've still come a long way from the ham sandwich and apple.

Women's Institutes

BAY OF QUINTE W.I.

2ND OF SIDNEY — The Bay of Quinte Institute held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Morris Stickle recently.

Mrs. Jay Ketcheson opened the meeting. During the business session a letter was read from Mrs. A. Gilchrist asking to be excused from office.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Jermyn Palmer's. The district president will be the speaker.

Mrs. Frankel Sandercock and Mrs. Alva Meyers gave the reports of the district annual convention.

PROGRAM

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Orrin Curtis who is convener of Home and Country. Mrs. Curtis opened her program with a minute's silence and a poem on "Remembrance" was read by Mrs. John Reid. A reading was given by Mrs. H. Dickson, "The First Meeting of the W.I. in England." Mrs. George Clapp told of a meeting in Scotland, read by Mrs. E. Curtis, a report for Ireland. Mrs. Frank White read a poem on "Home." Mrs. Ketcheson thanked Mrs. Stickle for opening her home, and Mrs. Curtis for the fine program.

A social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Short Formals Conspicuous By Their Rarity

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament opened yesterday with traditional ritual set against a backdrop of the fashion world's latest creations. Short formals were conspicuous by their rarity.

Slim-fitting gowns rather than bouffant were predominant with and neckline abandon and trend toward rich satin brocades and lace evident.

Mme. Georges Vanier, wife of the governor-general, was a regal figure in long gown of soft turquoise slipper satin, contrasted light with the rich tones of the red-carpeted Senate chamber.

Hat was styled with portrait neckline and slim-fitting bodice extending into a full skirt falling in soft pleat lines. A jewelry she wore a triple strand of pearls, pearl earrings and a diamond watch. Her accessories were silver.

Mrs. John Diefenbaker, wife of the prime minister, wore a gown of white brocade styled with square neckline, long sleeves and moulded bodice. It was accented by a necklace of five large amethysts on a three-strand gold chain.

Mrs. Lester B. Pearson, wife of the opposition leader, wore a black velvet sheath-style dress featuring a white satin cummerbund.

FORMAL DRESS REQUIRED

Formality was carried in previous days—returned to the opening ceremony when the Queen opened Parliament in 1957. In 1958, Senate Speaker Mark Drouin, followed by prayer for opening ceremonies.

The rule, however, does not extend to women MPs, who usually dress formal, street-length attire to match dark suits worn by male colleagues.

Fashions at the opening followed today's basic simplicity that gives emphasis to richness of fabric. The only conformity was in strands of pearls—single, double and triple—the most popular choice of jewelry detail in the galaxy of beautifully - groomed women.

Rarer jewels were more evident in the diplomatic corps than the Canadian women.

Saris worn by diplomats' wives as their national dress were also adapted for a few evening gowns following another popular fashion of slim-fitting formal attire.

NEW MEMBERS SWORN

A new woman senator—Mrs. Harry E. Hart of Quebec city—and a new woman MP—Jody Lambert, Liberal member for Niagara Falls—were sworn into office in time to take part in the opening.

Illness prevented Senator Calvin Wilson of Moose Jaw from attending. For the first woman appointed to the Canadian Senate it was the first time she had missed a parliamentary opening since her 1930 appointment. She is 73.

Remarks at Cocktail Parties Everyone Gets Tired of Hearing

NEW YORK (AP)—Remarks everybody gets tired of hearing at cocktail parties:

"We must get together again real soon."

"Honey, I did not start a conversation with that strange blonde. She came up and started talking to me. Anyway, what's so strange about her? I think she's kinda nice."

"Martinis always make me want to take off my shoes. Whatcha they do to you?"

"My husband? I'm in insurance, and since you brought the subject up, let me ask you. . . ."

"Where have you been all my life, baby?"

"Well, to make a long story short, I three-jotted that green, made the next par-four hole in six, and then. . . ."

"Actually, as I see it, what we should do in the Congo is. . . ."

"I forget how the punch line goes, but it's really a very funny joke."

The food at cocktail parties is so tireless . . . you can't tell today's hors d'oeuvres from yesterday's cold cuts — or tomorrow's garbage."

"Some people find me a dreadful bore, but others say I'm quite lovable."

"When this shindig breaks up, let's all go over to your house and keep the party going."

"Darling, haven't you put on a few pounds since the last time I saw you?"

"Essentially, Proust's outlook on life was tragi-comic, a sort of devil-may-care patrisanism distorted by his lack of faith in bourgeois gods. . . . Would you bring me another of those, please?"

"Yeah, I had the 24-hour virus, too, but in my case it lasted only 23 hours. My doctor thought maybe daylight saving time had something to do with it."

"That fellow over there must be in bad shape. He's been talking to his own wife for a full hour—and the only way I can explain it is that he does not recognize her."

"Well, you've had one for the road. Now, where's the road?"

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP) — For 30 years Ontario fishing regulations have listed the open season, catch and size limits for Aurora trout. Yet only a handful of anglers have ever seen this brilliant blue and silver fish and not one has been caught legally since 1950.

And although existence of the Aurora was first established 30 years ago, it still is a mystery to biologists.

Some of the mystery now is being lifted, however, and next spring the exclusive ranks of Aurora anglers will be expanded for the first time in a decade.

The only known natural habitat of the Aurora is a cluster of tiny lakes in Gamble Township, 60 miles southwest of this Northern Ontario gold-mining centre. The area is in the remote corner of the vast Timagami forest preserve.

Ever since 1934, when the Aurora was first reported, attempts have been made to raise hatchery stock from eggs and introduce the fish to other areas. Not until this year has a successful transplant been achieved.

FINGERLINGS THRIVE

The department of lands and forests recently reported that fingerlings stocked in Seahorse Lake in nearby Lake Lakes Provincial Park are thriving. Controlled fishing will be allowed next year and at the present rate of growth the Aurora in Seahorse are expected to average two pounds by the end of next summer.

The Aurora story begins in the summer of 1923 when a party of American fishermen caught some of the strangely-colored trout in White Pine Lake, one of three in Gamble Township in which Auroras are known to exist.

A young biologist, William H. Blakeabarch, was with the party and became curious about the fish. He returned the following summer with an associate, Arthur W. Henn, on assignment from the Carnegie Museum in Washington.

The fish was known locally as rainbow trout, landlocked salmon and salmon trout but they decided that none of those names was applicable and suggested it be called Aurora trout.

The Aurora is practically identical in shape and size range to the common speckled trout. But it lacks the red spots which give the speckled its name. It is a dazzling blue and silver with the males taking on a crimson flash along the belly at spawning time.

FORGOTTEN FISH

For more than 15 years the Aurora was forgotten except by local fishing parties. One such fisherman, Vic Woollings of Englehart, said: "When you hooked them they used to go right to the bottom. Then before you could reel in the slack line they'd be out of the water dancing on their tails. They'd come out of the lake like a shot from a gun."

The fisheries department became intrigued and in 1941 undertook the first attempt at hatchery breeding. It was a failure. It was abandoned until 1950 when the area was made a sanctuary permanently closed to angling.

Other attempts were made to breed Auroras but practically none survived. But in 1958 it was decided to keep the eggs in water warmer than the 40-degree spring water used for speckled trout spawn. In January, 1959, the eggs hatched. By autumn the fingerlings, four to six inches, were ready to be moved to Seahorse Lake. This summer experimental fishing proved the Aurora were growing rapidly.

CENSUS PLANNED

Next year a careful creel census is planned to see how the fish are making out. Then introduction of Auroras into other district lakes will go into high gear.

The big question that remains is whether the Aurora is a species by itself or a freak hybrid of speckled trout. Biologists are divided on the subject and it may take several years of study of the skeleton structure to find the answer.

Local anglers, however, maintain the Aurora is a separate species. They say it takes a lure gently, never with the firm strike of a speckled, and will ignore a fly even when speckled in the same lake are taking it eagerly.

MYSTERY FISH — The rare Aurora trout closely resembles the common speckled trout (top fish) in size and shape but is a dazzling blue and silver instead of having the speckled's red spots. The Aurora, still a mystery to biologist, was discovered 36 years ago in tiny lakes of the Timagami forest preserve in Northern Ontario. (CP Photo).

Northport

NORTHPORT — Mr. Albert E. Baldwin of Northport, who is spending the winter months at the YMCA, Belleville, is in Kingston military hospital for a few weeks' stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith were guests Monday evening, of the daughter, Mrs. Harold Elmy, Mr. Elmy and family, Belleville.

The regular meeting of the Northport W. A. was held at the church hall, on Wednesday evening, followed by a bazaar and tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. William McCaw, RR 9, Picton, spent Thursday at Kingston.

Messrs. Howard McDermaid and Bud Rabble, are in the north country, deer hunting.

Mrs. Bud Rabble and Mark, spent the supper hour on Wednesday, with Mrs. George Baldwin and boys.

HURT PLAYER IMPROVING

TORONTO (CP) — John Elwood, 19-year-old high school student in a coma since an Oct. 25 football injury, is showing signs of "slight improvement," his father said Thursday. The youth has had two brain operations since the accident.

Bevan's Old Seat Won With Ease By Left-Winger

EBBW VALE, Wales (Reuters) — Left wing socialist Michael Foot has retained the seat of Ebbw Vale for Labor in a parliamentary by-election returns from Thursday's vote showed.

The Labor party majority dropped to 16,723 from 20,922 in last years national election, when the late Aneurin Bevan, one of the party's leaders and a close friend of Foot's.

The result:

Michael Foot, Labor — 20,328 votes.

Sir Brandon Rhys Williams, Conservative—3,760 votes.

Patrick Lord Phillips, Liberal—3,449 votes.

Emrys Roberts, Welsh Nationalist—2,091 votes.

The byelection was the last in a series of seven held this week in what newspapers dubbed British "mini general election." No seats changed hands in the weeks voting, the governing Conservatives retaining the other six seats.

The Liberal party displaced Labor as runnerup to the Conservatives in four of the seven ridings.

Standing in the House of Commons now is Conservatives and allies 365, Labor 258, Liberals 6, Independent and vacancies 6.

Hog Producers Have New Method To Elect Board

TORONTO (CP) — A new method of electing directors to the Ontario hog producers' marketing board was approved Thursday by provincial order-in-council.

At the same time, provision was made for establishment of 13 zones from which the new directors will be elected by secret ballot.

A department of agriculture release said the marketing board still will be comprised of 11 members, but in future all directors must be elected from a specific district, eliminating the appointment of directors at large.

Grouping of counties for each district depends on the number of producers in the counties and the quantity of production. The formula works like this:

Each county is given a representation of two members. When one production in a county exceeds 20,000 hogs and the number of producers is greater than 2,000, additional representation is allowed on a basis of one member for every 1,000 producers and for every 20,000 hogs.

The system means a total of 22 delegates to be elected, who in turn will elect one producer from each district to sit on the board.

Provision is made in the regulations to take care of any resignations by a majority of the present board members by providing for appointment of three persons by the Ontario farm producers marketing board to carry on business until elections can be held.

Agriculture Minister Goodfellow has gone on record as saying he wants a more democratic form of farm marketing in Ontario.

MEDICAL HAZARDS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Colds and stomach "flu are the two biggest medical hazards facing the Canadian contingent of the United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East, the Defence Medical Association was told here Thursday night. The complaints result mainly from temperature variations and the sanitation, far below Canadian standards, said Major Donald Fraser of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, London, who has just returned after a year's service in the Middle East.

Bruins' Simmons Says He Will Quit

Won't Go To Providence

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 1960-61 National Hockey League season, barely seven weeks old, has been a tough one for veteran goaltenders.

Terry Sawchuk appears to have lost, at least temporarily, his regular job with Detroit Red Wings to journeyman Hank Bassen and Lorne (Gump) Worsley was benched for several games by New York Rangers.

Even Jacques Plante, five-time Vezina Trophy winner, has drawn the wrath of Montreal Canadiens' top brass on several occasions for ineffective play.

The latest case involves Don Simmons of Boston Bruins, who said Friday he is quitting hockey rather than report to Providence Reds of the American League.

Simmons told Punch Imlach, General Manager Lynn Patrick he was through after Boston called up Young Bruins Gamble from Providence to take over the club's goaltending duties.

PAGES WINGS TONIGHT

Gamble, 22, whose style is unorthodox but effective, will be in the nets tonight when the Bruins host Detroit Red Wings.

He played Junior hockey with Guelph Biltmores.

Montreal Canadiens, flushed out of their losing streak with an ice show, play the Maple Leafs at Toronto in the other game. It marks one of the rare occasions that Canadiens don't play at home on a Saturday night.

Sunday, Montreal goes to Chicago for a game against the Black Hawks. Monday it's at New York and Toronto at Boston.

Bruins decided to switch goalies in an effort to make a game-long slump. They have won only three times in 11 games and are only one point out of last place.

"I don't feel it was a justified move," Simmons said. "Lynn Patrick admitted to me that it was playing all right, but that he had to make a change somewhere for the fans' sake. I went to Providence Friday."

Simmons is in his fifth season with the Bruins but never had the club's number one job to himself until this season. He allowed 33 goals in 17 games and has compiled an over-all 2.89 goals - against average in 167 NHL games.

UNSURE OF PLANS

"I have a little bit of pride," he said. "I think I'm capable of playing in the NHL. At the moment I don't know what I'm going to do.

"I wish the Bruins would trade me. Then I'd guess that's out of the question."

Patrick could be was satisfied with Simmons' play.

"But when a team continues to lose, changes must be made. And to make a move, I'll make it where I don't straighten out."

Gamble, a native of Port Arthur, has been regarded as one of the brightest prospects in his trade. He has played in only two previous NHL games, in the 1956-58 season with New York, and allowed six goals.

Boston drafted him from the Rangers' organization the following summer.

GOES ALSO ELEVATED

The Bruins also announced they have called up Willie O'Ree, first Negro to ever play in the NHL, from Hull - Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional League for the weekend games. O'Ree, 25, of Fredericton, played two games for the Bruins during the 1957-58 season.

After that he played with Springfield Indians of the AHL, Quebec Aces of the old Quebec League and Kingston Frontenacs of the EPHL before going to Hull-Ottawa at the beginning of this season.

Boston has managed only 64 goals in 17 games. In six starts games last season, they had 62 goals.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

"RED" IS MOBILE

For many years with the Detroit Red Wings, "Red" Kelly was an All Star defenceman. Now, as a centre player with the Toronto Maple Leafs, Kelly is again a star. On studying his play it becomes noticeable that probably the chief reason Kelly excelled as a defensive and offensive chores so well is because he is so mobile — always a sign of greatness in any sport and thus something the young player should strive to develop.

Mobility is the rarely seen ability to move equally well in every direction, to left to right, back or straight ahead. It is rarely a quality the player is born with but something he has developed either purposely or through some chain of events or circumstances. In the case of Kelly his outstanding mobility has been developed, mostly when he played junior hockey at St. Michael's College under the great Joe Primeau.

Kelly spent hours skating figure 8's, changing from back to front skating and vice versa. The result — mobility. And the young player can achieve the same results if he will work on his own. Most young players are better going to one side and often react slowly and awkwardly to a quick changing situation. Mobility gives far greater effectiveness. Shatto Will Play 'Battered' Argos Depend On Rote

By WILF GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts, battered and bruised as never before this season, pin their hopes on the great passing arm of quarterback Tobin Rote to carry them further along the comeback trail in what has been their best year since 1952.

Everything for three now practically comes down to what kind of day the former Hellaluk football League star has as Argos go into the second game of the Big Four final at 1:30 p.m. Sunday against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Going on the old pro's past history, Ottawa's 12-point lead from its 23-21 win in last Saturday's opening game could rapidly disappear if the big Texan gets good protection and has one of his better days.

The pressure the 33-year-old Rote faces in this deciding game of the two-game, total-point series is similar to what he was up against many times in his 10 years in the NFL with Green Bay Packers and Detroit Lions.

For example, in 1952 the Lions trailed San Francisco by 20 points midway through the final quarter in a game to decide what team would meet New York Giants for the world title. Rote rose to the occasion and in the fourth quarter threw three touchdown passes to give the Lions a 24-21 victory.

The record 36 touchdown passes he threw this season during the regular schedule are high enough of his shattering effect. But the 11 aerial weapon that coach Frank Clair and his Rough Riders fear most in contemplating Rote's every move and prevent a repetition of last Saturday.

Ottawa took a 12-point lead into the fourth quarter of that final, yet lost the series 26-24 as Hamilton Tiger-Cats struck for three touchdowns in the last quarter to win the second game 21-7. Hamilton became the third team since the Second World War to win the crown after losing the opening playoff game. Ottawa, in 1950, were the others.

Argos, who this season finished third in the eight-team Big Four, had an August 27 win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in their only previous meeting.

Pass Medicaids

MONTREAL (CP) — Bob Cleroux, C.B.C. radio sportscast champion and challenger George Chuvalo of Toronto were given a medical okay Friday within they underwent examination by Dr. Emil Thomas of the Montreal Athletic Commission. They meet Wednesday in the Montreal Forum, where Clerous won a decision over Chuvalo last August. A commission spokesman said choice of referee and judges will not be made until Tuesday.

Answers Criticism

Campbell Favors Ties

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Friday the NHL considers a tie a better decision than a result of a sports contest and that overtime tends to defeat balanced competition.

"It's a matter of policy with us and we have found it highly acceptable to the game's attendance," said Campbell.

He was answering a statement in New York by Dick Canning, American League president, who said he favors a plan for the NHL to use overtime. Canning said in an interview with Pete Picton "we have a right to expect more than they're getting."

NHL records show that in the five years prior to discontinuance of sudden death in 1942 seven of ties were broken by playing overtime.

Said Campbell: "Overtime wasn't worth it as far as we are concerned. We consider around 20 per cent ties satisfactory. If the percentage runs much higher we would control it by increasing penalties on fouls. Soccer, the most widely played game, has a high percentage of ties."

He added that experience of the NHL has been that overtime hockey tends to be rough and a moral victory for the visiting team.

Psychologically also overtime is unsound. The average fan wants a win; next best a tie, and he is thrilled at a home team gaining it."

Campbell said overtime would impose a great strain on star players. What would be gained one night would be lost the next because key players couldn't perform to their proper level.

Two Grid Finals Played In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal may have never seen a Grey Cup game, but two Canadien football championships are being held here today.

The Eastern Intercollegiate champions, McGill Redmen, host University of Alberta Golden Bears in the Canadian college championship game at McGill stadium while the Rosemount Bombers take on Hamilton Hilltops in the national junior final.

McGill reached the final with a 21-0 play-off decision over Queen's Golden Gaels last Saturday while Golden Bears won the Western intercollegiate title. McGill coach Bruce Coulter feels confident his team will be able to adjust to anything the Bears throw at them as they play for the Churchill trophy.

Proceeds of the game go to help paraplegics.

Coulter thinks his team's main worry will be Alberta's split-T formation—something the Redmen have never seen before.

SEE WESTERNERS PRACTISE

Friday night, after McGill would watched a Bears' practice, the Redmen worked out to brush up on certain defensive plays.

In the other camp, Alberta coach Murray Smith thinks his team is in perfect condition.

"Our fitness is at a 100 pct," he said, "but we should pick it up quickly." The Golden Bears have played only one game in the last month.

Smith said "we have to make a good showing because we want every game to be an annual affair."

MAKE LEAGUE DEBUT

OAKVILLE (CP) — Oakville Oaks, who began the season as members of the defunct Eastern Division, of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior Series, make their debut in the OHA Central Intermediate League tonight. Oaks' first game in the seven-team loop will be against Brantford Fords.

Senior Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twenty-six goals were scored Friday night as Strathroy Rockets and Stratford Indians battled to a 7-7 tie and Chatham Maroons split their contest with Woodstock Athletics 6-5 in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series.

The ties kept Maroons at the top of the league race with 15 points, four more than Strathford. At the bottom end, Woodstock and Strathroy each advanced a notch to seven and five points respectively.

At Stratford, Indians centre Gord Cagdy scored three goals. Billy Flick two and Butch Graham and Jack McIlwain one each.

The Strathroy attack was paced by Art Sullivan with two goals, with singles by Paul Oliver, Willie Hass, Jack Lane, Jack McCreight, and Don Mayes.

EVENED IT UP

The Athletics, playing on their home rink, held a 5-4 edge until Chatham playing-coach Ted Power slapped in a goal two minutes before the end of the third period.

At 2:03 of overtime, Woodstock's Carl Hair scored what appeared the winning goal until Frank Bathgate got the equalizer for Maroons one minute and 24 seconds from the final whistle.

George Aitken highlighted the game for Chatham with three goals. Bart Powers and Hatt rounded out the scoring. Woodstock's scoring was on two goals by Hatt and singles by Junior Barnes, Jack Stoddard, Ed Harrison and Gord Lovelace.

Blue Bombers, Eskimos Slug It Out

Amerks Trim Providence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Rochester Americans, who have been having their troubles winning in the American Hockey League, looked ahead to more woes today.

The Amerks pay-to-play lad in the standings, whipped the last-place Providence Reds, 4-3 Friday night in the AHL's only game, but may have lost the services of Stan Smrke, for six weeks.

Smrke, the leading goal-scorer in the league last season with 40 goals already had scored 16 during the current campaign. He limped off early in the first period and preliminary examination showed that he had suffered torn knee ligaments.

Duke Edmundson scored two of the Rochester goals in the second skipping into an empty net with 23 seconds remaining after Reed goalie Bruce Gamble had been yanked.

Jim Pappin put the Amerks ahead at 8:17 of the first period, and Hy Sharpe added the other way. Stan Balluk and Dutch Reibel scored for the Reds.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Edmonton Eskimos battle it out for key injuries, collide on a frozen field today to decide who will go to Vancouver for next Saturday's Grey Cup classic.

Barring an unprecedented overtime tie in this third game of the best-of-three final series in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, the winning plans should be settled a couple of hours after the 2:30 p.m. CST (3:05 p.m. EST) kickoff.

The winner goes against the eastern champion — either Ottawa Rough Riders or Toronto Argonauts in the Grey Cup.

The Bombers, Grey Cup winners the last two years, captured the first engagement of the final set 23-16 and dropped the second 10-8. Both the 21st game away from the bone-crushing action.

WEATHER GOOD

Weather conditions were expected to be reasonably good for today's game, to be televised nationally by the CBC. The quadrennial rain jinx would be sunny and mild with a high temperature of about 30 degrees, a westerly wind of up to 20 miles an hour and not expected to be a big factor because it would be blowing across the field.

Bomber Coach Bud Grant has his Eskimos through a brief workout Friday and had no comment or observation on the big game: "We're hoping to be successful to score. We feel that it's going to take 21 points or better on our part to beat them."

It will be a test of courage for many injured players. Keys said only Eskimo definitely out of the Eskimo lineup is halfback Cowboy Worsfold, with a severe knee injury picked up in the first game. Charlie Toby Dean, with knee and ankle injuries, was on the doubtful list Friday night.

Steve Bendiak will play at defensive halfback with a special mask protecting a broken cheekbone suffered two weeks ago and his running mate, Bill Smith, will play, although he is barely out of hospital after being stricken with a throat infection.

The ex-Bomber, however, were on Veroda Cole, first-year graduate of North Texas State, to go at quarterback with regular Frankie Ploen, sporting a cast on his injured right hand, plays defensive safety. Carver Shannon moves over to offensive halfback while Ray Jauch, suffering from a respiratory ailment, sits it out.

Grant was worried about the condition of his first - string fullback, Leo Lewis. Sheppard, with painfully stiff shoulders rewalling from pinched nerves, and Gerry James, with a knee injury. He said both "will be in there, if only for one play."

Hunters Bag Albino Deer Near Bancroft

An albino deer was bagged by hunters in the Bancroft area this week by a hunting party in the area of New Carlow in Carlow township, North Hastings County. Albino deer are rare, but have been reported on previous occasions from elsewhere in the province.

Barry Hayes moved into the farming area south of Tweed in recent months, according to reports received from local residents.

In the Thomasburg area this week a bear carried off a prize calf belonging to a local farmer.

The calf was carried over several low fences on the property by the bear before it was dehorned.

Beekeepers are also having their problems, with these destructive animals on the prowl, after the bees have and rob them of honey.

A Canadian lynx was shot this week in the township of South Monaghan by a local hunter. The animal was a female weighing almost 30 pounds. Hunters are reminded that the lynx is protected under the Game and Fisheries Act and cannot be taken legally without permit.

During the past week open season for deer south of No. 7 highway in the Tweed district, hunters bagged a number of large bucks that weighed in at well over 200 pounds dressed.

None of the animals weighed was over 3½ years old.

Western Hockey

The defending champion Vancouver Canucks, coming back by leaps and bounds after early season troubles, defeated Seattle Totems 5-3 Friday night to jump from fourth place into a second-place tie in the Western Hockey League standings.

While the Canucks moved ahead, Victoria Cougars were holding back the league-leading Edmonton Flyers, handing them a 3-3 defeat. The result left Victoria and Seattle sharing fifth place.

The Flyers still have a comfortable edge on the field, four points ahead of Vancouver and Calgary Stampeders, who have 16.

Vancouver scorers were Bruce Carmichael, Orland Kurtenback and Larry Popein. Seattle counters were by Gerry Leonard and George Ferguson.

Rookie Bert Flezell led the Cougars to their triumph at Victoria, scoring three goals despite strong Edmonton defence. Gerry Goyer and Bill Saunders scored the others.

The Edmonton scoring was done by Lloyd Hading, Bob Salinger and Don Polle.

Frank Lane Turns Down Manager Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Lane, general manager of Cleveland Indians, said Friday he has rejected an offer to become general manager of the New York-Washington franchise in the American League.

"It would have meant more money, but I decided I am better off where I am," said Lane of the offer made to him by Gen. Edward R. (Pete) Quesada, who heads the syndicate awarded the new Washington franchise Thursday night.

Quesada, reported to have offered Lane $40,000 a year and a long-term contract, said he was trying to get a general manager quickly in order to start selection of players for the new team.

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — British racing driver Stirling Moss Friday broke his track record for the second straight time in practice sessions for the United States Grand Prix for formula one cars.

Moss had an average of slightly more than 105 miles an hour in the 2.75-mile circuit nosing out Dan Gurney of Riverside and Jim Clark of England.

Moss is driving a privately-owned Lotus. Gurney is a privately entered BRM and Clark is driving a Lotus team car.

Thinks A's Should Stay In Kansas

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Elliot Stein, St. Louis investment broker, announced Friday he is dropping negotiations toward purchase of Kansas City Athletics of the American League and will continue to give a Kansas City group an opportunity to acquire ownership of the club.

Stein said he was pulling out because of disappointment expressed in Kansas City that ownership of the club was to pass to outside interests.

The probate court in Chicago had granted the co-executors of the estate of the late Arnold Johnson, owner of the Athletics, the authority to sell to the Stein group. Thus Stein's offer Friday is subject to approval by the court.

Stein said the 52 per cent of stock in the club which had been held by the Johnson estate will be offered to the Kansas City group for $1,520,000. This is the price the Chicago court had approved for sale of the stock to the Stein group.

Both the Stein syndicate and the Kansas City groupheaded by E. W. Putch, submitted bids at a hearing this week in the Chicago court. The court approved the Stein bid, in accordance with wishes of Mrs. Warren W. Hunes, remarried widow of Johnson, who was to retain an interest in the club under an agreement with Stein.

Brazilian Wins World Bantam Title

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Edez Sotre of Brazil won a piece of the world bantamweight boxing crown Friday night with an explosive punch. His right hand may become as famous as coffee and the samba in the South American republic.

Sotre, who loses like Sugar Ray Robinson and punches like a diminutive Joe Louis, took the National Boxing Association's version of the 118-pound championship by knocking out Mexico's Eloy Sanchez.

The lights went out for Sanchez at one minute and 20 seconds of the sixth round of the scheduled 15 - rounder. Sotre's short right caught Sanchez on the jaw and he almost took a backflip.

"I was surprised when he stayed down," Jofre said. Ringsiders weren't. Sanchez lay on his back several moments after Referee Mushy Callahan raised Sotre's hand in victory.

Jofre, a 5-to-1 favorite, weighed 118 pounds, as did Sanchez. The knockout blow came as Sanchez was delivering his best round. He uncorked a right that sent Jofre's mouthpiece flying.

QUIETED THEM

The punch brought a rousing ovation from the predominantly Mexican audience of 6,500 but Jofre's lethal right cross quieted the fans.

Jofre wants to take on Al Phonse Halimi of France to clear up the world title dispute. Hamili is recognized as the European bantamweight king. The division became vacant with the retirement last summer of Mexico's Jose Becerra.

Jofre, 24, is Brazil's first world boxing king. He is undefeated in 38 bouts and has 27 knockouts.

Thelen Ottawa Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa's Rough Riders—or at least the Canadian content—will watch part of the Winnipeg - Edmonton western final today before leaving at 3 p.m. by air for Toronto and their Sunday meeting with the Argonauts.

A television room has been set aside at the airport terminal so they can catch part of the western game before their departure.

The Sunday game, carried on two-game, total - points series which Riders lead 26-21, will begin at 1:30 p.m. and will be nationally televised. In event o fa tie on the round robin total-point time, the 10-minute halves will be played. If Riders and Argos are still tied after that, the Big Four football championship and the eastern berth in the Grey Cup will go to Toronto on the strength of their first-place finish.

Riders appeared in good physical shape with the possible exceptions of fullback Dave Thelen, Big Four rushing champion the last two seasons, and end Bill Sowulak, who operates as a linebacker as well. Both have leg injuries.

MAY FREEZE ANKLE

Thelen has been unable to cut sharply or turn on the speed because of a twisted ankle. The ankle will probably be frozen to the Sunday's game.

Gerry Nesbitt will be prepared to take over Thelen's fullback position and halfback Joe Kelly has been boning up on corner linebacking to help Nesbitt there.

Ends Ted Gerela and Ted Smale, who received leg injuries weeks ago, are back in practice but there is no possibility of them playing Sunday.

Riders may wear mud cleats if the Toronto field, remains wet but coach Frank Clair said he can't see the field making much difference unless it rains during the game.

"A real big wind would make more difference than anything," said assistant coach Bill Smyth. It was just such a wind that derailed Riders three of five contests last Saturday here.

Bill Westwick, Ottawa Journal sports editor, Friday ran in his column a letter from farmer Rough Rider Stan Stanyar in Vancouver. Stanyar urges the eastern Grey Cup team to fly to Vancouver Sunday night so it will have time to become accustomized to the "heavy air" on the coast.

MAY PLAY IN CANADA

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Milan's top division International Soccer team is considering invitations for a series of games in Canada, Sweden, the United States and Venezuela next August, it was announced Friday.

Gable Sought Older Women For Security He Never Knew

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The women in a man's life help reveal what kind of person he was. Clark Gable had five wives and many sweethearts.

Wife No. 1 was Josephine Dillon, a warm - hearted actress and director who taught him how to act. They married in 1924, when he was 23 and she was 37. They were divorced in 1930.

Wife No. 2 was Mrs. Rita Langham, a double divorcee whom Gable married in 1931 when he was 30 and she was 41. They were divorced in 1935.

SOUGHT SECURITY

Why would a man of legendary sex appeal twice marry women much older than himself? The answer seems to lie in Gable's early life. He never knew his mother, never had the stability of a permanent home. It's possible he sought in older women a security he had never known.

The first Mrs. Gable offered some insight on her famed husband: "He's a actor. The Clark Gable you see on the screen, that playful rogue with the happy-go-lucky mischievous glint in his eye, is not the real Gable. The real Gable is moody and thoughtful and gloomy."

Lusty, fub-loving Carole Lombard seemed a perfect match for Gable. She pulled him out of his gloom, and their raucous life together became a legend.

After her death in a plane crash, Gable plunged into depression. Carole's last message to him from Amarillo, Tex., had been: "Hey, Pappy, you'd better get going this morning. Are you settled in the army as a private in the same room?"

RESUMED DATING

After the war, Gable resumed dating, sometimes with glamour girls, sometimes with mature socially-prominent women. In 1946 he surprised everyone by eloping with thrice-married Lady Sylvia Ashley, widow of Douglas Fairbanks Sr.

Gable had popped the question at a party the night before, proved to be a wrong impulse. Later, one of the guests commented her chances: "He wants a wife who can cook a meal at night and cook flapjacks over a campfire in the daytime."

Ray Williams a Spreckels, a friend for 15 years, qualified. Again he eloped, again with a mature woman of the world. The marriage brought him much happiness and he guarded it against intrusion from the outside world.

Yankees Del Webb

Seek Franchise Buyer

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Co-owner Del Webb of the New York Yankees was off today on what was supposed to be a secret mission. In an attempt to line up a buyer for the Los Angeles franchise in the American League for 1961.

Joe Cronin, beleaguered AL president, departed Wednesday night Friday after deferring a decision until Tuesday on the ownership of the New York baseball franchise.

Cronin said Webb has been commissioned to see Walter O'Malley and learn from the Los Angeles Dodger owner the extent of damages he would seek for invasion of a second major league city.

It was learned, however, that Webb had a two-fold reason for hurrying to Los Angeles. He wants to confer with O'Malley and interest a group he has in mind to take over the Los Angeles franchise.

"Webb said he knew some people in Los Angeles he was certain would be acceptable to the league," an informant said. "He didn't want to identify these people because he wasn't sure they wanted to own a big league club, but he said he'd try to line them up."

NOT ENTHUSED

This disclosure indicated that American League owners were not particularly enthused over an offer by Charles O. Finley, a Chicago insurance broker, who pledged $5,000,000 Friday to the operation of the Los Angeles club.

"Finley was the only one to apply for a franchise in person," said Cronin. "Although we had several other bids on the telephone and by telegram."

He declined to identify the other bidders, but it was learned that one came from J. A. Smith, an industrialist who owns part of the Diego Club of the Pacific Coast League, and another from Elliot H. Stein, a St. Louis investment broker who had withdrawn from negotiations for the purchase of Kansas City Athletics.

Reports from the meeting made no mention of Jack Kent Cooke, who has been seeking a major league franchise for Toronto. Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League, flew here from Toronto Friday, stayed for the meeting. He was not available for comment.

Cronin recessed the day - long meeting to lead a committee to

Flyers Whip Teepees 5-3, Royals Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers, rookie entrants in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series, are teaching a thing or two to the old timers.

Friday night Flyers outskated the defending Memorial Cup champion St. Catharines Teepees 5-3 before a record 3,506 crowd at Niagara Falls. The victory lifted the Flyers into a tie with the Toronto Marlboros at the top of the table to 12 points, a two-point margin over Oshawa Royals.

The Royals kept pace Friday night with a home ice 6-2 victory over the hapless Toronto Marlboros to stay in the second spot from the idle Peterborough Petes. Petes have nine points, St. Michael's eight, the Teepees seven and Marlboros and Hamilton four each.

COUNTS TWICE

Jeannot Gilbert sparked the Flyers' attack with two goals as the Niagara Falls squad smoked Teepees a third time to get a lead, then bounced back with three goals in the second frame. Bob Harvey, Jim Hergott and Billy Knibbs also scored for Flyers.

St. Catharines marksmen were John Hennessey, Murray Hall and Howard Kellough.

Brenneman shot Teepees into the lead mid-way past the midway mark of the opening frame. Three minutes later Harvey evened it up on a pass from Knibbs.

During the second period Flyers peppered St. Catharines goalie Rodger Cranier with 18 shots, with three by Gilbert. Hergott and Knibbs finding the mark. At 12:40 of the final period Gilbert raced in alone to net Flyers' fifth goal.

With three minutes to play, Teepees rallied to score twice within 48 seconds on goals by Hall and Kellough.

HAD IT THEIR WAY

At Guelph Royals had it all their own way. They led 3-1 after the first period and 5-1 after the second.

Jean Ratelle paced Royals with two goals while Ted Harrigan, Ron Ingham, Borden Smith, Terry Oliver and Marcel Labelle getting singletons. Marlies' scorers

Choose Your Shotgun Carefully

Down in Sag Harbor, Long Island, New York, I have a friend who owns and operates a license-to-kill shooting preserve — one of those "game farms" where, for a stated fee for the right to shoot and to bring in a certain number of birds in a good game farm, well stocked and well run.

The owner, quite naturally, sees a great many gunners each year. He knows their abilities just as he knows their faults and frailties. Rarely does he put himself in position of possible danger, for most of his guests are well behind the business end of shotguns in the field. One, however, he made a mistake.

Last fall four youngsters, who had completed their course in safe gun handling, sponsored by one of the high schools, had been brought to his farm for a day of practical shooting as a reward for the completion of the training course. They were accompanied by their instructor.

SHOT IN BACK

My friend went along with the boys, acting as guide and carrying his own gun. Each of the boys knocked down a pheasant which fell in a patch of cover. My friend sent a dog out to pick up the dead bird and, unknown to him, one bird which had shot it followed him. The youngster was shooting a magazine gun and he got excited. In the heat of the moment, had neglected to put a plug in the gun's magazine. A twig caught the trigger guard and my friend received a charge of high-speed sizes in his right leg. He recovered, but he will go through the rest of his days with a limp.

The probabilities are that this accident could not have occurred with the orthodox double-barreled field gun. When a gunner, any gunner, by design or habit, is held in the field, the first thing he does is to reload. When the breech of a double field gun is thrown open by a gent on automatically. Then when the gun is closed it stays in safe. Twigs catching in the trigger can't discharge it.

Of course, a good double gun costs more than the average magazine gun. But the extra cost there in workmanship. Those guns are put together by experienced gun makers and they are solid, reliable pieces of mechanism, tooled to exact tolerances. Conversely, a friend of mine visited the factory where one of the large makers of firearms. There, in assembling the parts for the matched magazine guns being put together by girls. Now I ask you.

Over the past 20 years the makers of double guns generally have been shaping the thinking on the American gunner in the matter of shotguns. More and more emphasis has been placed on double guns than ever before, guns, more expensive as a rule, have been running a poor second. In the gun racks at the average sporting goods stores the American double guns, next ones, are just about non-existent.

CAREFULLY MADE

One of the fine American double guns is the Winchester Model 21. This gun is carefully made and particular attention is given to the boring. It throws

New Techniques Help Combat Exhaust Fumes

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

The growing effort to combat air pollution has centred to a great extent on auto exhaust fumes. This should further emphasize their harmfulness and alert car owners to the importance of checking mufflers and tailpipes.

Don't wait for noise to tell you that a crack or hole has developed. Slight exhaust escape into the car can be deadly and the danger is greatest at this time of year when car windows are usually closed.

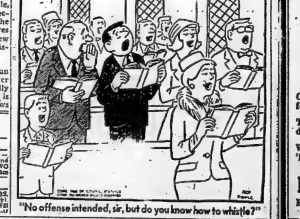
At least one car maker is now directing attention to the exhaust system by furnishing, as original equipment, mufflers and other manifolding of a new coating or bond which prevents rusting, corrosion, acid and heat damage to these parts.

Furthermore, the muffler and tailpipe are covered by a guarantee for as long as the original purchaser retains the car.

From J. B.: "When my spark plugs are cleaned and the gaps reset, is it also necessary to clean the plug cables?"

R. T. is no! It's always necessary, but very often the old gaskets can't assure a positive seal.

I.L. writes: "What is the new transaxle which I've been seen announced for 1961?"



(A) Basically, it's a new system of transmitting drive power. It permits installation of the transmission in the rear end, rather than in the front end where it has always been. Combined along with a new type drive shaft, it gives the car floor in front and rear.

T. O'K. writes: "The '61 model I hope to get is advertised as requiring no greasing for 30,000 miles. Exactly what type of lubrication does this involve?"

(A) This refers to a special type grease which is used for chassis lubrication.

From S. S.: "While driving, I can see and hear the knock of the engine but not the fenders. This is not only annoying, but dangerous because it distracts

After 101 Weeks in Hospital Lita Buys Herself New Hands And New Ears May Follow

How the will to live can transcend the frailty of a broken human body is memorably illustrated in the story made available to The Associated Press by the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times.

By EILEEN LARDNER
Staff Writer
New Bedford Standard-Times

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) Lita Leving of Brooklyn, N.Y., bought a new pair of hands last week.

The story of Lita and her new hands began the night of Aug. 21, 1958. Northeast Airlines flight 258 — two hours late out of New York because of bad weather — was coming in for a landing on Nantucket Island, off the Massachusetts coast.

Lita, 23, a $73-a-week cashier in a New York department store, was starting a 10-day vacation, fascinated by the wild and rugged, her brown hair with slim, graceful fingers. She observed reaching for glasses she didn't need, later for Soon Lita wouldn't need glasses.

The twin - engined Convair struck the ground 2,000 feet short of the runway. It plowed a 500-foot swath through a field of scrub growth, hit pine trees and burst into flames.

Twenty-four persons died in the crash. Of 10 survivors, two later died. Lita was one who lived.

HAPPENED SO FAST

"It happened so suddenly," she recalls. "One second everything was fine. The next minute I was pinned under something. I didn't know what."

That something was an 800-pound engine.

Thirty men lifting with ropes and tools at last lifted the engine and freed Lita.

Lita lost consciousness. She awoke in a Boston hospital.

Hospital records show Lita had suffered severe burns over about over 40 to 50 per cent of her body. Her arms and legs were broken. Her left hand and her right eyelid were deeply burned. There was some impairment of vision. There was almost complete internal damage to her ears and extensive external skin injuries. Her left kneecap was fractured. And she suffered some deep scoop-like cuts.

There were days and weeks under sedation. There followed during the next two years 37 operations. Surgeons tried to save her fingers — and failed.

ME, I BOUGHT THE CAR

me. I bought the car, a 1959 Rambler, from a private party just one month ago . . . and this has happened from the beginning."

(A) The most likely source of trouble is the hood lock or safety catch. It's possible, however, that the hood itself is not properly lined up.

Dr. George Nardi feared for Lita when she pleaded to see her face, when she should learn about her hands. He was the burn specialist.

But Lita didn't worry about her fingers "because I could feel my fingers ache under the bandages."

There came a victory when Lita could see. She could sing. And, a month later, the worst blow when she learned her fingers were gone.

The despairing girl, asking for death, said, "I don't accept it; I won't live without hands."

Eighteen hours a day her mother fought a battle of the spirit. In between Lita's father took over, softly speaking hour after hour that she would be all right.

At last the parents knew and Lita at last accepted the thought. "I did have a dream; I had to get better."

Now Lita's wrists between the stumps of her thumbs and middle fingers. With her maimed hands she could hold a cigaret, or a cup of coffee.

At last, Lita could do some things for myself," she says.

GOES HOME

Now in June 39 this year, after 101 weeks, she was discharged.

There's still a patch over Lita's right eye. The scarred inside of her face must still be restored. Her ears need reshaped. Plastic surgery may restore her sight.

A few weeks ago, she was awarded a settlement of $375,000 by Northeast.

And now she has bought some hands. Soon she will wear rings on them. And gloves. She always loved gloves. She almost reached for her gloves — just before the crash.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Husband Often Ruins Wife's Life Because He Goofs at Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

"You have not said nearly enough yet about the inequality of the man and his wife when the man retires from his job.

"This, I am convinced, is the area of greatest unhappiness in most retirements.

"The inequality lies in the comparison of what the woman loses and what the man loses when he comes home with the pension. Primarily, the wife loses some of her peace and quiet. But the man loses his place in our modern society and what feeling of well-being that place gave him. Most important, he loses his daily companions.

"The wife has the same status the day after her husband retires that she had before. She also has the same friends around the same corner. But the man's companions, because of the nature of a man's business these days, are all back downtown and have no time to spare to be his companion in leisure. . . ."

This man retired with a comfortable income in the manufacturing business and came home to a comfortable suburban split-level. He had no particular plans for his retirement, he says, because he figured he was a reasonably well-balanced individual and could find plenty of things to do.

HAD GUESSED WRONG

"I guessed wrong," he continues, "and when I realized it, I didn't cry or start a crisis. Like most other reasonable men I would have done, I resigned myself to my lot.

"Then I got to thinking I liked to fish, hunt, go on automobile trips, take color photos and play with boats. So I persuaded my wife to take off with me on a three month jaunt through the Northwest where I could play at most of these things.

"It was a good idea — for me. But what I had done was flip the inequality to the other side of the table. My wife certainly did not have an equal chance of happiness in these activities that appealed only to me. . . ."

This husband's next idea was to move to another city where he could obtain a job of reasonable importance with a firm that was hiring men over 65. He and his wife went to the other city to investigate and the man immediately realized that if his wife had to settle down in a new neighborhood while he went back to work, she would take on all of the inequality he had in coming home with his pension — the loss of status and the loss of companions, while he was busy with a new pattern of friends.

"The solution in our case," he says, "was found by sitting down on the sofa, analyzing just what our problem was, and acting decisively to solve it.

"We sold our house and moved to a small town in the South where neither of us knew anybody and neither of us had anything to do. We set out to meet the challenge of finding a new way of life together, and starting with equal advantages we both were happier.

MANY DISAGREE

"There are may who will disagree with my attitude and with what I have done, but my wife was not happy when I wasn't. In finding a way to better my own life, I made hers happier and I guaranteed a close companionship for the two of us."

This husband's ideas make a pretty theory. But what he actually accomplished was the destruction of the advantages each of them had. Many husbands do this unconsciously in retirement when they encourage their wives to accept some new way of life — which in effect will bring the wife down to their level of discontent.

Wives, in the main, are not aware of their responsibilities when their husbands retire. Many of them would fare better, and have husbands longer, if they would start a year before the retirement to develop a "husband-wife life" at home that would be all set to replace the "wife-life" when the man came home. Organization and club work, studies at universities and night schools, small business ventures — there are all sorts of things a smart wife can start selling a husband about age 64.

Get to Know Newfoundland

Newfoundland — The Fortress Isle, by J. Wentworth Day Published for the Government of Newfoundland by Brunswick Press, $2.00 case bound; $1.00 pgtral bound.

In the first decade of Confederation, which this book celebrates, many a Canadian in other provinces has wished he knew more about this Johnny-come-lately, this Newfoundland that was for so long a separate dominion. In the Commonwealth. What do the people and their background look like? What have they got there? Is there reality in all this talk of incalculably vast untapped resources? The questions are numerous.

This book by Mr. Wentworth Day supplies many of the answers in a very attractive form. The author tells us how he got his material: "I travelled nine thousand miles by ship, 'plane, boat 'plane, automobile, open truck, small boat and on foot to see Newfoundland and Labrador. This book is the spontaneous outcome of the astounding vision of the regeneration of a country."

It is all here, set down in colorful prose, every facet of old Newfoundland, all that is going on there, the great prospects of the province's future.

It is lavishly illustrated in full color throughout.

There is a Foreword by Premier Smallwood, in which with all his well-known vigor of language he sets forth Newfoundland's case in the yet unresolved controversy over "Term 29".

This Newfoundland work of Mr. Wentworth Day's is something that should be in the hands of everyone interested in and desiring better knowledge of the easternmost of our Atlantic Provinces — D. K. Parr.

Bursary Charge Will Be Probed

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Roberts will take "a long, hard look" at provincial bursaries awarded in the Chatham area and to those who do not qualify, he said Friday.

Mrs. Beverley Easton, vice-chairman of the Chatham board of education, said Thursday wealthy parents are telling false stories to get student aid bursaries from the government.

The board asked the education department to re - examine its method of awarding bursaries and suggested penalties for false declarations.

Mr. Roberts said he was not aware of conditions stated by Mrs. Easton. He said there was a stiff means test for recipients of bursaries.

"You must keep in mind," he said, "that our new system of government aid to students, in which we award about 6,400 bursaries, scholarships and loans a year, has been in operation for only three years.

"There might be a few kinks, but we'll need time to iron them out."

C. W. Booth, deputy education minister, said some bursaries might be withdrawn if the charges were true. There was no penalty for making a false statement.

Will Shoot Down Chinese Planes Nehru Declares

China Rejects Protests Saying Planes American

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru said today India certainly would shoot down Chinese Communist planes that cross India's border "when we can do it." But it would be very difficult, he added.

Nehru took his toughest stand yet against border troubles with the Chinese in answer to questions in parliament. A number of opposition members expressed concern about government reports of repeated Chinese violations of India's air space over the Himalayas.

The government disclosed last week it had protested to Peking over 101 air violations during the last eight months. The Chinese rejected the protests, saying the planes were not theirs. India is convinced they were.

Nehru said it is not easy to identify the planes but nevertheless "it is open to us to shoot them down." Later, he added that it would "not be a very easy matter" to shoot down aircraft but "we will certainly do it when he can do it."

However, Nehru said the government is using diplomatic means to try to halt the violations.

Both he and Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon said it would continue keeping "fleets of planes" in the air in order to prevent Chinese planes crossing the border. They implied that India does not fly regular fighter patrols because the border area is about 51,000 square miles along the mountainous border between India and China.

The Indian Air Force has several squadron of British-built Hunter jet fighters which are believed to be vastly superior to anything China is flying. However, the bulk of India's small air force is composed of older planes.

In reply to a new protest, China has said the planes "cross-fly the border in a really new American canoe from Bangkok, Thailand, dropping spies into China.

38 FATALITIES ACROSS CANADA DURING WEEKEND

23 Victims Die In Traffic Mishaps

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Quebec family of four was killed late Sunday night in a car-truck collision near Rouyn-Noranda, and another was injured in rising weekend traffic tolls.

A Canadian Press survey from 8 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday showed a weekend total of 38 across Canada at 38. Twenty-six persons died in traffic mishaps.

Ontario was free of traffic fatalities but three small children died in a fire destroyed their home in an Indian settlement at Churchill on Hudson Bay.

Quebec reported 11 highway deaths, Ontario six, British Columbia and Alberta three, Nova Scotia two and New Brunswick one.

Two persons were accidentally shot while hunting, one in Ontario and one in Nova Scotia. B.C. counted two drownings and Ontario one.

FOG HUNT FATAL

An Ontario boy was accidentally shot by his father while they hunted a chicken-killing fox on their father's farm. A Newfoundland man was killed in fog from a ladder, a man died of exposure after being stranded in Ontario and a man was struck by a train in Quebec.

Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island were fatality-free over the weekend.

The survey does not include deaths due to c r i m e s, natural deaths or suicides.

TEST A SUCCESS

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Military and civil defence officials Sunday afternoon termed Exercise Nimble Phoenix, one of the largest ever mounted in Eastern Canada, a complete success. Only a few minor casualties were rescued from the ruins of two adjacent cities after a simulated atomic bomb was dropped on nearby Lancaster.

Japan's Conservatives Win But Have Margin Cut Again

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's ruling party rolled back to control of parliament today but failed to get the all-out backing they had asked of the country's voters.

The pro-U.S. Liberal Democratic (Conservatives) claimed their victory was a broad endorsement of the U.S.-Japan security pact—and other close ties with the West.

Their leftist opponents claimed leftist gains proved just the opposite.

The Sunday election that returned Premier Hayato Ikeda's party to power followed the same general pattern of voting in Japan since the end of the war. It again showed a Conservative majority balling a steady and steadily - increasing leftist minority.

A middle-of-the -road appeal, made by the Democratic Socialists, was crushed as Japan's pacifist voters repeated their sharp swing to the right and left.

The Communists made their best showing in 10 years, increasing their total of the popular vote to 2.9 per cent from 2.6 per cent and winning three seats.

With all but one of 467 parliamentary seats decided, the unofficial count gave the breakdown:

Liberal Democrats 296, Socialists 145, Democratic Socialists 16, Communists 3, Farmers Labor party 1, Independents 5.

The five Independents elected are considered in the Conservative camp.

With 96 per-cent of the popular vote tabulated, the Liberal Democrats had 22,106,758 or 57.8 per cent; the Socialists 10,468,245 for 27.4 per cent; Democratic Socialists 3,319,026 or 8.7 per cent; Communists 1,086,687 for 2.9 per cent; minor parties 134,311 for 0.3 per cent and the Independents 1,295,994 for 2.9 per cent.

The vote came against a background of rock-and-roll parliament, violent demonstrations against the U.S.-Japan security pact and President Eisenhower's cancelled visit to Japan. Party leaders played down foreign policy themes during the campaign but emphasized domestic issues and personalities were, as always, important in Japanese politics.

A total of 39,951,119 persons—or 73.5 per cent of the eligible voters—went to the polls.

Deny Reports Donald Gordon To Retire as CNR President

OTTAWA (CP) — Supervisory officers of the CNR have been told that reports about the retirement or resignation of CNR president Donald Gordon are "without foundation."

A special announcement explaining the background in the government's move to broaden the CNR board of directors is being circulated to all supervisory officials of the railway.

Signed by C. A. Harris, CNR public relations director in Montreal, the announcement also is aimed at clearing up "numerous and speculative reports" that them based upon an obvious misunderstanding of the legislation governing the activities of this publicly-owned railway.

Reports that Mr. Gordon would not be reappointed as head of the CNR appeared after his term of office for the CNR board of directors expired at the same time. All remain in office until reappointed or new directors are named.

So far the government has not announced any reappointments or replacements. But the government-backed legislation is widely aimed at broadening the board of directors to 15 members from the present maximum of nine.

The CNR announcement said that "the government has acted as a decision on the directors whose terms expired in September "will be announced in due course."

TAKE A CHANCE ON YOUNG MEN MAGAZINES TOLD:

Time and Digest Defended in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian periodicals, instead of seeking restrictions on United States publications, might study them with profit and perhaps even accept some of their philosophies, Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Times, said today.

"One of these philosophies is the American's willingness to take a chance on young men in the belief that youth and fermen t are essential ingredients in the stirring-up of ideas."

Mr. Keate, in a personal presentation to the royal commission on publications in which he defended Time magazine and Reader's Digest, U.S. publications towards which accusations of unfair foreign competition have been directed by Canadian periodical publishers.

The royal commission, under chairman M. Grattan O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal, is considering the present state and prospects of Canadian periodicals and is paying particular attention to the question of foreign competition.

It began hearings last week in Ottawa, where it sat for five days, and opened a cross-country tour here today. Public hearings will continue in the province through Wednesday with 16 more major industrial centres expected to be heard.

Mr. Keate said one of two Canadian magazines—Maclean's and Weekend were named—have been "financed by people who are young men and have been successful."

"Surely there is no lack of talent in Canada. We have the writers, the photographers and the technical experts to produce periodicals magazines in this country. And the total circulation figures would indicate that there is a healthy intellectual curiosity among our people; Canadians like to read."

Yet there were large gaps in coverage by Canadian magazines —no weekly newsmagazine, no popular literary magazine and no sophisticated journal, no topquality magazine or recreation and no medium for political magazine—and there was no attempt to fill them.

Mr. Keate said there has been no aid to the arts with the same spirit of daring that there has been in business. He had read a speech in which Time said it had invested 25 years of his life in creating $300-million in assets and pipelines.

"Surely few if we have been unable to excite a similar interest in the world of ideas," he said.

Cries Of Trapped Miner Spur Rescue Work

Youth Entombed 1,700 Feet Below Surface

TIMMINS (CP)—Cries of an entombed miner spurred rescuers today as they worked to free the young Englishman trapped 1,700 feet below the surface in a gold mine here.

Alan Rose, 26, of Manchester, England, was trapped about 2 p.m. Saturday when timbers collapsed as he was working in a drifted stanchp from the 1,700-foot level to the 1,850-foot level.

His partner, John McPhail, jumped back when the timbers collapsed and barely-escaped being buried in the rush of sand and gravel that cascaded into the tunnel.

Rose was without food or water when he was trapped and rescuers so far have not been able to get any in to him. A small drill hole was pushed through 10 feet of solid rock to his chamber for aid."

Rose shouted that his legs were pinned by timbers and debris.

Officials at the Hollinger Consolidated operation said they hoped to reach him "shortly."

Rose has been in the mine eight, have been working around the clock since the cave-in, spelling each other in six-hour shifts.

Rose came to Timmins Manchester about five or six weeks ago.

Mine manager E. A. Perry, at the scene of the rescue operations, said they could not blast "for fear of injuring" Rose and bringing down more sand and gravel.

McPhail, president of the Timmins Local of the United Steelworkers of America, said the rescue crew in their race to reach Rose.

The young miner was imprisoned an hour before his shift was to end.

Liberal Leader Receives Award In Absentia

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester Pearson of Canada Sunday night was presented in absentia with the Medallion of Honor of the State of Israel.

His citation drew attention to the former external affairs minister's "outstanding role in the deliberations of the United Nations which led to the judicious consideration of the differences between the State of Israel and the Arab nations."

It also cited his "illustrious record of dedication to the cause of world peace."

Because of his parliamentary duties in Ottawa, Mr. Pearson was unable to receive the medallion in person from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt at the awards dinner here.

Others chosen to receive the award included Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Sir Anthony Eden.

Mr. Pearson was external affairs minister at the time of the Israeli attack on Egypt and Britain's intervention under Sir Anthony in 1956. He subsequently was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his part in bringing about the formation of the United Nations Emergency Force which stands between the Israeli and Egyptian armies.

In a speech of acceptance recorded and played broadcast after the dinner, Mr. Pearson said Israel still has not attained the security to which its "gifted and hard-working people" are entitled.

"That must be the next objective to be answered: A creative peace and security for Israel based on freedom and justice, something which I believe is as much in the interests of Israel's neighbors as it is of Israel herself."

Mother of Three Dies in Hospital

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Mrs. Ruth Ann Hall, 30, mother of three from a house fire Thursday, died today of extensive second and third-degree burns. She was the second victim of the 5850 blaze.

Mrs. Sadler and her three children were trapped in an upstairs bedroom when fire started in clothes left on a bannister rail in the front hall.

Maxwell, 2, who suffered burns to 40 per cent of his body, died Friday in Toronto General Hospital. Stephen, 3, and Carol, three months, are also on the critical list.

Mrs. Sadler's father, the husband, was rushed home by RCAF transport from Germany after the fire and has been in constant attendance at the hospital.

Gen. de Gaulle Celebrates 70th Birthday on Tuesday

PARIS (AP) — Charles de Gaulle marks his 70th birthday Tuesday, a figure of monumental calm at the head of a storm-tossed regime.

There will be no special celebrations.

"The general does not like any sort of fuss," an aide commented at the Elysee Palace. "He, 22, will be a day like any other."

But de Gaulle's every day is a success France's great war hero has driven the Algerian rebellion, settling the destinies of France With five years more to serve in office, he remains unruffled by growing opposition to his policies and unconcerned about the fact that the people are still behind him.

His health is extremely good. Only the failing eyes, a disease for concern, but eyes this or not so bad as to prohibit his posed. His powerful constitution has withstood the years quite well, enable him to read even small print with ease. He studies the newspapers himself daily.

Only once since becoming president seven years ago has de Gaulle had to abandon his desk and briefly retire to his bed—with the prestige last winter.

The president eats carefully and has experienced only the minor troubles which afflict so many Frenchmen. He likes to walk and ride horseback, and sometimes touches stronger stuff.

Although a chain-smoker under the stress of war years, de Gaulle gave up smoking in 1951—probably on medical advice.

He has no particular hobbies except writing and he is deprived of that in Paris because of the crowds. He likes fast motoring, too. But—because of his eyesight—never drives himself.

De Gaulle's working day starts about 8 a.m. when he studies the newspapers over his breakfast coffee.

He is at his desk from 9:30 a.m. until 1 p.m., when he breaks off for luncheon. He is at his desk from 3 p.m. until 8. He usually dines alone with his wife or sometimes with family visitors.

LONDON (Reuters) — About three-quarters of the editorial staff of the London News Chronicle, all unemployed as a result of the absorption of the paper last month by the London Daily Mail, have found new jobs, it was announced here Saturday. Older men are having a harder time relocating, the announcement said.

Kennedy Keeps Tightly Secret On Cabinet Posts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Kennedy is keeping tightly secret his choices of men he will place in cabinet posts.

There has, however, been increasing speculation that Commerce post will go to Governor Michigan Hodges of Georgia. Hodges is a former vice-president of Lockheed Aircraft company, the big Chicago department store.

There have been hints Kennedy may have at least one Republican in his cabinet, and that he would like to include a Negro and a southerner among his choices.

Hodges is the author of a plan to settle the controversy mixing of the races in public schools by closing them until the courts.

There have been reports that Kennedy might choose a Republican secretary of state, promoting bipartisanship and thus helping Dillon to that post. Or he might give the Republican post to Under-treasury Robert B. Anderson or Ike Eisenhower's ambassador to Mexico, Robert C. Hill.

HAS LONG LIST

Kennedy, however, is known to be considering a long list of Democrats for the secretary of state nomination Tuesday.

Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, Adlai Stevenson, two-time presidential nominee; former governor Averell Harriman of New York and Representative Chester Bowles of Connecticut, all have been mentioned since election day.

They will be surprised if he doesn't award a cabinet job to Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, either as secretary of labor, secretary of health, education and welfare, or postmaster general.

A long list of other Democrats also has been mentioned as ready for the important secretary of state post, including Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City.

Scheffing, 54, managed the Cubs two months after leaving Cleveland in the unprecedented managerial trade for Jimmie Dykes. Gordon brought the Tigers to sixth in the American League.

'No News Until Football Game Over' R.C. Reply to Sunday Sport Query

OTTAWA (CP)—Most clergymen opposed to the holding of a Sunday sports vote in the municipal elections here next month practised what they preached Sunday and refused to watch the Ottawa-Toronto Big Four football game.

Most Protestant clergymen polled said they were too busy, were resting or it was against their convictions to watch the final on TV between the Rough Riders and the Argonauts. Ottawa won the game in Toronto to move into the GREY Cup final.

However, a call at halftime to a Roman Catholic rectory brought the reply "there will be no news until we get this football game over."

In a last ballots Dec. 5 to decide whether Ottawa should have Sunday sport and many other things launched a campaign against such a step.

Rev. Ernest C. H. Reach, rector of an Anglican church, said he had no objection to watching the game on TV, adding that "a man has a right to do what he likes in his own home."

Reginald Hobson, member of a committee opposed to Sunday sport, said neither he nor his teenage daughters watched the game because it was "a matter of conviction."

Old Fashioned Alsatian Gets Own Lamp Post

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP)—Alsatian Cocke Page spent the equivalent of $12 today on a lamp post to make her story happy ending.

For years an old fashioned lamp post stood just around the corner from Mrs. Page's home.

Her Alsatian, Rex, loved it. A couple of weeks ago city engineers replaced the street lights with electric lights. They dug up the post and installed a new white one made of concrete.

Rex became despondent. He roamed apparently looking for the old fashioned model without success.

Mrs. Page appealed to city fathers and they found an old lamp post for $4 15s. A condition that she put it in her garden.

The line between government, union leaders, and the heads of Canada's two great railways was today in Montreal were apparently without. No one would say so, but the grim expressions on cabinet ministers faces in the dispatches from Ottawa.

ELIZABETHVILLE (AP) — A his ministers, spruced and polished — one even wore evening Sunday got laughed at a diplomatic mixup that left Katanga officials feeling insulted at what they called a deliberate American "shoddy attitude."

Officials in this secessionist province had arranged a rousing reception for U.S. Ambassador Clare Timberlake.

The ambassador had to cancel his visit—a day visit, but news of the cancellation never got through via The Congo's unreliable communications.

Instead of Timberlake, Loy Henderson arrived. The state department's deputy undersecretary for administration, arrived in Elizabethville — but that was only a coincidence.

Not even U.S. Consul William Canaup was aware that Henderson was on the plane and Timberlake couldn't make it.

A special Katanga honor guard and a military band was lined up.

Debate on Oral French Features H-S Council Meet

A debate on the teaching of Oral French in Ontario elementary schools was featured at the recent meeting of the Belleville and District Home and School Council at Queen Victoria Public School.

The hospitality chairman, Mrs. H. Field, assisted by Mrs. W. H. Downing of Queen Alexandra Association, received the members.

Mrs. C. Wilson looked after the registration and distributed identification badges.

An extensive display of Home and School books and pamphlets was on view and for sale. Mrs. D. McDonald, publications chairman, assisted by Mrs. K. Ison, had on hand several new publications, including Dr. S. Laycock's "Better Schools For Better Children", "The Parent's Responsibility For the Right Kind of School." In addition, there were free copies of the booklet "The Gifted Child". Subscriptions were placed for the Canadian Home and School magazine and the monthly "Fall-Out Shelter" which is put out by the Emergency Measures Organization Ontario.

Mrs. R. D. Jones, president, extended a warm welcome and presided for the business session.

TRAVEL POOL DISCUSSED

The "Travel Pool for Convention" suggestion from the Ontario Federation was for discussion. The suggestion was explained by Mrs. Jones. It was decided to support the suggested resolution to the Federation: — "that, for purposes of the travel pool, Ontario be divided so that the northern section, and each other areas that so desire, may set up their own travel fund, and that associations in the remainder of the province may do so voluntarily to take fund of their finances permit."

Correspondence was read by Mrs. C. Wilson. Included were two letters: one in regard to the broadcasting on the CBC of a recording of the program "Spotlight On Home And School", and another in commendation of the meeting at hand, concerning the address by Dr. Laycock. Elementary schools, from the University Women's Club of Belleville.

Mrs. A. J. Fort, Council vice-president for East Belleville, gave a report of the Leadership Conference held in Kenner Collegiate, Peterborough, on October 29. This report included a brief explanation of a resolution brought to the conference floor regarding the channelling of per capita grants to the Ontario Council. The per capita then would be increased to include the council affiliation fees as well as membership in the Ontario and the Canadian Federations. This proposed idea would eliminate the payment of two separate fees as is now the policy in Ontario. This whole matter will be reviewed by the Belleville Council and each association will have an opportunity to discuss the proposal with its members and report back to Belleville.

Mrs. G. Digby, visual aids chairman, had available a complete National Film Board kit for each association president in attendance.

Mrs. D. McDonald, publications chairman, highlighted some of the new publications that the council has on hand.

The president made following announcements: Open meeting of Quinte Secondary Association to hear the new Canadian Federation president, Douglas Waking-ton, next week.

At a joint meeting of Sir Winston Churchill and Queen Alexandra Associations in the BCI auditorium, Dr. Laycock, Dr. Robert Gauthier, director of instruction for public schools, Ontario Department of Education, and his associates, Mrs. DePaolo, French expert, Oakville and Mr. A. J. Fisher, elementary principal and business administrator for the Oakville Public Schools, will present a topic: "How French Is Taught." Dr. Gauthier uses the Tan-Gau Method which was originally developed in Burma and which he has introduced into Canada. He has associates will give a demonstration lesson with a representative group of Belleville public school pupils.

DEBATE SUBJECT

Mrs. Jones called on Ronald Lee, council vice-president for Quinte Secondary, to introduce the debate, the topic being "Be it resolved that oral French be introduced as a regular part of the curriculum in the elementary schools of Ontario."

Mr. Lee outlined the rules governing the debate and gave instructions for the guidance of the judges. He explained that the participants were not speaking as an official capacity and that the opinions expressed were not necessarily their own.

The judges were all Home and School Association presidents: Mrs. R. Whitaker, Bayview; Mrs. R. Bennett, Concord, SCIVS; Dr. T. Burnett, Queen Elizabeth.

Mr. Lee introduced the capable team of the affirmative, A. C. Drysdale, chairman of the Secondary School Board, and the captain for the affirmative, James Ritchie, chairman of the Public School Board.

Mr. Drysdale was the first speaker and he began by introducing his colleagues and the affirmative, Mr. B. Turcotte and Mr. D. C. Bateman, public school teachers at Quinte Secondary School.

Mr. Drysdale clarified the affirmative as to the responsibility for education in our country. He stated that Canada is a bilingual country, but that the people are not bilingual. The teaching of French as a second language has been advocated on the National level by the Canadian Conference on Education. It has been advocated by many groups in Ontario, such as the Ontario Chamber of Commerce. The plan has two approaches, political and pedagogical. The government passes the rules and regulations for education, and educators are left to apply under these. The schools themselves have no power. The Ontario Department of Education allows oral French as an option with Grades 7 and 8 being compulsory. Twenty-three schools in Ontario are using oral French, on an experimental basis for the most part in Ottawa. Oral French is taught in Grades 2 to 6 elsewhere.

NOT WIDELY ACCEPTED

James Ritchie spoke first for the affirmative and introduced his colleagues on the negative, Mr. E. A. Craighead, a French teacher at Queen Elizabeth Secondary, and Mr. F. Ethier, a parent. He agreed with the points made by Mr. Drysdale regarding the importance of oral French. He said the regulation allowing oral French had been written in Ottawa, and that it was only a small minority of twenty - two schools in the province that had anything about it. Educators should decide what curriculum will provide the best foundation for the most children. Subjects are taught only if they will be useful for the majority of the pupils. He agreed that every child of another language would do good for any child who has the ability to absorb it. He thought it should be compulsory for every school child to find the pressure by a minority group? Perhaps private schools could get up their own who desire this extra knowledge.

French is not a compulsory subject in Secondary schools. Stress on the curriculum because many universities require a second language. Why should we make it compulsory in elementary schools when the government gives no funds?

Mr. D. C. Burch supported the affirmative by outlining some of the research why the study of the other languages is valuable. He said that language is the means by which we communicate ideas. There are no national limits to language, especially in Canada, where we have peoples of mixed origins in one country. By learning it in the primary grades earlier it is taught the better, we can provide a better appreciation of ideas, politically, socially and economically.

Mr. Craighead was the second speaker for the negative. He explained that in the Belleville public schools there are approximately 120 classrooms which would require one teacher per school a day of oral French instruction. Daily practice in the language is absolutely essential. To provide for such instruction would create panic in the public school board and headaches for the teachers and principals. The subject will be discarded to include oral French.

Who is going to teach your children? The teachers must be highly qualified and fluent in the language through very specialized training. It is hard for a teaching specialist to be found in the public school level and there are just not enough qualified teachers.

How many graduates of Grade 13 have French as one of their subjects? How many children will really benefit?

He ended that, if children are going to learn French, they must understand French grammar, the emphasis is wrong —oral French, alone, is not the solution.

Mr. B. Turcotte replied for the affirmative. He said the French in secondary schools is just an academic hurdle — students just become proficient at passing French examinations! After five years' tuition, they can speak French and, so, cannot put a living language to any practical use!

CHILDREN ARE IMITATORS

Our infants learn to speak English by imitating sounds, not by using a grammar book! This is the concept we need to apply to teaching the French language. It is imperative that the children learn as young as possible and that they learn through sound repetition.

Some say, what about the slow learner? It has been shown that a child with a low I.Q. can learn to speak correctly and fluently through sound imitation. If the imitative process were applied to oral French, I do not think even the slow learner would be as much a problem as has been thought!

Qualified teachers? Here lies a real problem. But, by a gradual of "on the job training" supplemented by special courses, and by attendance at one of our bilingual schools for courses, this could be remedied.

Mr. F. Ethier concluded the debate for the negative by stating that he could not see how oral French could be taught adequately in daily life. Only about twenty grade 8 graduates out of 100 have French as a subject. Is time their study of French at secondary school? French is not compulsory at secondary school. Why should it be at the elementary school?

If French is taught, then well have to go a way for the students to use it, as there is no practical application now.

How bilingual is Canada? French is not recognized by the diplomatic service. Most French Canadians recognize the importance of English and learn French, why not oral Russian? The inquisitive, young generation is distasteful. Only twenty-two schools are experimentally.

In the rebuttal, the affirmative team brought out the following points. Oral French should be an introduction to the language with no examinations required. It would enrich the curriculum. Public schools now using oral French programs reported that the teaching of French had caused no inconvenience and that it did not interfere unduly with the other subjects taught.

French is one of the two official languages of Canada. French is one of the five official languages of the United Nations.

The emphasis on oral needs was considered out of line. In this day of a integrating population, we should educate for the international good.

COULD BE AN OPTION

In summing up for the rebuttal, the judges stated that the experimental schools, oral French could be given in Grade 7 and 8, and then only to those desiring it. It is contrary to our democratic principles to teach a subject compulsorily. It might be introduced as a subject option to meet local needs, but the compulsion could never extend to the entire province.

The judges retired to tabulate their findings and while they were out there was a question-and-answer period. Some of the questions asked were:

How many specialists in the different provinces of Canada are implementing or teaching oral French in the elementary schools?

What proportion of Canada's population is bilingual?

What about the schools supplied by the Department of National Defence, where the children are moved about frequently?

Is English compulsory in French teaching schools?

With regard to the lack of teachers, could television classes ease this situation until sufficient qualified teachers were available?

The debating teams handled the questions capably and in the explanations, many more points were brought out on the topic of teaching French.

The judges brought in the following decision 1; Negative 2.

Mrs. K. Taylor expressed appreciation to all who had participated in the debate and to the Shannonville Home and School Association who convened the meeting.

Program arrangements were under the direction of Mr. Gordon Hutchinson, school education chairman.

Around The Tee

The twelve rinks that entered the one-day spiel at the Curling Club had a roaring time on Saturday. There were three draws of eight-ends each and the winners were declared on a point system, four points for a win plus one point for each end won. Rinks skipped by Ben Corke, Stan Reston and Ky Gowsell finished in that order and the three low rinks were skipped by Bob Sataniuk, Wes LaPalm and Joe McKay.

Next Saturday evening there will be a mixed bonspiel and rinks will be drawn as they enter the rink and they will play on, progressive rinks during the night and also change positions from the one played in the previous game. A week from next Saturday another men's spiel will be run and the rinks will be drawn from the names submitted rather than having the skips pick their rinks. On December 7th there will be a draw of eight men's rinks and also a ladies' number of the women and this should be quite a hassle.

Fleet Chaplain Inspects Cadets Of Three Corps

The training which a Sea Cadet receives, both in his corps and at the summer camps and courses, is such that a boy or girl can become a valuable and worthy member of society, and a good citizen, declared G. B. Foote, OBE, CD, RCN, Chaplain of the Fleet, said yesterday in the course of Belleville Armouries.

The Chaplain of the Fleet had just completed an inspection of a Sea Cadet Honor Guard and parade inspection of Sea Cadets from the three district corps, "Quinte" at Belleville, "Hastings" of Picton and "Trent" of Trenton. The inspection included a visit with his visit to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church as most ministers see the annual 122th anniversary Sunday.

Chaplain Foote commended the cadets for their enthusiasm and the officers for the creditable state this which they are called upon to spend in providing proper leadership for the cadets and urged both to keep up the good work.

Following the church parade to St. Andrew's and St. Michael's churches the Chaplain, accompanied by the Rev. R. D. MacLean, visited with the officers for some time discussing their work in the corps, following which he made an informal tour to speak with the various Sea Cadets, who were lined in light snack at the Hastings and Prince Edward Collegiate Armouries, following the parade's dismissal.

Lt. Donald Street RCN (S) Supply Officer of HMCS "Ontario" the Royal Canadian Navy division in Kingston, together with Lt. Curtis Chisholm, RCN (Catarsqui's" Staff Officer, were in attendance to greet the Chaplain of the Fleet, and accompanied Officer A. Hill, RCN, from Area Office, Toronto, was also present for the occasion.

Trenton Hospital Directors Appeal for Large Grants From Neighboring Counties

TRENTON — Directors of Trenton Memorial Hospital have made an urgent appeal for the financial officials of Hastings and Northumberland counties to reconsider if they submitted in connection with the financing of the new extension to the hospital. The brief, in effect, is an explanation of how the directors determined the amount of the contributions they expect from each county.

Particular attention was drawn to the financial program they arranged are striving to fulfill.

A decision on their original submission to the counties last spring was deferred until the county council meeting this month.

In calling for action the hospital board employed figures to support the facts.

"Please understand," they wrote Hastings county officials, "that 21 per cent of the patient occupancy in this hospital comes from your county, and as such, we feel you ought to be morally responsible to pay this share of the cost. Unless your county contributes approximately $400,000, its residents are being hospitalized only through the unfair distribution of costs against the town of Trenton."

In the case of Northumberland county, the directors revealed that a higher percentage (24.6) of patients from that county receive care and treatment. To complicate the figure it is costing Trenton, Northumberland should provide $73,800 accordingly, they pointed out. A suggestion that both counties peace their contributions over a period of several years was put forth.

Also mentioned was the policy followed by the hospital of giving equal employment preference to persons who come from the counties seeking jobs.

The board in its brief noted that Northumberland favored the hospital with a $1,500 grant for two years. Commenting further, they said: "With that assistance and the capital grant from Murray Township of some $12,000, plus other contributions, the institution known as the Trenton Memorial Hospital was largely equipped. With this accomplishment the hospital board decided since without debt or overdraft at any time."

Civilian Searchmasters Will Hold Course at Trenton RCAF

TORONTO (CP)—A course for civilian searchmasters drawn from all Search clubs in the province, the St. Lawrence Gulf and Lake Winnipeg will be held in Trenton next summer.

Capt. Donald Gould, department of transport district coordinating officer at the rescue coordinating centre in Trenton, said his plan before the annual meeting of the Canadian Power Squadrons Sunday.

Speaking during a forum on rescue, Capt. Gould said he is saving each yacht club to appoint two searchmasters" who will be called to Trenton in a series of one-day seminars to instruct them in rescue work.

The searchmasters will be drawn from all the clubs in Capt. Gould's district—which stretches from Fisher Point on the St. Lawrence River to Lake Winnipeg and covers all connecting lakes and river systems.

Capt. Gould said rescue was primarily an education problem. False alarms must be avoided and anyone witnessing a marine mishap must know what to do about it.

"We have the co-operation of all commercial ships, the RCAF, department of transport vessels and the United States Coast Guard," he said. "But that isn't enough."

He said "housewives living on a river or lake could watch to see everyone was all is well." If all is not well, he said, a collect call should be placed to the RCC centres at Trenton.

Capt. Gould said his department of transport district coordinating officer at the rescue coordinating centre in Trenton, had his plan before the annual meeting of the Canadian Power Squadrons Sunday.

Speaking during a forum on rescue, Capt. Gould said he is saying each yacht club to appoint two searchmasters" who will be called to Trenton in a series of one-day seminars to instruct them in rescue work.

The searchmasters will be drawn from all the clubs in Capt. Gould's district—which stretches from Fisher Point on the St. Lawrence River to Lake Winnipeg and covers all connecting lakes and river systems.

Capt. Gould said rescue was primarily an education problem. False alarms must be avoided and anyone witnessing a marine mishap must know what to do about it.

"We have the co-operation of all commercial ships, the RCAF, department of transport vessels and the United States Coast Guard," he said. "But that isn't enough."

Lakeland Gas Head Making Visit to Europe

Mr. Gardiner will take with him a brochure written in English, German, French and Italian which outlines the advantages to industry of locating in this district. In addition, to the colored brochure, he will carry detailed information on Belleville.

In a letter received here today, C. J. McCarthy, Jr., vice-president and general manager of Lakeland, said: "We are aware that our growth as a company is tied closely to the economic development of the communities we serve. A New Voice Of America

"On too many occasions and in too many areas we have associated ourselves with the status quo, which is clearly doomed. We attempted to freeze outdated, untenable political situations in the face of a revolutionary storm. In trying to prevent changes that were, in fact, inevitable, we have often linked ourselves irrevocably with the forces of the past and lost contact with the forces of the future. We simply cannot hold rigidly fixed like King Canute before an incoming revolutionary tide. We must realize that this tide is enormously powerful and that it would still exist even if every Communist in the world handed in his card tomorrow."

Some left-wing intellectual speaking?

Hardly. These are the words of Chester Bowles, in an interview with U.S. News and World Report. Mr. Bowles, former U.S. ambassador to India, was a foreign-policy adviser to President-elect John F. Kennedy during the presidential campaign. He is one of those most prominently mentioned as a likely choice for Secretary of State in the Kennedy administration.

What Mr. Bowles says here is not new. What is new is that this should be said by a man who may have the power to put into effect the policies which naturally follow from such an outlook on world affairs.

In his remarks Mr. Bowles appears to have been thinking primarily of Africa—"It was not Karl Marx's Das Kapital' but the Bible that has been the most powerful revolutionary force in Africa. Yet now many Africans are very bitter. . . . The white man came to Africa he had the Bible and we had the land. Now he has the land and we have the Bible'." But what he says applies with equal force to Central and Southern America and is applicable to the current crises in Indonesia and Nicaragua, as well as to the Cuban situation.

"It is our own heritage of freedom which has helped create these revolutions," says Mr. Bowles, and the remark could apply with equal force to France and in a large measure to Britain, for though that country has had no violent revolution since the days of Wat Tyler and of the Tolpuddle Martyrs of the last century it was almost identical with the stirrings of revolt amongst the peons of Latin America.

Yet in the Americas the U.S. is permitting its fear of change—even (the U.S. Government) has seemed to assume that any change will probably be for the worse": Bowles) — to force it into unnatural alliances with the Batistas and the Trujillos. As Mr. Bowles says, a revolutionary tide cannot be stopped, and this is as true of Latin America as of Africa, although the black man appears more courageously launched on the fight for freedom than the half-breeds and "poor whites" of Latin America.

If the U.S. stands opposed to all revolutions, without regard to their nature, then it is inevitable that the Latin Americans will seek aid where they can get it — and they will get it fastest from Russia. This, though, does not mean that all, or indeed most, of the revolutionaries are Communists. Indeed, we too often forget that the Communists do not claim to manufacture revolutions — it is an axiom of the Leninist dogma that they can only succeed in revolutionary situations. That the Communist aim (especially as it is to seize control, to direct a revolution already started by existing conditions.

Central and South America have a long tradition of dictatorships. Most of them have been nothing more than the ephemeral feuds between different factions of the ruling oligarchies or classes. But for these palace revolts there is to be substituted, in increasing numbers, peasant revolts. The U.S. ought to be careful to distinguish between them.

The nature of the revolts in Guatemala and Nicaragua, whether they be of the palace or of the peon, can only be judged at this distance. News from Latin American affairs are notoriously unreliable. We do know enough, that such an observer as Marquis Childs is now writing as a proven fact that the Guatemalan revolt a few years ago, which installed the present government and ousted a regime labelled as Communist, was originally manufactured by U.S. intelligence, although this was most carefully concealed at the time.

The best hope of keeping Communism out of the Americas is not to try to stamp out all revolutions but to aid the right ones — those which have their well-spring in the misery of the masses and not in the ambitions of the few.

But outright aid would be intervention and would imperil with dangers. The U.S., though, ought to be motivated by sympathy for the poverty stricken, rather than by fear of Communism and concern for the forces of United Fruit.

Miracles of the Universe
When, How Did Life Begin?

By ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Canada Methodist Observer Reporter

ARTICLE 31

I want it clearly understood that I do not wish to become involved in a religious dispute relating to the origin, evolution or inevitability of life. I am merely writing to interpret one or two of the currently circulated theories advanced by scientists as they relate to cosmology, relativity and energy—my own knowledge of these subjects being unimportant.

A second hope is to present all or even many theories. The ones discussed may well be untenable in time, for time brings forth new views, discoveries and concepts.

Life is thought to have "begun" on Earth two to three billion years ago. But it took about two billion years before the first cell appeared. Then, it is thought, began the long process of evolution, which, as we see it, is not complete, although it is at the stage, (2 billion years in all).

The word "begun" is misleading, as it also sounds as if life suddenly, and spontaneously started. It did not. It took perhaps two billion years to work itself into life.

When one says "Life began" let's be perfectly clear that we are speaking of life on this Earth. Life could begin on other planets at different times, some earlier, some later. (Other planetary life as we will discuss shortly.)

How did life begin?

As far as can be posited, its surface was not as it is today, nor was its atmosphere. It was covered by what J. B. S. Haldane calls a "hot, thin soup."

Life is inevitably say some scientists.

There is no dirth of many people. Many scientists believe that life will occur wherever the conditions under which it is found are present. That means the chemicals, water, temperature, mass and motion of the planet must be right, and the right weather must be correct. (Many theologians concur.)

LIFE OPPOSED

Some may find this difficult to accept. Moche nearly killed Galileo when he said that the Earth did not go around the Earth. Copernicus, Bruno, Darwin, all hinting at the significance of man. A great controversy raged over Pasteur's concept that bacteria could rise out of sterile broth. It raged over Mendel's theory of heredity. So striking at some of the mysticisms. Recall the turmoil which prevailed when Einstein adopted the Darwinian theory that the universe was not static. Apes. This struck not just at the dignity of man but at the whole religious concept of man.

Today, many scientists and religious leaders say that life is inevitable under favorable conditions. Most agree that this principle does not strike at religion and believe that in time men will come to accept it as a scientific fact.

It is said that it is acceptable for man to write about man's efforts to describe the evolution of life in any terms except those of the Bible. Outright, he is not been considered by some as blasphemous. This is fortunately far less true today than ever before.

Theology goes far deeper than what is to be the ultimate knowledge of the nature of life. Biochemistry, building or synthesis of living matter is very remote, but not an unthinkable goal. Already the reactions (Oparin), "On the Origin of Life"), in the

BORDERLINE NOT CLEAR

The demarcation between the animate and the inanimate is not known the plant and the animal is not clear, but why should it be? The changes in the spectrum of light are not either.

To believe that life is natural, that it will begin where conditions are right may be revolutionary to some while intriguing to others.

There is much confusion between theology, philosophy, and "scientific theology."

If man in the 20th century is to be the servant of God, Nature, he must learn to study these prospects. Expansion of knowledge is not clearly defined as the discovery of knowledge.

Man has proved that he can create miracles that do not exist in nature. There is much that man can do, much he has done that is good.

It is beyond the scope of these present articles to discuss what man is to do unto himself to the teeth, to prepare like the dinosaur of old for his own demise, or to struggle for the conquest of space before he has mastered himself on Earth. This is the day of specialization and the day of the end of the characteristic that distinguishes man from other life. Man is born of love; he is to love; he is to bioastro, but how can he, when he and his neighbors, spend the night and the day, during their waking hours, the dreary corridors of time, preparing to slay each other, and all things?

MAY BRIDGE GAP

Some scientists and microchemists have suggested that they may be able to bridge the gap between the animate and the inanimate, between that which is life and that which is not, the first great account for the process.

In the beginning, as the Earth formed, it was rent by earthquakes, volcanoes and cataclysms, but as the planet stabilized it began to cool. Then the rains came, the winds roared and the lightning flashed, and in the end there was relative peace.

There was water, nitrogen and carbon dioxide as exhaled by ultra-violet rays, lightning, gamma rays, and waves of heat and heat from the centre of the earth.

Oparini said, "one must first of all categorically reject every idea of the existence of any elements in favor of a sudden and supernatural creation of life."

Life could not have existed in the "the complex combination of inorganic substances of particles so characteristic of life as it must have been the process of evolution of matter."

As the Earth cooled, the rains and mist around the Earth condensed into a thin warm gravel, and the water contained chemical compounds of carbon, hydrogen, nitrogen, oxygen, sulphur and this, proving originated and in the primeval soup.

"The origination of life was a transition from organic to biological evolution, from the inanimate to living matter, from the inanimate to the animate realm of nature."

RECIPE FOR LIFE

Oparini said that in the whole matter, take a lot of sunshine and lightning, mix in some nitrogen, carbon dioxide, water, carbon atoms which exist throughout the universe, and you have the favorable geographic conditions life will appear begin—so say some scientists.

So, it is thought that life began on our planet and may on many other planet where conditions are favorable for development. There may be millions of such planets.

Recently a biochemist, Sidney W. Fox of the Florida State University announced that he has carried out a number of interesting experiments dealing with the early stages of life.

The first general step seems to be the formation of a protein, which are the building blocks of all living matter, plant and animal. The protein is the basis of life. It is the chemical framework of all life on this earth. Next, it seems that likely proteins have evolved molecules which live in water and multiply by dividing.

Start with amino acids (which all scientists can now produce); in heat these combine and turn into protein-like molecules. These rain drops filled the early seas and formed part of Haldane's "warm thin soup," which surrounded the Earth. All microspheres formed from this in the

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS
THAT SLIGHT EVENT

When Abraham Lincoln was a young man he had just read of the death of Jack Kennedy for the first time. He who was to prefer over some of the finest English prose had only about a year of formal schooling. In his young manhood he had set everything up once to buy for one dollar a volume of odds and ends, single issues. Of course, the barrel contained the best part just with and trash. But there was one a copy of Blackstone's Commentaries on the Laws of England. This book Lincoln seized upon eagerly and pored over it night and day. This volume was largely responsible for the formulation of Lincoln's mind and career. He was later to be a powerful figure in the realm of law and government. Everything he said and thought along this line went on the basis of the principles laid down by the great jurist.

What are we to say to all this? Something that most Americans are unaware. Also the necessity for firm foundations is illustrated in this incident. Let us not think that man treat life casually and superficially, if we do. We will stand us on our head. Life is a serious matter indeed.

Let us not put too much stock in what may be around the corner, but let us be conscious of the fact that destiny may be standing there ready to put the hand on our shoulder. A slight event may change the world, for us and for the world's inhabitants.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 21st., 1940

Last Friday a rugby Victory Tea Dance was held in the boys' gym. The school orchestra was in attendance and favored the gathering with many much - appreciated selections. The gym was a large crowd and it was a very successful dance. Spice was added to the entertainers by Bill McBride and Hamilton Saunders, Georgia Scott and Allen Argue; and Claude Mulholland and Margaret Cole, all of whom excel in different types of jitterbugging. Wonder how they do it.

This one is really too good to keep to ourselves; last Monday a certain Grade XIII boy was asked by the French teacher, "A qui pensez vous?" And he must have been a born diplomat because he arose, cleared his throat and replied, "Je pense a vous."

A number of nurses in Belleville attended the annual meeting in Port Hope this week of District No. 6, Chapter 1.

Opening their Fall activities, the C.G.I.T. of Christ Church, held a gala masquerade party in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening.

At Albert College Toronto-to Alumni annual fall dinner in the YMCA in addition to Toronto, Friday evening. Dr. Ross E. Hockey, Chairman of the Canadian Red Cross Society, was guest speaker. Board of Governors of Albert College, will speak. It is expected that a number of the faculty will motor from Belleville for the evening.

30 YEARS AGO

Some $1,500 has been spent for playground equipment at the Ontario School for the Deaf. The most modern apparatus that money can buy graces the grounds, and judging from the way it is used the boys and girls are certainly training themselves for future life in a physical sense.

Elections in Belleville are only two years and more frequent than three days off, and this is ample indication whether there will be a by-or small field of candidates. There has been little election talk of late; there is a general opinion that practically all of the present council will seek re-election to their time-honored offices.

40 YEARS AGO

A reception service was held in Bridge Street Methodist Church on Sunday evening when 45 persons by profession of faith and by letters from churches in other places, united with the local congregation. This is an exceptionally large number to be received into the church at one time. The service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Cleaver, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Baker, the Rev. W. D. P. Wilson, and the Rev. Prof. Magee.

The Albert College students were entertained last evening at the YMCA.

Mr. Hugh Walker, 'Licence Inspector for Hillier Township, today handed to Mr. David Price, city treasurer, a cheque for the sum of $2,561 which is the city's share of the Licence fee for the township.

The local committee for the Red Soul movement in Belleville elected the following officers at a recent meeting: - president, Chief John Newton; vice president, A. March; secretary - treasurer, G. I. Sovereign.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

ESCARBONATE OF SODA RARELY MAY CAUSE HARM

"Dear Dr. Molner: My son takes a teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda in a glass of orange juice every morning, and my daughter also is always taking it for sourness. Someone says the soda relieves her and prevents it. What do you think?—M.F."

The "bicarbonate habit" exists quite widely, and there is no good excuse for it, and I can say some harm is done by it.

First, it can be distinctly harmful for anyone on a low-sodium diet for health.

Second, the stomach is supposed to be somewhat acid to digest food. The body itself provides three or hydrochloric acid for this purpose, and some people, lacking enough of the acid, are very much relieved when it is administered medically — naturally in very small and dilute amounts. But bicarbonate of soda upsets the naturally acid condition of the stomach.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My wife suffers terribly from constipation. We have tried everything in the drug stores, and even your pills for a 15-day treatment. She is improving so far that will help more than a couple of months and then the problem will be solved.—Mrs. R. P."

Curing ailments — getting rid of these problems — is unlike curing a good many other ailments. Because you can't develop an immediate reaction.

Starting with a reasonably good medication, the important part of the treatment depends on using the medication properly.

Using it properly is only a mechanical checking and if need be treating the mechanical part.

For, you see, a person may get rid of the pain in a few weeks develop the trouble all over again by picking up a liniment.

Obviously pinworms trouble some people more than others. It is possible for people to have them but not realize it, because they have only a little discomfort.

Pinworms usually are picked up from some nearby source — a member of the family, among children, from a playmate. Rarely are cases in which all the pupils in a school class have to be treated.

In your case — your wife's — that is — the answer may not be in this one suggestion: Treat everyone in the family, including yourself. Thereby you may alleviate the trouble.

"Dear Dr. Molner: We see many people with a bluish color to the shoulder, usually the right. Would old-fashioned shoulder braces correct this?—Mrs. P. A.S."

I doubt it. These "drooping shoulders" are usually the result of (1) some weakness or impairment of the body, or (2) a defect in posture.

Few of us are perfectly symmetrical. Perhaps nobody is. The right arm is a little longer and never is exactly like the left. So the right shoulder droops a bit. I'd forget about it unless it is severe. If it is severe, I would consult an orthopedist.

"Dear Dr. Molner: We are worried about a bookkeeper who recently underwent an operation for removal of the prostrate gland. He had always been very easy-going and good natured, but now seems very irritable and nervous. Could this be a result of the operation?—Mrs. C."

Yes and no. The operation didn't do anything that caused this change in temperament. Something don't. But I'll tell you what I think it does cause the change. He's worried! Chances are, of course, that the operation did all that it was supposed to do, file health, in that case, has been prolonged. So he is still worrying about it. We all worry, I suppose. And that, most likely, is the whole story of the temporary change in temperament.

Strictly Personal

A Little TV Is Too Much For Syd

By Sydney J. Harris

I want to apologize to myself for a great injustice I did to myself when I listened to vox pop the other night on TV.

After years of holding out against television, I finally succumbed a few weeks ago. I simply got tired of arguing against the multitude, who insisted on me being a miserable snob, an intellectual highbrow and a snobbishly perfectionist.

"You don't know what you're missing, right?" I said to myself. "Television can't be all that bad if so many people like and enjoy it. Besides, you too watch it. It's time you got off that high horse, and began treading the common earth."

So I went out and bought a set to tell you something: television is a hundred times worse than I had pictured it in my most lurid fantasies. It is unbelievably rank, unmitigatedly boring, and consistently vulgar. If what television has to offer is "reality," put me back on that cloud.

I'll grant you, a few public service programs are worthwhile ones. And I suppose sports are worth watching, if you like that sort. But outside these two areas, television is a stench in the nostrils of mankind.

"There are a few good things on the radio, too," I said in defense of the siren, luring me to buy a set. "Besides, there are a few cases in the Sahara desert — but you're not going to tramp a thousand miles in order to get a sip of water.

The evenings are filled with Westerns and mysteries and reruns of movies that weren't much good the first time. But even the occasional interesting program is interrupted at the most inopportune times for fatuous commercials.

At first, the old-fashioned showmanship I have seen on TV was quite comical in which Buster Keaton wordlessly demonstrated the new RCA line. It was amusing, indeed, for about a minute — and a dozen times better than the dreary panels of today. No doubt it took more time and trouble to write the script and direct it to make the commercial than the "entertainment" part of the show.

I have had it. The machine is broken. I shall not repair it. Some day, which locks with which I will be taken out on an hour a week — or maybe an hour a month — when I know I have the outrage for the program. And never again, never will I allow myself to be voice of the tempter saying, "Do you natured, you're better than everybody else!" If that's what everybody else wants, the answer is "no."

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THINK AND GROW UP

This world is ruled by thinkers — thinkers who think constructively and those with both feet planted firmly on the ground. Where there is silence there is usually thinking going on. Talkative are not always the ones from whom ideas and mental activity spring, but rather are the quiet ones, from whom we learn the most.

It is a joy to listen to the possessor of an active mind and to be influenced by him or her.

People who think GROW UP. They have a mental maturity that face the facts of life with courage and an open mind. They keep young, gaining momentum in the process. Always growing.

One of the first jobs I had: while in college, was with an advertising concern that specialized advocation was: "Use Your Head." It was a slogan, a guesture in his organization. Think your self ahead, and lead others to follow you. Example is full of power.

Do your own thinking, inspired by the good thinking of others. But don't be a parrot. Originality and watching the silent ones.

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

Our guide on a recent hunting trip in quest of wolf tracks to photograph had very dirty hands. Every time we came to a stream or on rounds he removed a beaver, skinned it, then washed the blood off his hands with snow. He mauled his dog, scratched his head, wiped the perspiration off his neck. He lit a lunch fire and got soil off the tea pail he had on his sled. And then he unpacked the lunch and handed around to each of us our share.

One of us was a finicky and outspoken gent.

"Pete," he said "about the only thing I'd take from those hands of yours would be a hard-boiled egg in its shell.

"Why," said Pete, flicking butter from a squashed sandwich with fingers. "I heard all about that sort of thing when I was in the army and around London and Paris. You guys are terrible afraid of bugs and germs. I would boil my hands in chloride of lime, and then take hold of a hot stove, and catch the Lord only knows what loathsome disease off that door knob."

He let one of the dogs bite a corner off his sandwich, and then proceeded to bite the next bite himself.

"To be protected," he said, "you got to be dirty."

Court Dismisses County's Claim For $5,144.41

TORONTO (CP)— An attempt by the county of Lennox and Addington to collect $5,144.41 from the neighboring township of Ernestown was dismissed in the Ontario High Court of Justice Friday.

The county claimed the sum as school board debentures for 1909, 1910 which it took up its own high school district Jan. 1, 1959, and claimed it was completely detached from the Lennox and Addington Collegiate Institute board.

Mr. Justice Wishart Spence said the amount claimed in the action before him was not requisitioned from Ernestown after the severance date. He dismissed the action with costs.

Candidates Appear Scarce As Nomination Day Is Near

With would - be candidates still showing an apparent lethargy towards the forthcoming municipal elections, nominations for the various civic offices will be held Wednesday evening at city hall commencing at seven thirty.

At that time nominations for mayor, aldermen, public and separate school trustees and public utilities commissioners will be held.

Election day is Monday, Dec. 5th.

The terms of seven of this year's aldermen are running out and in December bot to date only four city council.

At this time last year the following year assocations had suggested close to 100 names as possible candidates. The list was screened down by the Belleville Voters' Committee and of those candidates who finally consented, protested to the electorate.

Mayor Ross Bailey and Jack Don Bacon says the same thing will be done this year, leaving it entirely up to the electors to run for re-election.

In fact entire municipal election picture is in direct contrast with that of last year when close to nominations numerous candidates had already announced their intentions of jotaking the election battle.

Last week's joint reisepave meeting held at Parkdale Community Centre attracted little more than two dozen reisepayers and saw only two names suggested as possible candidates for city council.

He Looked Within

By ALMA MASON

A foreign lady who had resided long in this country complaining bitterly, "I cannot read or write your language. I am stupid, I am an ignorant woman".

Her listener said, "My dear, the dictionary tells us that an ignorant person is one without knowledge of a certain subject; one who is not well acquainted with a certain matter. We should not confuse stupidity with ignorance. You are intelligent. You are well informed regarding the English language".

The speaker then began to muse a bit about the word "ignorant". She said:

"The other day I mentally applied that word to the attitude of a dear friend of mine We were discussing plans for a picnic to be held soon. The friend objected to the spot chosen for the festivities, using as the reason for her objections that there would be too many Negro people in the area at that time.

My friend possesses many fine qualities; many splendid character traits. She attends church regularly. She contributes money generously to missions. Before making a hasty retort I reviewed her good qualities and decided that her attitude of disdaining the Negro race was due to complete ignorance of them through lack of close association with them.

My husband and I had visited the park under discussion many times and that we might have the privilege of fraternizing with members of the colored race who gathered there.

We sharing picnic tables with them; helped them cook their food; exchanged recipes and played games with their delightful children. We always found them interesting; after highly intelligent and well read. We usually found them kind and generous and humble. Above all, we found them remarkably tolerant and forgiving towards members of a race who had enslaved them, subjected them to abuse mentally and physically; a race who had persistantly sought for equality in their public educational development.

I asked regularly my friend could possibly know of this race? She had never allowed herself the enjoyment of being on friendly terms with any of them. Through her ignorance, ignorance she desired, like many other white people, to isolate and suppress them.

VARIOUS RACES

Jesus never segregated people due to race. Rather He preached and ministered unto them. His followers and listeners were composed of members of various races; of various stations in life; both rich and poor in spirit; those who have same breath denounce a brother Christian because he possess a darker skin.

Jesus looked beyond creeds and social barriers and the colour of the skin to the heart. How unhappy He would be to walk the earth today and hear those who call Him "Master" in the

LOL Holds Social, Hears Address

POINT ANNE — Last Monday evening the L.O.L. 1939 held a social evening and supper in the Point Anne Orange Hall, with a large attendance.

Favors for euchre went to: ladies, Mrs. Patterson of Trenton; Mrs. Norma Cox; consolation, Mrs. Helen Alley; gentlemen, Mr. Don Covey. Men, Wesley Gray, Percy Alley; consolation, Mr. Carey; lone hands, W. Gray.

Acting chairman for the evening was Mr. Earle Keene of Belleville. After observing one minutes' silence, he opened the program with a few brief remarks for the order, and heartily welcome to all present.

A sing-song was held with music furnished by Mr. Don Covey, Don Alley and Bill Alley.

Mr. Keene asked Bro. Percy Alley to introduce the guest speaker, Bro. Morgan Brown, of Waterdown, Grand Master of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ontario East.

Bro. Juby introduced Bro. Sidney Bracey, Deputy Grand Master of the Royal Black Preceptory of Eastern Ontario.

Other guests introduced were: Bro. Harry Pound, Deputy Reeve of Thurlow, and Bro. Alfred Wickett, reeve of Thurlow; Sister Pearl Holmes, and Sister Pearl Bush, Grand Chaplain officers; Bro. Russell MacFarlane, Trenton; Bro. Frank Carbelleville; Bro. Stanley Hayton of Foxboro, and Bro. Lee Bradshaw.

Bro. M. Brown gave an inspiring and interesting address, and congratulated the Point Anne Orangemen on the new hall they have, and hoped to see them carry on in it for many years to come. He then addressed the Orangemen and Orange ladies and friends present by reminding them of the responsibility they have of and outlined the principles of the order and the privileges they have in the up-building of the Orange order. Each lodge cannot be strong and sound without the many willing hands of the members working together, to build that which has been well and truly laid out before them. Each member should apply each lesson to their own lives and to their own work, within and without the order.

"Are we keeping before us the ideals and principles of our order in our obligation? How well are we living that which we, as members of the Orange family, sought to find?" Careful thought and work now will prove worth while and we shall find that our lodges and the meetings will be more satisfying. The order is growing amongst those lodges and districts where men and women live and believe the well-laid plans set before them, in the Bible.

Among those, who, each day appear thoughtful and diligent to the task at hand, remembering that from one source, and one alone, can come and does come that which makes us great even as we walk humbly with Him along the way of life.

The open Bible is there for all to read and apply to our lives each day. No other guide or plan is needed to promote those Christian ideals, which today are essential to all mankind. Brethren, think in these words, and let us use our time to the well-being of the order; a time of refreshments, rebuilding, rededication for things that are supreme in life today, and for tomorrow, let us go upward and onward to the high calling set before us, by those who years gone by made it possible for us today.

Bro. Alex Reid said he was well pleased to see so many children taking part in the Orange parade at Kingston, and for their colorful uniforms; also for the splendid lodges in the parade.

A few interesting and pleasing remarks were given by Bro. Sydney Brown of the R.B.P., and greetings from their lodges. A few other visitors also spoke briefly, bringing greetings from their lodges.

Mr. Wesley Gray was introduced. Mr. Gray has been in the Orange order for many years. He was extended a hearty greeting and all wished to see him carry on for many years in the order.

The chairman showed a picture of the Orange Centennial Parade, held in Kingston on July 19th.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended in him for his untiring efforts and patience in securing these pictures. A vote of thanks was also extended to the many speakers and to the boys for the music and make the an evening well spent.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen; three editors and a women's editor. Each week a case involving domestic disharmony is presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems of major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers

Mrs. J. — She's five-by-five and missing all the teenage fun.

Lucille — My only joy in life is eating.

Mrs. A. J. — I'm at my wit's end about Lucille. She's 15, a junior in high school, and on such an eating jag that I can hardly keep her in clothes.

Nothing seems to help. Her P.T. teacher spoke to her and gave her a dicky (I clip articles and pictures out of the papers and hang them around the house to inspire her, make suggestions) and even puddings for her as a treat. But she slips into the kitchen later and eats a whole jar of peanut butter or a full box of cookies.

I took her to our doctor. He found 10 pounds overweight! He fed on tables, but into reducing and gave her reducing pills. They do fall burn up faster, and take away her appetite.

Now I find the medicine just standing around. She's not interested, it has actually seems to want to look this way. Next year she'll be a senior. That's the time young girls have so much fun. But at this rate Lucille will just be looking on.

Lucille J. — My mother doesn't understand that I'm always hungry. I get home from classes from clothes and boys and ladies. I get up from food. I enjoy my friends, and my dog, but I'm not a fat person or ant lots of other things. But I get my best life from eating. Why is a girl's figure so important? I'm not trying to be fashionable or a model. I don't see why I must look any different than I am because a fashion people say so. In some parts of the world it's fine to be fat. I'm not in those lands, people would leave me alone.

Maybe I could reduce if I had a good reason. But I feel fine. And in a square dance I'm as light on my feet as the next one. Of course, when the call is "swing your partner," I don't wait to be swung. I swing myself.

I'm not worried about sitting out the Senior Prom and the parties next year. I'm thinking of more serious things, like getting into a good college.

The Council; Lucille must be helped to see that she has many kinds of hunger. It is easier to treat into a wall of fat, and then surround the wall with fine-sounding defenses. Perhaps Mrs. J. plus the P.T. teacher, the home teacher to Lucille's school and the doctor can gather together on finding Lucille rather, than what Lucille's eating.

We assume that the doctor has ruled out any malgr physical cause of Lucille's obesity. Even when hereditary or glandular problems are present, restraint in eating is prescribed. But Lucille can't restrain her appetite because, she indicates, she sees no good reason.

Here are a few hints on what she says, Lucille looks on hungrily as her friends engage in normal boy-girl socializing. Instead of meeting this hunger by trying to become more gregarious and attractive, Lucille eats a package. This may bring her temporary solace, but it makes her even less attractive.

She will have trouble with college entrance. Obesity is now viewed as evidence of an illness. And, once admitted, she'll find it hard to keep up with the pace usually required.

Above all, Lucille, must be led to avoid this neurotic spiciously is definitely not to wipe off the mouth with your host's linen napkin, but to carry a piece of paper tissue with you for use for this purpose.

It takes constant thought, and practice, to acquire the simple little niceties of eating, but it can assure you that others present will notice your habits if you are not observing the rules else you do. Isn't it worthwhile to make sure that your table manners are above reproach?

MODERN MANNERS

TIMELY CHECK ON TABLE MANNERS

During the Christmas season many parties will be given. Whether these functions are to be large or small, formal or informal, our table manners will be much in evidence. Though I touched on this subject not long ago I think rendering if you have ever bothered to ask yourself whether your table manners are good, bad or just plain indifferent? Even if they are good, which unfortunately they seldom are, a further checkup won't do a bit of harm.

A habit that is definitely frowned upon, for example, is the "boarding house reach" approach. One should never reach across the table for anything. Ask, in a courteous manner, to have what you want passed to you.

Guard against leaving a spoon in a coffee or tea cup, or in a stemmed sherbet dish. The spoon should always be placed on the accompanying saucer when not actually in use.

Never help yourself to anything with your own eating implements. Always use a serving spoon or fork. Do not cut up all your food at one time, before starting to eat. It is enough to cut only a bite at a time. And, above all, never talk or drink with your mouth full of food.

Take your time when you eat. Don't rush. Pilling food upon the fork and then gulping it down is certainly not a compliment to the people who are watching you. And never forget that they do watch!

Make every effort to handle your eating implements correctly. Don't struggle with the edge of your fork when trying to cut meat. Use your knife. That's what it is for. Hold the knife in the handle towards the plate, not sticking up straight in the air. Similarly, hold a cup, or fork full of food, in front of your mouth when talking. Lift it up straight when eating. Lift the fork to the mouth; don't lean down to get it.

Tip to the ladies: Lipstick on the rim of the cup, or on the eyeglass, is most repulsive looking.

Be sure to avoid this nervous- spiciously is definitely not to wipe off the mouth with your host's linen napkin, but to carry a piece of paper tissue with you for use for this purpose.

It takes constant thought, and practice, to acquire the simple little niceties of eating, but it can assure you that others present will notice your habits if you are not observing the rules else you do. Isn't it worthwhile to make sure that your table manners are above reproach?

Strawberry Chiffon Pie

By Mary Moore

The gradual switchover to fresh frozen fruits is going on. Our lovely seasonal fruits are disappearing from the markets. All that were left on Saturday were apples, pears, quinces and some late cooking grapes.

In my freezer I had a plastic container of strawberries I had put there in July so decided it was high time I used them. I made a strawberry chiffon pie and want to give you my recipe and a few minor variations for

Close Scores Mark American League Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Overtime games were the rule rather than the exception in the American Hockey League Sunday night. Two of the three engagements were decided in extra sessions.

Providence Reds beat Quebec Aces 4-3 on Ed MacQueen's goal in 34 seconds of overtime. Billy Dea's goal at 1:34 in overtime gave Buffalo Bisons a 6-5 victory over Cleveland Barons.

Rochester Americans scored three goals in the second period and went on to defeat Hershey Bears 5-4.

On Saturday, the Bisons blanked the Reds 4-0. The Barons defeated the Bears 4-3. Springfield Indians walloped the Aces 5-4.

The results left the Indians in first place with 28 points, six ahead of the Bisons and Aces.

MacQueen, a spare forward, scored on a 20-foot blast. The other Providence goals were by Danny Pelletier, Jean Guy Gendron and Bob Beckett. Obie O'Brien, Norm Corcoran and Michel Harvey scored for the Aces.

At Buffalo, in addition to Dea, the Buffalo marksmen were Ron Ingram, Phil Maher, Joe Hoekstra, Chico Maki and Dick Gamble. Bill Sutherland fired three goals for the Barons, Bill Dineen and Ed Mazur added singles.

Wally Boyer led the Americans at Rochester with two goals. Dick Mattiussi, Duke Edmundson and Jim Pappin scored one each. John McKenzie was a two-goal man for the Bears. Ray Emsworth added the other.

The Bison scoring Saturday handled by Dea, Maki, Bergman and Doug Barkley.

Mazur, Jim Mikol, Ron Attwell and Cal Gardner paced the Barons with a goal apiece. Les Duff, Jack McIntyre and Guido Laforge scored for the Bears.

Harry Pidhirny, Art Stratton and Jim Anderson each produced two for Springfield. Bob Kabel and Ron Smith scored singles. The Queens' scoring was by Bob Barlow, with two, Vadik Leclair and Mike Labadie.

Baseball Darts New Sport In District

Something new has been added to the Belleville district sports scene, according to Mr. A. R. Miller, who reports the forming of a Baseball Dart League in the Quinte area.

Miller says that baseball darts is quite different from the regular dart game, in the way it is played and scored. Its name, baseball darts, comes from the fact that the game is scored like a baseball game. And according to the enthusiastic Mr. Miller the game provides all the thrills of an actual baseball game.

The league has been organized by the Odd Fellows Lodge here with Brother Fox of Trenton, District Deputy Grand Master, the league convener, aided by Miller in the corresponding secretary's job.

The league itself has teams from Belleville, Picton, Trenton and Brighton and will open its schedule Thursday, November 24 The clubs have been playing some exhibition games in which Brighton has defeated the Belleville and Trenton squads.

Interest in the surrounding districts has been good with Madoc, Stirling and Campbellford requesting entry into the loop. However since the schedule has been drafted and the league is ready to open, there will be no expansion until spring at least.

The sport is said to be growing very popular in other Ontario cities such as Oshawa, Hamilton and Peterborough.

Anyone interested in learning more about this latest sporting activity is inviting to contact either Miller or Fox of the Odd Fellows.

Belleville's first home league game will be against Brighton on December 1.

Tom Gibbons Dies in Sleep

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Thomas Gibbons, 69, one - time contender for the heavyweight boxing championship and a former sheriff, died in his sleep at his home Sunday.

His most famous fight was July 4, 1923, against Jack Dempsey, then heavyweight champion, in Shelby, Mont. Gibbons lost but was still on his feet at the end of the 15-round bout.

At the end of his ring fame after the fight with Dempsey, Gibbons deliberately turned down an offer of $100,000 for a return to the ring in order to save his health. Later he explained:

"I thought of my brother, Mike, blind in one eye; Harry Greb, blind in both eyes; and decided that maybe it was time to get out."

RECALLS DEMPSEY PUNCH

Of his big fight, Gibbons said Dempsey hit him a terrific blow on the forehead in the first round that almost knocked him out.

"But I came out of it, and I really think I was even with him on points after 10. Then he got stronger and I was in trouble near the end."

Gibbons got nothing out of the fight, which drew a disappointingly small crowd paying $261,485. Dempsey, who was guaranteed $300,000, took all the gate. However, fame from the fight launched Gibbons on his successful business and political career.

Gibbons fought 106 times as a middleweight, light heavy and heavyweight. In the ledger that he kept of his fights, he listed only four defeats—by Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Greb, and Billy Miske. He beat Greb, as well as France's famed Georges Carpentier.

Hanson Named Rookie of Year

BOSTON (AP) — Ron Hansen, third string for Baltimore's Baby Birds and a big factor in their drive to prominence, today was named American League rookie of the year for 1960.

The former Vancouver infielder won it hands-down, polling 22 of the 24 votes cast by a special committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

He had a modest .255 batting average, but pounded out 30 homers and drove in 82 runs in his first full year in the majors.

Wolves Edge Beavers 4-3, Hull Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sudbury Wolves know how to make a hockey win carry them a long way.

By edging Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers 4-3 Saturday night, the Wolves leap-frogged two teams to move into third place in the Eastern Professional Hockey League. Beavers and Kingston Frontenacs, who had been deadlocked for third place with 16 points, one ahead of Sudbury, remained deadlocked but for fourth place. The Frontenacs were thumped by second-place Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds 7-3.

Thunderbirds' gain on first-place Hull - Ottawa Canadiens was short-lived. In Hull Sunday night the Canadiens trounced last-place Montreal Royals 4-1 to re-establish their five-point lead over Thunderbirds.

The outstanding scoring performance was turned in by Kitchener - Waterloo left winger Len Ronaco, a rookie recently sent down by New York Rangers. Ronaco tallied all three Kitchener-Waterloo goals.

Ken Girard, Ken Mortison, Tom McCarthy and John Sleaver each scored once for the Wolves.

Rally to Win 6-5

Juniors Shade Whitby

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Lambert - Rolling blew 2-0 and 4-2 leads in Whitby Saturday night but came roaring back for a well-earned 6-5 victory over Whitby Hillcrests in their first start in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" 1960-61 schedule.

The L. and R.'s played superb hockey for the first two periods and led by scores of 2-1 and 4-2 only to falter in the early stages of the third heat. Whitby caught fire, rammed home two goals early in the third to tie the score and went ahead 5-4 at 13.12.

Belleville battled right back however and Ken Hull's unassisted goal at 14.43 knotted the score at 5-5. Moe Hunter and Gary Goyer, who had hooked up for two earlier goals, won the game for Eddie Flaim's boys at 18.40. Goyer carried into the Whitby zone, shifted around one defenceman and fed it to Hunter cutting in on the net. Hunter blasted it home for the final 6-5 score.

Whitby never gave up, pulling their goalie and applying the pressure at the 17.30 mark. A hooking penalty to Luke at 18.50 forced Bus Gegnon to put his netminder back in for the face-off. He was out for the second time at 19.10, back in for a face-off at 19.30, and back out again for the final 15 seconds. Bill Moxon and his mates hung on however to preserve the one-goal margin.

Belleville's first scheduled home game will be Wednesday night here against Picton Merchants at 8.30 p.m.

Moe Hunter led the winners Saturday night with three goals, all set up by Gary Goyer. Ron Hull and rookies Paul McGill and Roger Smith added the other goals, McGill also had one assist.

Harvey Burke - bagged three Whitby markers while Stan Westfall had a goal and two assists. Lyman Middleton also scored and Pete Shearer earned two assists. Single helpers went to tripp, Roberts, Luke, Tyan, Kadwell and Bobbie.

Referees Jack Sullivan and Stan Boshier handed out a total of 18 penalties Belleville collected ten minors while Whitby had eight minors and a misconduct to Westfall.

Belleville came up with a good two-way performance with the whole club playing fast, hustling hockey. Bill Moxon turned back a number of tough shots in a solid game between the L. and R. pipes.

Roberts of the Hillcrests was off when Roger Smith opened the scoring for the winners at 6.26 of the first. Linesmate McGill drew his assist and three minutes later scored himself to make it 2-0.

Whitby sneaked three men behind the Belleville defence and Westfall was the marksman as Whitby got on the scoresheet at 14.53 of the period. The homesters tied it 2-2 on Burke's first goal at 2.05 of the middle frame.

Hunter's initial goal, a backhander on Goyer's pass, put Belleville in front again at 6.33. At 18.35 Goyer passed to Hunter once again in front of the net to make it 4-2 for the visitors. Gary Hull twice beat Godrick but both shots bounced off posts.

Mavety drew a double minor for cross-checking and roughing at 19.00 and he was off when Middleton scored early in the third. Burke made it 4-4 following a faceoff in the Belleville end at 2.35. Belleville had two men in the penalty box when Burke put Whitby ahead for the only time in the game at 13.12. Then came Hull's equaliser and Hunter's winning goal.

BELLEVILLE: Monon, Asselstine, Reid, Mavety, Moreau, Goyer, Hunter, R. Hull, G. Hull, Ethier, Keller, Weston, Smith, McGill, Forsythe.

Rider 'Sleeper' Catches Argos Napping

Simpson Pulls Old Trick

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders, faced with the prospect of blowing their second straight bid for a Grey Cup appearance, propelled themselves into the national football classic Sunday with a bit of trickery that killed Toronto Argonauts.

They broke Argonaut hearts with one of the oldest gimmicks in the business — the hoary sleeper play. And the executioner was 30-year-old end Bobby Simpson, who has carried on a one-man vendetta against Argonauts for years.

He pulled the sleeper—which since cost Ottawa the cup—in the final quarter to set up the Riders' third touchdown as they captured the Big Four Union's two-game total-points windup series 54-41 before 30,328 spectators.

The Riders, hitting the Grey Cup for the ninth time since 1935, go against Edmonton Eskimos or Vancouver next Saturday. It will be the first Ottawa - Edmonton clash since the event became national 30 years ago.

The Riders have a 4-4 won-lost cup record since they first beat Winnipeg Tommy Gun Thomas 24-3 in the East-West final for the $50 trophy donated by the late Earl Grey.

FINISH FANTASTIC

In one of the most fantastic finishes in years, Rough Riders saw their 33-point lead have a 33-21 first-game victory disappear under the lightning strikes of Argonaut quarterback Tobin Rote. Then the Riders regained the upper hand.

It was a reversal from the 1959 Big Four championship when the Riders carried a 12-point bulge into the windup game against Hamilton Tiger - Cats. They let that lead slip through their fingers and were eliminated by the Ticats.

Simpson, in the lineup when Ottawa defeated Saskatchewan Roughriders 21-14 in the Riders' last cup showing in 1951, was a dead-tired old pro in the dressing room.

"It was one of those screwball plays — and I'm supposed to work," he said of the sleeper play.

But work it did. Simpson ran into 80 yards down the sidelines after taking the pass from quarterback Ron Lancaster, Hutling and puffing, and glancing over his shoulder at two pursuing Argos, he went down on the 10-yard line and in two plays Joe Kelly plunged over from two yards out for his second touchdown of the contest.

From that point on—at 7:31 of the final quarter—Argonauts appeared to lose all enthusiasm. They got the ball twice after that. Four passes by Rote were incomplete and Dave Mann was forced to punt.

SET ONE UP

Simpson also set up Ottawa's first touchdown near the end of the third quarter when Rough Riders were behind 20-0 on the game and 40-20 on the round. He took a Lancaster pass at the Toronto 24 and barrelled to the 10-yard line, Kelly then hopped over a flock of bodies to score his first touchdown.

Seventy - seven seconds later, newcomer Jim Reynolds of the London Lords of the Ontario Rugby Football Union intercepted a Rote pass and ran 65 yards for a touchdown. Gary Schreiber, also missed three point-try attempts in the first game at Ottawa, made good on all three.

Cookie Gilchrist scored 13 points on a touchdown, two field goals and a convert and Mann scored a touchdown and a single for Argonauts, who led 6-0 at the end of the first quarter and 7-0 at the half.

Argonauts appeared headed for their 16th appearance in the cup final until Simpson and his mates rocked them.

Simpson wasn't in pro football when the Riders were beaten by the sleeper play. It happened in the 1946 final at Toronto when Calgary Stampeders called on it to beat the Riders 12-7.

ONLY TWO KNEW

Riders had just been penalized back in their 35-yard line for roughing and clipping and the partisan crowd sniffed another touchdown score. Only Lancaster and Simpson of the Riders knew the sleeper was on.

Simpson had just blocked on a Rider kicking play and was slow getting to his feet. Argos hurried back into a defensive huddle and didn't see Bobby as he walked slowly toward the sidelines.

"I called to Dave (fullback Dave Thelen) but he didn't catch on," Simpson said. "I couldn't yell the play, so I just kept walking toward the sideline, hoping Ron would spot me."

"I didn't," Lancaster interjected. "We rushed out of the huddle and I said 'Pass, pass, quick, get on the ball.'"

"Every was confused. Theiss kept asking me 'What's the play? What's the play?'"

Lancaster let Simpson call the ball.

BEGAN STRONG

They fired-up Argos started out strongly, allowing the Riders to get just inside Argonaut territory only four times in the first half. They went ahead 1-0 on Mann's single in the opening minutes after Don Stewart of the Riders fumbled and Lynn Simmons fell on the ball.

Argos moved ahead 4-0 at 5:48 of the first quarter on Gilchrist's first field goal, a 17-yarder. He added a 22-yard field goal in the last play of the second quarter but Argos ahead 7-0 and knotted them down only five points on the round.

Argos marched 84 yards early in the third quarter on Rote's passing and a 15-yard piling-on penalty against Ottawa for their first touchdown. Mann made a great catch on a 25-yard pass on the goal line and Argos were in front 13-0 on the game and on the series 34-20.

PROUD YARDS

Argos drove 87 yards for their second touchdown less than 4½ minutes later. Gilchrist crashed over on third down from the one-yard line with the first of his three. Highlighted by Dick Shatto's 62-yard gain on a screen pass.

Gilchrist's touchdown sent fireworks and 30-0 in the game and eight points in the series—41-20.

Less than five minutes later Ottawa had charged back by Simpson, a 10-year man in the league. Argonauts had the edge in most of the statistics, with Rote gaining 344 yards on 29 completed passes to 20 for Ottawa. Lancaster ran up 191 yards passing with four aerials, three to Simpson. He tried 13. There were three interceptions by each team.

Although the powerful Ottawa running attack was blusted, it picked up 109 yards along the ground to paltry nine for Argonauts.

Win Hair-Raiser From Bombers

Eskys Meet Ottawa For Grey Cup

By TOM WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos rallied up Winnipeg Blue Bombers' powerful offence when they had to Saturday and won a hair-raising 4-2 victory on Tommy - Joe Coffey's field goal with 10 seconds remaining to become Western Canadian professional football champions.

The victory gave the Eskys the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union final 2-1 and a shot at the Grey Cup next Saturday when they tangle with Ottawa Rough Riders at Vancouver.

Winnipeg won the first game of the series 22-18, Edmonton the second 10-5.

Saturday, Bombers piled up a whopping 366 yards rushing and 21 first downs while Eskimos rushed for only 68 yards and made 11 first downs.

But while Bombers appeared to be able to move the ball almost at will, the Edmonton defence stiffened as soon as Winnipeg got around the Eskys' 25-yard line.

REDEEMED HIMSELF

For Coffey, a six-foot end from West Texas State, the winning field goal, booted with the ball scrimmaged at the Winnipeg seven-yard line, represented redemption after he had blown a 15-yard field goal mid-series earlier.

On the first try, Eskimos were trailing 2-0 after Charlie Shepard kicked singles for Winnipeg in the second and third quarters.

Edmonton moved from its own 35 to Winnipeg's 10 on two plays — a 22-yard pass from Jackie Parker to end Vic Chapman and a 45 - yard toss ruled complete when Winnipeg defensive back Nick Miller interfered with Joe-Bob Smith.

Parker ran the ball in front of the goal posts, losing two yards to the 12. After another crack at the line failed, Coffey tried a field goal from about the 17-yard line. The ball went wide off the side of his foot.

Bombers conceded a single and took possession of the ball at their own 25-yard line with 3½ minutes remaining in the game.

FUMBLE TELLS TALE

Four plays later, defensive guard Gino Fracas slammed into Winnipeg quarterback Ken Ploen as he tried to run around left end. Ploen fumbled and Rollie Miles recovered for Edmonton at the Winnipeg 41.

Don Getty made his first appearance at quarterback for Eskys and after sending Bright into the line for two yards, he flipped the ball to Parker, who hit Smith with a 29-yard pass to the Winnipeg 10.

Bright hit left tackle to bring the ball in front of the goal posts and Coffey made no mistake as he booted the field goal.

The game was a triumph for the Eskimos' defensive platoon, which for the last 141 minutes of the series denied the Bombers offence—rated one of the strongest in the country before the series—a touchdown. The last Winnipeg touchdown was by Lou Lewis at 8:50 of the third quarter of the first game.

Ploen, who hadn't been expected to play due to a suspected broken right hand suffered in the first game, threw only nine passes. Wearing a small cast on his throwing hand, he completed three for 42 yards and had two intercepted.

Parker, who played most of the game at quarterback, completed 10 of 17 throws for 172 yards.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

For a while it didn't look good for our side. In fact with the score 20-0 against, it looked as if the grocer man would be asked to credit the bill for the next couple of weeks.

Then it happened. The Ottawa halfbacks came to life. The Argonauts fell asleep long enough to let Bobby Simpson pull that "sleeper" woot over their eyes and suddenly the sun shone brightly and warmly.

But how the Argos let the Riders get away with the sleeper with thousands of their faithful screaming the tip-off is more than can usually be imagined.

But Simpson grinned and said "It's easy I was coming near the sideline all alone and the fans knew what was coming. They were yelling for Argonauts to "Watch that sleeper, watch that sleeper, cover Simpson."

"That was a good thing" the Ottawa star told reporters. "When you're a football player all you hear is a din. When the din isn't there you start looking to see what's happening. So, when all those people were yelling at Argos they were actually helping."

Not even Ottawa coach Frank Clair knew what was happening. He was surprised as anybody until the play clicked.

Simpson had just blocked an Ottawa running play and got to his feet as his teammates went into their huddle about 20 yards away. Instead of trotting over for the offensive signals, Simpson walked slowly to the nearest sideline, where he had hurried into their defensive huddle, missed Simpson completely and had no time to cover him when the play started. You know the rest. He galloped to the end zone all alone taking Lancaster's pass per and up the game-winning T.D.

Meanwhile a stunned Blue Bombers fandom in Winnipeg is still wondering what happened to the 1959 Grey Cup champions. Can anyone in Edmonton who snatched a last-second victory plumb from under the Bomber noses oust the Ottawa Riders next Saturday for the Cup after that thriller on Saturday.

But the chief cook and bottle boys said his club didn't care which club it is that faces them for the silverware. "We don't and we didn't have any preference which team we met" he said. He had been quoted as saying Eskimos would feel better meeting Argonauts in the Grey Cup.

However, he conceded, "We are more used to playing a team with a varied attack like Ottawa than a passing team like Toronto."

He said a decision on whether the Eskys will shape new defensive plays to contain the plunging strength of Ottawa's Dave Thelan, Ron Stewart and Joe Kelly would have to wait a scouting report by assistant coach Bob Kellogg who took in the western final.

HOCKEY

The Belleville Juniors came up with a fine effort Saturday night to shade the Whitby youngsters in their Eastern Junior "B" League opener. They won 6-5 in a thriller and a their performance should be one of the strongest teams in the group.

Whitby had been touted as the team to beat on the strength of last year's performance. However the Belleville youngsters are nobody's slouches either. They open here on Wednesday night against the Picton Merchants in what should be another spine-thriller.

Speaking of hockey Jim "Snipe" Mathews says the Scooter Club is running a bus to Peterborough Thursday December 1 for the Peics-St. Catherines Terpsos junior "A" tilt.

Both clubs have Belleville "graduates" on their rosters. Dennis Hull and Barry Ullerson wear the uniforms of St. Kits while Paul Zakar and Stu Muirhead toil for the Petes.

The bus trip will be a package deal. Contact Jean Gandor at Reitmans or Jim Mathews.

Toronto Maple Leafs' fourth successive Saturday night scoring outburst has helped create a three-way tie for first place in the National Hockey League.

The Leafs exploded Saturday for six goals, three of them within two minutes of each other in the second period, to trip Montreal Canadiens 6-3.

Burly Frank Mahovlich helped the Leafs to a two-point weekend, scoring twice to lead his teammates to a 3-3 tie with ever the Bruins at Boston Sunday.

The Leafs' two victories put them idl'e tie for the league leadership with Montreal and Detroit Red Wings. All have 24 points. The Canadiens held the lead before the weekend's games.

Detroit split two games, beating the Rangers 4-3 at New York Sunday after losing 6-4 at Boston Saturday.

STAY CLOSE.

Chicago Black Hawks stayed close to the leaders by holding Montreal to a 1-1 tie Sunday in Chicago.

The Hawks are just one point out of first place with 23. Boston has 14 points and, by the pace, the Bruins having 14 points and Rangers 11.

The last four Saturday games in Toronto have all turned into a s p l u r g e for the Maple Leafs. Before beating Montreal, they had drubbed Chicago 8-4 and 7-1 and New York 9-1.

A hustling two-way performance was the big factor in Leafs' win over Montreal. They had Canadiens bottled in their own end for the first four minutes of the game and kept the pressure on for most of the Stanley Cup champions all evening.

COUNTER ATTACK

Don Marshall, Bernie Geoffrion and Marcel Bonin scored for Montreal.

Leafs blew the game wide open with their three quick goals in the second period. Mahovlich started the spree with a short blast into the upper corner at the 3:36 mark.

Stewart tipped home a Allan Stanley blueline shot at 1:04 and Duff finished a play at 2:24.

Sunday the Leafs were outshot by a wide margin and outplayed territorially, but still managed to turn back the Bruins, who have won only four games this season.

ONLY SHOTS COUNT

Mahovlich's two counters, his 15th and 16th of the season, were the only shots he had on goal. Keon scored the winner, midway through the third period.

Don McKenney and Orval Tessier were the Boston scorers.

McKenney had a big night Saturday against the Wings, scoring three goals. It was the first time the speedy Boston centre had scored three goals in one game since Dec., 1958, when he turned the trick against Toronto.

He was also the seventh player to score a hat trick three goals in one game this season.

Mahovlich has done it twice and Bronco Hilford once for the Leafs. Others to get three goals in one game are Jean Beliveau, Dickie Moore and Geoffrion of Montreal and Bobby Hull of Chicago.

Bronco Horvath also scored three for Boston and Jerry Toppazzini got the other. Vic Stasiuk had five assists.

Alex Delvecchio and Murray Oliver scored in the first period for Detroit and Howie Glover and Len Lunde in the third.

SCORE IN SECOND

Detroit scored three times in the first nine minutes of the second period for their victory at New York Sunday, Gordie Howe, Marcel Pronovost and Glover getting the goals.

Rookie Alan Johnson got the other Wing goal in the first period while Andy Hebenton, George Sullivan and Camille Henry scored for Rangers.

Sullivan's goal was the 100th of his NHL career.

At Chicago, Ilkeio Moore got his 19th goal in 20 games for Canadiens late in the first period. Eric Nesterenko evened the score late in the second period with his ninth goal.

Riders Get Bid Reception

Fever Hits Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Civic officials are wondering with mixed emotions what will happen in this city if Ottawa Rough Riders win the Grey Cup in Vancouver Saturday.

If the fever pitch of Ottawa football fans is proportionately greater than that which will come for the Big Four champions at Uplands air terminal, the airfield runways may be the only spot large enough to handle the rush.

At least 3,000 enthusiasts made it into the airport foyer to welcome the Riders on their arrival from Toronto after a 21-20 win over the Argonauts Sunday.

It was the first Big Four title for Ottawa since 1951. And the crowd let loose with the wildest enthusiasm this generally staid capital has seen in nine years.

As many more fans were not able to approach the terminal road, no parking space was left in the area, there was a bumper-to-bumper line of traffic going back along the airport road for several miles.

LEAVE SECRETLY

For their own protection, the players were led from their chartered plane through a private entrance to the mezzanine balcony where the hero-hungry crowd shouted and shrieked their admiration.

The chanting started more than an hour before the team landed at 7:37 p.m. and then it became a bedlam.

Coach Clair Hibbard said the crowd were futile and scheduled speeches were cancelled at a civic officials's tweet by the boards.

Coach Frank Clair was the only one able to interject a few words — and that hoarsely — into the roar and he had gone on for some 15 minutes.

"We knew we could beat Toronto," he said, "and we did."

"Now we have every hope of taking the Grey Cup."

Royals Shade Marlies 4-2; Teepees Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barry Jakeman of Guelph Royals was once a goalie and Toronto Marlboros wish he had stayed in his net.

Jakeman scored two goals and an assist Sunday in Royals' 4-3 win over Marlies, enabling his team to share the lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series with the idle Niagara Falls Flyers.

On their home ice Saturday night, St. Catharines Teepees beat Toronto St. Michael's Majors 5-1, but Sunday afternoon at Toronto the Majors turned the tables with a 6-1 victory. In other action Saturday Hamilton Red Wings climbed out of the cellar with a 2-2 tie against Peterborough Petes.

Jakeman opened the scoring for Guelph Sunday with a 25-footer after three minutes' play. Before the game Royals' Garry Jarrett tied it for Marlies.

Jean Ratelle put Guelph ahead 2-1 early in the second when he weaved through the Marlies defence, pulled out from Jacques Plante and slipped the puck into the net.

Jakeman added insurance with his 20th goal in the third period.

COMEBACK FOILED

Sonny Osborne narrowed the margin for Marlboros to 3-2 in the third period but with 56 seconds remaining Jakeman wrapped up the game with an assist from Bob Cunningham.

It's not often that a hockey marksman misses with only the goalie to beat but late in the third period Rod Gilbert shot wide on a penalty shot. It was awarded when Ralph Oliver was tripped by Marlies defenceman Bill Hornyay.

For Majors against Teepees Sunday, Larry Keenan and defenceman Arnie Brown each netted two goals to set up the 6-1 victory. Brian Walsh and Jack Cole also scored. Murray Hall netted Teepees' only goal at 19:53 in the first period.

Saturday, Majors lagged the form which sent them to the Memorial Cup last year. Ray Cullen scored two goals and an assist, with solo efforts from Hall, Eric Stemkowski and Doug Robinson. The St. Michael's scorer was Dave Keon.

St. Michael's rookie, Terry Clancy, son of former Toronto Maple Leafs' NHL star Tiger Clancy, was accidentally struck by a hockey stick over his left eye and needed six stitches.

At Peterborough, third - period goals by John Mitzuk and Wayne Rivers salvaged a 2-2 tie for Hamilton after Petes had built Keith Wright scored for Petes in the opening stanza and Wayne Boddy tallied in the second.

Will Hold Sweater Swap For 'Squirts'

Due to the recent addition of numerous teams in the league, which necessitated the re-shuffling of most of the players, squirt hockey committees have been getting calls from both parents and boys because of their sweaters don't match the new teams they are playing for.

To try to remedy this it has been decided to hold a Swap Shop Night, they will try to exchange for the boys sweaters that will match their teams.

Anyone who held this evening between 7.00 and 8.30 p.m. in the arena.

"We would like to recruit a few ladies to help us in this undertaking, if any lady would like to volunteer, would she please call Mrs. Lowe at 962-8000 ext. 46.

"We would only be too pleased to accept any sweaters that your boys may have grown out of; these would be accepted by the committee of the BMHA to further right through the door just inside the main entrance of the arena.

"In this undertaking we ask the parent's permission and approval, as we of the BMHA say, 'don't send your children—bring them', and in that way you will be able to make your own exchange," said an official.

INCOMPLETED PASS — Toronto Argonaut Dave Mann lunges desperately for the ball but the pass to the Ottawa end zone was incomplete. Ottawa's Gary Schrieder closes in on Mann. Ottawa won the game in Toronto Sunday 21-20 to take the two-game Big Four Football League championship by 18 points. They now meet Edmonton Eskimos in Vancouver Nov. 26 for the Grey Cup. Defeat Alberta 46-7

McGill Wins Title

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill a pair of touchdowns on two University Redmen crushed the University of Alberta Golden Bears 46-7 Saturday in the Eastern college game for the Churchill Cup.

Quarterback Tom Skypeck pilloted the McGill offence to 351 yards and threw two touchdown passes.

Three Redmen touchdowns were set up by Alberta fumbles.

The Golden Bears piled up a total of 229 yards, but netted only 84 yards rushing and failed to make a single first-down run.

The one-sided outcome minimized chances of making the cup competition as a n a t i o n a l s along the lines of an intercollegiate Grey Cup festival—at least for another few seasons.

Spokesmen for both teams, however, felt such a festival has great potential.

The Golden Bears were champions of the three-team western league and the Redmen title-setters in the four - team eastern setup.

Both coaches—Bruce Coulter of McGill and Murray Smith of Alberta — agreed the passing of Skypeck, 210-pound former Ivy League all-star from Cornell University, was most responsible for the rout.

Skypeck teamed with John Moore and Don Taylor on an 84-yard passing play that produced a touchdown, Moore scoring after grabbing Taylor's lateral. Taylor scored on a passing play that covered 40 yards.

Moore also scored on a 27-yard run and Carl Hansen added a back in the second quarter and went the rest of the game for Alberta.

TORONTO (CP) — Professor Waynegartner, the eminent authority on everything, is trying to put a man into space.

How the bush-haired "incredible professor" will go about it will be hammered out in the Pentagon or at Cape Canaveral, but in a second-floor, book-lined den in central Toronto.

For this is the sober, quiet atmosphere in which tall Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, portraying in a normal 9-to-5 day like say brokers' clerks.

Wayne and Shuster are comedians — possibly the most renowned ever produced in Canada — and they resent the popular idea that they live in a kind of Alice in Wonderland rabbit hole and that every day is a Mad Hatter's tea party.

"We don't know how people get the idea that comedy writers act like idiots at their writing sessions," says Shuster.

"I don't even know if anyone of them do. Not to us this is a business and we wouldn't dash around like jerks while we're doing something as important to us as making our living."

FIVE-DAY WEEK

About 9 a.m. every day Monday to Friday Wayne walks or drives the three blocks from his home to Shuster's. He goes directly to the office — den and Shuster shows him any mail concerned with the business end of the operation.

"We get rid of that sort of thing as fast as we can because neither of us likes it," says Wayne. "We usually do it in less than a half hour. Sometimes we don't have any book work to worry about and we pitch right into the comedy."

One takes over the typewriter and the other—if it's Johnny—paces the floor. If it's Shuster, he sits quietly by pulling on a pipe while Wayne assaults the machine.

"Writing skits with the crazy professor is the easiest thing we do," says Shuster. "He's such a far-out character we can get away with almost everything and they've come to love him over the years."

On the 'Nov. 22 Wayne and Shuster hour on CBC television, for example, he is seen as an Arctic explorer in the 1890s.

Of the outer-space problems, they admit: "We'll take a full work day."

"But even with the professor, we have to tweak to get it done," says Wayne. "We like our work and I think we're lucky to be in something that's well suited to us but we work for all our material. None of it comes easy to us."

Why don't they hire a writer? "We have managed to become pretty good comedy writers over the years," says Wayne.

"And besides, we like it. We like comedy the way a professional hockey player likes his game. He has to do it to make a living, sure, but he's also getting a kick out of it. We don't like comedy any less because we get it with set hours."

How did the team which rose to international fame on the Ed Sullivan television show get off the frenetic treadmill?

Shuster explains:

"Years ago a friend of mine phoned me one night and suggested we go to a movie. I said I had to help Frank write a show that night. The guy asked me why I couldn't do it during the day like everybody else that eams a living. By the time I was done thinking about an answer we decided to go the 9-to-5 kick."

Wayne takes it up:

"Somebody once said when anyone else is looking out a window he is relaxing. When a writer's doing it, he's working. He was right. I suppose, but as long as we're organized we can look idly out the odd window from time to time.

"After five."

Chuvalo Says Loss Means He's Through

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto's George Chuvalo was in a reflective mood Sunday after winding up sparing and said that unless he wins his rematch with heavyweight champion Bob Cleroux Wednesday, "it's apparent that I'm all washed up as a fighter."

"My name has been mud in Toronto since the last fight, he said in an interview, referring to the Aug. 17 bout here when Montreal-er Cleroux stripped him of the title in a split decision.

Chuvalo, 29, has had only 16 pro fights but his last two appearances have been setbacks. Before losing to Cleroux, he was outpointed in a 10-rounder at Toronto by lightly-regarded Pete Rademacher of Columbus, Ga.

Chuvalo did three miles of roadwork Sunday and went four rounds with spar - mate Willie Bell, of Syracuse, N.Y. A program of boxing-up exercises is planned today.

Cleroux also spent some time in the ring Sunday—three rounds with Bob Harrison of Jersey City, N.J.—and has more scheduled for today. Trainer Whitey Bimstein has him working on body blows, apparently to try to soften up Chuvalo in the early rounds of their 12-rounder.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a humiliating weekend for Edmonton Flyers, leaders of the Western Hockey League.

Fresh from a 5-3 defeat Friday at Calgary, the Flyers headed south to be downed Saturday and 2-1 Sunday by the Seattle Totems.

Calgary Stampeders had a 3-1 victory at Regina Saturday and were drubbed 5-0 by the cellar-dwelling Consuls Sunday. Previously, Victoria Tillicums had split in the other weekend series.

The downfall of Edmonton and Seattle tied in second place with 12 points, only two less than the Flyers.

Gayle Fielder was the big man for Seattle Sunday as he shot the scoring two goals Saturday and Sunday. Victoria scored three times Saturday with the others coming from Rudy Filion and Bill Sutherland. Sutherland also scored Seattle's second goal Sunday.

Ed Joval scored the lone Edmonton goal Sunday and one of the Flyers' two Saturday. Ron MacGregor scored the other Saturday.

MANIAGO HAS SHUTOUT

Greate Maniago was the star as Montreal Canadiens had their first pro hockey shutout Sunday after joining the WHL from Chatham, Ont., where they are in Ontario Hockey Association.

Maniago made 31 saves as Spokane goals, with Steve Wilson, Bruce Gamble and Fred Hucul getting the others.

In Saturday night's game, the Canadiens' Dave Balon, Ralph Johnson and Ron Ingram scored Calgary goals equally. The lone Spokane goal was by Colin Ellsworth.

Pat Girouard turned on his teammates of three days earlier as he scored two goals in a 5-2 defeat at Portland Sunday. Veteran Ray Cullen added the goals.

Score for Portland—and Bill Mc-Donald, Bill Sutherland and Gordie Haworth had singles.

The Victoria scoring was by Ron Attwell and defenceman Don McLeod.

BEAT COUNTRYMEN

SYDNEY (AP)—Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson probably retained Australia's Davis Cup team for the Davis Cup matches when they defeated fellow Aussies Rod Laver and Bob Mark Sunday for the New South Wales tennis championship. The scores were 6-2, 14-12, 6-4.

Laver and Mark, the Australian champions, lacked lustre in a rather unspectacular match. Laver, who undoubtedly will be top one of the singles assignments in next month's Davis Cup defence here, was the weakest of the four.

Kansas Beats Top-Rated 'Ole Miss'

NEW YORK (AP)—The walk came tumbling down Saturday on Missouri, top - rated college football team in the United States.

The Tigers dropped a 25-7 decision to Kansas. But even in defeat, Missouri was tapped to make a repeat performance in the Orange Bowl Jan. 2. Georgia Tech will back the Tigers, 14-6, in the Orange Bowl last New Year's Day.

Kansas wound up with the Big Eight title—the first time in a dozen years that Oklahoma hasn't won it—but is in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's doughnuts and not to play in the post-season games.

Previously undefeated Ole Miss was upset by Utah 6-0.

The downfall of Missouri and Utah State left just two major teams undefeated and untied. Yale finished operations at 9-0 with victory over Harvard and Princeton after trouncing Hardin Simmons 46-3.

Marcons Leave For Europe

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons left here today on the first leg of a hockey tour that takes them to Russia and Europe.

The team leaves by bus for Toronto and will fly to London, England, Tuesday. Wednesday a Russian airliner will take them to Moscow, where they are scheduled to practise.

Their first exhibition game is Thursday night.

Team physician Dr. C. D. Keeley will accompany the Maroons, and they will be joined in Moscow by Dr. Dare Harris of Keough, who is on a visit to Europe.

Hebert Takes Cajun Golf

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—Lionel Hebert, 37, of Lafayette, Professional Golfers Association champion in 1957, won the third annual $15,000 Cajun classic golf tournament Sunday with a 12-under-par 272.

He played six-par golf on each round, beating out Johnny Pott of Shreveport and Jon Gustin of Gladwyn, Pa., by two strokes. He won $2,000 in the $15,000 tournament, making his winnings for the year $21,166.85.

Pott had a blazing shot a 68 and finished in an eight-way tie for seventh place. He won $375.

2 Magnificent Productions Given TV Viewers Sunday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television showed for many of its recent programming sins Sunday.

First there was a two-hour version of Macbeth on NBC. Then, after a two-hour interval in which to wipe away the tears, there was Hume Cronyn's New York 19, on CBS. Both were magnificent productions.

The Shakespearian tragedy was action-filled and gory, of course, but the skilful cast—particularly Maurice Evans and Dame Judith Anderson — succeeded every bit of dramatic intent from their first entrance.

Even though the battle scenes seemed a little phoney, the authentic Scottish exteriors added much to the presentation.

HAD HUMOR

Belafonte's music - filled hour was an impeccable program. It had imaginative choreography, great humor, exciting dancing and, as we expected, fine singing.

It was also daring to attempt to bring together all the people of many races and creeds—living in one Manhattan postal district.

Belafonte himself departed from his usual type of song to do a folksy, gay number with songs from My Fair Lady and in another imaginative number, romp with a playground full of youngsters.

BROADWAY HIT

"Harvey," with cast headed by Art Carney, is a television revival of the 1944 Broadway hit that was performed on stage 1,775 times up to Jan. 15, 1949, and subsequently became a movie.

Player Deal Made Cooke Change Mind

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Kent Cooke says he has given up attempts to bring big league baseball to Toronto because of conditions imposed by the American league.

Cooke, who flew to New York at the request of the American league executive committee during the weekend as was signed four 23 American League players at $75,000 each, for a total cost of $7,100,000.

"There are a lot of players in the pool I wouldn't buy for Toronto at $1 million," Cooke said at the major league waiver price of $75,000.

"A team with the players being off-ered," he continued, "would be lucky to win 40 games next season.

Soldiers Left to Sink or Swim After War Says Ex-Army Man

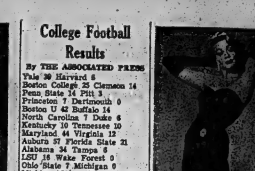
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "After would cost. The studio thinks that's why so many ex-GI's can't get jobs or adjustment to postwar life.



"I can tell you from back in North Africa when we were trained to be soldiers," he said. "We were mean and raw. They told us to be ready to kill everyone in sight when we invaded Sicily—men, women and children. They did a job on us that might be the only way we could take the island.

"You can't just toss that training aside overnight. I still had some of it when I came here to Hollywood. I remember one night at a party when I got in a beef with actor Murray Hamilton. If he hadn't stopped me, I would have very happily killed him."

WON'T FILM IT

Audie's postwar adventures form the basis of a screen story, The Way Back, written by his friend Steve Mace. Universal owns it but has no plans to film it. This is despite the fact that Audie's last movie, To Hell and Back, was made for $1,200,000 and has earned $10,000,000.

"They're afraid of the cost," Audie explained. "It would run about twice what a cheap picture HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "After would cost. The studio thinks that's why so many ex-GI's can't get jobs or adjustment to postwar life.

"I can tell you from back in North Africa when we were trained to be soldiers," he said. "We were mean and raw. They told us to be ready to kill everyone in sight when we invaded Sicily—men, women and children. They did a job on us that might be the only way we could take the island.

"You can't just toss that training aside overnight. I still had some of it when I came here to Hollywood. I remember one night at a party when I got in a beef with actor Murray Hamilton. If he hadn't stopped me, I would have very happily killed him."

WON'T FILM IT

Audie's postwar adventures form the basis of a screen story, The Way Back, written by his friend Steve Mace. Universal owns it but has no plans to film it. This is despite the fact that Audie's last movie, To Hell and Back, was made for $1,200,000 and has earned $10,000,000.

"They're afraid of the cost," Audie explained. "It would run about twice what a cheap picture

RED MEETING CONTINUES

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Albania today indicated that the 80-party Communist "summit conference" here was continuing—perhaps for some time—despite the departure of Czech President Antonin Novotny. The Chinese delegation of about 20 led by head of state Liu Shao-chi has made no concessions to the Soviet Union and eastern European countries on ideological questions, unofficial sources said.

Pickersgill Would Limit Vote Expenses

OTTAWA (CP) — Should there be a limit on federal-election campaign expenditures?

J. W. Pickersgill, Liberal member of the Commons for Bonavista-Twillingate, hopes to put the question to MPs at this session of Parliament.

He gave formal notice Friday of a resolution calling for establishment of a special committee to propose "more effective measures to limit and control campaign spending."

Other private members have sponsored bills to amend the Elections Act.

Murdo Martin (CCF-Timmins) is sponsoring a bill dealing with election expenses.

Arnold Peters (CCF-Timiskaming) is proposing a ban on pre-election publication of the results of straw polls and other surveys. He presented a similar bill last session but it was not debated.

Dr. Peters also gave notice of a new, wider and more modern bill to govern divorces.

Experimental Farm

Processing Laboratory Will Be Year-Round Job at Smithfield

With the recent change in status of the Smithfield Experimental Farm from that of a horticultural substation, the processing laboratory will be operated year-round by a permanent staff. In charge of the laboratory's activities is W. F. Mohr, formerly with the Canada Department of Agriculture processing sections at Ottawa, Ontario and Morden, Manitoba. Research will be conducted on the processing of fruits and vegetables of economic importance in the area served by the Experimental Farm. The results of these studies will benefit the grower, processor and consumer of horticultural crops. The program being undertaken can be divided into three main phases.

One phases is intended to complement the work of plant breeders at the farm. For each cross studied, two seedlings and selections of breeding material are continually being tested for their performance by the plant breeders. It is essential that this be done as early as possible in processing quality, compared with the standard varieties, and then discarded or retained for further testing on the basis of merit. The determination of quality as a fresh or processed product is difficult, frequently being studied include strength, strength, raspberry, pears, corn, tomatoes and apples.

Another phase of the laboratory's operations will involve studies of the nutritional components of fruits and fruit and vegetable products as influenced by environment and cultural practices. Further studies will be facts due to such variables as fertilization, irrigation, cultivation, fertilization, mulching, plant spacing, and control of weed killers, and harvesting techniques. This work will be carried out in close cooperation with the farm's horticultural crop management staff.

A third phase of the program is aimed at assisting with the problems of this growing processing industry. Studies of this nature will include the following: An evaluation of testing colorimeters and instruments for the grading of fruits for the fresh and processed products; a survey of the pH (effective acid content) of individual varieties, particularly in relation to the incidence of spoilage in canned products; basic information regarding methods of selecting varieties for the type of product processing corn in relation to the accuracy of maturity determinations. Other problems to be undertaken include the development of new products and the improvement of present products and processing methods. The preparation of infrared lamps for blanching fruits and vegetables instead of conventional steam and boiling water, method is an example of such a project proposed for future study.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Windy Ship, a horse which was claimed for $3,000 Aug. 1, won the $17,220 Dorchester Cup for Max Gertstell of Edmonton at New Woodbine Saturday.

The fugitive from the claiming ranks defeated Mr. Rooser by a head while Few Providence finished third and Major Morley Fourth.

Hidden Treasure, the evenmoney favorite, faltered in the closing stretch under top weight of 127 pounds and finished fifth, beaten less than two lengths for all the money.

The crowd of 15,172, largest ever to witness a Canadian racing program so late in the season, wagered a whopping $5,457 on the eight-race card. The Canadian season closes Thursday with a card at the $100,000 Valedictory Handicap.

Windy Ship paid $13.80, $8.80 and $5.10 as he ran the 1¼ miles in 2.03 and one of Ted's.

The daily double of Ted's Pride and Upplower, winner of the first two races, paid $19.80. The quinella of Smitty's Rouge and Ted's Pride in the fifth paid $66.50.

Hockey Bobby Wright, 25, suffered two broken vertebrae in his back when he was thrown after his mount, Ted's Pride, stumbled on leaving the starting-gate in the first race.

NEW YORK (AP)—Argentinebred Don Poggio, ridden by Sammy Boulmetis, romped to an easy victory in the $53,000 Gallant Fox Handicap at Aqueduct.

Don Poggio covered the 1⅛-mile distance in 1:48 2-5 as Bold Venture finished second and Sherlock in the I I-16-mile contest. The win was worth $32,360.

Carswel, who apparently bumped the starting gate and scratched from the race, paid $6.80 and $2.80. Bal Musette paid $3.60 to show. Carswel is trained by Jack Bell.

At Louisville, Ky., Counterair scored a $28,000 Clark Handicap at Churchill Downs to make it a big day for Canadian owners in thoroughbred racing to win $1,000,000 in a season. The win was worth $17,325 and set Wright's season's winnings at $1,000,000.

Counterair paid $8.80, $4.20 and $3.20. Little Pipe returned $5.40 and $4.40 and Cuvier Reiir $6.

Sport Snapshots

Canadian Press Staff Writer

You could almost say that Gump Worsley loves being in the limelight. Certainly the hot lights formula for success as goalkeeper with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

Certainly the most controversial figure in professional hockey, the 32-year-old Worsley has been to the Rangers' goalkeeping job since then although the bald-headed Gump has been blithely jumping around between the net pegs and minor leagues.

His latest victory is over Olympic hockey coach Father Bauer. Worsley was offered a job with Bauer's Saskatoon of the Western Hockey League in the 1962-63 season. He has been the No. 1 goalkeeper for

Municipal Affairs, Finances Will Share Spotlight When Ontario House Opens Tuesday

By DON BEENEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal affairs and the province's finances are expected to share the spotlight when the Ontario legislature reopens Tuesday.

During the session the departments of agriculture and labor drew opposition fire when the Progressive Conservative government brought in amendments to the Labor Relations Act and the Farm Products Marketing Act.

Municipal affairs affect the greatest number of people and the government will have to find ways and means of strengthening local governments without infringing on their autonomy.

Municipal scandals, notably in Toronto's York Township, Belleville and the town of Eastview, have drawn attention to the whole field of municipal affairs.

MONEY AT HEART OF PROBLEMS

Financial matters will also be a major issue. Ontario has a budget of nearly $1,000,000,000 and is going into debt at a rate of about $113,000,000 a year.

Premier Frost has received no commitments from the federal government for a better tax-sharing arrangement, so a provincial sales tax seems imminent. The Liberal and CCF opposition can be expected to employ the issue to the best political advantage.

The most important govern ment measures will be included in the speech from the throne to be read by Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay at the legislature opening.

Outside of new legislation, the only other material change in the House will be two new faces. Arthur Evans, mayor of Brantford, and Philip Hoffman, retired chief forester at Timagami, retained the Simcoe Centre and Timiskaming ridings for the Conservatives in September by-elections and will take their seats for the first time.

Standing in the 98-member House: Conservatives 71, Liberals 22, CCF 5.

The government believes it has dealt effectively with opposition charges against the Niagara parks commission and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission by appointing royal commission investigations.

NOT SATISFIED

But the Liberals and CCF indicate they may raise the issue in the House again this session because they are dissatisfied with the findings. The CCF termed reports dealing with the parks commission sale of land in the peninsula and Hydro's purchase of land at Sarnia a government "whitewash."

For the first time since 1947, the session will be split. It will run from Nov. 22 to mid-December, recess for the Christmas holidays, then reconvene in late January, and run until April.

Mr. Frost is experimenting with the split session because of the pressing order of legislative business and the long hours of debate during the last session.

Select committees on automobile insurance and crop insurance probably will report this session. Both are almost certain to oppose any kind of government-sponsored insurance. The select committee on legislative practices will recommend minor changes in House rules.

WANT TO CONTINUE

Select committees on the cost of drugs, the appropriation and the administrative and executive problems of government will presumably be reconstituted by the House so they can continue their studies in 1961.

Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer opposed federal-provincial fiscal relations and municipal reform which have to be discussed. Then there is unemployment. Most of the unemployed are manual workers and 60 per cent are under 34 years of age. This is a technological age and we're not training the people to do the kind of work that is required to be done."

CCF Leader Donald C. Mac-Donald said: "Unemployment and farm marketing will be key issues . . . they haven't heard the last on the royal commissions at Niagara and Sarnia. There has to be greater supervisory powers in municipal affairs. The present local structures are wrong and something has to be done in this field."

FROST GOVT. TACKLES ECONOMIC NEEDS

Commons Streaks Into Action, Cuts Debate On Speech

Fleming Presents Bill To Aid Small Business

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons streaked into action Monday on the wings of three-party accord and heard details of the first legislative measure in the government's decree as a job-maker.

Seven days were scrapped from the throne speech debate, an eight-day round of prolonged debate.

Finance Minister Fleming presented supplementary estimates of $54,224,918 plus details of government-guaranteed bank loans to spark expansion and modernization of small businesses.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Liberal Leader Pearson and CCF Leader Argue followed tradition in the so-called leaders' day session but self - imposed brevity limited the crackle of political warfare, predominantly on the unemployment theme this session.

FOLLOWS SUGGESTION

Mr. Pearson had suggested before the session convened last week that the Commons push ahead with consideration of jobs making legislation as soon as possible. The government took him up at the House opening.

Mr. Argue concurred on behalf of the CCF but slipped in a non-confidence motion which was defeated and which the Conservatives streaked in 132 to 44 in one of three formal votes during the day. The Liberals sided with the CCF and their one-man ally, New Party member Walter Pitman (Peterborough).

Mr. Fleming began things Monday by tabling another batch of spending estimates which set the forecast total of expenditures by the government for this fiscal year to a record $5,910,919,223. The biggest chunk was $1,782,000,000 for the labor department's municipal winter works program and vocational training.

The three leaders said enough has been said on unemployment to show plainly the flagor of words means.

Mr. Pearson said the government is showing shocking unconcern over the seriousness of Canada's unemployment and urged that the government hasten to bring in the pre-Christmas tabling budget forecast in Thursday's throne speech.

WILL FORGO MOTION

He would forgo the CCF usual non-confidence motion to avoid general debate, he said, because "at this time we must get down to action instead of general talk."

The throne speech with its outline of government legislation did not reflect in any adequate way the seriousness of the economic situation in which 368,000 persons were registered at labor offices as unemployed — 117,000 more persons than at the same time in 1959.

Mr. Pearson said the govern-

'Summit Parley', Angel and Tariffs Suggested Cures for Magazine Ills

VANCOUVER (CP) — Should there be a Canadian Statler-type summit meeting to seek solution to the problem of Canada's periodical publishers?

Should Canada encourage a financial angel to back publication of a magazine or group of magazines to put the Canadian way of life?

Should tariffs be imposed on foreign publications as they are on commodities which threaten business with unduly competition?

These suggestions were presented to the royal commission on publications Monday as it opened a three-day public session here.

The commission, under chairman M. Gratien O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal, is studying the Canadian periodical industry with particular attention given to foreign competition.

Mitchell Sharp, president of Mitchell Press Limited, a Vancouver printing firm, said that perhaps the heads of state of Canada and the U.S. might discuss the subject with a view to some voluntary regulation of the flow of American magazines into Canada.

He also said there might be a new interpretation of tariff regulations to bring magazine advertising under the same tax as printed advertising — about 10 cents a pound—and that second-class postal privileges for distribution of circulation promo-

MINER TRAPPED FOR 70 HOURS IS RESCUED

Taken to Hospital For Observation

TIMMINS (CP) — Miner Alan Rose, 30, was rescued today after being trapped for 70 hours in a tunnel 1,700 feet under the Hollinger Consolidated gold mine.

Rose was taken to hospital as soon as he was brought up the main shaft. Observers said he appeared to be unconscious. There was no immediate word on his condition.

Rose had been forced to lie in a prone position since the collapse of timber holding back a sand-filled stope at 2 p.m. Saturday. He trapped him in a blind-end tunnel.

His ankle had been caught between two toppled timbers when shoring in the tunnel gave way and poured a flood of nearly 500 tons of sand rubble and rock.

Rose had been working at the face for only two weeks. He took the job when he was unable to obtain work as a plumber.

Rose had been the only hunch throughout the rescue operation and when he was working crews crews came within earshot he was constantly chatting and joking with them.

Early today, however, about two hours before his 11-30 a.m. rescue, he asked Nine Manager R. F. Rose, to get him out as soon as possible. At that time he appeared to be in reasonably good shape, crews said, considering the ordeal he had gone through.

Hardrock miners reached the 36-year-old former plumber from Manchester, England, Monday night joined Ontario Labor Minister Daley and Metro Chairman

Throne Speech Highlights

TORONTO (CP)—Highlights from the speech from the throne opening the Ontario legislature:

Reconstruct from the department of planning and development a new department of commerce and development to help stimulate business.

Strengthen the department of economics so it can extend its studies of the Ontario economy.

Provide additional sums for farm products.

Stimulate production and employment in manufacturing and increase the processing of raw materials in Ontario.

Expand the public works of the economy and provide more winter works jobs.

Expand the forest management program and parks system.

More aid to agriculture, tourist and ambidon.

Modernize the reform institutions program.

More funds to municipalities, school boards and other local agencies for new facilities and services.

Residents of Metro Area Face Collapse of Services

TORONTO (CP)—The 1,500,000 residents of Metropolitan Toronto are threatened with a collapse of public services.

Some 22,000 members Toronto and District Council of Public Employees (CUPE) Monday night pledged full support to a strike by 2,000 workers if a deal is not made by the Civic Employees Union (CLC).

The pledge to the Toronto, Scarborough and North York boards of control, representing Metro, ensured a spread of the walkout, which has already spread to civic office workers. A strike vote of clerical, stenographic, bookkeeping and secretarial employees would bring the administrative machinery of the Metro area to a standstill.

Garbage, sand and sewage work would end, garbage would go uncollected, only the emergency section of Canada's second largest city would remain open, said, considering the ordeal he had gone through.

Hardrock miners reached the 36-year-old former plumber from Manchester, England, Monday night joined Ontario Labor Minister Daley and Metro Chairman Frederick Gardiner in saying that a strike would be illegal.

In a letter to CEU Local 43 representing outdoor employees in the Metropolitan area, the mayor said "drastic action" would be the "serious situation respecting unemployment."

Harry Overholt, president of Local 43, said when informed of the mayor's letter, that Mr. Phillips "is just beating his head on a brick wall with this thing."

Later, however, he asked for a meeting today with the mayor in an effort to reach a settlement. The request was apparently a result of urging by a three-man conciliation board.

Failure of the conciliators to present a majority report has been cited by Mr. Daley as making the strike illegal.

The unions want a 40-per-cent increase in the basic wage rate of $1.74 an hour. Metro and city councils have offered increases of six and five cents an hour over a two-year period. The union demand amounts to about 70 cents.

Canadian Signalmen Spent Almost 12 Hours of Terror

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—Canadian army officers and signalmen of the United Nations' Congo force spent almost 12 hours of terror Monday and Tuesday when they were cooped down by a long battle between Congolese and Togolese troops.

No shots were fired by the Canadians and they suffered no casualties as 500 Congolese soldiers clashed with 200 UN Togolese troops — but it was not known whether he was seeking asylum. He complained only of a sore hip.

Tobin Rote May Not Return Next Season

TORONTO (CP)—Tobin Rote, who threw a record six touchdown passes to pace Toronto Argonauts to the Big Four season title, has indicated he may not return to Toronto for the 1961 season.

"I gave myself an out when I signed (with Argonauts a year ago," Rote is quoted as saying in an interview. "I knew I would be getting more opportunities coming up and that is my age, because I would like to come before football."

Rote, who turned 31 Dec. 18 is under up his mind whether to quit football. Aged 32, he came to Toronto from Calgary Stampeders in the National Football League after playing with Detroit Lions. His wife and four children live in Detroit.

Thos. B. Horkins Will be Buried In Campbellford

TORONTO (CP)—The death of colorful Toronto lawyer Thomas B. Horkins, Montreal was reported here today.

Mr. Horkins, 53, was being driven to hospital from his home when he died.

He was well known for his brash approach in Toronto courts and once told a Crown Lawyer "you're still wet behind the ears you punk," after the prosecutor had asked him if he was going to change a plea.

A couple of months ago he stamped out of court when Crown counsel Nick McKee turned the tables and told Mr. Horkins to "jump on your horse and ride away."

He was born and educated in Campbellford and studied law at Osgoode Hall. He was called to the bar in 1931.

He is survived by his daughter and two sisters. He will be buried in Campbellford.

Legislature Throne Speech Outlines Reorganization Aimed At Creating Jobs

Plan New Department of Commerce And Extended Economic Studies

TORONTO (CP) — Government plans for an economy which fosters "economic well-being and creates opportunities for employment" were outlined today in the speech from the throne read at the opening of the second session of the 26th Ontario legislature.

The 3,500-word throne speech said the Progressive Conservative government of Premier Frost proposes to reconstruct from the department of planning and development a new department of commerce and development.

The reorganization would provide more direct collaboration with federal departments "with a view to stimulating business, increasing production and expanding markets."

"Ontario will co-operate fully in helping create the common front that is necessary to meet the challenges and take advantages of the opportunities in this changing world," the speech said.

Another proposal is to strengthen the department of economics so it can extend its studies of the Ontario economy, the speech said.

Special studies will be made of Ontario's business relations with United States with particular reference to ways of reducing the imbalance in commodity trade and tourist travel accounts.

As part of the reorganization, a products research division will be established to complement the government's present commercial and industrial development activities.

The new province's main function will be to stimulate production and employment in existing manufacturing industries and to increase the processing of raw materials in Ontario.

The speech said new products would be sought and offered, which can be manufactured by Ontario secondary industry.

Also under way, the speech said, is the formation of a market development branch within the department of agriculture. The purpose would be to explore additional outlets for farm products, particularly marketing.

"The government proposes to hold farm marketing discussions at the Guelph winter fair and coordinating the marketing efforts of all those agencies . . ."

PLAN PUBLIC WORKS

A comprehensive program of public works "designed to provide winter works" also will be placed before the legislature.

"This will include schools for the blind and for retarded children, hospital, administrative offices and departmental facilities, highways, bridges, water systems, schools, and conservation projects which will be undertaken to meet Ontario's growth requirements."

Because of an eye ailment, Lieut.-Gov. J. Keiller Mackay of Ontario will not read the speech. It will be read by Chief Justice Gordon Wilson of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Yarema is chairman of the legislative select committee on the cost of drugs.

Mr. Grossman, who succeeds Yarema, replaces Dr. W. J. Dunlop, who resigned as minister without portfolio last week. Dr. Dunlop was former minister of education.

3 NEW MINISTERS OF ONT. CABINET ARE SWORN IN

Two Departments To Be Reorganized

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost, arriving for the second session of the 26th Ontario Legislature Opening today, has finished his cabinet and sworn in three new ministers.

At the swearing in ceremonies Monday the premier announced that the House will be asked to pass legislation permitting a reorganization of three provincial secretary and registrar's department.

The enlarged department would be called department of travel and publicity, marine, shipping and deal with matters of citizenship, New Canadians, ethnic groups and their problems, John Yaremko, 42, who held the provincial secretary's portfolio for some months, along with the transport portfolio, will head the department.

GETS TRANSPORT JOB

Leslie Rowntree, a 46-year-old lawyer practising marine law and the member for Toronto York West, was given the transport portfolio.

He succeeds John Yaremko, 42, who has also held the portfolio of provincial secretary for some months. Mr. Yaremko will remain as provincial secretary.

William Stewart, 55, a farmer and member for Middlesex East, was appointed minister without portfolio.

Allan Grossman, 49, of Toronto St. Andrew was appointed minister without portfolio last Friday. He is the first Jewish member in the Frost cabinet.

The lieutenant - governor will begin the Throne Speech, but because of eye ailment will turn the full reading of it to Chief Justice Gordon Wilson.

Monday, the new ministers were sworn in by Malcolm McIntyre, acting clerk of the executive council.

Mr. Yaremko assumed the added role of provincial secretary on the resignation of Dr. Matthew Dunlop Monday. He is believed he relinquished the onerous duties of transport ministry to become minister without portfolio.

Mr. Yaremko is of Ukrainian origin. He was first transport minister in 1923.

Mr. Rowntree is chairman of the legislative select committee on the cost of drugs.

Mr. Grossman, the chairman of the select committee on municipal income and corporation taxes and succession duties collected in Ontario.

The speech said the government has promised to set a "continue to press for the "just - cost-of-living" tax sharing principle.

It said that the finance opportunity will be given to legislators to discuss financial matters during the session.

Legislature Will Discuss Tax-Sharing

TORONTO (CP)—The legislature will take some action this session arising out of recent meetings between federal and provincial finance ministers with tax - sharing arrangements, the Throne Speech said today.

The speech said Canada's 10 provinces are constitutionally entitled to an equal share of the tax field now occupied by Ottawa, but did not indicate the kind of action that was proposed.

A federal - provincial fiscal conferences last fall and in October, Premier Frost said he wants to see Ottawa get out of personal income and corporation taxes and succession duties collected in Ontario.

The speech said the government has promised to ask "I continue to press for the "just - cost-of-living" tax sharing principle.

It said that the finance opportunity will be given to legislators to discuss financial matters during the session.

Denies Catholics Will Be Punished For Disobeying

CHICAGO (AP) — The Archbishop of San Juan, Puerto Rico, has declared that Roman Catholics in that country will be punished for disobeying a church order on voting in a national election.

Most Rev. James P. Davis in a statement Monday night said statements would not be withheld from Catholics who defied church instructions to vote against Governor Luis Munoz Marin's Popular Democratic party in the Nov. 8 election. Marin's party swept the election.

His statement followed a report that the Catholic woman mayor of San Juan, Felisa de Gauthier, was ordered by her priest to do public penance because of her open campaigning against the way she voted.

Archbishop Davis, in Chicago for a meeting of the Catholic Church Extension Society, said: "Recent statements reported in the press as coming from the chancery office of the San Juan archdiocese were not authorized by the Archbishopof San Juan."

He also instructed his clergy that no sanctions or canonical penalties were provided by Puerto Rican law. Bishops recently issued letters urging Catholics to vote against the Popular Democratic party. The party's economic improvement policy has included support for birth control and sterilization, opposed by the Catholic Church.

Shivering Bishop Leaves Britain For Arctic Where He's Never Cold

LONDON (CP) — A shivering Arctic bishop leaves Britain Friday with a list of 23 potential missionaries for the sparsely-populated northern Canadian wilderness.

"But I haven't fixed anybody up definitely," said Rt. Rev. E. B. Marsh, 48, bishop-designate of the Arctic, at a press conference Monday.

He thought one or two of the men he interviewed who would decide to undertake Arctic service.

The bishop made clear his requirements are not easily met.

"It's no use for a man to go to the Arctic just because I said so to him. He must be sure he wants to serve there."

He also favors missionaries who are married. The Eskimos like a family and a man who remains single.

The most important qualification was a liking for the people.

An Eskimo knows within a minute whether you like him or not, and if you don't you might as well get out of the Arctic."

He stressed the importance of being able to "get along" physically sheerful Eskimos could survive. Others became "pushed, sorry, unable to bear and they their families died."

Bishop Marsh, who weathered 50-below temperatures during the many winters he spent in the north, found the English weather a bit hard to get used to.

"I will never cold in the Arctic," he said, "but here, I just can't stop shivering."

Initial Phase of Sewage Disposal Plant May Be Aided By Federal Govt. Subsidy

The possibility that the city of Belleville may be eligible for a Dominion government subsidy to assist in the construction of the initial phase of the city's four-and-a-half million dollar sewage disposal plant will be fully investigated from the local angle.

Under proposed legislation the Federal government would in effect pay 37 per cent subsidy on two-thirds of the cost of approved works for the elimination of pollution providing the project is financed through general Mortgage and Housing.

Under a recommendation from Alderman Lorne McDougall, council charged City Manager J. R. Reynolds with the responsibility of fully investigating the matter with the view of seeing that the city secured the maximum subsidy available.

Alderman Jack Ellis as chairman of the city public works committee, did not think the recommendation was necessary, noting that the entire community, named early in the year to look after the sewage disposal project already had the matter of the possible federal subsidy in hand.

This being the case he did not think there was any possibility of the city losing out on the subsidy.

But Alderman McDougall insisted out that charging the city manager with the responsibility would insure continuity in the matter.

SOME WILL BE AROUND

He said that the city had lost out on a government subsidy for riverside drive project in Belleville many years ago simply because there was a lack of continuity.

"There will still be some of us around next year and I don't think the matter will be forgotten," Alderman McDougall said.

The chairman of public works moved and seconded which would give the special committee the responsibility of going after the subsidy, which council gave its unanimous approval of the legislation.

Mayor Haig meanwhile charged a city official with the responsibility.

"I don't want to see council abdicating its responsibility to a city official," he said.

On a close vote, however, the amendment was defeated and the original motion from Alderman McDougall was carried.

DROUGHT UP-TO-DATE

Later, the seeming Alderman Ellis brought council up to date on the sewage disposal project.

He said the Ontario Municipal Board at a meeting in Toronto last week with city officials had approved an expenditure of only two and a half million. Total cost of the entire project had been estimated at four and a half million.

Originally the city had planned an initial expenditure consisting of a complete treatment plant and sewers to cover the area east and west. A second stage was to have extended trunk sewers to the north, including service to Parkdale.

FLOOR SANDING AND FINISHING

GLEN ELLIOT

186 Dufferin Ave. WO 8-3660

Now with no approval for the second stage and none expected for possibly some years, the problem was to provide service for the Parkdale area which is now developing quite rapidly.

To do this will cost from one and a half million dollar expenditure until a completion was necessary.

ONLY PRIMARY PLANT

Now it is planned to build only a primary treatment plant with the money saved to be used in extending main trunk sewers to Parkdale.

The understanding is that when additional expenditure is approved by the Municipal Board, completion of the secondary treatment stage of the plant will be undertaken.

Under the new proposal an entirely different financing method will have to be worked out and the local committee is meeting today with Toronto officials to study the new arrangement.

Then, if an amendment to the present by-law is not permitted special meeting of the council will undoubtedly be called to pass another by-law covering the changed plans and different financing method.

Fire Destroys Dance Hall Bldg. East of City

A standing mass of flames greeted local fire fighters after they arrived on the scene of a burning dance hall building located just south of the Kenmon Golf course and archery range on No. 2 Highway, east of the city limits. The fire, which was reported at 5.38 p.m. yesterday, was still expanding when it was brightly and drew many spectators to the scene.

The building, a frame structure designed as but never used as a dance hall, was empty and burned quite rapidly. The strong west wind caused the flaming embers to scatter widely amongst the fields and houses to the east of the building and numerous grass fires had to be brought under control by the Kenmon. Two small buildings also caught fire but these blazes were extinguished before any real damage was done.

The Belleville Fire Department was on the scene until 9.00 p.m., watering down the embers of the fire to make sure they are extinguished and would not cause damage if spread later in the night by the high wind.

The building, owned by Carl Reid of Belleville, was intended to be put into use as a dance hall this coming summer. The building was covered by insurance. Damage is estimated around $2000.

The only other call of the day was at 10 burner fire at 34 Station Street at 2.45 p.m. yesterday afternoon. No damage was sustained.

Senior Official Of Public Works Will Visit City

A senior department of public works official from Ottawa will shortly come to Belleville to meet with city officials concerning street and sidewalk construction at the new post office building at the corner of Pinnacle and Station Streets.

The new Federal building has been completed for approximately a year but due to differences between the city and the department on the division of costs, the walks and streets about the building are still not completed.

Alderman Ross Bailey raised the question with Mayor A. M. Haig replying that some weeks ago he had contacted Ottawa on the local member of parliament, on the matter.

Mayor Haig said he had now been advised that a senior department official would be coming to Belleville in the near future and that at that time could be reconciled and to get something done.

The initial plans at the time the new post office building was planned, called for straightening of Station Street in front of the new structure, following which walks would be laid and landscaping completed.

Alderman George Wishart noted that a decision on the matter at the new post office would be a great help.

The mayor noted that consideration of this might be given at the time of the city department official's visit to Belleville.

New Sprinkler System for Arena To Cost $13,000

Installation costs of a new sprinkler system at the Belleville Memorial Arena will be determined over a period of years, it has been decided by city council.

Installation of the equipment costing an estimated $13,000 was approved Monday night by council with the matter of financing being referred to the finance committee. Following the finance committee recommended debentures over a period of years.

Alderman George Wishart questioned the wisdom of issuing debentures for such a small amount which he estimated at $13,000 but was told by Alderman Lorne McDougall that the cost would be split between the city and the Belleville Memorial Arena Association.

The sprinkler system is to be installed in one year.

However, Alderman William Jarvah, as chairman of the finance committee, said his committee had no recommendation in recommending debentures. He said the cost would be paid through the city through saved insurance premiums.

Mayor A. M. Haig supported financing by debentures pointing out that only a fifteen per cent subsidied indicating how much could be absorbed in next year's tax levy. It would be much better if debentures were issued.

Welfare May Cost $30,000 Over Budget

Direct welfare in the city this year could cost the taxpayers up to $30,000 more than was anticipated at the first of the year, members of city council were told last night.

City manager J. R. Reynolds, replying to a question from one of the aldermen, noted that this year's direct welfare budget of $181,000 had been overspent by about $7,000 by August 31st, and this did not include all costs.

He noted that since direct welfare costs had been increasing rapidly and he estimated that by the year end net welfare costs could be as much as $30,000 over what was provided in the budget.

Direct welfare costs are paid initially by the city which is then re-imbursed by the province by 80 per cent or this figure.

COMMONS

ment's Jarosz speech showed an alarming and inexcusable complacency about unemployment. He referred "in a self-satisfied manner" to expansion, when in fact expansion in the vital areas of national income and industrial employment is not occurring.

"The statistics show that beyond any possibility of contradiction."

HE DISAGREED

The economy is forging ahead, countered Mr. Diefenbaker, although everyone regrets that unemployment is serious. The gross national product—total of all goods and services produced in the country—rose by three per cent in the first quarter of 1960, although this was less than anticipated. Now, however, a number of economic factors were improving.

"I am asking Canadians to come out of the valleys of doubt . . . and to turn from gloom to productivity, to unity instead of class consciousness and divisive loss," he said.

PUBLIC 'CONCERNED'

Mr. Argue said Canada's unemployed will be flabbergasted at Mr. Diefenbaker's assertion that economic crisis is passed. Statistics disproved that assertion and current events among the public showed their concern.

Retaining Wall On Pinnacle St. In Bad Shape

Local pedestrians walking along the base of the retaining wall at the Pinnacle Street entrance of the Graham Apartments have been complaining for months.

At city council last evening Mrs. Ivan Welsh brought these cadres placed by the city traffic works department, have been preventing cars from parking but pedestrians are ignoring the barricades and are using the sidewalk.

Engineers have reported the retaining wall in a dangerous condition and in need of replacement while the latest report is that the earth behind the retaining wall is being washed out by rain and the retaining wall is being replaced.

Aldermen Walker Elliott broached the subject suggesting that if there was no safety danger the barricades be removed and the area used for parking by Christmas shoppers.

He said he had observed pedestrians using the street immediately at the base of the retaining wall while parking spaces on the street remained barricaded.

Jimmy Chilcott,

Roger Mallory, the spokesman for the party said the deer were plentiful enough, but so were the snowshoe rabbits and these distracted the attention of the dogs on many occasions.

Mrs. Alma Vesterfelt shot her partridge in a hunting contest with her husband.

The four, shot by one of the party was one of the very few seen in the deer hunting areas this season.

Many Attend Graduation Exercises at Senior P.S.

TRENTON — Parents, friends and graduates at Marmora St. Senior Public School filled the auditorium at Queen Elizabeth Public School Saturday night for the graduation exercises.

A. S. Robson, principal of the Marmora Street school, welcomed all and said he had come to the south graduation exercises.

He also welcomed teachers from Prince Charles Public School. Mrs. Beatrice Bell he had received a card of regret from Miss Enid Benson, former physical education teacher at the school, who is now teaching in Windsor.

D. Burke was the pianist for the processional and Rev. G. C. McLelland said the invocation. The proceedings began with the graduating class marching certificates to Mr. Robson's class by Mrs. M. Wells, who is now teaching at Prince Charles School.

Isabel Williamson gave the valedictory address. Mr. Robson introduced her as the girl who had received wide acclaim for her four-year as a speaker in the Canadian Legion Public Speaking contest.

Nancy Hicks played a piano solo, followed by the presentation of certificates to Miss M. Cochrane's class of Mr. Hume, M. T. Parks and Miss Cochrane.

GOOD SCHOOL

V. P. Carswell, supervising principal of Trenton public schools, addressed the assembly. He said that staff that the teachers at Marmora St. Senior Public School were a good one is known not only in Trenton, but in the surrounding district. He said the song "Early One Morning," following which Miss Walker presented certificates to Miss N. Reid's class, Miss Cochrane's awards were made to Melody Cooper by Mrs. L. Pepe and to Nancy Hicks by Mrs. Reid.

James Amm, formerly of Marmora Street Senior, and now principal of Prince Charles School, presented an award to James Clement, and Miss Parks presented one to Marie Leavoy. Mrs. Amm and M. D. Leslie presented certificates to Mr. Amm's class. Certificates for Mrs. M. McCumber's class were presented by Mrs. McCumber and J. Kennedy.

Then came the presentation of $25 bursaries, awarded for the first time this year by the Marmora Street Senior Home and Schools to the two most deserving students. Mrs. E. Almey, president of the group, presented the bursaries to Judith Walling and John Sutherland.

Mr. Robson presented an award to Isabel Williamson, and certificates for Andrew Harris' class were presented by Mr. Harris and Mr. Burke.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of a painting by Student Council presidents Judith Walling and Mr. Robson on behalf of the Student Council of Marmora Street Senior School.

Mr. Robson thanked the Student Council for the gift, which he assured them was very much appreciated.

Following the playing of "The Queen" by Isabel Williamson, the parents and friends of the graduating class were served refreshments, and the young people held their graduation dance.

Silver cups, beautifully engraved, were presented as awards through the generosity of the Marmora Street Senior School teaching staff.

Girl students acted as ushers during the evening, and student council members operated a check room.

Councillor McNair, 91, Plan To Complete His 2-Yr. Term Fraser Thinks He's Too Old

TRENTON — At last night's meeting of council, Councillor D. R. Fraser defended his opinion, voiced at a civic meeting last week, that Councillor W. J. McNair, 91, was "too old a man to be the chairman" of the ownership of the public works committee.

In a discussion under "new business" last night, Councillor McNair asked if he allowed to retire from the room and that in his absence, his fellow councillors could decide whether or not he had "done his duty," or if they thought he was too old to carry on for a second term. Councillor McNair, as the seventh candidate for last year's six-man council, was elected into service on the death of Councillor William Brandshaw who led the polls and who had been appointed chairman of the public works committee. The item alluded to Councillor McNair was the last.

"If council thinks I'm too old to carry on in the business I am doing here," said Councillor McNair.

Mayor James MacDonald said that Councillor McNair had had the "confidence" of council. He said that he thought council should not be asked to decide this issue, and that if Councillor McNair felt unable he should appeal to the people who voted for him last year to decide.

Councillor Fraser said that he could not withdraw anything that he had said about Councillor McNair and that he would keep his self-respect.

"What I said I thought was factual," he said, "I didn't think I was alone in it. I was more than sure of Councillor McNair's colleagues or the townspeople for that matter. But I would not personally like to hurt Councillor McNair. My remarks about the Councillor came at the end of a discussion that developed in a Trenton newspaper story highlighted at the beginning of the speech."

Councillor H. G. Aziz said that the public works committee was no stronger than the committee behind him. He said that he had applied to all committees of the town council, the mayor and Councillor R. J. Whitla are members of the public works committee.

"Didn't you refused to sit on the committee," asked Councillor Fraser. "What was your reason? And what is your opinion on this present issue?"

"I didn't think a man elected by acclamation should sit on a two-year-term," said Councillor Aziz.

"You didn't make any references to Councillor McNair's age?" asked Councillor Fraser.

"Decidedly not," replied Councillor Aziz.

"I move that this discussion be stopped right now," said Councillor Whitley.

Councillor McNair said today that he considered it a privilege to council for another year.

"I was 1,000 votes behind for me last year," he said. "I've got an obligation to those voters".

Councillor McNair celebrated his 91st birthday yesterday.

Police Chief Commends Sgt. For Alertness

TRENTON — Chief Constable F. J. Taylor has commended Constable Sgt. Douglas Brandshaw for alerting three elderly residents of a house at 75 Heber St. which caught fire early Saturday.

Chief Taylor said Sgt. Brandshaw was on routine patrol duty when he spotted the fire at 4 a.m. He called the fire department, awakened the occupants and helped them to safety in neighbour's house.

The fire started in a bed of rubbish.

Hair Stylists, Barbers Must Have Licence

Belleville barbershops and hairdressing establishments will require a licence to operate in the future and operators must also hold certificates from the Ontario Department of Labour.

The request for the new regulations was from the operators themselves who asked for more protection giving assurance of proficiency and health standards.

Councillors went along unanimously with the by-law governing barbershops, but Alderman Robert Thompson had a hand in having anything to do with regulations governing hairdressing parlors.

"I think the women themselves would be the best regulators," he stated.

But council went along with the views of another alderman who claimed the regulation should be from city hall and not from the women of the city.

Miracles of the Universe Life on Some Planets

By HON. ROBERT W. MACAULAY
Ontario Minister of Energy Resources

ARTICLE 23

Many scientists believe that man has developed from mainly ooze that floated like a scum on the waters that covered this planet billions of years ago. Man began his prodigious climb up the ladder of evolution from the most basic form of life—algae. There is still algae today and beside it, stands man.

What may the form of that life take? What would it look like in the water? Will "people" have two heads, as the books on science talk and eat at the same time? Will there be people at all? May the life be a form of which we have no concept?

Will other planets will likely take one of three forms:

(a) Very primitive form such as the life on this planet;

I.e., Algae and sponges (perhaps like the bushes on Mars).

(b) Completely unlike any form of life that we or formerly inhabiting this earth.

(c) Like some present form of life now or formerly inhabiting this earth.

In another article we discussed "what is life" and something of how it began. But for the purpose of this article, I repeat that many biochemists believe that the fundamental characteristics have arisen by chance caused by random mutation; that there has not always been life on the Earth; that it arose suddenly and spontaneously commenced, and that life is not inevitable on the planet Earth, or any planet—but that the chief characteristic is its ability to perpetuate or reproduce itself). All of this is discussed with the preceding article

DEVELOPMENT FROM OOZE

Man is thought have developed out of the early ooze that floated like a soup over surrounding the Earth. For one billion years life consisted of algae but it then (in several billion years life consisted of algae (but it then (in several billion years to get that far) — then came spontaneously 1 billion years the first coral corals, starfish, the first fish and early ferns (400 million years ago). First came fishes, frogs, crinoids, early trees and insects (323 million years ago.) Then 170 million years ago came early mammals (from which man ultimately developed); the first birds, flowers, dinosaurs, grass and modern insects. Fifteen to 70 million years ago, mammals developed, monkeys, grasses, birds and insects prospered. Plants flowered, turtles, crocodiles and snakes developed. One million years ago came the primitive human. Modern man appeared about 100,000 years ago. Recent discoveries have suggested 600,000 years ago.

Man is perhaps only 100,000 years old. His recorded history is only 7,000 years old, life on Earth is likely about 4 billion years old. The universe is likely 10 billion years (ten to twenty billion years old.

The galaxy, (the Milky Way in which we live) is said to be about one star and contains over 100 million stars, seems to be about 10 billion years old. All stars and all planets in the universe were not created at the same time. Therefore, all planets are not the same age.

FACTORS OF AGE

Thus, if life on a planet was to take place, even to be similar to life on Earth, how far the pattern had advanced on other planets would depend on four facts:

(1) The age of the planet;

(2) The ability of life itself to be compatible for life. (Life must perpetuate itself).

(3) The conditions which prevailed on the planet to either speed up or slow down the development.

(4) The amount of mutation of genes by radiation. (The rate of mutation).

When a cell or body reproduces itself the cell or body of the offspring usually possesses the characteristics of the parent. Each cell or body is derived from the very beginning of life, so one can see how would never have evolved. (Assuming man did not start out in his present form).

What, therefore, changed the direction of life?

The mechanism by which the cell controls the direction or its development is found in a gene. Genes are sort of a rudder on a ship, which controls the direction in which it will travel. If this rudder gets damaged—the ship may go on the rocks or it may turn and go in an opposite direction, what happens is that start out as a cell with certain characteristics may end up dead or as a cell with very different characteristics.

Thus, the rudder which controls the direction in which life travels is the gene, and if these genes are interfered with (perhaps by heat, gravity and slowly, however), since the formation of life, the direction of development life develops will change.

EVOLUTION

What is it that has interfered with the genes and thus altered the direction in which life has developed. The process of change is called evolution and the thing that has caused evolution (interfered with the genes and therefore the rudder), has been the bombardment by the radiation of the Sun.

Thus, the radiation from the Sun has caused what is called mutation or alteration of the cell, so that the offspring of a cell or body differs in its characteristics from that of the parent.

Thus, it is said that evolution is caused by mutation of the genes.

If we could visit one of the perhaps 100,000,000 life bearing planets, we might find that life really never got past the algae stage for the reasons given in earlier articles. Or, we might find that the life on the planet consists only of early fishes, snails and clams with some ferns and algae. Or perhaps it would be more advanced and consist of frogs, flying animals, dinosaurs, flowers and deciduous trees. Maybe it would be as it was one million years ago on Earth, full of primates, birds, fish, frogs, trees and flowers. Maybe it would even be as it is today. Quite possibly it would be like it will be 500 or 5,000 years from now (if there is a 3,000 year civilization).

"CHANCE" AFFAIR

Evolution on Earth is said to have been a chance affair as random radiation penetrated the atmosphere and struck genetic fields keep out most of the harmful rays that come through. Thus, on how much radiation gets through, will depend the rate of evolution which has taken place on other planets. Some, as I said, on other planets may have evolved considerably further and be much higher level then the life on Earth.

Man may evolved by random radiation from the Sun, which he could not create and which operated entirely by chance. Evolution, however, man, with his atomic and hydrogen bombs, has the power to create radiation himself. Perhaps, with the protective shield of the Earth's atmosphere and magnetic field. As the only highly developed life on Earth, man has power to change this future as well as his physical development by radiation. He could, perhaps, change it to a great opportunity to control it. However, unless he uses the intelligence that developed, a strain himself, he may release radiation which will cause, through mutation, the most inconceivable, horrible and final results. Life is sufficient desire to live and progress in spite of what man may do has power to much good.

Clearly, any continued conquest of space by the nuclear attack will possess dozens of millions of dead, millions of dying and the world may well be a place in which no human life would continue. Now or no life since to nuclear radiation exchange through evil.

To be continued.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

HIATUS HERNIA MAY BE MILD OR SEVERE

This is not the sort of thing that should terrify you, if your doctor says you have it, but neither should you treat it too lightly.

All depends on the severity. Say you have a "sore finger". Is it a simple bruise, or is the bone broken? Is it like the most pessimistic view, has blood poisoning set in?

Whatever illness or trouble you may have, you very often have to regard it in view of the degree, or the seriousness, before you decide that you can either "take it in stride", or ought to worry about it. Personally, I'd rather have a mild attack of the flue, than a serious bronchitis; I'd rather have a minor blemish here,than a ripsnorting, overwhelming case of flu.

Have I made it clear? A moderate or mild hiatus hernia may require little or no treatment. A troublesome one may mean that you'd better stick to your doctor's instructions just as close as you know how. So, tomorrow, we'll talk about what to do about one.

"Dear Dr.-Molner: I am told I have an enlarged heart. Will exercise cure it? Will it weight help? — W. H."

No, it won't. Overweight, yes, it will help to get your weight down to normal because it will relieve the heart of a heart which already has been strained until it does not respond. And else to do? If your blood pressure is high, medical treatment will help to restore the heart to return to normal size. But pass from the mind that exercise or treatment (including normal protein) will cause it possible for an enlarged heart to give you good service for years to come.

Those Silly Questions About Babies

By Sydney J. Harris

Although I recently became a father for the fourth time, I never ceases to surprise and amaze me that parents and friends keep performing the same stupid mock ritual about a new baby.

The first question, for instance, invariably, "How much does he (or she) weigh?" Now I can't imagine anything less relevant than the weight of a newborn baby.

My children have weighed anywhere from six to nine pounds at birth — which had absolutely nothing to do with their subsequent size, development, health, race or intelligence. Yet, somehow, the more weight, the more parents appear to be pleased. If I were giving us an extra cut of meat at the same low, low price. Some people even wait to know how long the baby was at birth. With the first two kids, I dutifully obtained this information from the doctor and transmitted it to the breathless public; now I just name the first figure that comes into my head. If I said "92 inches," most people would look at me queerly. "A fine child." This is about as pointless as mentioning that a newborn baby has a normal complement of fingers and toes.

Why must babies be "bouncing"? I have never bounced a baby in my life, although there have been periods (usually at 3 A.M.) when I felt like doing it. Anyway, I now tell friends that I bounced them all right — four times on the hospital floor, and he has all the elasticity of the normal baby.

"Who does he look like?" is another stupid one. All babies one day old look like Winston Churchill, but the conscientious father is supposed to rattle off something like, "Well, he's got his mother's eyes, his father's brown, and his nose resembles Aunt Hattie's. On the whole, I'd say he favors the mother's side of the family, especially his ears and earlobes."

"How do the other children feel about the new baby?" calls for a tactful and conventional reply. "They're very excited and pleased," when the true Freudian answer is, "They can't go back where he came from." People who expect older children not to be fiercely jealous — no matter how superficially pleased they may seem — are living in psychic fairyland, and can never hope to understand a child's mind.

Anyway, David weighed seven pounds, was a lusty, long bounced superbly, and looks like a cross between General de Gaulle and Jack Dempsey. It all comes from the mother's side, naturally.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IN SINCERITY

The pungent fragrance of the flower is its evidence of sincerity. One knows at once that it is real.

Men and women carry about them a sincerity atmosphere by which either attracts or repels, builds or destroys, sweetens or embitters, and that atmosphere is sincerity.

A baby feels it. A horse does. A dog gets it at once.

There is no way in the world by which sincerity may be concealed. Sincerity looms like day and radiates as do the rays of the sun.

In sincerity are all the precious treasures of life warmly and securely wrapped. Only through sincerity are hearts made like pure gold a thousand times fine!

We know sincerity because we see it so often. In eyes that look straight into ours, in the kindliness of the handshake, and by the very mode and method of the words that reach our hearts and those of men in the heart-rooms of those we trust.

With sincerity ruling the one we love, we can go a million miles or more in the forgiving spirit. Without it one knew it seems to pivot all else.

It is impossible to be insincere and people not know it.

No one has ever been able to conceal character words, deeds, fame, money, social standing, or anything solid. And he who head and precedes them all.

Without sincerity character is like unto a crumbled ruin—desolate and tull of tragedy.

Strive — in sincerity!

THE PACKSACK

BY GREGORY CLARK

It was about forty before I found out that cliche is pronounced cleesh-ay. I always pronounced it cliche, though I knew what it meant, having looked it up in the dictionary. It means a trite, overworked phrase or idea, like "sadder but wiser," or "strong as an ox." In other words, a cliche is almost anything any of us say in casual communication with one another.

Cliches are the chief ebonics of the intelligentsia. Depending on the way you declare yourself as one of the intelligentsia it is to express scorn of the cliches by which we are able to express our thoughts.

Recently I have been listening to a number of intelligentsia on radio and TV panels, and in interviews with one another. And after two decades of it the delightful thought entered my head that these intellectuals were pretty well sold. And I decided to speak to one another at all high level or low, we must speak in cliches. That is, ideas that are enough to stand being gazed from hand to hand.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A MERCILESS TYRANT

The calendar is a reality to which we tend to give heed, brother. "Act your age" is a slogan to which every individual in every generation needs to hearken. If we do not heed it, the calendar has built-in powers of retaliation by which he can make things mighty uncomfortable for us.

Young people pay little attention to the calendar. They should, but they don't. When we come to middle age and beyond, however, we can no longer let the matter slide. We either pay attention to the calendar or it pays attention to us, in which case we may find ourselves in considerable difficulty.

Middle-aged and older people in this ingenious country of ours tend to do too much and to be too active. Oh yes, I see you flexing your muscle and declaring that you're as good a man now as you ever were, but when you're as old as I am, brother, it just ain't so. In the "Act your age" is a slogan to which every individual in every generation needs to hearken. In the years that counts; not looks, talk or manners," she writes.

Of course she is correct. Yet her criticism of those who forecast a Kennedy victory on the basis of his charm is hardly justified. After all, they were merely predicting the result, not expressing their own personal preference. And, if we are honest, most of us will admit that we are greatly influenced by a candidate's appearance, manner, and mode of speech.

In the final analysis, can it be otherwise? There are occasions when questions of principle or of policy create a clear distinction between one candidate and others, but it is more often a case of both candidates having similar aims but advocating different approaches. In such circumstances, the choice is almost automatic to go to the man who can convince the most people of his sincerity and his ability. Unless we know the candidates well, this choice will inevitably be greatly influenced, if not wholly based, on the way the candidates look, act and speak.

Unless we are able to judge them on past performances, which is not always possible.

What's This?

A book which may well raise some eyebrows if it over obtains general circulation here is "Belleville and Suburban Planning Area Official Plan," the work of Urban Planning Consultants Ltd., Toronto.

The page which caught our eye was a map purporting to show "schedule of condition of residential buildings" in our fair city.

We were more than a little interested to learn that the buildings on the north side of Bridge Street East, from Pinnacle Street all the way east to Chatham Street, are designated as "poor to derelict," the lowest classification. For purposes of comparison, we might mention that the buildings in that section of West Belleville, lying between Bridge Street West and the Bay of Quinte, below the hill, are classified as "fair to good," with a similar rating applying to all of Station Street.

There is also the intriguing fact that Churchill Heights is ranked as "good," the very top category, while similar Bayview is only "fair."

Some people may find this puzzling. City planning officials did. They have already requested revisions.

Without further study, we are quite unable to argue that even the oldest inhabitant cannot hope to really know the city without an official plan.

Two Different Cases

St. Rev. R. S. Dean, Anglican Bishop of Cariboo, recently voiced the opinion, at a Toronto vocational conference, that the responsibilities of marriage could ruin careers, handicapping brilliant students.

The Toronto Telegram, besides reporting this statement, published some contrary opinions, including that of Trevor Eyton, who married he had a D average, after marriage he finished with a B average.

There is nothing contradictory about the two statements. Bishop Dean was referring to the brilliant student. With all due respect to Mr. Eyton, surely he would not maintain that a student with a D average was brilliant.

All that is really old stuff, for it has been generally accepted as a fact that a good wife helps the man of average capabilities and ambitions.

But for the brilliant . . . "Down to Gehenna or up to the Throne, he travels fastest who travels alone."

YMCA Head States Decision Made to Erect New Building

Grand Old Lady Reaches 90th Milestone

Friends and relatives numbering 54, gathered recently at the home of Mrs. Sullman Root, of Rosemore, to do honor to this charming lady who had reached the age of 90 years.

Mrs. Root has been endowed with good health, a sense of humor and is young at heart. Every Wednesday evening she joins the different groups for euchre and enjoys life to the fullest. She keeps busy reading, crocheting and knitting and helps with the housework when needed.

Her entire life has been spent in the village of Rosemore and her friends are many. When called on in any occasion, she has always been the first to render assistance when needed.

There were four generations of Roots present on this gala occasion, the centre of which was a "money tree," as well as other gifts which included potted plants and cut flowers which adorned the spacious home.

Mrs. Root received her many guests unassumingly and graciously. She wore a corsage, a gift of one of her many children. She was assisted by her daughter-in-law, who lives with her. She has two daughters, Mrs. Walter Gerow and Mrs. Frank Kelleher, both of Bellerille, who were also present to help celebrate this special event that so few are privileged to enjoy.

On the following Tuesday, the WMS of which Mrs. Root is president, assembled at her home and spent the afternoon. Mrs. Root carried out her duties as befitting a much younger woman.

ADDRESS-PRESENTATION

An address, signed on behalf of her Rosemore friends, was read by Mrs. C. Reddick, and presentation of a lovely chair was made by Mrs. E. Anderson; other gifts were also much in evidence, for which Mrs. Root most graciously expressed her appreciation thanks, both for the gifts and for their kindness, saying, "that in the years she had been present in the W.M.S. it had been a privilege to work with its members. She looked forward to each meeting, adding that she had so much for which to be thankful."

Her advice to her friends was: keep busy; always look on the bright side.

All extended to Mrs. Root best wishes for the years ahead, that each one may be richer and fuller than the predecessor.

The occasion ended with a lovely poem, one verse of which follows:

"Blest be the young in heart
For they will always be
A rainbow in the clouds,
To folk like me."

Mr. Ward, a native of London, Ontario, will also talk with any secondary school students or others who might be interested in YMCA work as a career. In this he is particularly well qualified, having spent close to 35 years in "Y" work both at the community level in London, Ottawa and Toronto, and at the national level. During the latter part of his career he has been active in the adult program, the world service and Foremen's Clubs with the National Council prior to taking up his present position.

Cheaper Electrical Power One of Great Needs in Canada

Canada is the world's leading nation in the development of uranium-powered heavy water-moderated nuclear generators for electrical power, local Rotarians were told yesterday by Archie M. Doyle, manager of the Ontario district of Canadian General Electric.

Noting that the industrial expansion which Canada, particularly Ontario, has experienced has been due to the availability of low-priced electrical power, the University of Manitoba graduate stated that if this expansion and development is to be continued in the future more cheap electrical power will have to be available.

Low-cost electric power originated with the abundance of water-power in Canada. Most of the sites where this is available have been developed, the speaker advised and cautioned that due to the lack of availability of any other fuel, such as coal, oil or gas in the immediate area, the cost of producing electrical power would rise considerably in the future unless a low-cost fuel could be provided.

Mr. Doyle said Canada especially as uranium in Ontario the use of atomic energy has been investigated and much progress has been made in this field. On the Ottawa River is the Nuclear Power Development, created through the joint efforts of a crown corporation, Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd., the Ontario Hydro-Electric people and a private firm, Canadian General Electric.

VALUE AS MODEL

"This unit should be producing electrical power by 1961," Mr. Doyle said, but its main value is as a prototype model for a much larger power station to be built near Kincardine for operation in 1964. So far the design and production of the reactors have been the major cost factor," Al Peterborough, Canadian General Electric is working on a conceptual design for a more reasonably priced reactor. It is expecting that a pilot model of this new type of reactor will be in use by the Atomic Energy of Canada firm in the near future.

Canada has pioneered in this development, said the speaker, adding that the full people are now properly applying the new concepts of power available realized, some years ago and so brutally demonstrated at Nagasaki and Hiroshima.

The speaker was introduced by Dave Cale and thanked by George Lanning. Club president Bill Hurst made a presentation to Mr. Doyle in appreciation of his address.

Mayor A. McLean Haig Will Seek Another Term in Chair

Belleville Mayor A. McLean Haig, who last year received acclamation to the chief magistrate's office, will allow his name to stand for a second term of office.

Mayor Haig made the announcement at the conclusion of last evening's council meeting, stating at the same time that he hoped all aldermen, whose terms of office expire this year, would also decide to run again.

As of now four members of this years council have decided to run for re-election. These are Mayor Haig and Aldermen Robert Temple, William Jarvis and Jack Ireland. Aldermen Temple and Jarvis had previously announced their intention of running for re-election, while Alderman Ireland announced his intention following last night's council meeting.

In expressing the hope that all of this year's council would run again, Mayor Haig noted that this year's council had been very co-operative and a great deal of work has been accomplished.

CONGRATULATES COMMITTEES

Mayor Haig congratulated the various council committees on the many accomplishments during the year, noting that committee heads and members had worked hard for the betterment of the city.

There were still a few things to do in tidying up the city's administration and Mayor Haig said this was one of the reasons he had decided to run again.

One of the big projects ahead was the commencement of the proposed city sewage disposal plant.

He expressed the opinion that another year would see the city administration in sufficiently good shape that it would stand for many years without cause for alarm or change.

Fish, Game Meet Tonight

You have read how some of our local sleuths...

Now you can get the stories first-hand by attending the Belleville Fish and Game Association meeting tonight in the Club Cafe.

Officials have arranged to have a half-dozen or so of the district's top hunters tell members how they got their kills. It should be very interesting.

There will be some excellent film fare, too. Special films on duck hunting and other wildlife themes will be shown. Then there is the "fun for the gun" and some fine door prizes.

The meeting gets under way at eight o'clock sharp.

OSBORN — BUCHAN

White snapdragons and white chrysanthemums adorned the altar and choir chancel in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, for a lovely autumn wedding on Saturday, November 12, at 3:00 p.m. when Molly Dudley Buchan, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Erskin Buchan, was united in marriage to Kenneth Baker Osborn, of Edgartown, Mass., U.S., son of Mr. and Mrs. John North Osborn. Rev. Canon Gerald Canon A. S. McConnell officiated in the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. Donald W. Davenport, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music which included Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" for the processional, and Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary," for the recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiantly lovely bride wore a French original bridal gown of frosted pure silk taffeta fashioned on princess lines with fitted bodice having a Sabrina neckline and short sleeves. The gently-flared short skirt featured back panels of self bows, extending to the hemline, and soft unpressed pleats. Her shoulder-length veil of illusion tulle was held by a single rose in beige and brown tones, and she carried a white prayer book covered with white stephanotis and trailing ivy.

Her two attendants, Mrs. John C. Hanna, of Toronto, aunt of the bride, as matron of honor and Miss Patti Widner, also of Toronto, as bridesmaid, were gowned alike in short jewel toned green velveteen with softly-draped bodices having self bows, and plunging back portrait necklines ending in "V" points, with matching emerald inserts. The bell-shaped skirts fell in graceful, unpressed pleats. They carried crescent shaped bouquets with matching headdresses of velvet inserts offset with veiling.

Mr. John Osborn, of Indiana, U.S., attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. John Hanna, of Toronto, and Mr. John S. Buchan, brother of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing an embroidered sheath dress of pale blue lace with matching accessories, and white corsage of Pinocchio roses. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother attired in a two-piece ensemble of brown and beige brocade, with corsage of Pinocchio roses.

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a brown and gold wool suit with gold toned coat, brown accessories and corsage of Pinocchio roses.

Guests were present from Marathon's Nipigon, Miss.; Indiana, U.S.; Caledon, Kingston, Toronto, Belleville and Lindsay.

The bride entertained previous to her marriage by Mrs. John C. Hanna, of Toronto; by Mrs. Ben Safe, Mrs. B. E. Burley, Mrs. John Deacon, and Mrs. J. H. Forrester, all of Belleville.

The young couple are residing in Boston where both are attending college. Four generations of the bride's paternal relatives were present at the wedding and reception.

'Credit Provides Facilities To Better Living' States Credit Bureau Manager

"Credit is the lubricant of mass production and credit facilities multiply the productivity of wealth. Were it possible and conceivable that suddenly all consumer credit would stop and all of us had to go on a cash basis, there is no doubt at all that it would deal our economy a very severe blow from which we might never recover."

These were the words of Mr. George Kerr, the manager of the Credit Bureau of Belleville, Limited, that he addressed at the regular November meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club, held at the Belmont Club Rooms on Monday.

"The entire history of our economic growth and development rest, at least, been based on credit from local grub-staking of the Eastern trapper and giving the Western farmer all terms on the purchase of his supplies and his equipment. It is salesmanship that created demand for the new aids to better living; it is credit that provides the facilities for people to acquire them", he continued.

PUBLIC'S ATTITUDE

Further tracing the development of public attitudes toward credit for his listeners, he pointed out that credit has long carried with it a traditional stigma, and in the literature of the 18th century there were many derogatory references to the dangers and horrors of credit, including the experiences of the hapless spendthrift, Mr. McCawber, in Dickens' "David Copperfield" to "Polonius' famous advice, 'Neither a borrower nor a lender be'".

He pointed out that it was particularly important that young people be educated in the proper use of credit, and made to realize that properly used it is valuable, but misused, it is extremely dangerous and even tragic.

GRANTORS' ATTITUDE CHANGED

Another great transition cited by the speaker is the change in attitudes of the credit grantor. The one-time common type of credit manager, who was a cold, negative individual who frore the customer with an icy stare and dared the customer to ask for credit, has long since vanished from the scene. Today's credit grantor is a credit sales manager who believes credit is the right of the majority rather than the privilege of the few.

Mr. Hume expressed his belief that the principles of consumer credit are consolely based on "supply and demand" through two wars, depression, inflation and deflation, all sorts of economic ups and downs, consumer credit has come through with flying colors. In the big depression of bitter memory, consumers ultimately honored their debts."

"No businessman, however keen with ordinary financial knowhow is organization to sell on the basis that 50 per cent of his customers will pay reasonably promptly and the other 50 per cent pay either slow to very slow, or not at all," he stated.

CREDIT BUREAU' VALUABLE

It was then, he further explained that the Credit Bureau was an invaluable tool to the credit grantor, because although he could obtain from many source the information necessary to enable him to make a sound decision on an account, it would consume such vast amounts of time and effort as to make it completely impractical.

For many years, the Credit Bureau has been accumulating and dissecting pertinent pieces of information and placing them in the individual's credit file, therefore, when the credit manager contacts the Credit Bureau the information is there and it is unnecessary to make all of these separate time-consuming and rather impossible enquiries.

He then went on to itemize the various types of information that they go into credit files, including items of public information, chattel mortgage registrations, news items, and loan information. It was a mistake, he advised to believe that only derogatory information was recorded, because this was far from the truth.

Summarizing, he stated, the credit grantor was primarily interested in the three "C's" of credit — character, capacity and capital. Character, even in the negative sense, that is individual habits, are apparent on a police charge or living beyond one's means, or a regular law-abiding citizen. Capacity is the point of view that he is not becoming over involved with credit payments, and capital from the point of view that he has a satisfactory net worth to justify his current circumstances.

AUDIT RECORD FOLLOWS

When an individual moves from place to place, his credit record, can follow him around. In Canada there are at present 58 credit bureaus and in the United States 2,200, all operated in a uniform manner, so that credit records can be readily transferred from one city to another.

In Belleville there are some 50 to 90,000 files at the Credit Bureau so that the person attending credit makes one quick call to this central registry of information and is readily enabled to make an intelligent decision with regards to opening an account.

Following his address, a question and answer period followed, with many interesting questions being asked and those present then took advantage of Mr. Hume's invitation to see at first hand the many offices of the Bureau located at 181 Front St.

The speaker was introduced to the meeting by Mrs. Marie Huffman and the appreciation of the club was expressed by Mrs. Dorothy Brown.

During the business session, which preceded Mr. Hume's address, it was decided to hold the club Christmas party at the Belmont in December. A membership drive will be conducted early in the new year with the objective being to double club membership.

BUDGET PRESENTED

The budget was presented by Miss Muriel Johson, and adopted and Mrs. Dorothy Brown was appointed chairman of the newly formed Employment Conditions Committee.

Members attending the meeting were interested in Mr. Hume's remarks and left with the feeling they had gained a further insight into the machinery of the economics of the community.

St. Michael's H.S. Holds Alumni Tea

St. Michael's High School Alumni held a "Fall Tea" and "Open House" in Nicholson Catholic College on Sunday afternoon.

Many former students of St. Michael's High School were in attendance to see the new College and visit with former teachers, as well as the new members of the teaching staff. It was a well some opportunity for others who had not previously visited the new college, to see the classrooms, offices, gym and other rooms. Students of the school were on hand to show the visitors through the College.

Tea was served in the College gym where guests were greeted by the convenor, Mrs. E. Bowers, the new Alumni president, Mrs. D. Green, as well as the teaching staff, Sisters Mary Matthew Theresa, Magdalene, Jane Francis and Immaculata.

PRETTY TEA ROOM

The tea room was a picture in the autumn colors of green and white. On the tea table, green and white candles in silver candelabra, flanked the centrepiece of white roses and green fern. The same motif was carried in the individual tables, which held green candles and white flowers.

Those pouring tea were Mrs. J. Doran, Mrs. F. Mulvihill, Miss Bernice Bennett and Miss Mary McDougall.

The servers were Messrames J. Mulvihill, D. Noonan, E. Kravits, J. O'Sullivan, T. Flynn and Misses Patsy Flatley, Mary Bunkey, Pat Moran, Joyce Carr-Brainl, Margaret Durkin and Cletus Trudeau. Kitchen staff — Fitzgerald W. Storms and J. Vinkle made the tea and cleared the tables.

Mrs. B. Callaghan was in charge of renewing memberships and George Wilson greeted the guests at the doorway.

This was a successful event for the new alumni executive.

The present ninth Grey Cup Queen is Anna Finlayson of Vancouver, a 5-foot-6 blonde 36-24-36 university student who won the title a year ago in Toronto.

PYJAMA PARTY

Miss Finlayson helps the girls on their rounds of press conferences, dinners, luncheons and teas and tours that precede the Miss Grey Cup final and dance Friday night.

Military Camp Gets Big-City Shop Centre

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Big-city shopping has come to the military camp 900 miles north of Winnipeg.

Parka-clad customers swarmed into the huge self-service supermarket north of the 58th parallel recently when camp commander Col. R. J. Carr snipped the ribbon that marked the official opening.

The two-storey wooden structure replaces a smaller store that served the 750 army and air force personnel and their families. Manager is Ken Maple Leaf Services, a non-profit organization catering to the Canadian Army in Canada and Germany.

The building also includes a bank branch office, a department store order office and a general merchandise store on the second floor stocked with goods ranging from household hardware to furload parkas.

Manager Howard Rowsell of Winnipeg said fresh vegetables, meats and other perishables are run into the base by refrigerated car from Winnipeg. A carload of staple commodities arrives monthly.

About 70 per cent of goods are supplied by Manitoba firms, the remainder from Western Canadian suppliers.

Mr. Howard's first clients were for a number of sales to help increase a predicted 30 per cent raise in the 140,000 to $50,000 monthly turnover of the old store.

QUESTION BOX

Question: I am personal secretary to the big boss of a large concern. He has given me a list of over two hundred people to whom I am to send Christmas cards for him. Another girl in the office says I am doing the wrong thing because I am addressing them on the typewriter. Since all those on the list are just business acquaintances, I can't see why I should take the trouble to handwrite all these envelopes. What do you think? — Miss. P.R., New York, N.Y.

Answer: That you are wrong, young lady! The envelopes should be addressed by hand, even though it does cause you trouble.? Isn't part of your job to see to it that your boss always is shown in a good light because he does things correctly? A Christmas greeting should never be typed, either on the envelope or on the card itself. Whether those being addressed are business acquaintances or friends makes no difference.

Question: I am writing with regard to a recent item you had in one of your columns. You said it was improper to introduce one's husband as anything but "my husband." How are new acquaintances going to know his name if he is introduced in that way?

Although we have been married nearly two years, I often find it necessary to introduce him to friends and business associates. To those who know my married name, I naturally say "This is John, my husband." But to those who know me by my maiden name only, I feel it necessary to add his surname. What is proper in this case? I have been doing exactly the opposite of what you said was right. Please set me straight. — Mrs. N. G. P., Baltimore, Md.

Answer: Obviously you use your maiden name your job. It naturally follows that it is common sense to introduce your husband, using his surname. In preventing him to business associates. You would say "May I present my husband, Mr. Dow." Since you have been married for two years, your friends must certainly know your married name, But if introducing him to newcomers (friends of friends) you would not say "This is John, my husband." I stick to my guns here! You would say "May I present my husband" or just "My husband." The surname is superfluous here, as I said before!

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a woman's page editor. Each article is a composite of opinions presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Gertrude Y. — My mother-in-law is a widow. Craig is her only child. She seems to have no idea of retiring gracefully from our lives. And, since she hasn't taken my hints, I'm telling her the facts of life in plain English until she catches on.

Craig's health is now in my hands. She doesn't have to tell me not to fry his chops, but to broil them. And Craig Jr. is my little boy, and I don't want him taught baby talk. She thinks it's cute. I think it's ridiculous.

She had her chance at being a wife and mother. Now it's mine. Why does she keep horning in?

I know my insistence on being left alone has cost Craig on the spot. But Mother Y. could smooth things out easily by moving away or finding a few other people's lives to but into.

Mrs. C. Y. — I have always been so aware of the pitfalls of being a mother-in-law to an only son's wife that I tried extra hard to please Gertrude. All I want is her goodwill and friendship.

But she seems to be anti-par-ent. I think that to help her I'm not just Craig's mother, I'm a symbol of all mothers. She hates her own mother, I've learned, and she has a chip on her shoulder against mothers in general. So it's hard to come close to her.

At the same time, my son is still my son and his child is my only grandchild. What does Gertrude expect me to do — go to Borneo and never come back?

I don't feel possessive about Craig, just interested and maternal. This running battle upsets him, I know, especially since it's one-sided. He tells me not to feel hurt and that Gertrude will appreciate me when she becomes a mother-in-law!

That's too long to wait. Someone ought to be able to convince her that mothers have a real place in the life of their married children, and that they are usually a comfort and a blessing, not a menace.

The Council: We might ask, "Where's Craig in all this?" If the answer weren't so clear. At his wit's end, of course, wondering what he can do to reassure the two women he loves.

One lucky thing might happen home to Gertrude is that his love for his mother in no way threatens his love for her. It's a completely different species. And there's enough love to go around. Gertrude is a fearful, insecure girl who has no real understanding of the nature of love and its many aspects.

Evidently Gertrude has had so little experience with parental love that it frightens her. At the same time she is learning how to be a mother she must learn how to have a mother. It's too bad she must practise on her mother-in-law now, up to now, has been serving both as paid and pious teacher, so to speak. As loving wife or mother, as King Solomon proved, with equal justice, she would use a cruel ultimatums. She will adjust her demands to make life easier for the man in the middle — Gertrude's "solution" is unnatural and unfeeling. It indicates the need for enlightment by a family counsellor. Learning how to accept Craig's mother will help her more than banishing the older woman!

Meanwhile, the older Mrs. Y. must be the "bigger" Mrs. Y. Gertrude is scared and mixed up and until she straightens herself out in the roles of woman, wife and mother she won't be fair to do justice to that of daughter-in-law. So Mrs. Y. can expect to be slapped down now and then, during the learning period, ahead.

But Gertrude will learn. An added proof will be the growing awareness of her young son who is "drinking in" this example of how a man's wife treats his mother and vice versa. Above all, she will learn that true love is like Christmas — pick one and two grow.

The 1st Canniffon-Carlyville Scout Mothers' Auxiliary November meeting was held in Canniffon Public School Sunday School room.

Beginning Christmas Cookies

By Mary Moore

In October our W.A. and W.M.S. entered for the Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary reception for Dr. and Mrs. Howard Quitrent, in the beautiful new Ladies' Parlor at Otwel United Church.

The girls did their very best to make the daintiest sandwiches and pretties cookies possible. For the afternoon session I was assigned to tending the guest book. When I arrived at the girls in the kitchen called to me to taste over the lovely food and asked me to take one. A lovely cookie made by Dorothy Smith. It is called Double Pastry Treats and it is a rare treat.

Politely I asked Dorothy if she would give me the recipe. She invited me to her house for tea and served a lovely variety of cookies, among which were the Double Pastry Treats.

I had a quite of job keeping mine out of them.

This cookie will be a delight for your Christmas cookie baking and definitely keeper item for future use. They may be decorated pretty — see suggestions below.

DANISH PASTRY TREATS:

(Courtney Dorothy Smith)

Measure into bowl 1-2 cup lukewarm water, Stir in 1 teaspoon granulated Sprinkle with contents of 1 envelope granular yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Meantime, sift into large bowl 2 3-4 cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, 3 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt. Shred on medium shredder 1-2 pound hard butter or margarine and stir into flour mixture until 1 egg and stir into dissolved yeast. Make a well in flour mixture and add yeast mixture; combine thoroughly. Chill until firm — about 1 hour. Turn out dough lightly floured board. Roll out dough to 12 x 23" rectangle. Cut into 16 5" squares. Spread each square lightly with thick raspberry jam (thick apricot jam or puree would be good too). Fold 1-3 of square over then cover with other 1-3. Cut each into 3 or 4 inny squares or diagonals, as desired. Place pastries on cookie sheets. Chill about 1-3 hour. Brush with slightly beaten egg. Bake in hot oven of 450 deg. Fahr. until pale golden — 7 to 10 minutes. When cold spread top of each, if desired, with a little dab of pink icing. Add a silver ball for decoration.

Ghana Is Marching Toward Society Based on Socialism

By HORACE CASTELL

ACCRA (Reuters) — Ghana is marching towards a socialist pattern of society.

Most activities in the country, from trade unions to sport, are being brought under central government control and supervision.

Economically, too, there is a planned trend towards socialism, although at a much slower pace.

The declared ultimate objective of Ghana's ruling Convention People's Party, led by President Kwame Nkrumah, is to make Ghana a socialist state. Nkrumah has been described by the general secretary of his party, Tawia Adamafio, as "a great socialist."

But, at least economically, the government's aim is socialism adapted to economic realities, with private enterprise retaining an important place in the country's economy for some time to come.

GRADUAL APPROACH

"Socialism and capitalism must coexist to avoid convulsions in the national economy," Kawaku Boateng, minister of information and broadcasting, said recently.

Adamafio agrees. Economically speaking, he told a symposium on the national economy, Ghana should approach socialism gradually. "To nationalize everything suddenly would be unrealistic," he explained.

But on the social plane, the move towards socialism has been quickening in recent months, particularly since Ghana became a republic within the British Commonwealth.

Centrally government control has spread to workers, farmers, ex-servicemen, women and sportsmen—and even people living on charity.

All workers now come under the Trades Union Congress, a wing of the Convention People's Party, and membership of a Trades Union Congress union is compulsory for all employees. Farmers are grouped in the United Ghana Farmers' Council, another wing of the party. State farms and co-operative settlements are being planned.

YOUTH MOVEMENT

The country's two women's organizations have been merged into one National Council of Ghana Women, yet another wing of the party. Autonomous sports associations are being dissolved and integrated into a government-controlled central organization of sport.

Youth is being gradually grouped in a "young pioneers" movement. Veterans' associations have been merged into one body and all charitable appeals now are passed through one fund, the annual government - supervised Kwame Nkrumah Trust Fund.

Economically, the move towards socialism so far has been most marked in plans for the development of both wholesale and retail co-operatives.

The government is hard at work planning the establishment of co-operatives all over the country.

A large delegation went to the Soviet Union for two weeks to study the structure of co-operatives there. On the way home, the delegates stopped off in East Germany to look at the co-operative movement there.

Pastor Orders Woman Mayor To Do Penance

SAN JUAN (AP)—The Roman Catholic woman mayor of San Juan, Felisa de Gauthier, was ordered by her pastor to do public penance before she can receive communion because of the way she voted Nov. 8.

Rev. Thomas Malonoff, pastor of San Juan Cathedral, said in an interview between masses Sunday that the mayor must publicly repent by radio, television or newspaper to receive the church sacrament.

The mayor did not attend any of the five masses at the cathedral Sunday. She was reported to have spent the weekend at her beach cottage in Vega Baja and to have received communion at its church. She made no comment on Father Malonoff's demand.

Dona Felisa is a leading member of the Popular Democratic party opposed by Puerto Rico's Roman Catholic bishops as "anti-Christian." Governor Luis Munoz Marin, head of the party was re-elected by a 58 per cent majority and its members retained control of the legislature.

Archbishop James Davis said Saturday that Puerto Rican Roman Catholics who voted for that party would be punished for committing a sin of disobedience.

Wealthy Belgian Mining Monopoly Seems Backbone Of Movement in Katanga

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ELISABETHVILLE (CP) — A rich and powerful mining monopoly owned and controlled by absentee Belgian financiers appears to be the backbone of the separatist movement in the Congo's Katanga province.

Without the millions poured into the local economy and into the provincial government's treasury by the Union Miniere du Haut Katanga (Mining Union of Upper Katanga), Katanga's President Moise Tshombe could not maintain his independent police state within the Congo.

The Union Miniere, a company spokesman said, will pay $30,000,000 in taxes to Tshombe this year.

This is more than enough to pay Belgians $1,000 a month to run Tshombe's army and police with a firm, controlled hand and to provide for Belgian "technicians" to run his government administration and public services smoothly and efficiently.

BACKBONE OF ECONOMY

The arrangement cuts both ways.

"Without the Union Miniere Katanga would collapse," a Belgian said. "It would be nothing."

There would be no industry, no power stations and little commerce. The meagre agricultural industry would not feed the 1,500,000 Katangas living in an area the size of France.

Tshombe apparently is aware of this and leaves the Union Miniere and its $140,000,000 capital investment alone. The company lowers the line, too.

Cyrille Robert, the company spokesman, said the company will not pay taxes to the central government at Leopoldville, with whom Tshombe is in open political and constitutional dispute.

"If we did, Tshombe would close us up just like that," he said, snapping his fingers and adding Belgians have no influence on Tshombe's policies.

TRIBAL WARS

There is some good and some bad in the situation.

The good: Employment and full stomachs for Katanga miners and other workers; economic stability for the European shopkeepers and businessmen who prosper and want no other than the Congo; relative security for white women and children in the southern part of Katanga.

The bad: Police state methods; punitive warfare against Baluba tribesmen in the north who oppose Tshombe; poorer sections of the Congo are deprived of a share in Katanga's immense wealth; political and constitutional dissension that is giving leaders in other provinces separatist ideas; a tougher job for the United Nations to bring about tribal peace and economic and political stability to the rest of the country.

The Union Miniere, set up in 1906, controls all mining in Katanga and contributes about a third of the Congo's entire income.

This year it will produce 60 per cent of the world's cobalt and eight per cent of the world's copper. A sister company, Forminiere, in southern Kasai province, just north of Katanga, produces more than 50 per cent of the world's supply of industrial diamonds.

FAILED IN BUSINESS

A string of subsidiary companies, all Belgian - controlled, process and sell the minerals and metals, harness hydro power, breed smelters and distribute electrical power.

Tshombe, a 43-year-old banker-businessman who got into politics, apparently has enough economic shrewdness to pitch his wagon to the powerful industry.

Early in the July troubles that caused the collapse of the central government of Patrice Lumumba, a political enemy, Tshombe proclaimed his province independent and proceeded to live off the financial, technical and administrative skill of the Belgians.

While the rest of the country now faces a long pull up the economic hill, Katanga remains relatively peaceful and prosperous.

There are reports from other provinces of support for Tshombe's idea for a loose federation of independent states in the Congo, instead of a strong central state as sought by Lumumba.

Most Belgians and some UN officials, speaking privately, say a loose federation built about tribal lines appears to be the best solution to the Congo's internal chaos and political troubles.

Belgian Paternalism Still Shows in Katanga Province, Particularly in the Mines

By REYNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ELISABETHVILLE (CP)—The benevolent paternalism Belgians showed for the Congolese before independence continues almost unchanged in Katanga province.

It is most evident in the operations of the multi-million-dollar mining industry, controlled by directors in Brussels.

There are some 86,000 Africans directly dependent on the Union Miniere du Haut Katanga (Mining Union of Upper Katanga) for jobs, welfare and health services, education, food and shelter.

The Union Miniere, a large syndicate with a capital of $160,000,000, produces 69 per cent of the world's cobalt and eight per cent of its copper, plus smaller amounts of other minerals.

UNAFFECTED BY CHAOS

Despite the widespread chaos that crippled the Congo after independence last June 30, the company's mines, processing plants, smelters and hydro installations kept functioning smoothly.

Probably the only thing that has changed is that workers now are paid wholly in cash for their labor, instead of half in cash and half in kind—food for their families.

Cyrille Robert, Belgian - born spokesman for the company, said during a tour of the company's Kipushi mine, 20 miles west of here, that only two days' operations were lost last July. The rest of the time the mining and smelting continued on a normal three-shifts-a-day basis, six days a week.

Robert said the company's paternalism towards its 22,000 Congolese, Rhodesian and other African workers and their families was necessary to keep the workers happy, healthy and at work.

SMALL TURNOVER

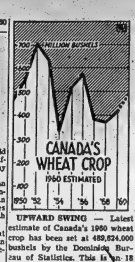
"The result," he said, "is that the turnover of workers is only three per cent, lower than in Belgium and, I'm sure, lower than in Canada."

He said one reason the company, formerly paid its employees partly in kind was that the breadwinner, if paid in cash, would drink it all on Saturday night, leaving his family hungry.

The miners are housed in company-owned single and semi-detached bungalows for which they pay 40 francs (80 cents) a month. The houses all are of brick and masonry and have a small garden and electricity.

Robert skirted around the question of how much African workers are paid by saying each worker costs the company $3.50 a day.

This includes housing, medical and hospital and welfare services, free education for the 30,000 "company children," maternity clinics, pensions and free transportation by air to the workers' native villages every three years.



BELGIANS FAVORED

The company rigidly controls prices of food stuffs and coal used for cooking. These are sold on the open air market in the African quarter of the company town.

Fringe benefits are extended on a more lavish scale to the Union Miniere's 2,000-odd Belgian employees in offices, laboratories and in key technical jobs both above and below ground.

Europeans are paid twice what they would get for similar jobs in Belgium and come here on three-year contracts.

The Union Miniere, incorporated in the Congo but owned by European shareholders and controlled by a Belgian board of directors, has smelters here and in Jadotville, 87 miles to the northwest. Its six mines are at Kipushi, around Jadotville and at Kolwezi, 200 miles northwest of Elisabethville. It also runs four power plants with an output of about 400,000 horsepower.

UPWARD SWING — Latest estimate of Canada's 1960 wheat crop has been set at 489,524,000 bushels by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This is an 18 per cent increase over last year's 413,530,000-bushel crop. Graph shows variation in the wheat crop for the whole country from 1950. The 1960 estimate is about one per cent below the 10-year average of 495,150,000 bushels. (CP News-map).

Economic Talks Open But Run Into Difficulties

BONN (AP) — The United States and West Germany opened economic talks Monday amid indications they ran into difficulties right at the outset.

The first session lasted an hour longer than the scheduled 30 minutes.

The United States is pressing prosperous West Germany to contribute more toward foreign aid and Western defence costs to help reduce the drain on U.S. dollar and gold reserves.

Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson and the under-secretary of State, Douglas Dillon, sat down for talks with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer at the chancellor's office.

Reliable sources said the U.S. economic experts will ask the West German government to put up "a bit less than $1,500,000,000" in foreign aid and contributions to Western European defence.

The West Germans were reported to be willing to spend between $832,000,000 and $909,000,000 to aid underprivileged countries.

Anderson said before leaving Washington he will also discuss the cost of maintaining U.S. troops in Germany, another factor putting pressure on the dollar.

Hospital officials refused to release any information pending a coroner's inquest Tuesday.

BRAZEN GOOSE GONE

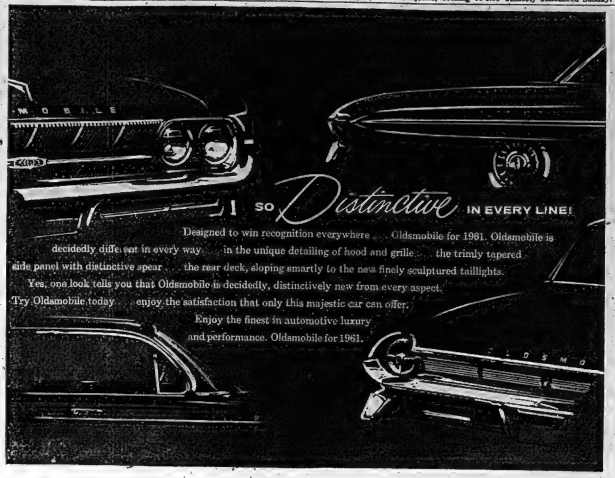
WASHINGTON (AP) — A defiant grey goose that staked claim to the Reflecting Pool at the base of the Lincoln Memorial a month ago and eluded all attempts to capture him disappeared Sunday. The big Canadian goose, which had taken over the rectangle of water as if he owned it, was last seen by park policeman Joseph L'Etoile, who was the first to spot the bird last Oct. 27. "I hope nobody decided to have aquatic turkey for Thanksgiving," L'Etoile said.

Councillor Says Wage Increases Were in Order

EASTVIEW (CP)—Councillor J. E. Paquette said Monday that if members of the council of this town had given themselves a $100 salary increase instead of $200 there wouldn't have been a fuss.

The council was rapped during a summertime provincial inquiry into operations of the town for giving itself the $200 increase from a special fund set aside for entertainment of visitors. A citizen's league has since repeatedly asked for the resignation of its members.

Mr. Paquette said councillors were actually entitled to the larger increase. According to a provincial ruling, he said, the mayor was entitled to $5,000 a year and councillors $1,500.



Council instead boosted their salaries to $1,800 instead of $1,500 from $800 and the mayor's salary was boosted to only $4,000.

Mr. Paquette, seeking re-election Dec. 5, said in a statement that the increases were "perfectly in order" and that neighboring Ottawa voted increases in council at the same time. The only difference was that Eastview had used a sum set aside for entertainment of visitors to cover costs of the increases.

"The money came out of the wrong drawer."

Notes From a Quick Trip To Paris, Bonn, Canadian Forces by Defence Minister

METZ, France (CP) — Notes split equipment which is not wholly up to date, More than 90 per cent of tradesmen in the air division are re-engaging for further hitches in the RCAF.

In a demonstration for Mr. Harkness, two CF-100s took only one minute and 40 seconds to take off from a cold start. This included the time it took the pilots and navigators to race from the crew room and get strapped into their cockpits.

The French Air Force now is taking part in integrated weekly exercises conducted by 4th Allied Tactical Air Force from headquarters at Ramstein, West Germany. Until recently, the French declined even this participation on the grounds that air defence was solely a national responsibility.

The RCAF base at Zweibrucken, Germany, literally sits on the old German West Wall. The underearth is the Maginot Line. Underneath the base is a rabbit warren of disused tunnels.

Maintenance of the CF-100s used to be a major problem because moisture attacked the electronic gear. A dehumidified ground crew helped solve this problem. Now, another ordinary wrapping paper around the aerials. Most of the CF-100s on the operational readiness now are in hangars.

German helicopters with German pilots carry Canadian troops during assault exercises because the Canadian pilots were no helicopters of their own.

The Canadian radar at Metz which controls the operations of RCAF jet fighters can look 230 miles behind the Iron Curtain at 45,000 feet. RCAF Sabres and CF-100s often see the controls of Communist planes near the East-West border.

The air division won't be getting operational squadrons of the new CF-105 reconnaissance bomber until late 1962. The squadrons will work up in Canada before flying to Europe.

DEFEATS MOTION

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal move to have economic forecasts prepared for the trade and commerce committee tabled in the Commons was defeated Monday night 104 to 61. The motion called for a copy of all economic forecasts prepared for the government by Jan. 1 and by March 31, 1961. Later, the government passed the bills carrying out the Canadian economic outlook for 1960.

NO ACTION TAKEN

Justice Minister Fulton said no court action has been taken to preserve the editorial independence of Vancouver's two daily newspapers. Such action was proposed in recent anti-combines inquiry, which provides court action to preserve the editorial independence of the two dailies under the existing common ownership of Pacific Press Limited.

STILL UNDECIDED

External Affairs Minister Green said he understands there has been no decision yet regarding a nuclear arms pool for NATO. He was replying to Opposition Leader Pearson.

WANT CANADIAN FLAG

Five Commons members, four of them Pro-Canadians, have sponsored private bills proposing a Canadian flag like section. One bill, sponsored by John Smith (PC—Lincoln), is entitled only "A law to authorize a Canadian flag." The flag question has been discussed in the Commons for several years, without any result.

NO DEAL YET

Associate Defence Minister Sauvé says Canada's air weapons agreement has been completed yet on an aircraft purchase deal where Canada would buy a United States jet interceptor in return for American purchase of a Canadian transport plane. He was replying to the Conservative Member Badanai (L—Fort William).

ASKS PREFERENCE

A measure which would require government procurement agencies to give preference to Canadian products was introduced by Ernest Broome (PC—Vancouver South). Six of 31 private members' bills introduced, would cost the government money if passed.

CONCERT

Another thing, foreigners do so much business with the United States that they have to buy dollars to exchange all their dollars for gold.

Furthermore, to do so would wreck their own finances because the United States has the main purpose of the free world economy.

Mr. Pitman denies, however, that the current anxiety over the persistent loss of U.S. gold is misplaced. He says it is natural that foreigners could cause a massive withdrawal of gold because a relatively small proportion of U.S. reserves for gold in the space of a few days.

COULD BIT CONFIDENCE

If those foreigners lose confidence in the dollar, $10,000,000,000 of U.S. gold in a single week this would be taken as a vote of "no confidence" in its value. Perhaps even a lesser amount could do it.

It is this possibility which last week prompted President Eisenhower to impose unprecedented restrictions on spending abroad under the military and foreign aid programs. His aim was to lessen the chances of dollars moving into foreign hands; dollars that could be used to buy American gold.

Whether U.S. foreigners have been buying American gold at a spectacular annual rate of $5,000,000,000

At this rate it wouldn't take long to use up all of the gold available for meeting foreign orders. And once the U.S. had to turn away customers, the dollar would no longer be as good as gold.

Countries of Western Europe Have Power to Rock U.S. Financial System at Anytime

Editor's note: President Eisenhower last week ordered drastic curbs to stop the steady flow of American gold into foreign hands. Frank Cormier, AP-Reuters department reporter, assesses the significance of the problem in this first of three articles on the gold situation.

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States could wreck the world financial system at any time it chooses.

All that stands between crisis and disaster is the confidence that the U.S. dollar inspires among the free world's foreign governments and their central banks. They have invested billions of U.S. money. Most of these dollars are owned by Western governments that deposited or invested in the United States voluntarily, and would be used to buy American gold.

COULD RAISE RESERVE

If all were used for that purpose, the U.S. supply of bullion could be wiped out. Then the $20,000,000,000 of gold in the government's coffers.

The disaster is virtually impossible.

For one thing, foreigners do so much business with the United States that they have to buy dollars to exchange all their dollars for gold.

Furthermore, to do so would wreck their own finances because the United States has the main purpose of the free world economy.

The reason, in short, is simple: that the current anxiety over the persistent loss of U.S. gold is misplaced. It is natural that foreigners could cause a massive withdrawal of gold because a relatively small proportion of U.S. reserves for gold in the space of a few days.

COULD BIT CONFIDENCE

If those foreigners lose confidence in the dollar, $10,000,000,000 of U.S. gold in a single week this would be taken as a vote of "no confidence" in its value. Perhaps even a lesser amount could do it.

Whether U.S. foreigners have been buying American gold at a spectacular annual rate of $5,000,000,000 is debatable.

At this rate it wouldn't take long to use up all of the gold available for meeting foreign orders. And once the U.S. had to turn away customers, the dollar would no longer be as good as gold.

Prime Minister Takes Political Poke at Argue

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Monday took a playful political poke at newly-elected CCF Leader Argue and the New Party.

"He is a rather unique position . . . because what he leads is about to die," Mr. Diefenbaker said in a Commons speech.

He also noted that the CCF leader, whose seat he is to be absorbed in the new party organized by the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress, has introduced the first New Party bill in Walter Pitman of Peterborough, to the Commons.

"All I can say to Mr. Argue is this: While the member for Peterborough allowed himself to be taken in by the CCF, for introduction purposes, he is not going in, carry that proceeding beyond the introduction," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Mr. Pitman said at the time of his election Oct. 31 that he would sit apart from the CCF members in the House and, while he was invited to join the CCF party caucus, he would only associate himself with it where it related to separate identity as a New Party MP.

The New Party member sits behind the CCF members in the Commons.

Canadian C of C Urges Tax Cuts Toward Immediate Steps To Stimulate the Economy

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce urged the federal government Monday to take immediate steps to stimulate the private sector of the economy, emphasizing tax cuts among a variety of other measures.

"The chamber is firmly of the opinion that the burden of taxation is too onerous in Canada, that personal and corporate income tax rates discourage individual save and that sales and similar taxes add appreciably to the costs of domestic producers and to consumer prices," the chamber's policy declaration said.

The chamber's annual meeting, normally made shortly before Parliament opens, apparently placed stress on tax cuts in its declaration by September Interim Fleming in the "baby" budget the minister is to present soon to the session of Parliament that opened last week.

Its recommendations also made a broad sweep of the economic and social horizon with proposals for federal action on retraining from land of redundancies to accepting O Canada as a national anthem.

It said further welfare spending should be delayed until the impact of current outlays can be assessed, double taxation on income and capital by federal and provincial governments should be eliminated and tax advantages enjoyed by co-operatives should be ended or extended to all businesses.

On trade, the chamber favored continuing support for the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade with greater efforts to encourage the expansion of international trade are adhered to. It also urged the liberalization of regional trading blocs.

It said no effort can be spared in relations with the new United States administration to maintain and increase Canada's share of the U.S. market.

Comments on foreign investment included a proposal that British investors be acquainted with opportunities for investment in Canada.

Several proposals concerned tourist trade, including one that the industry be eligible for loans from the Industrial Development Bank.

The brief said an objective of the chamber's program this year will be to arouse interest in a public declaration calling for more participation of members in political activity at all levels of the government.

Bitter Campaign Revived In Two Quebec Byelections

QUEBEC (CP) — The bitterness of the September 14 provincial general election June has been revived by Joliette and Chambly byelections to be held Wednesday.

The Liberal and Union Nationale parties are conducting an equal battle for the seats.

Facing their first test of strength at the polls since they ended 16-year Union Nationale reign, Liberals are anxious to show that they rather than extra-ing majority in the legislative assembly. The Union Nationale, restive in opposition benches and wrecked by internal discussion, is anxious to show that it is still a force to be reckoned with in provincial politics.

The standing in the legislative assembly:

Liberal 51; Union Nationale 35; Independent 1; and vacant 2; total 92.

Observers are cautious in forecasting possible outcome.

Three candidates are contesting Joliette, a seat made vacant when Antonio Barrette dramatically resigned his post September 4 as leader of the Union Nationale and as member of the legislature. The candidates are C. E. Hetu, Union Nationale, Gaston Lamberti, Liberal, and Marcel Ostigoy, Independent.

Mr. Barrette urged the party to purge its ranks and to build up grass-roots organization. Meantime, he said, the party should not contest the Joliette and Chambly byelections.

Observers say the imponder-

Two Sisters Admit Guilt

CHATHAM (CP) — Two sisters said Monday they kicked their illegitimate baby to death because they believed she had been "going out" with their husbands.

Mrs. Diane Planer, 20, and her sister, Mrs. Sandra Jones, 22, of Walpole Island, pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter and were remanded on their own recognizance because they have small children.

Beneta Day, 24, told police she had been "going out" with Planer and beaten before being dumped on a country road.

able in the constituency is the stand Mr. Barrette's many followers will take. Will they vote for the Union Nationale candidate despite Mr. Barrette's opposition? Le Bonvin is a straight two-party fight between Francois Bourdon, Liberal, and Paul Frechette, Union Nationale.

The Union Nationale campaign in the constituency is being run by Daniel Johnson, former hydro-electric resources minister.

Mr. Johnson is frequently mentioned as a likely candidate for the leadership of the party when it holds a convention next June. Observers say his chances would be helped considerably if he could pull off a byelection victory in Rouville.

Canadian Play Well Received In Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Canadian author Robertson Davies' new play Love and Libel opened here Monday night and drew praise from two Boston drama critics.

Alta Maloney of the Boston Traveler said the play could best be described as "great fun or high good humor."

"The situation of embarrassment in a university and cathedral town, though it is in Canada, is something well understood here," she said.

Mr. Davies conceives that a ruthless unemployed musician could put an engagement announcement in the paper, linking two long-reading families . . . . The humor of this announcement has splendid repercussions," she wrote.

Elinor Hughes of the Boston Herald said Love and Libel is "a very funny play." She compared the form of the play with that of the dramatic works of William Saroyan.

Davies is author and publisher of the Peterborough Examiner.

Truckers Oppose Rail Subsidies

TORONTO (CP) — John Magee, executive secretary of the Canadian Trucking Associations, Monday urged "the most massive opposition" to subsidies the industry has ever mounted" against subsidies for railways.

Speaking at the annual convention of the Ontario Automobile Transport Association, he said there were rumors that the federal government would grant the railways $50,000,000 in subsidies to avert a rail strike and that there had been no denial of the rumors.

Non-operating railway unions have set a Dec. 3 strike deadline.

Adjusters Put On 'Hot Seat'

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto garage owners were told Monday that insurance adjusters are doing nothing to police claims but on work they place with Ontario garages.

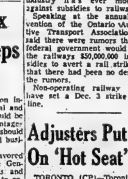
"If you pay off the adjuster, you get all the work you want," said Cecil West, manager of the Garage Operators Association of Toronto, at the group's annual meeting.

The body-shop section of the association brought in a resolution to stop all discounts to insurance companies.

Roy Chute of Peterborough, association president, said:

"By getting rid of this discount [kickback] you will have lower prices will come back to the public."

Driver Charged



TORONTO (CP) — Police Monday charged Daniel Mooney, 38, with failing to remain at the scene of an accident in connection with a crosswalk injury of a young girl Saturday night.

He is also charged with failing to report an accident and careless driving.

Marlene, 4, of Liberty, 11, received a skull fracture in the accident and doctors said she has only a "50-50 chance" to survive.

NOT ILLEGAL

OTTAWA (CP)—There is nothing illegal in a no-machine game that depends strictly on the outcome of a game, Supreme Court of Canada ruled Monday. The court also decided that a sweepstakes company offering for completed questionnaires, distributing the chance by placing them in some—but not all—of its boxed packages, cannot be convicted under the lottery laws. Both decisions were handed down in judgments on appeal.

Mobutu's Lieutenant Killed As Congolese Troops Attack Residence of Ghana Envoys

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — Two Ghanaian envoys were repelled from The Congo today after Congolese troops backed with United Nations soldiers Monday night to back the expulsion order of strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu.

Meanwhile Mobutu was reported trying to calm his troops angered at the loss of their second-in-command Col. J. Kokolo in bloody exchange with UN Tunisian soldiers.

At least four men, including Kokolo, were killed when Congolese troops opened up with assorted car and machine-gun fire at UN defenders of the Ghanian envoy's residence here.

Ghanaian Charge d'Affairs Nathaniel Welbeck, besieged in the residence overnight, packed a plane for Paris this morning under the eyes of Congolese soldiers at the airport.

Congolese authorities also insisted that Richard Quashie, an embassy permanent secretary who arrived Monday and was expected to replace Welbeck, leave the country on the same flight.

Welbeck's departure was delayed more than two hours while the Ghanaian 'secretary agreed. The two envoys left with Gen. Henry Alexander, UN commander-in-chief of Ghana's Army.

As the three men made their departure, tension rose in Leopoldville over the arrival of more Ghanaian troops in the aftermath of Monday night's clash with the UN.

Mobutu was reported at army headquarters in Camp Leopold trying to calm his angry soldiers.

Congolese soldiers angered by Kokolo, an officer much respected by his men, was killed in the exchange and three Ghanaian servicemen were badly hurt, officials said three Tunisian soldiers were killed and seven wounded, two severely.

The Congolese opened fire on the Ghanaian residence after a charge d'affaires rejected an expulsion order "for interfering in the internal affairs of The Congo."

A cease-fire was reported arranged Monday night, but sporadic firing continued in the residence area through the night.

This morning, the Tunisian soldiers were still dug in around the residence, grim-faced and weary. Their commander's head was swathed in bandages.

There were no Congolese attackers in sight, however, when Alexander drove up from UN headquarters with a seven-man Congolese escort accompanied by a Canadian army major.

The Ghanaian charge d'affaires emerged from the bullet-pocked building wearing a sports shirt and safari.

He told reporters before driving to the airport: "I am leaving because the government has asked me to return."

He said the embassy staff had been in constant danger and paid tribute to the Tunisians who guarded them throughout the attack.

About 200 troops of either side were grouped in bushes and behind trees around the house, which began soon after dusk Monday.

The Congolese used armored cars as well as machine-guns, and fought sporadically throughout the night. Dawn brought Alexander's intervention by air.

The incident was certain to further strain relations among African states. Ghana feeling here for alleged UN favor to Nigeria, a foreseen Ghanaian support of Patrice Lumumba's enemy Mobutu has suspended as premier.

Japan Likely to Remain Loyal to Western Alliance

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The yardstick of western democracy, Japan's general election Sunday will guarantee the country's firm adherence to the western alliance.

In a light vote that reflected apparent relative prosperity, Premier Hayato Ikeda's Liberal-Democratic government was returned with a slightly reduced majority over a socialist opposition split by a bitter internal struggle seats to stand a change of getting it back.

Ikeda's 233 seats in a 457-seat legislature would appear to give him a clear mandate to carry out his policies without undue reference to the Socialists' political comeback.

RETURNING SIGNS

But there have been disturbing signs in the last few months that Japan's political pendulum was swinging away from the middle-of-the-road Liberal-Democrats and toward the left-wing Socialists and their pro-war policies.

The country is plagued by a renewed outbreak of assassination by the extreme right, together with mob violence from the extreme left.

Both scandals have struck three times since last June, when a socialist deputy was stabbed during

KEPT IKEA AWAY

The most spectacular outbreak was the violent outbreak of rioting in Tokyo that forced President Eisenhower to cancel his visit to Japan in June.

Originally, the riots were designed as a protest against Japan's new mutual defence assistance defence treaty. In the end, they led to the resignation and left the world wondering whether Japan was on the verge of going neutralist.

The government's electoral victory is indicative of a recession of the splinter parties of the right while the socialists picked up most of their profits from the moderate democratic socialist party.

But the government's future rests on more than that. It must show that short-term profits are still to be won in Japan by violence.

Kennedy Intends to Reduce White House Staff Sharply

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy gave priority attention today to the selection of members of the jobs after disclosure that he intended to cut the White House staff sharply—starting at the top.

Kennedy expects to abolish—at least as far as his title is concerned—what is the Eisenhower administration has come to call the most powerful positions in government, the post of "assistant to the assistant to the president."

The man who apparently will occupy the top staff position in the new administration is 35-year-old Theodore Sorensen, a slim Kennedy aide who already has been named White House counsel.

These Kennedy plans were announced by Clifford, Kennedy's chief liaison man with the outgoing Eisenhower cabinet.

Reporting on that liaison mission, Clifford said he gave Kennedy a list of about 97 high-level jobs, including cabinet posts, which must be filled first in order to give the new presidential complete control of the executive branch when he is inaugurated Jan. 20.

Kennedy also got from Clifford and Lord Jebb between 400 and 500 jobs of secondary importance, and a third tabulation of about 1,220 lesser positions—all filled by presidential appointment.

Kennedy's decision to cut the White House staff, Clifford said would mean that the staff "probably will be "nowhere near as large as it is under the present administration."

Near-Record Woods Caribou Shot in Nfld.

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland has given up a near-record woodland caribou this season.

Freelance writer Grancel Fitz of New York made the kill near Gander Lake in the central Newfoundland area that has given up the two caribou on record.

The buck had 44-point antlers and, under the complicated scoring system used to determine record standings, places third in the Boone and Crockett records with a total of 377 scoring points.

Boone and Crockett lists the world record as one in the Newfoundland national collection donated by C. de Rham. His point score is 419⅝. Second is a buck shot near Gander River in 1952 by George H. Lesser. It scored 403⅝.

Fitz, first hunter to shoot every legal big game animal in North America, reported seeing 70 caribou before picking off the "great-est one of them all" late a day after flying into the bush.

Fitz originalled the record-scoring system used by the Boone and Crockett club. It is based on such factors as the spread of the antlers, their length and circumference, and the number of points or spikes on each antler.

New Party May Be Opposition In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec Federation of Labor believes the so-called New Party — to be revealed by an alliance of the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress—may soon form the opposition party in Quebec politics.

The 235,000-member federation's annual meeting was told during the weekend that the 1962 provincial election had brought about "the almost complete disintegration of the Union Nationale."

The election, said the QFL committee studying the New Party proposal, had shown that the electorate's appetite for reform is "enormous."

But it said the Liberal party, now in power, is "not sufficiently democratized nor sufficiently free of financial servitudes.

"We foresee," the committee said, "that the new provincial party will soon constitute the real opposition party and that it will rally all the sane elements of the electorate."

The convention voted 402 to one in favor of joining the New Party, whose founding convention is to be held in Ottawa next August.

RECORD DEBT — A rise in foreign long-term investments in Canada pushed the country's net indebtedness to a record $13,300,000,000 at the end of 1959.

This was double the 1952 figure and four times as much as in 1946. Graph, based on Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures, shows rise in the net debt since 1939. (CP Newsmap).

Quebec Govt. Will Preserve Montreal Status

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage said Sunday it will be the policy of the Quebec government to encourage the expansion of Montreal in all directions and preserve its status as the metropolis of Canada.

The premier, in an address to the city's Associations des Hommes d'Affaire, referred to the "metropolitan vision" of the late Camillien Houtard. He defined a 50-mile radius around the geographical centre of the city as the area to be covered in long-term planning.

He main points:

Possibilities of rapid movement from one part of the metropolitan region to another must be realized; Montreal's future is primarily linked with manufacturing; urban renewal in the old quarters of the city must be undertaken.

Three new super-highways out of Montreal — toward Toronto, Quebec City and Sherbrooke—are essential projects and must be undertaken as soon as possible. The first would link up with Highway 401 being built across Southern Ontario.

South Africa Wants to Stay in Commonwealth

PRETORIA (Reuters) — Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd said Sunday he has told Prime Minister Macmillan that South Africa wants to stay in the Commonwealth. White South Africans have voted for a republic to become a republic.

Verwoerd added in a statement issued here that South African membership would be based on the non-interference of Commonwealth members with the domestic affairs of other members.

And he declared that South Africa would "not permit herself to be subjected to any form of humiliating treatment in connection with the Commonwealth membership question.

Verwoerd said he told the British prime minister last week he agreed with Macmillan's advice that the matter should be dealt with at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in March. which Verwoerd said he would attend.

Youth Suffers From Exposure When Boat Capsizes in Lake

PICTON — Sixteen - year - old Edwin Herrington is recovering from exposure suffered when he drifted for six hour and a half in the icy waters of Lake Ontario, while clinging to his overturned boat, which was being carried out into the lake. He is in Prince Edward County Memorial here.

Herrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Herrington, in company with Peter Robinson, Roger Scott and Fred Henry, had gone duck hunting at Salmon Point, 15 miles southwest of Picton, and the fishery at the Point. Herrington had launched a small boat and paddled southward up the lake shore, while his companions walked the shoreline. Because his feet were getting wet, Herrington attempted to kneel in the boat and it capsized. He is a good swimmer and made an attempt to swim to shore but was forced to give up the attempt due to the weight of rubber boots, heavy clothing and a belt filled with ammunition. He clung to the overturned craft, by releasing his numbed arms and which was forced out into the lake, by a stiff, cold breeze.

His companions, who had lit a fire when they thought he could swim to shore, and then rolled over rough terrain for help. At the fishery they met Cecil Insley, who was about to set out in his fish boat to lift whitefish nets. By the time he reached the boy and the boat they were a mile and a half out from shore and rapidly approaching rougher water. Herrington was unconscious from the cold but his arms were wrapped around the end of the boat keeping his head above water. His rescuers had difficulwere unable to straighten them to put on a coat. It was as if he had frozen almost solid, Insley stated and added that fifteen minutes more results would have been more serious. Rushed to hospital, Herrington required considerable treatment before being revived.

Five Charred Bodies Found Sitting in Car

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Authorities hoped today that x-rays of five men's charred bodies found sitting in a car on a lonely road would show whether the bodies contained metal that would indicate the men had been shot to death.

The bodies were found Sunday by an unidentified little girl walking along Greasy Creek Road, about 17 miles southeast of here.

Coroner Raymond Call said the dead men "were sitting just as though they'd just got into the car."

"With all the heat, it seems there'd have been some sort of struggle to try to escape," Call said. "But there hadn't been."

The victims were identified as Harvey Ratliff, about 24; found behind the wheel; Buddy Hopkins, about 24; Denver Yates, about 23; Harmon Robinson, about 35; and Louie Hopkins, about 17, all from the isolated Greasy Creek section of Pike

Mayor-Loucks said they were hired under a plan to employ 14 men for a four-week period After that, they would be replaced by other unemployed men so as many jobless as possible would be given work.

Leads E.P.L. Points Race

OTTAWA (CP) —Centre Cliff Pennington of the league-leading Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, has taken a six-point lead in the individual Eastern Professional Hockey League scoring race, an increase of four points over his last week's total.

League statistics today gave Pennington 29 points.

Buddy Boone of Kingston Frontenacs, who failed to pick up a point last week, is tied at 23 points with Fred Ellis and Terry Gray.

Pennington and Skippy Burchell of the trailing Montreal Royals, have picked up the most assists, 19 each.

Eddie Johnson of the Canadiens lowered his average to 2.35 goals against per game, allowing only three goals in two games. He leads in shut-outs with three.

Sudbury has taken over as the most penalized team with 217 minutes while Soo Wings of Sault Ste. Marie is still the most penalized player with 58 minutes.

The Canadiens established a record last week while extending their home ice unbeaten streak to 12 games, 11 this year and two last year in their semi-final series with Sudbury. The previous record of 12 was held by Sudbury.

You could make almost two Ronnie Stewarts out of Billy Shipp. But Ottawa Rough Riders' 170-pound halfback is as hard as they come. Take it from Shipp.

The 205-pound Montreal tackle, one of the hardest-hitting linemen in Big Four football, talked about Stewart's durability after a game in which he practically ruined the Montreal Alouettes' defence with his brilliant outside running.

Rough Riders battered the Als 51-21 and Stewart, rolling and stiff-arming off tackles, legs pumping, scored four touchdowns and set a league record of 267 yards hogging the ball.

On one carry, Stewart was stopped behind the line of scrimmage when Shipp barrelled through and launched "the most vicious tackle I have ever tossed at anybody." He nailed Stewart dead-to.

"But that little guy bounced up before me, as if he'd never been touched," said Shipp. "What are you going to do?"

Stewart, a Queen's University graduate and law student in his third pro season, won the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy as the league's player who "best combines clean play, sportsmanship, will to win and ability."

SIZE DIDN'T HURT

When Stewart was picked out of college ranks by Frank Clair after starring for Queen's, there was the inevitable question whether he was big enough to play pro football.

He didn't take long to prove that he belonged in the Big Four although it wasn't until this year, perhaps, that he really blossomed. The difference appears to be the unlimited blocking in use for the first time this season.

With the protective cover of such blocking experts as Kaye Vaughan and Tom Jones, Stewart has made life miserable for opposing ends and linebackers on his wide sweeps, providing vital balance for the inside running of Pepe Theios. Together they are a one-two punch that has been the moving force in Ottawa's predominantly ground attack.

A good example of the way the Rough Riders have used Stewart this year was seen in the first game of the Big Four finals against Toronto Argonauts when Ron scurried around the left side behind five blockers for a long gain. He was shoved out of bounds on the one-yard line and Ottawa scored on the next play but it seems likely he would have gone for a touchdown himself if he hadn't decided to pull ahead of the blockers so he neared the goal line.

EXCITING BACK

The respect with which the 25-year - old Stewart is regarded around the league is indicated by the comments of Scott Young, Toronto Globe and Mail columnist, who says:

"In Ron Stewart Ottawa has the most exciting short halfback in Canadian football since Fritz Hanson. I would take Hanson at his best over Stewart right now, but Stewart is getting better every year.

"His size is no detriment, and wouldn't merit mention except that it does an extra thing to his effectiveness. What is not generally known is that although not tall, he is built like a steel holland; hard, thick and strong."

Players in the Big Four know this, of course, and fans must have suspected it on the many occasions when Ron has snapped back like a willow twig after being smashed by the likes of Shipp.

Actually, comparison with Hanson is difficult since Fritzie played with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the 1930s when there was nothing like today's blocking.

But the fact that Stewart is placed in such company as Dave Mann, Cookie Gilchrist, George Dixon and Sam Etcheverry on this year's Big Four all-star team shows that he's won recognition as the best so-called little man in the East, possibly all Canada.

Three Seek Coach Job

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union announced today three applications have been received for the position of head coach created by the recent resignation of Ken Carpenter.

Applicants are: Len Younce, an assistant last year to Carpenter; Al Bruno, coach of London Lords of the Ontario Rugby Football Union; and Indian Jack Jacobs, former assistant to coach Jim Trimble of the Big Four Union' Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The club said Jacobs was a leading candidate in 1960 before the appointment of Carpenter. Applications have also been sought from American coaches.

No decision is expected until after the Grey Cup game in Vancouver next Saturday, the Roughriders said.

Webb, O'Malley Rejoin Baseball Battle

Frick, Prexies Hear Case

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Del Webb and Walter O'Malley, two titans of the major leagues, were expected to hold the centre of the story stage today as the beleaguered American League regrouped its formidable task of locating a franchise in Los Angeles.

Webb, co - owner of the New York Yankees, and O'Malley, head of the Los Angeles Dodgers, arrived here today for a meeting in commissioner Ford Frick's office with league presidents Joe Cronin of the American and Warren Giles of the National.

The special session is to acquaint the commissioner and the two league heads on what had happened when the two strongmen locked horns in Los Angeles during the weekend.

O'Malley made his position clear even before he left the west coast.

"I'm not opposed to the expansion of the American League into Los Angeles," he said, "but not in 1961."

JUST AS PLAIN

The position of Webb and the American League is just as plain. They are determined to grant a franchise to Los Angeles, and in 1961, O'Malley notwithstanding.

Webb was dispatched to the west coast with instructions from his league to offer what it considers a "reasonable" settlement to O'Malley for any expenses he might have incurred in bringing the Dodgers there three years ago. O'Malley has said that compensation to the Dodgers by the new American League entry would be the least important of the conditions.

"I am opposed to sharing the Los Angeles Coliseum in 1961," he said. "I think any new team should be located in an area 15 miles from the Dodgers home site."

He mentioned such places as Long Beach and San Bernadino. Some American League owners are wondering why he didn't add Laguna Beach.

DOESN'T WANT

"O'Malley just doesn't want the American League in Los Angeles," said Nate Dolin, the blunt 250-pound president of the Cleveland Indians. "We made an honest attempt to abide by the recommendations of the baseball committee that is to affect some kind of a fair and reasonable settlement with O'Malley. Now it's up to the commissioner to weigh all the evidence and make his decision.

"We are waiting only for the commissioner's approval to go ahead with our plans to put a team into Los Angeles."

Webb isn't talking, at least, not just yet. While in Los Angeles, he conferred with Kenyon Brown, former stockholder in the Detroit Tigers, on the prospect of Brown heading a syndicate including hotel owner Conrad Hilton, to take over the Los Angeles franchise. He was expected to make his report at the league meeting.

In the meantime, Charles A. Finley, who last week offered to invest $5,000,000 of his own money if granted the LA franchise, has been receiving backing from some American League bigwigs.

RICKEY JOLTS 'EM

The already clouded future of the American League received an additional jolt Monday night from Branch Rickey, the veteran head of the ill-fated Continental League, the would-be third major circuit.

In his farewell speech to the press, the 79-year-old baseball veteran declared the American League would soon regret what he termed its abortive attempts to expand," and predicted that the two newest members—Washington and Los Angeles—would forfeit their franchises a month after the beginning of the 1961 season.

Rickey long has professed the only true expansion is a third major league.

West Wins Grid Title Over Verdun

WINNIPEG (CP) — St. Vital Bulldogs won the 1961 Canadian intermediate football championship Saturday over Verdun Shamrocks before an estimated 4,500 fans Monday night at Winnipeg Stadium.

Ottawa, Eskimos Hit Paths Of Glory

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders leave for Vancouver early today for the last hurdle in the path to national football glory—the Grey Cup game Saturday.

Now holding an undisputed claim to Eastern supremacy, the Riders will meet Edmonton Eskimos, the country's top Western team.

Monday night the team, after a short spell of watching movies of Eskimo play, attended a small informal dinner tendered by fans.

Coach Frank Clair was non-committal — as he was before both of the games in which his team defeated Toronto Argonauts 33-31 and 21-20—for the Big Four championship. He didn't venture any flirm predictions of Riders' chances against the Eskimos.

". . . each team will have some surprises Saturday," he said.

CLAIR WAS SILENT

When the coach mentioned "surprises," some wondered if anything Clair could dream up for the big game would match the agonized sleepy daze dredged up from football history with behind - the - scenes machinations. But on that count he was silent.

The Ottawa contingent will consist of the same 38 players—the full number permitted in a Grey Cup game for the fourth straight victory Sunday. Also along will be three "walking wounded." Merv Collins, Jon Gotaich and Ted Smale.

Collins, fullback, who aggravated an ankle injury Sunday, is expected to be in shape for game time.

Meanwhile civic officials plan to be prepared for the Riders' return, regardless of where the Grey Cup goes.

A civic dinner will be held Thursday at the Coliseum with tickets $2.50 each.

Plans are also for having a civic reception somewhere other than at Uplands Airport where the fans' welcome after Sunday's game caused one of the greatest traffic jams the city has known.

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos head west today to tune up for the 1960 Grey Cup classic.

They were set to take a plane for Victoria, where they will put the final touches on strategy for their big engagement in Vancouver Saturday against Ottawa Rough Riders.

The three Eskimos will make the trip today, the 34th, halfback Johnny Bright, followed Wednesday. Bright is in hospital here, recovering from a charley-horse suffered against Winnipeg Blue Bombers last Saturday when Eskimos won the Western interprovincial Football Union's final series.

Coach Eagle Keys, however, has announced it will be barred to the public and press. Keys began his closed-door policy Monday night when Eskimos ran through plays for about an hour.

The Eskimos will give plenty of attention to scouting reports of the Big Four final series between the Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts when they get settled in Victoria. The Riders beat Argonauts twice to Sunday to capture title two - game, total-points series 54-54.

PARKER RESTS

Quarterback Jackie Parker, a key man in Eskimos' 10-3 and 4-2 victories over the Bombers in their best-of-three final series, skipped Monday night's workout. He is still bothered by a charley-horse. Keys has ordered Parker off his feet for at least a couple of days to make sure he is in good shape for Saturday.

Halfback Cowboy Woodruff, on the injury list, was running Monday night but Keys said he is a doubtful starter.

Boast 16 'Grey' Veterans

Eskimos Have Cup Savvy

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos are no strangers to Grey Cup skirmishes.

When they meet Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football Union in Saturday's East-West classic at Vancouver, 15 Eskimos plus coach Eagle Keys will be making Grey Cup experience. Seven have competed in the Grey Cup at least three times.

Since then he has played in 1952 and 1954 with Edmonton. In 1955 he was named Canada's athlete of the year. Now 30, he called off the first year and started late. He scored five touchdowns in the Western interprovincial Football Union this season.

Halfback Rollie Miles, 32, and guard Ted Tully, 30, have played in four Grey Cups.

Perennial all - star Jackie Parker, quarterback and defensive specialist, is notable among those who will be playing in their fourth championship game. Parker named as Canada's outstanding player, he is one of only nine players for the award again this year. Others are halfback Johnny Bright, 29, and Oscar Kruger, 27.

Tully played for Eskimos in Grey Cup games before leaving trade to British Columbia Lions in 1959, back with them after another trade, he is the last remaining member of the 1955 team.

Tackle Roger Nelson, 27, lineman of the year last season, was with Eskimos when they won three straight cups, but sat out the 1955 game because of injuries.

RECOVERED AFTER BLAST

Centre Don Getty, who alternates with Al Ecuyer at middle guard, was badly burned in an explosion last year but has recovered and will play in his fourth Eastern game. Quarterback Don Getty, who led the Eskimos to victory over the Big Four Montreal Alouettes in 1956, will play in his second Grey Cup.

Also in the lineup (Grey Cup experience bracketed): Guard Roy Shewchuk (2), guard Glen Fraser (2), guard Mike Kmech (1), tackle Ed Lamb (1), centre Don Stephenson (1), tackle Mike Volkan (1).

Keys played centre when Edmonton won in 1954.

Bright Seeks Coach Job

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimo fullback Johnny Bright said Monday he plans to apply for the job of coach of the Western Interprovincial Football Union Calgary Stampeders.

Bright, 29, said in an interview: "I have only talked to Calgary manager Jim Finlay about the job. I have no plans for actually applying until the end of this season."

Bright started his WIFU career in Calgary, playing with the Stampeders in 1952 and 1953 after graduation from Drake University. He joined Edmonton in 1954.

Since being with the Eskimos, Bright has played on three winning Grey Cup teams, in 1954, 1955 and 1956, set a Canadian rushing record with 3,723 yards in 1958 and was named Canada's outstanding football player in 1959.

Calgary coach Otis Douglas quit following a 50-7 defeat of the Stampeders by Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Winnipeg Aug. 27.

Calgary then hired veteran Keith Spencer, on the coaching staff of the Toronto Argonauts, to coach the season. Queen's is reported to be interested in staying with the Stampeders, but Finlay has no hint of the executive's plans.

Hockey Hints

By Lloyd Percival

Bobby Pulford of the Toronto Maple Leafs probably scores more goals on breakaways from his own defensive zone, especially when the Leafs are a man short, than any other N.H.L. player. Some might say this is because he is lucky and the goals come to him at the right time. This is not true because the vast majority of "breaks", and good, occur because the player makes them happen. This is the case with Pulford.

If you watch Bobby carefully during a game you will notice that though he is watching his man carefully he is also watching the puck and is always alert to a breakaway opportunity. The moment possession of the puck is gained by the Leafs he is on the move, leaving his man and getting into position for an offensive play. Most players are not so alert, are inclined to wait for a play to form up, do not help set one up.

Most young players, when they get the puck, hesitate before they move. Not so with Pulford. He flips the puck out ahead of him and then charges. There is no unnecessary stickhandling or skating done by Bobby—he concentrates on moving the puck ahead and skating at a slight line, digging hard. He knows that a quick decisive break will be sure to leave at least several opponents behind. So, takes a tip from the Leaf star and be alert for possession and move ahead quickly when you get the puck. For more hints send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and the Hockey Hints 80 King St. W. Toronto for my bulletin, "Gordie Howe, Magic On Ice".

U.S. Leads Davis Cup

BRISBANE (AP) — The Philippines' bold gamble on youth failed today and the United States took a 2-0 lead in the Davis Cup interzone semifinal singles competition as Barry Mackay and Earl Buchholz.

First hard-hitting Mackay, from Dayton, Ohio, crushed 25-year-old Eddie Dungo, playing his first Davis Cup match, 6-1, 6-2, 6-0. Then Buchholz of St. Louis, added to the rout after a slow start by humbling Johnny Jose, 23, 5-7, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

The bespectacled Jose gave the sparse gallery of less than 2,000 its only thrill when he seized the opening set from Buchholz on some sparkling play, but he lacked the experience to go all the way.

The two top-ranked Filipino pros, Raymundo Deyro, 34, and Flaciximo Ampon, 40, were smashed when the non-playing Philippine captain, Al del Rio, decided to gamble with his youngsters.

The Americans now need only one more victory, which likely will come Wednesday when Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., and Chuck McKinley of St. Louis, play Jose and Dungo in doubles, to advance to the interzone final against Italy's European champions.

Hal Patterson Larks M.V.P.

MONTREAL (CP)— Montreal football fans picked Hal Patterson the Alouettes' most valuable player this season for the fourth time.

In a poll conducted game-by-game by Sheftlery, Patterson won by 404 points over quarterback Sam Etcheverry. Both were drafted by Hamilton Tiger - Cats after the Big Four football season ended, but a later game made the Big Four all-star team.

Patterson received 21,033 votes and Etcheverry 20,629 in the fan balloting. Halfback George Dixon was third, tackle Bill Hudson was fourth, and tackle Jackie Simpson fifth.

Hudson has said he doesn't want to play for the Alouettes next season and Simpson said he won't play if Hudson doesn't.

Patterson won the award in 1955, 1956 and 1957 for a record number of repeat performances. Etcheverry and retired guard Sam Trawick were the only other players to win it more than once. Each won it twice.

Services Dart League Results

Skyliners and Legion piled up top-sided victories in the Belleville Services Dart League last night. Skyliners downed McEvoys and Legion whipped the OPP, both by 10-1 scores.

In other games, Lucky Lews defeated Parsons 8-3, RCAF won over Wilkinson 7-4, Lakeside edged Ex Ranchos 5-5 and Aitchesons took an 8-3 decision over the ANAF squad.

Bob Scheffing Tiger Manager

DETROIT (AP)—Bob Scheffing, a stocky ex-catcher with reputation for handling young players, Monday was hired to manage Detroit Tigers and restore vigor to the ailing American League club.

The former pilot of Chicago Cubs got a two-year contract at an estimated yearly salary of $25,000.

The veteran National League pilot succeeds Joe Gordon who quit Oct. 3, one day after the end of the 1960 season.

Scheffing, 45, was the Tigers' choice after Casey Stengel turned down the job.

The new manager faces an uphill chore in returning the Tigers to prominence. The club has finished in sixth or fourth only twice in the last 10 seasons. Detroit hasn't won a pennant since 1945.

Last year Scheffing was a coach with Milwaukee Braves.

Akins Stops Carl Hubbard

CHICAGO (AP)—Former welterweight champion Virgil Akins stopped young Carl Hubbard of Philadelphia in 2:42 of the fifth round Monday night in a scheduled 10 - round welter weight bout in Marigold Gardens.

Akins, a 32-year-old from St. Louis who lost his title to Don Jordan 18 months ago, toyed with Hubbard, 22, through the first four rounds. Then he unleashed a blistering attack that sent Hubbard down for an eight count.

Hubbard got to his feet only to catch a high left to the head and a right to the jaw which finished him off.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Terry Sawchuk has been called the greatest goalkeeper in the history of the National Hockey League but it is no secret he's a little unhappy about the rule looning system Detroit Red Wings are using this year. He's in danger of losing his job as Detroit's No. 1 netminder.

And his successor? Hank Bassen, a journeyman goalie who has been careering around the country like a travelling salesman since 1954. He's worked with Buffalo and Springfield in the American League, Calgary, Seattle and Vancouver in the Western circuit and with Chicago and Detroit in the majors.

A year ago with Vancouver Canucks he won the league's league - goalkeeper award and shared the most-valuable-player trophy with Seattle's Gaylie Fielder as Canucks won just about everything in sight. He even collected an assist on one of his club's 230 goals.

This was enough to make Detroit general manager Jack Adams take notice of the Calgary-born goalkeeper and Jolly Jack announced at the start of the season that "we plan to use Bassen in 30 or so games so Terry won't have to work a full schedule."

BAWCHUK AGREED

This apparently put okay with Sawchuk who has suffered through two physical crises in his nine-year NHL career. One was created by mild sunstroke and another by a nervous breakdown that caused him to "retire" from hockey halfway through the 1956-7 season.

During his nine completed seasons in the NHL, the Winnipeg-born veteran has won the Vezina Trophy as the league's top goalie three times and has been named to six all-star teams. In regular-season play he had 76 shutouts, an all-time league record, and his most towering moment was in the 1951-52 Stanley Cup playoffs when he chalked up four shutouts and allowed only five goals as Wings swept through to the cup in the minimum eight games.

Fred Astaire Giving Up Television to Do a Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's cheering to old movie fans to learn of a star who is giving up television for films, instead of vice versa.

The star: Fred Astaire.

No other personality has won so many TV plaudits. Ironically, he was never nominated for a movie Oscar, but was given an honorary one for his contributions to the screen.

But Astaire has never swayed 60-year-old Fred. Though TV continues to wave him homage, he's through with the medium—for a while, at least.

GIVES VARIETY

"I've had fun doing television," he says, "It gave me the chance to do some things I never could do in films. For instance, in the last show I worked with Count Basie, which I've long wanted to do. I had access to a 40-piece band. Otis Regrets, and I did, could do a number in which improvised 75 per cent of the dance—things like that.

"I wouldn't say that I have done everything I wanted to do. But I think I will let TV go for a while. I've done three shows in the last three years, and they take up a good part of the year.

"Now I'd like to devote myself to movies before I get too decrepit to do them any more. Movies have been good to me, and I've been lucky in the last few years to have done films that have been interesting for me and have been successful.

"I don't have any plans. And I won't make a film just to make a film. But I'm available."

Fred now is finishing up The Pleasure of His Company, postponed until March by the writers' strike. It's his first non-dancing role since he did the donnatic On the Beach, and he's enjoying the luxury of having an ardent week's of dance rehearsals.

"Musicals are in a slump right now," he observed. "You hear a lot of reasons for it, but I think I know the real cause. People simply get too much musical entertainment on TV."

At The Park

JANE WYMAN'S MOTHER, ROLE

Jane Wyman found herself the mother of two almost grown children in her starring role opposite Rock Hudson in Universal-International's Technicolor "All the Heavens Allows," now showing at the Park Theatre. In real life the actress has a daughter, Maureen Elizabeth, who was considered for one of the assignments in the new film, but at the last moment it was determined she was too young.

The two children of Miss Wyman in the picture are portrayed by Gloria Talbott and William Reynolds.

"All That Heaven Allows" was directed by Douglas Sirk and produced by Ross Hunter.

Another technicolor feature, also starring Rock Hudson, is on the same program and has as the co-stars Lauren Bacall, Robert Stack and Dorothy Malone. This is the dramatic "Written On The Wind."

Astrological Forecast

General tendencies: Make sure you do not upset whatever has been satisfactory in your life era this just because you have a divine discontent that is impelling you to make changes. Think out carefully what you want in the future and handle any troubles today by eliminating them in a diplomatic and tactful manner. Then woo turn potential problems into active opportunities.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Since you are not feeling quite up to par, you may start an argument with a good friend who is really loyal to you and does a valuable affiliation. Control your temper and be chilled in all that you do and say! Then all is O.K.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — While you may not particularly care to do the work that is before you of a public nature, be cheerful about it just the same, since higher — are now watching you and they will later give credit and far greater support. Be wise.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Since you are feeling out of sorts, you want to cast all duties aside today and dash off to new places and people that would not be good for you at all. Stick fast or you could get into trouble and jeopardize present secure position.

Moon' Children (June 22 to July 22) — Inhibitively you feel that by feeling sorry for yourself, you can avoid responsibilities, but if you do them acquiescently, they can be met quite easily and you'll do not lose the respect of higher - ups as well as friends. Build character.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Refrain from taking your ire out on associates today and also from him, or her, to do the lion's share of the work. Take an aspirin, then go ahead and do your best work. This will save the day and also cement better relations with good partner.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Carelessness today or evening could result in damage or accident, so be sure to take your time and do everything perfectly. This can then be a very fine and productive day instead of a costly and dangerous one. Work.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Important you are economical in whatever has to do with personal appearance or happiness now, otherwise you will regret an extravagance. Be cheerful and kind with everyone and all will be fine.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Fundamental affairs are somehow distasteful to you today and you want to run off somewhere, drop everything. However, you have worked hard to attain present position, so remain steady. Remember, tomorrow and what the holiday means.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Steer clear of any accidents by driving carefully, and if you are thoughtful of the other fellow, you can avoid trouble of all sort. Get any statistical work in perfect. P. M. be courteous and generous with loved ones.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Don't jump into any new monetary ventures today without first studying every angle meticulously. Financial institutions may not give you the right advice since they do not know your exact position. Stall for time.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Take care you do not go off on any tangent now or give in to many unseen forces that tend to confuse. Act less serenely than you wont, otherwise you will get into trouble. Be cheerful and courteous with everyone. Grow.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Here is one of those days when many persons come to you for assistance, either moral or financial. Do as much as you can, but no more. Be careful in the evening, not to get into any arguments or fights if you go to a night club.

If your child is born today — he, or she, will be one of those delightful children who from earliest childhood seems to be doing everything just the wrong way and getting a kick out of it. However, it behooves you to early teach to be obedient in all basic affairs or your progeny will early be misunderstood by others. The chart is then fine for anything connected with unusual or ultra - modern art or other creative expressions. Fascinating chart!

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In case hemorrhoid case after case, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among those sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form, called Preparation H. Ask for individually packaged, convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

tional material might be limited to Canadian publications.

Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Times, presenting a submission said a publication might come about if government loans or grants to back production of an all-Canadian magazine.

Canada has the talent to produce such a publication, he said in his brief. The only thing it lacks would be solved by a part of some kindly magnate's would come up and say there is $2 000,000 or $3,000,000—now produce a good Canadian magazine".

Mr. O'Leary said: "This angel is sort of difficult to find which we can't expect . . .So we have to look for some other solution."

Mrs. Pat Hanley, 35-year-old author from White Rock, B.C., suggested that inventors of the Canadian Club should be hanged for life. She said publications have become a commodity and should be treated as such like any other commodity.

Mrs. Hanley has written under the name of Mrs. W. Gerald Hanley.

She said Canadians sometimes treated their neighbors to the south too kindly. The Chinese had a saying: "Love thy neighbor but don't take down the fences."

"Not only have we taken down the fences, but we've taken our neighbor to bed with us," she said.

the growth of the labor force.

"For a province that lives on trade there can be only one solution: We must increase the sale of our goods at home and abroad in order to do this we must compete with the producers in other industries."

TO CONTINUE OWAC

The speech said the legislature will be asked to vote money for continuation of the Ontario Water Resources Commission program of water pollution control and increasing the effective use of water supplies.

"Immediate steps will be taken to facilitate the participation of municipalities in the federal government's plan to combat pollution which has become a by-product of our growing industrialization and urbanization and is in many ways a national problem."

The legislature also will be asked to authorize a large volume of borrowing to provide additional accommodation for elderly persons.

TO BUILD FOREST WORK

The department of lands and forests will expand its forest management program to ensure future supplies of forest products.

Reforestation on 25,000 acres this year will include the planting of 20,000,000 trees, the speech said.

Roadside camps and picnic areas are to be increased in the provincial parks system to accommodate the more than 15,000,000 visitors who enjoyed the parks this year.

To maintain the high level of mineral production, airborne magnetometer surveys will be made across the north of Ontario.

In the field of energy resources, the speech said, work already is in progress that will lead to the adoption of a power policy and developments in the fields of atomic energy, isotopes and the related matters.

The government promised further attention to assistance for science courses are to be introduced in Grades 7 to 10. Funds will be requested to ensure that no student who has the talent and ambition to attend university is deprived of an opportunity through lack of funds.

EXPAND HEALTH RESEARCH

Ontario's mental health program will be expanded. Legislation will be proposed for the establishment of mental health research and special treatment foundation with a view to stimulating and encouraging greater community participation. There will be more nursing assistants in hospitals.

In addition, more funds are to be paid to municipalities, school boards and other local agencies to assist them in providing new facilities and services.

The speech also forecast a modernization of the reform institutions program.

A large-scale program of rehabilitation and improvement for the disabled is a number of present institutions, and a new institution will be erected at Elliot Lake.

You will be asked to consider plans to establish a residence centre for juvenile boys—the first of its kind in Canada."

In recognition of the services rendered by the armed forces, no matching grants will be made to approved regional tourist organizations unless they have the more effective development and protection of the province's tourist industry."

To reinforce the social fabric of the economy, homemakers' and nurses' service will be supported by a substantial program number of municipalities, the policies of which the department will be reviewed, as will provisions for those who qualify for direct relief.

"Funds will also be required for the Ontario Provincial Air Service act up in the department of health to deal with the many families coming to Canada as refugees cases," the speech said.

"Special technical committees studying problems of aging will report to the legislature during the session. It is proposed to refer this report to a committee of the legislature.

The speech also referred to the federal-provincial fiscal conferences last July and October eral-

"Legislative action will be needed arising from the outcome of these meetings," the speech said.

The speech did not give any indication of proposed legislative action.

"The provinces are constitutionally entitled to an equal share of the major field of direct taxation," the speech said. "My government is a great one and will continue to press for the just recognition of Ontario's rights and responsibilities."

It said there are "agreeable indications" that the financial details of the federal state will be recognized and legislators will be given the opportunity to discuss federal-provincial fiscal matters.

In the matter of seeking a procedure for amending the Canadian constitution solely in Canada, the speech said "excellent progress" has been made with authorities of the federal committee of attorneys-general.

The government is confident that further discussions will lead to agreement on the amending procedure and thus make possible the domiciling in Canada of the power to amend our constitution," the speech said.

The legislature is expected to sit until about the middle of December, and before the Christmas holiday, then reconvene at the end of January and continue through until April, 1961, the first split session since 1947.

Quebec Port Officials Hope For Tough Winter to Prove Ships Can Buck River Ice

By JOHN YORSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—The men behind winter shipping to Quebec wouldn't mind a tough winter. They want to prove that a ship equipped for ice navigation can come through almost anything.

"We're not afraid of a bad winter," said an official of one Quebec city firm of ship agents. "We want to show the people what we can do."

Last winter—the first of regularly scheduled voyages between Europe and this sub-water port — was pronounced a success. But it was mild for the St. Lawrence River and ships arrived ahead of schedule as a rule. One master called his voyage "a summer trip."

Now, as plans are being laid for the second season, shipping firms would like to prove to Canadian businessmen that properly equipped vessels will get through.

Canadian businessmen, fighting to stay in the European market, either dockside goods over the winter or ship from central Canada through Maritime ports which involves increased rail costs.

COMPETE WITH SOVIET

The asbestos industry, which produces one-third of the world's supply and is based 30 miles from here, is a case in point.

Battling lower-priced Russian asbestos, producers have endured risk large winter shipments through Quebec. If shipments were late, they'd lose customers.

Other industries besides asbestos could make savings that "would permit them to retake lost ground on the world market," says the Industrial and Trade Bureau of Greater Quebec, one of winter shipping's main proponents.

These savings, the bureau says, would be made in lower transportation costs and the "non-necessity for producers and for clients to tie up enormous capital . . . in warehousing and in accumulation of considerable inventories for the winter months."

A bureau examination of 20 types of exported merchandise showed shipping costs could be reduced two to 67 cents per 100 pounds.

Last year, 32 ocean ships came to Quebec and carried 174,979 tons of goods valued roughly at $33,000,000 through the port. Imports—steel, cars, glass, chemicals, yarn, biscuits—made up 72,000 tons while exports — newsprint, pulp, asbestos, aluminium ingots — reached 102,000 tons.

Up to 35 ships are expected here this year, although only one company, J. Lauritzen lines of Copenhagen, has announced a schedule so far. The firm, which pioneered winter shipping to Quebec, will run a freighter every three weeks starting in January.

Canada Steamship Lines, with its ice freighter Eskimo, and Anglo - Canadian Pulp with its Granwood, are also expected back.

These ships are little icebreakers in themselves and rarely need help. They are aided by the tide which keeps ice flowing, and sail under which keeps ice mushy.

Winter shipping to points above Quebec is a moot point. The Eskimo on her maiden voyage last year made it to Trois-Rivieres. Experienced rivermen say reaching Montreal would be out of the question unless a number of icebreakers could patrol the river above Quebec.

Quebec has the facilities to handle all the winter shipping of the foreseeable future. Some 12 to 15 vessels could tie up in the section used during winter, where water is 35 feet deep. In summer, up to 40 vessels may tie up along the harbor's 4,000 feet of docks.

Winter shipping, says the trade bureau, has a direct effect on the Quebec city economy. "Opening of the port of Quebec year-round has obtain a noticeable picking up of activities for all the region for a period which up to now had been considered dead."

During summer, some 450 longshoremen are employed on the ships. Last winter, 200 of them earned $80 to $90 a week when ships were in. Total wages for the four - month winter period reached $511,000 against $228,000 in 1958-59 when coastal vessels were the only ships calling here.

Trucking firms made an extra $250,000, but there were no figures available for rail revenues.

Winter shipping also enabled men to find work keeping roads and rails free of snow in the port.

WINTER SHIPPING — Two rolls of newsprint are swung aboard the freighter Granwood at Quebec City last winter, first full season of scheduled winter shipping between Europe and the St. Lawrence port. Officials are hoping to improve on winter shipments this year in a drive to make Quebec City a year-round port. The Granwood carried pulp and newsprint to Britain for Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Company and is expected to operate out of Quebec City again this winter. (CP Photo).

German Censorship Board Says Book by Most Highly Decorated Nazi Is Dangerous

By JACK KOEHLER

BONN (AP) — The West German government's censorship board has classified as "dangerous to youth" a book by the most highly decorated soldier.

The book calls the Second World War a holy war. It glorifies the Nazi regime, and dismisses atrocities as mistakes occurring in the heat of battle.

The author, Hans Ulrich Rudel, former colonel and pilot of a fighter-bomber, was credited with destroying a battleship and 519 tanks in 2,800 combat missions.

The censorship board calls his book, Of War and Peace, a "hate and propaganda book against the present democratic order."

The board, headed by a former prosecutor, Robert Schilling, was established six years ago. It includes representatives of the arts, book publishers and distributors, youth organizations, the churches and the state governments.

"We cannot ban a publication but we can prohibit its sale to persons under 18 years of age and its public display," says Schilling.

"Also, we cannot act on our own initiative but only upon a complaint from a state government or a prosecutor."

Schilling said the board's first task was banning the sale of radistic "comic books" imported from the United States, Sweden and Italy.

"We were very successful in getting rid of this trash," he said, "and the distributors cooperated fully and without protest."

Hundreds of war adventure booklets have been flooding the market lately.

"These are being put out as true stories, but in most cases you can see after reading only a few pages that the author had absolutely no idea about military matters," Schilling said.

A number of these booklets already have been put on the board's blacklist. Some call Hitler's SS the "avant garde of the concept of a united Europe."

The booklets usually portray the Germans as "super heroes" who frequently gulp a glass of schnapps before squeezing the machine - gun trigger to mow down a few hundred Russian, American or British soldiers.

Aussie Scientists Seeking Spot to Lay Components Of Huge Radio Telescope

By HAROLD TILLEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY (CP) — Australian scientists are looking for a spot where they can lay the world's biggest cross. Its two interlocking arms will each be a mile long by one foot wide and with it men may find the key to the riddle of the universe.

The cross will form the main elements of a radio telescope designed by an Australian radio astronomer, Dr. B. Y. Mills of the University of Sydney, and destined to be the biggest of its kind in the world—30 times the size of the present largest radio telescope at Jodrell Bank, England.

Jodrell Bank's radio telescope is a dish-type with a diameter of 250 feet.

A third of the cost of $875,000 has been set aside for construction of the first stage of the project. The balance has yet to be raised.

LOCATION PROBLEM

But immediate problems are not constructional or financial. They are geographical.

Scientists want a location in New South Wales. It must be beyond the capital city of Sydney and well away from possible interference by radio or television stations because signals to be picked up by the Mills cross will not be man-made but will come from far outer space.

Prof. Harry Messel, Canadian-born and Canadian - educated head of the school of physics at Sydney University, said each mile-long arm of the cross running north and south and east and west would consist of a parabolic reflecting mesh which would collect the radio signals from space and focus them on an aerial running along the centre of the arms.

Data from the incoming radio waves would be analyzed by the university's electronic computer.

SEEK RADIO SOURCES

The great size of the cross telescope would give it far greater power than the dish-type telescope to pinpoint the exact sources of radio signals in the earth's galaxy—the milky way—and the distant reaches of space.

"Such observations are important for the study of the gaseous medium lying around and between the stars which probably hold the key to the problem of the formation and evolution of the 'galaxies,'" said Messel.

Prof. S. T. Butler, Messel's deputy, said the project would make Australia "one of the major world centres of radio astronomy."

Scientists hope the first section of the instrument will be in operation within two years and that the whole project will be completed within three or four years.

U.S. Satellite Starts Weather Forecast Work

Sends Cloud Pictures To Waiting Scientists

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A Tiros satellite was hurled into space orbit by the United States today and quickly started getting bird's eye cloud pictures which scientists hoped to use in actual weather forecasting.

The camera-carrying satellite—Tiros 1—sent rocketed upward at 6:13 a.m. EST from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Only two hours later the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced it had achieved successful orbit close to the planned height of 400 miles.

Then, in another two hours NASA reported that pictures had been received at Fort Monmouth, N.J., station of the army signal corps from the smaller of the two television cameras aboard the satellite.

Dr. Morris Tepper, chief of the space agency's meteorological activities, held a press conference in Washington that pictures had been received from the second camera. But they were not developed during a subsequent pass around the earth.

Tiros II was carried upward by a Thor-Able-Star booster Delta rocket.

Two hours later the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that the satellite was in orbit.

A NASA statement said:

"Initial indications show a perigee (low point) of 415 statute miles and apogee (high point) of 435 miles. The orbital period is 96 minutes.

This is close to the orbit sought.

The variation of only 20 miles from the exact orbit said the prime point of the orbit indicated that the satellite is in the most nearly circular orbit of any satellite yet launched.

The remarkably regular orbit also would indicate a relatively long life time for the satellite.

Project officials reported earlier that there was every indication the launching was successful.

Shaped like a large drum with two television cameras protruding from its sides, Tiros II resembles the extremely successful Tiros I which went into orbit last April. That satellite relayed 22,952 cloud cover pictures before its instruments ceased to work after 78 days. Tiros II is an advanced model.

Algerian Policy Referendum Will Be Held in Jan.

PARIS (Reuters) — President Charles de Gaulle's government today announced a referendum on his Algerian policy would be held simultaneously in France and Algeria within the first two weeks of January.

The cabinet also announced another appointment in its program to create semi-autonomous institutions for Algeria before the North African territory votes in a second referendum to decide its future relationship with France.

Information Minister Louis Terrenoire declared that Jean Morin, prefect of Toulouse, will succeed Paul Delouvrier as French delegate-general in Algeria.

Louis Joxe, a veteran diplomat and minister, was appointed French minister for Algeria.

De Gaulle is sponsoring an "Algerian Algeria" program in which the Algerians eventually would decide whether to remain linked with France or become completely independent.

Right-wing groups are bitterly opposing the program. They want Algeria to remain an integral part of France.

In Algeria itself, the "Front for French Algeria," a rightwing settlers' organization, denounced Joxe's appointment as "another sign that the umbilical cord binding Algeria and France will be broken.

De Gaulle also is opposed by Moslem nationalists who have waged a six-year war for independence, but they have refused to embrace de Gaulle's self-determination program.

The first referendum will establish the citizens of France and Algeria to vote for or against self-determination.

A second referendum, to be held only in Algeria, would take place only after hostilities cease.

Parties Facing Tests of Strength In Byelections

OTTAWA (CP)—Political interest is centred today on Joliette and Rouville constituencies where in byelections the Liberals and Conservatives and Union Nationale party are facing their first tests of strength since the June 18 provincial election.

Both parties regard the outcome of the vote as important. The Liberals are anxious to consolidate their June victory and to strengthen their position in the Legislature, while the Union Nationale, hard hit by federal Conservative setbacks, is also entitled its 16-year reign in office, is anxious to show it is still a power in provincial politics.

The standing in the legislature assembly now is:

Liberals 51; Union National 41; Independent 1; vacant 2; total 95.

Both Joliette and Rouville were held by prominent Union Nationale members of the house unously from the time the party was formed in 1936.

In what was considered an unprecedented move Tuesday, a group of self-described Union Nationale supporters urged Union Nationale voters in Rouville and Joliette to drop blank ballots into the boxes.

The request was made by The Committee of 13, a Montreal area organization whose announced aim is to purge and rejuvenate the Union Nationale party.

SEE NEXT MOVE DIEFENBAKER'S IN RAIL CRISIS

Believe Personal Intervention Likely

OTTAWA (CP)—The stage has been set for the federal government's next move in dealing with Canada's onrushing railway strike crisis.

Observers suggest it will likely be a personal intervention by Prime Minister Diefenbaker. The cabinet, it is understood, is still considering ways of solving the management-labor wage crisis.

After a weekend cabinet-level conference in Montreal, the 15-member cabinet negotiating team rejected the government's proposal to have the strike crisis shunted six months into the future.

The government wanted the unions to accept a wage freeze pending a royal commission. The commission had turned in its report on the country's transportation troubles.

REJECTED OFFER!

The unions are also understood to have rejected an earlier government offer for half of the 16-per-cent increase they want and the rest after the commission report is available.

In sticking to the strike decision, the unions are relying on the bargaining power it commands.

A proposal for a three-stage wage increase over a two-year contract. They accepted the board's recommendation even though it was less than they originally asked.

Monday, Dec. 5 deadline still standing for the country - wide walkout of some 111,000 railway employees in the bargaining unit.

Soon the CPR and CNR will have to begin cutting back and shutting down their rational services when they will have to start refusing to accept traffic. Even if the strike is averted at the last minute, railway managers must begin soon to impose embargoes on freight shipments.

CANNOT AFFORD STRIKE

Indications are the government cannot permit a strike to take place — that it cannot afford a railway tie - up as the country prepares for the busy period of high unemployment. The government could subsidize the railways so that the wage settlements would be met and the strike averted. Or it could impose compulsory arbitration. Or it could impose a wage freeze. A wage rate freeze so they could seek more revenues to meet the wage bill.

Canada's trucking industry is already battling for subsidy itself as a dangerous precedent for government to adopt. The arbitration idea, which is effect would compel railway workers give up their right to strike, would provoke a major attack on the government from the labor movement.

Election May Be Postponed

TORONTO (CP) — Election for Toronto's four-man board of control may be postponed because of the death of one of the nine candidates.

George Holland, a familiar but unsuccessful figure in Toronto civic politics, collapsed and died on the street Tuesday. He campaigned as a "Vote for Holland, White Canada Party."

Four days ago Mr. Morris said ballots for the board of control may have to be withdrawn from the Dec. 5 civic election. New nominations may be necessary with an election later in December.

New Orleans School Teachers Face Payless Payday Due Integration

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Louisiana legislature goes back to work today after governor Jimmie Davis tossed into the legislature's lap the problem of paying New Orleans public school teachers.

The teachers faced a payless payday because a series of legislative efforts to cut off funds to the Orleans Parish (county) school board to stymie federal integration.

The governor last night Davis said the teachers would be paid.

But the governor left it up to the legislature to provide the funds.

Earlier Dr. James Redmond, New Orleans public school superintendent, said there were no funds to meet the $1,900,000 payroll due for 4,500 teachers, principals and other school employees.

Davis aid cheques will be prepared today and delivered by the end of the week.

Public schools in New Orleans were integrated Nov. 14 when four Negro girls entered first-grade classes previously attended all-white schools. The system is closed this week due to a statewide teachers convention at Baton Rouge and the U.S. Thanksgiving holidays.

The dropping of classroom racial barriers for the first time since the reconstruction era touched off a wave of riots and violence in New Orleans.

Davis said there were no funds to meet the $1,900,000 payroll.

Members of Ontario House Settle Down to Business

TORONTO (CP)—Members of the Ontario legislature today settled down to regular chores mining the first of a series of Tuesday's opening session.

Premier Frost and his Progressive Conservative government expected final opposition to government policies announced in the speech from the throne.

Highlight of the throne address was the announcement of plans to form a department of tourism and recreation, development "with a view to stimulating business, increasing production and employment."

The throne speech avoided outright mention of plans for a provincial sales tax. But some Queen's Park sources saw a hint in the assertion that Canada's 10 provinces are constitutionally equal to an equal share of the major fields of direct taxation, including personal income.

The policy statement said the department of tourism would also extend its studies of the province's economy with the formation of a new industrial development department.

Special studies will be made of Ontario business relations with the United States, with particular reference to ways of reducing the imbalance in trade with tourists.

As part of the reorganization, a department of travel industry will be established to complement the government's present commercial and industrial development work.

The speech stressed the need to stimulate production and employment, while increasing the processing of raw materials. Assistance was expressed to the failure of secondary industry to keep pace with the province's growing economy.

The government also indicated it will undertake a comprehensive winter works program.

There will be public schools for the deaf and for retarded children, hospitals, administrative offices and laboratories, facilities, reform institutions and training schools, and conservation projects—all of which are necessary to meet Ontario's growth requirements," the speech said.

Other plans include an expanded forest management program and parks system, modernization of the provincial correctional programs, more scholarships and bursaries for needy students, and more funds for municipalities, school boards and hospital building grants.

Present standing in the 98-seat legislature is Conservatives 72 Liberals and five CCF members.

For the first time since 1947 the session will be split in two with it will sit until mid-December, then recess until late January and continue until spring.

West Germany Will Not Pay For Upkeep of U.S. Soldiers

BONN (Reuters) — An American financial mission left here by air today after what it described as a "very successful" visit.

The mission, which was headed by Edward Foy, undersecretary of the army, said this afternoon that Germany had agreed to pay for the support of its own troops stationed on American soil.

West German Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard and Foy met here at the airport that Germany had said to say "no" to the request for a direct contribution to the dollar outflow arising from the stationing of some 400,000 servicemen and their dependents between them account for more than $600,000,000.

The statement insisted that support of this kind must be arranged on a multilateral basis through the North Atlantic treaty organization. Germany has taken some months, the sources said.

In Frankfurt today, the central bank announced West Germany's foreign currency reserves have risen by $1,000,000,000 since February. It said that in the week to Dec. 7 they increased by about $21,000,000 to $7,353,000,000 although gold reserves remained unchanged.

The conference communique said the United States had "warmly welcomed" West Germany's plan to make about $700,000,000 to $721,020,000 available in aid to underdeveloped countries next year.

Russia Makes Tough Reply To Critics of Coexistence

MOSCOW—(AP)—Russia, in a tough rejoinder to its critics within the Communist camp, said today peaceful coexistence is not a controlling principle in foreign policies.

The declaration in Pravda, the official Communist party newspaper, indicated that hard bargaining on Communist world tactics is going on behind the scenes. "summit" meeting here that has been in progress for two weeks and Soviet Premier Khrushchev's theories of peaceful coexistence, which critics say that a third world war may not be inevitable, said it was an "absolute truth." Communists get along with imperialism.

WILDCAT STRIKE OF TRAIN CREWS IS THREATENED

CNR Asking Crews To Double Runs

OTTAWA (CP)—Railway rifles confronting the federal government were compounded Tuesday by the threat of a wildcat strike of trail crews on the CNR main line between Toronto and Winnipeg.

The fresh development came as the cabinet was seeking a way to avert the scheduled Dec. 5 strike by 111,000 railroad employees, a walkout that would tie up all transcontinental services of both the CNR and CPR.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) warned in the Commons that the CNR crew members—engineers, firemen, brakemen and conductors—may sidestep their union contracts and stage an illegal walkout on grievances, Tuesday night.

Their grievance grew out of the railway's operating decision to launch a new, fast freight service between Toronto and the West, a move that would require the task crews to double the length of their runs, a change-over-changing points on the Ontario main line.

MAY BE CAPBOL

Outside the House, Mr. Fisher said the "wildcat strike" could well be Capreol, a CNR divisional point 400 miles north of Toronto, where the crews may refuse to board the first of the new fast freight runs when it is due to pass Thursday morning.

Transport Minister Hees and other officials of the three operating brotherhoods involved met Transport Minister Hees here in the afternoon. Union official described as an attempt to head off a wildcat walkout and avert possible illegal strike by the railway workers.

It was understood that Mr. Balcer agreed to take up the matter with CNR President Donald Gordon.

Meeting with Mr. Balcer were T. P. Short, local chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers (ind.); N. W. Fawcett, local chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen (ind.); and W. T. Birney, local chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (ind.).

PROTEST MOVE

Late, Mr. Short told a reporter the brotherhoods were protesting the management move for two new runs.

1. With nearly six months to go before the union contracts are scheduled to be renegotiated with the CNR, the railway had announced down east threats" and decisions without negotiations, and one which substantially changed union working conditions.

2. By doubling their runs to around 250 miles, from 125 to between 10 and 11 hours, crews would become fatigued—dangerously tired—and that a better train operation for both the public and railway employees.

Heiress Found Not Guilty Of Manslaughter

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—An all-male jury has found Mrs. Beverley Ann Weary, 28-year-old heiress, not guilty of a charge of manslaughter.

The verdict was announced in the Superior Court in St. Jerome Tuesday night and spent the night in a local hotel.

Mrs. Weary, wearing a black heavy hat, trim charcoal - grey suit and white blouse, sat composed and expressionless as she heard the decision.

Prime Minister Georges Reid looked at Mrs. Weary and said: "You are free to go, Madame."

Mrs. Weary was charged in connection with the May 16 rifle-slaying of Clifford Tyrrell Bridger 53, killed by a .22-calibre rifle bullet while he was at a party in her Ste. Adele summer home.

In testimony, Mrs. Weary — an heiress and great-grandaughter of Sir Hugh Allan, Canada's first millionaire — said Mr. Bridger had been playing with a rifle fired accidentally when it slipped while walking out onto a wet porch.

She told the court that her trust even the "wildest haters of communism and socialism" to work out control methods.

Down Payments Cut, Loans Up To Aid Housing

Municipalities Will Be Assisted in Projects

Maximum loans to home builders under NHA would be increased, and down payments diminished; municipalities would be further assisted in carrying out slum clearance projects and in constructing sewerage works; loans would be provided for the erection of student residences at Canadian universities.

SAYS TOO LATE

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) Four Congolese soldiers killed in a clash outside the Ghanaian Embassy Monday were driven in funeral procession through the streets of Leopoldville by armed companies of "out with the UN" from some of the thousands of spectators along the route.
